1969

Colby Alumnus Vol. 58, No. 4: Summer-Fall 1969

Colby College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.colby.edu/alumnus

Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Colby College, "Colby Alumnus Vol. 58, No. 4: Summer-Fall 1969" (1969). Colby Alumnus. 64.
https://digitalcommons.colby.edu/alumnus/64

This Other is brought to you for free and open access by the College Archives: Colbiana Collection at Digital Commons @ Colby. It has been accepted for inclusion in Colby Alumnus by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Colby. For more information, please contact mfkelly@colby.edu.
Retirement: the Chappie era ends  After forty-one years professor, counselor, helper, ALFRED K. CHAPMAN ends his career. An attempt, albeit feeble, to honor one of those rare persons who truly deserves to be called 'beloved, dedicated.'

Patriotism then and now. . . Based on four Civil War letters recently presented to the college, JOHN J. PULLEN '35 melds a provocative article on the intriguing problem having to do with a democracy at war. Mr. Pullen is author of the book, The Twentieth Maine.

Baccalaureate: some dicta . . . PRESIDENT STRIDER discusses those characteristics he believes the graduate should possess, basing this broadly on two statements. The first: Faulkner's, 'I decline to accept the end of man'; the second, David McCord's, 'Life is the only thing we have to lead.'

Comments on studentry (France, America) . . . Parallels and non-parallels, between the student uprising in France in 1968 and the unrest and rebellion, on American campuses. JEAN RUNDY, head of the department of modern foreign languages, offers his analysis — through first-hand experience: he was in France on a Fulbright grant during that stormy year.

Of words and visual bridges A COLBY parent (DONNA '70), EARL SUNDAY is supervising editor in charge of graphic arts technical publications at Eastman Kodak in Rochester. He has, in recent years, worked on programs (in schools and colleges) concerned with the urgent need for education in effective communication — especially as applied to the visual and graphic arts. National executive secretary of the Technical Association of the Graphic Arts, he has received SAGA's Elmer G. Voigt award as well as the President's medal of the International Graphic Arts Education Association.

Expanded issue The summer and fall issues are combined in this Alumni. The decision was made to bridge a change in editorship brought about by the resignation of Ian L. Robertson '51 (see page 18). In view of the delay in publication, some items in the class notes section may be out of date. The editors regret and apologize for any inaccuracies.

Photography LAURENCE NELSON '69: front cover, 21, inside back cover; PETER PENNYPACKER '69: 18, 23; RONALD SCHERL '66: 1, 3; M. HAYEY '72: 30-31, 33; EARL SMITH: 9, 13, 28.

Paper collage on page 15 by SHARON ESCHENBECK '69. The eagles (11') are nineteenth century woodcuts and engravings.

summer-fall 1969 THE COLBY ALUMNUS volume 58 number 4 is also vol. 59, no. 1 (Fall)
'... last night (said Gandalf) I told you of Sauron the Great, the Dark Lord. The rumours that you have heard are true: he has indeed arisen again and left his hold in Mirkwood and returned to his ancient fastness in the Dark Tower of Mordor. That name even you hobbits have heard of, like a shadow on the borders of old stories. Always after a defeat and a respite, the Shadow takes another shape and grows again.'

'I wish it need not have happened in my time,' said Frodo. 'So do I,' said Gandalf, 'and so do all who live to see such times. But that is not for them to decide. All we have to decide is what to do with the time that is given us. And already, Frodo, our time is beginning to look black.'

(J. R. R. Tolkien, The Fellowship of the Ring)

(FAUN, in The Wretched of the Earth:
Every spectator is a coward or a traitor.)

Any friend of mine (said Mr Badger) walks where he likes in this country, or I'll know the reason why.

(Kenneth Grahame, The Wind in the Willow)
Alfred King Chapman retired this June after forty-one years at Colby. The college, suddenly (unthinkably) sans Chappie, was different. His years here have effected a marked, profound influence on the spirit of the campus, and, of course, on the lives of hundreds of students and members of the faculty and staff. The place, as they say, isn't quite the same. Memorable teacher. Authority on the Romantic poets. Counselor to those troubled, and those in trouble. Cheerer of the young beset with the agonies of being young. Horticulturist extraordinaire. Wise man.

(The summation could go on. But would not convey this: Chappie is one of those rare persons deserving to be called 'dedicated' and 'beloved'—terms applied too casually far too often in academe.)

The shift of Colby, halfway through his tenure, from downtown to Mayflower Hill, did delete something from college life: Chappie's rooms in Roberts Hall, where he was proctor for some twenty years.

(The red leather chair, with footrest, Chappie ensconced in it. A myriad of tables covered with books and blue books, magazines, papers and seed catalogues. The wall-full of portraits of poets. A jungle of plants, so thickly profuse you couldn’t see the windows, let alone out of them. Everything, it seemed, within an arm’s reach of the chair. A dusky kind of atmosphere, slightly smoky, reminiscent of late afternoon on a cold Sunday following a Saturday night of some sort or other.)

And the kind man, sitting, listening, hearing you.

Even though part of all of this ended up in his office in Miller Library and the rest in the Pleasant Street apartment, it did not mark any cessation in his work. Chappie has never stopped, never slipped out of contemporary life. ‘You’ve got to keep up with them’ he says of students, and students returning as alumni (even after many years) tell him he doesn’t look a bit different than before and, if anything, just a shade younger. Zest may be the word. One undergraduate
The rewards of the teacher are so intangible—
... They are that feeling of satisfaction after a stimulating class, a gleam in the eye of an appreciative student, the surprising insight demonstrated in the answer to a routine question, the excitement of teaching some well-loved piece of poetry or elegantly-proved theorem—the genuine interest in and love of young people.

And above all else the conviction that the search for truth about any subject is our ultimate goal.

PROFESSOR LUCILLE ZUKOWSKI
(at Homecoming 1960, dedicated to Alfred K. Chapman.)

Perhaps good teaching and good gardening go together. One need not do either to do the other, but they do complement each other. So we wish Chappie long years more of good gardening, and some of us... may still call on him for advice from time to time about our academic garden, whether it is to help us with digging or nurturing or transplanting or pruning, or just simply weeding.

PRESIDENT ROBERT E. L. STRIDER

Yes, they did. They had a question to stop the man with the amazing knowledge of the Romantics—and their lives. The group of students let one of the English professors in on it.
But he sought out Professor Chapman.
' I suppose I shouldn't tell you this, but some of your students are planning to spring a rather unfair question on you. They're going to ask you the name of the boat Shelley was sailing in when he was drowned.'

Chappie cleared his throat (sitting back, cigarette extended). 'Actually, now, it had two names...'

Retirement: the Chappie era ends called him 'a jolly guy in both physical appearance and personality... (his) free form silhouette bespeaks an enjoyment of life.' And President Strider noted:

'He will be thought of... principally as a memorable teacher of English literature, rigorous but always fair, full of fun but serious about important things.'

Chappie lives now in a house, off the hill drive, next to his lots. (An unfair appellation for those lilac-lined profusions of flowers and flowering trees.) One of these is, however, devoted to vegetables. And it is also a community garden. At his general invitation, several neighborhood families have begun their own kitchen gardens on that land, provided plowed and ready for planting.

Although I favor generally conservative usage,
I can pass over tho and thru without any violent reaction, but let nite appear on a student paper and the lead of my red pencil is likely to break.
To be sure, we have both site and sight,
not to mention cite, but their confusion arouses no such ire as the disreputable nite. Nite is not rite in my site.

AKC

Chronology
AB, Colby, 1925 (Phi Beta Kappa); AM, Harvard, 1928.
Instructor in English, 1928-1934; assistant professor,
1934-1946; associate professor, 1946-1952; professor,
1952-1953; Roberts Professor of English Literature,
1953-1969. Chairman, department of English, 1953-

1965. Recipient (with Professor-emeritus Walter Breckenridge) of an honorary LHD, 1968. Homecoming dedicated to him, 1960. Member, Delta Kappa Epsion, and advisor to that fraternity for many years;
as an undergraduate, editor-in-chief of the Echo; staff sergeant, Army Air Corps, 1942-1945.
Following the bombardment and surrender of Fort Sumter in April 1861, Abraham Lincoln went out on the limb farther than any president has ever ventured before or since. Without even the 1861 equivalent of a Tonkin Gulf Resolution he assumed powers not constitutionally granted to the Executive, raising and supporting armed forces, seizing railroads and telegraph lines and in certain places suspending the writ of habeas corpus.

Yet Lincoln need not have had a moment’s fear that the Congress, when it met, would not legalize his actions or that the people of the North would not support him in everything he did. When old Edmund Ruffin pulled the lanyard of the legendary first gun that fired on Sumter he touched off a propelling charge that was a good deal larger than the one inside the cannon: a tremendous accumulation of emotional explosives that had been building up for years — back through John Brown’s raid and hanging, back through Uncle Tom’s Cabin, back even to the martyrdom of Colby’s Lovejoy.

It was this overwhelming emotional commitment that Lincoln realized he had behind him. It is expressed quite typically in part of Zemro Smith’s July 1862 letter: ‘Emery, I can give my blood to cement the Union — to strengthen the government, but I will never see her call for aid — never, never, see the government destroyed.’

It is also indicated in Ernest Marriner’s description of what happened on the Colby campus (The History of Colby College, p. 153). When the Fort Sumter news arrived, drill was started on the campus that very afternoon, and Colby men who a few months before could not have imagined themselves as soldiers went off to war with ‘blazing enthusiasm and sacred rage’.

For the purpose of this commentary, this is the sort of emotion that we are equating with patriotism: zealous support of the national government in the application of military force. In the Civil War letters:

On four Civil War letters: patriotism then and now

The four letters on which the article is based were given to the college by William J. Pollack ’21; he discovered them while going through family papers in his Illinois home prior to moving to Albuquerque, New Mexico. James Smith, the writer of the letters, reputedly became a colonel and, following the war, was prominent in newspaper work. And Charles Emery, the recipient, was the son of Alben Emery, a local wool merchant. His son founded Chicago Rawhide, and that company donated the Emery Room in Miller Library.
War it was strong enough to last for the duration, and undoubtedly it was a winning factor along with superiority of manpower and materiel, although the draft and other stern measures had to be resorted to. (See Nathaniel B. Coleman’s letter beginning, ‘Bro. Charlie: How are you prospering these days of proscription and conscription?’) And one of the most dramatic indications of just how durable this spirit was came as an aftermath to a scene that Coleman describes in his letter of 10 November 1862—the leave-taking of McClellan after being dismissed from command of the Army of the Potomac. Coleman wrote, ‘McClellan may be superceded (sic) in command, but never can he be superceded in the affections of his soldiers.’

But what happened, almost exactly two years later when McClellan was opposing Lincoln in the presidential election and when he was the candidate nearest to promising (although he had repudiated his party’s platform pledge to that end) a negotiated conclusion of the war? Coleman’s regiment, the 20th Maine, voted McClellan down 138 to 13. And in the whole army of the Potomac the vote was decisively for Lincoln. It was a remarkable demonstration of moral integrity, for the soldiers were voting to continue sending their own lines charging against field works where many of them would meet certain death. This military vote did much to stiffen the spine of the North at a time when many civilians, sickened by the monstrous losses of the spring-summer 1864 campaign, were wavering. It was a result that declared, as Zemro Smith said in his 16 September 1864 letter, ‘Things look cheering to us, and you must not get discouraged in the rear.’

This brings up a most interesting speculation. What would have been the verdict from Vietnam last fall if the presidential candidates had been forthright enough to take clear sides on the war issue, and if the soldiers’ votes had been tabulated separately instead of being dispersed to their various home communities through absentee ballots? It might have been very illuminating. Another question: who decided, when, and after what discussions that separate tabulations for armies in the field should be discontinued? There have been only two years, 1864 and 1968, when there was an issue bearing upon the continuance of a war, but the situation may arise again, and it suggests intriguing problems having to do with a democracy at war. The obvious reason for the non-tabulation is, of course, that it might be dangerous to make the enemy aware of a negative attitude on the part of our soldiery. But it might be very dangerous to be unaware of this ourselves. In the case of the Army of the Potomac there was a distinct advantage in disclosure: the returns were an immense discouragement to the South.

A question of much more relevancy, as the Vietnam war has taught us, has to do with the advisability of applying military force without a strong emotional commitment on the part of the general population. In going ahead without this support, LBJ took on a handicap which was not assumed by Lincoln in the Civil War, or by McKinley in the Spanish war, or by Wilson in WWI, or by Roosevelt in WWII or even by Truman in Korea. The four of these were preceded by events which provoked the public wrath, and the last one had at least the sanction of United Nations participation.

We are not really a warlike nation. Even the Civil War, intense as it was in its emotional effect, did not receive universal support. Let anyone who believes otherwise read the contemporary newspaper accounts. On the day in 1863 when national conscription was to go into effect, in at least one New England city the railroads had to put on extra cars to accommodate the men who were running away, and there were draft riots in Boston, New York and other cities the like of which has never been seen for murder, arson, atrocious assault and other violence.
It is not my impression that there was any great outburst of pacifism following the Civil War, although the madness and tragedy of that great conflict certainly would have justified it. Perhaps there were just so many veterans, so many widows, so many parents deprived of sons that it would have been intolerable to advance the thought that all of this sacrifice might have been unnecessary. But there were revulsions against military training, one at Bowdoin where, in 1874, members of the freshman, sophomore and junior classes refused to turn out for drill. The man who had to deal with this was General Joshua Chamberlain. Nathaniel Coleman’s onetime commander, then president of the college. Chamberlain sent the recreants all home followed by a letter to their parents informing them that the boys would have to comply with Bowdoin rules or be kicked out. The students returned, but the courage and decisiveness which had served Chamberlain and his 20th Maine well on Little Round Top did not serve him so well here. The governing boards soon afterward voted to make drill optional, and in 1879 the faculty voted to abolish it altogether.

According to Marriner the Spanish war was too short to have much effect on the collegiate world, but his history includes much about the impact of WWI on the Colby Campus, which appears to have been to some degree a repetition of what happened in the Civil War. Again there was an emotional outburst provoked by outrages real and imagined on the part of the Germans and a whole-hearted participation in a unified national effort, this time to ‘make the world safe for democracy.’ Again there was a rush to enlist, again military training on the campus by popular student demand as well as government edict. And professors were teaching military subjects: Parmenter and Weeks, Chemical Warfare; Trefethen, Navigation; Chester, Sanitation and Hygiene; Marquardt, Military German; Helie, Military French; Libby, Military English (that I would like to have sat in on) and so forth. The Echo said: ‘It is now a college changed overnight into an armed camp.’

But with the war over, the mood of the country and of Colby rapidly changed to one of disillusionment. It is hardly necessary to recount the many measures of pacifism and neutralism which the nation constitutionally adopted during the 1920’s and 1930’s. However, it requires a rather hard digging into the memory to recall something that happened at Colby in the early 1930’s. Until recently, for several years I had been under the uncomfortable impression that many of us had signed something that pledged us never to go to war; and then, of course, we had gone. What was my relief, therefore, and improved expectation of getting to heaven, to hear from Sid Farr that this was not an oath but simply a vote. Sid reported, after searching the files and consulting the Echo of 19 April 1933, ‘In that issue, there appears an article concerning a balloting of the Colby men regarding their attitude toward participation in war. Apparently this was an outgrowth of the Oxford balloting in England where the student body voted not to support the King and country in the event of war. At Colby it is recorded that slightly over 50% of the male students voted, or 235 ballots cast. The breakdown is as follows: 15% voted that they would not participate in war, period; 61% voted that they would only participate in a war if the mainland of the United States were actually invaded; and 24% indicated that they would participate in any war which was approved by the President and declared by Congress.’

Apparently the framing of the questionnaire did not provide for an undeclared foreign war, but from the results it can be seen that support for the Vietnam type of war would have been extremely small.

We of that and older generations can all remember how strong the spirit of neutralism was in the Thirties and how hard we as a nation tried to stay out of the European war, even though we were being enraged by the actions of two of the most satisfactory villains the world has ever seen: Hitler and Mussolini. With all such emotional inducements, and even though he knew perfectly well that this was a conflict that America could not avoid, Roosevelt — consummate politician that he was — did not venture to recommend our entry prior to Pearl Harbor. No one knows how much longer we might have stayed out had it not been for the infamous attack on 7 December 1941. This was a fulminate comparable to the firing on Fort Sumter. In an extremely frank and revealing passage of his war memoirs Churchill said that after he had received the news of Pearl Harbor he went to bed and ‘slept the sleep of the saved and the thankful.’ He recalled at the time something suggested to him by Edward Grey: that the United States is like a big boiler and once a fire is lit under it there is no limit to its power.

For WW II, the story of what happened on the Colby campus roughly paralleled that of WW I and the Civil War. Some 550 Colby men and women served with, I am sure, little doubt about the rightness of the cause and little regret later on about their participation. Overseas, many saw things which will always make it very difficult for them to believe that the world is as civilized a place as some people seem to think it is, or that supposedly civilized nations are not capable of enormous evil, or that competent armed forces are not necessary for the security of our country.

Yet we must own that success in WW II inspired a confidence in diplomacy backed by military force that has taken us too far. Also that the necessity for public support for war in a democratic society such as ours has been imperiously disregarded.

[FUSE FOR THE PATRIOTIC POWDER KEG]
When, in August 1964, it was reported that North Vietnamese vessels had launched torpedoes at U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin, the President and the Congress acted almost as though this were another Fort Sumter, another Pearl Harbor, another fuse to the patriotic powder keg.

But there proved to be insufficient powder in the barrel. And not only did emotional support fail to develop, but the President found himself unable to explain the war in rational terms — a difficulty which is always to be expected, since war is seldom a rational exercise. Vietnam was a conundrum. Could it have been said that this was a war fought to safeguard lines of supply and materials vital to our nation? Of course, but when you ask men to die for The Economy, you are obviously in trouble. Was there virtue in the ‘domino theory’, or the idea of stemming the yellow or the red tide or in the argument that ‘if we fight ‘em there we won’t have to fight ‘em on the California coast?’ Possibly, but dying is a very serious business and the necessity for it needs to be based on something more than hypotheses. Well then, what about ‘the defense of freedom-loving peoples?’ A fine idea, but it just doesn’t seem to excite the American people sufficiently — unless the freedom-loving people happens to be us.
Beyond this there appear to be several reasons why patriotism (still equated with support of the national government in the use of military force) has appeared to be at a low ebb during this period. Among them:

1. The lack of a clear and present danger to our country, or at least the public recognition of such danger.

2. The fact that this is a so-called limited war. From this concept have followed a whole train of inequities to the national spirit. There are, for example, the much-referenced inequities of the draft. But a much more serious inequity is the condition of having one part of the population (the members of the armed forces and their families) suffering the anguish of war while another and a greater part enjoys the pursuits of prosperity and peace. It is one thing, perhaps morally justifiable, to sacrifice a few that many may live. But it is another if the many are living in affluence and case. From the idea of limited war also follows an attitude of apathy and unconcern on the part of the uninvolved population. The general passiveness with which the capture of the Pueblo was greeted while some of the captured men were hoping for retaliation even at the cost of their own destruction may only be typical of the attitude of most people toward all of our armed forces overseas, including those in Vietnam. However much it may be in the national interest, there is something intensely dispiriting about the calculated measuring-out of blood which, we are learning, is the limited war.

3. Media and other treatment of the war which have been unsentimental in the extreme. There are no Ernie Pyles writing about the Vietnam war and no heroes emerging from it. Even with more than seventy-five awards of the Medal of Honor, there are no Audie Murphys. Actions are reported (of necessity) in terms of 'body counts' rather than of peoples liberated, objectives won and so forth. Coming home for the average Vietnam veteran is a disappointing and thankless experience; he is largely ignored by people who are going about their daily business as if a war as real to him and his family as ww II was to all of us actually did not exist. For the parents of the dead, this attitude is, despite the many expressions of personal sympathy extended to them, an added and a most pathetic burden.

4. A growing dissatisfaction with the quality of life in America which many people rightly or wrongly believe could be improved with funds spent for warfare.

5. Talk of the military-industrial complex. The fact that this is a little more complex that the old merchants-of-death concept, entangling as it does so many defense-supported communities, labor groups, universities, and others, not thought of as 'bad people' only spreads the guilt. The fact that this complex is something we might be very thankful for in time of great crisis has not much bearing at present. This establishment does exist and everyone knows it. A continuous display on TV and in the press of obviously expensive armament, particular airborne, and of much recently invented materiel, and of the landscape being sprayed with ammunition, gives the impression that Vietnam has become a Disneyland of military technology. Moreover, certain statistics are almost incredible: for example, those indicating that more bombs have been dropped than in WW II, or that the defense budget is approaching that of WW II. All this, against the background of what we are assured is a limited war, not a big one, is profoundly disturbing.

6. The state of the economy. Col. George S. Patton, III, now in Vietnam and apparently as outspoken as his famous father, is reported to have said that the public is 'too interested in the pursuit of the buck, not in the future of the country.' What the Colonel did not say is that the public had jolly well better be chasing the buck; the individual, particularly if he has a family and sons or daughters in college, and with ammunition to buy for the Colonel's tanks on top of it, doesn't have much choice. He becomes all the more apprehensive when he has a government that tells him, 'We will save you from inflation by increasing your taxes 10%.' What Patton supposedly said has a large element of truth, but he might have said continued, page 25
Every June

[COMMENCEMENT: THE 148TH FOR COLBY]

This annual ceremonial has a way of coming on fast about the first of April: somehow that far-off event is suddenly just around the corner. Then it is upon you: the processions to and from Baccalaureate, and Commencement itself. It all seems a repeat, the same — and yet each such event has its own differences. The differences existing between the individuals of one graduating class and another, and another year of history.

The college's 148th Commencement on June 1 was, in the midst of the unrest on some larger campuses, quiet. There were no demonstrations, no protests. The three hundred and twenty new alumni and alumnae listened to President Strider's Baccalaureate address (excerpts appear in this issue) and the Commencement address by Senator Quentin N. Burdick of North Dakota. They filed up, one by one, to receive their sheepskin, sang Hail, Colby, Hail!, and left the Wadsworth Gymnasium. It was, in a way, all over.

The class, however, was a most unusual one. Forty-two graduated with academic honors, a new high for Colby. Four were summa cum laude, ten magna cum laude, twenty-eight cum laude. Twenty-seven seniors and one junior comprised the largest single group ever inducted into Phi Beta Kappa in its seventy-four-year history at the college.

Among the graduates earning summa was Doris Downing, who has been affiliated with the registrar's office for several years. In completing her study for the AB (begun at Smith), she earned distinction in her major, French. Mrs. Downing, a mother of six and a grandmother, had one of her children precede her: Patricia, class of 1964.

Mary Bauman Gates '49, whose marriage (to Alfred Gates '50) and seven subsequent children postponed her diploma, received her AB in a special ceremony at the Class of 1949 Reunion Dinner; President Strider made the presentation. She completed her requirements through evening courses at Westchester Community College in New York.
MATE for the exchange of creative ideas between institutions is not the only place for institutional interchange. The competition of the athletic field is not the only place for institutional interchange.

The amount of pollutants a river, or air space over a city, can absorb without degradation of environmental quality is strictly limited.

Cooperative planning will not waste ... Industry should pay an appropriate price for the rivers or other natural resources it degrades ... We can't simply prohibit pollution, without prohibiting a good deal of necessary economic activity.

(Richard Kellenberger, professor of modern languages; at the same dinner:

I submit that there is something fundamentally wrong with the concept of student power when it is exercised at the level of long range policy-making decisions. When the young and inexperienced command without restraint the older and experienced, there is imbalance if not injustice; we presumably did away with this form of tyranny when we abolished the hereditary monarchy. Further, is it just or wise to have members of the constituency, whose effective tenure is at most for three years, and whose legal and financial responsibility are really nil, make decisions that will determine the welfare of the permanent and responsible members of the constituency for years to come? There is no guarantee that decisions reached by one student generation will be palatable to the next. To revise and rethink all policy matters every two or three years would find us forever among the trees and never seeing the woods. There would be no end to this kind of polemic. Finally, the dissatisfied student has an 'out' that no other member of the college has to such a degree: he may withdraw at any time and seek elsewhere a program more to his liking.'

Richard Kellenberger, professor of modern languages; at the same dinner:

I submit that there is something fundamentally wrong with the concept of student power when it is exercised at the level of long range policy-making decisions. When the young and inexperienced command without restraint the older and experienced, there is imbalance if not injustice; we presumably did away with this form of tyranny when we abolished the hereditary monarchy. Further, is it just or wise to have members of the constituency, whose effective tenure is at most for three years, and whose legal and financial responsibility are really nil, make decisions that will determine the welfare of the permanent and responsible members of the constituency for years to come? There is no guarantee that decisions reached by one student generation will be palatable to the next. To revise and rethink all policy matters every two or three years would find us forever among the trees and never seeing the woods. There would be no end to this kind of polemic. Finally, the dissatisfied student has an 'out' that no other member of the college has to such a degree: he may withdraw at any time and seek elsewhere a program more to his liking.'

Richard Kellenberger, professor of modern languages; at the same dinner:

I submit that there is something fundamentally wrong with the concept of student power when it is exercised at the level of long range policy-making decisions. When the young and inexperienced command without restraint the older and experienced, there is imbalance if not injustice; we presumably did away with this form of tyranny when we abolished the hereditary monarchy. Further, is it just or wise to have members of the constituency, whose effective tenure is at most for three years, and whose legal and financial responsibility are really nil, make decisions that will determine the welfare of the permanent and responsible members of the constituency for years to come? There is no guarantee that decisions reached by one student generation will be palatable to the next. To revise and rethink all policy matters every two or three years would find us forever among the trees and never seeing the woods. There would be no end to this kind of polemic. Finally, the dissatisfied student has an 'out' that no other member of the college has to such a degree: he may withdraw at any time and seek elsewhere a program more to his liking.'

Richard Kellenberger, professor of modern languages; at the same dinner:

I submit that there is something fundamentally wrong with the concept of student power when it is exercised at the level of long range policy-making decisions. When the young and inexperienced command without restraint the older and experienced, there is imbalance if not injustice; we presumably did away with this form of tyranny when we abolished the hereditary monarchy. Further, is it just or wise to have members of the constituency, whose effective tenure is at most for three years, and whose legal and financial responsibility are really nil, make decisions that will determine the welfare of the permanent and responsible members of the constituency for years to come? There is no guarantee that decisions reached by one student generation will be palatable to the next. To revise and rethink all policy matters every two or three years would find us forever among the trees and never seeing the woods. There would be no end to this kind of polemic. Finally, the dissatisfied student has an 'out' that no other member of the college has to such a degree: he may withdraw at any time and seek elsewhere a program more to his liking.'
QUENTIN NORTHROP BURDICK (LLD) Few frontiers remain in this mechanism world. One of them in the land is our own state of Maine, and on this important occasion we welcome a distinguished citizen from another frontier to the westward. Native of North Dakota, graduate of the neighboring University of Minnesota and of its School of Law, his paternal heritage as well as his natural inclination led him back to the practice of law and engagement in political enterprise in his native state. Working through the Non-partisan League as well as the usual party organizations, he entered upon campaigns for public office. Undeterred, like Robert Bruce and his indefatigable spider, by six defeats, he tried a seventh time and became in 1958 the first Democratic Congressman in the history of North Dakota. In 1960, in a special election to fill an unexpired term, he was elected to the United States Senate, and re-elected to a full term in 1964. With admiration for his consistently liberal record in this demanding office, Colby welcomes Senator Burdick as distant neighbor and close friend, Colby parent, and our Commencement speaker.

A. J. NOEL GABRIELSON (SC '09) The world we live in has begun belatedly to respond to the urgent necessity for protecting our forests and our lakes, the land and the sea, and the air we breathe. Those who have brought us at least partially to our senses are leaders in conservation like Dr. Gabrielson, biologist, ecologist, ornithologist, author of articles and books, eloquent voice continually reminding us of what priceless treasures our civilization, like a thoughtless child, is throwing irretrievably away. Native of Iowa and graduate of Morningside College, he has devoted his career to preservation of our natural surroundings. With special distinction he has been director of the United States Fish & Wildlife Service and president of the Wildlife Management Institute over a span of almost thirty years. Recipient of the Audubon Conservation Award, the Leopold Medal, the Hugh Bennet Award, the Conservation Service Award and the Distinguished Service Medal of the Department of the Interior, and the Distinguished Service Award of the American Forestry Association, he has done as much as any man to keep our lakes and streams clear, to protect our murmuring pines and our hemlocks and the forest inhabitants who nest and run beneath them. Colby salutes him for his role in protecting all of these, the most valuable property of the state of Maine in which we live.

JOHN PUTNAM MERRILL (SC '09) The attention of the world in recent months has been drawn to successful heart transplants. What is not generally known is that comparable pioneering achievements with human kidneys and other vital organs antedated these accomplishments by more than a decade. In 1953 a team of specialists, on which Dr. Merrill was primarily responsible for the preliminary medical study, preparation, and after care, performed at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston the first successful kidney transplant. This was a dramatic culmination of the early stages of his career: graduation from Dartmouth College and the Harvard Medical School, service with the armed forces in this country and the South Pacific, and a long series of duties with Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, the American Heart Association, Cambridge University, and the Harvard Medical School, where he has served on the faculty for two decades. He has edited the Harvard Medical Alumni Bulletin, and has been active in more medical and scientific organizations than one can reckon, including the presidency of the Aesculapian Club, Fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences, recipient of the Amory Prize of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and of the Alvarenga Prize of the Philadelphia College of Physicians, along with many other honors. Colby takes pride in welcoming a distinguished physician and scientist into the ranks of our honorary alumni.

ELIOT FURNESS PORTER (BFA) Though born in Illinois, he and his brother, Fairfield, spent the formative months of their formative years on an island in Penobscot Bay, and Maine may rightfully claim them as her own. On Great Spruce Head Island Eliot Porter learned of the sea and the shore, of anemones and small boats, of wild strawberries and sea gull’s nests. His youthful hobby of photography put aside while he graduated from Harvard College, he earned his degree from Harvard in medicine, and continued on to the Harvard faculty for a decade. But in his late thirties he changed his life’s direction to become a naturalist, ornithologist, and the leading color photographer of nature in America. Twice awarded Guggenheim Fellowships, his work has been exhibited in the high shrines of photography. His remarkable illustrated books, published by the Sierra Club, have won the Conservation Service Award of the Department of the Interior and an award from the Maine Arts and Humanities Commission. Colby honors his use of the camera as a powerful weapon for preserving America’s remaining wilderness, and recognizes that Summer Island is the most beautiful book on Maine ever printed. In his most notable volume, with Thoreau providing the words and himself the illustrations, in equal partnership, the discerning camera eye irrefutably asserts that In Wildness is the Preservation of the World.

Honorary Degrees

Burdick  Gabrielson  Merrill

Eliot Porter

the Colby Alumnus SUMMER-FALL 1969
FAIRFIELö PORTER (DFA) Like his brother, Eliot, an Illinois native found a second home in Maine. The roads taken diverged in the yellow wood, but both led to distinction. After graduation from Harvard, Fairfield Porter embarked on his career by studying at the Art Students League in New York with Boardman Robinson and Thomas Hart Benton. Art critic and poet as well as painter, for thirty years he has had a succession of publications and exhibitions in every corner of America, in galleries and museums beyond enumeration, many of them at colleges, including our own. The current Colby exhibit is, so far as we know, the first to honor jointly the work of the two brothers. Fairfield Porter’s mastery of color, his achievement of intimacy in his paintings, his profound response to the everyday, the visual, the quietly contemplative, derive in part from those early summers on Great Spruce Head Island. His artistic heritage includes the French impressionists, but he belongs to the great American twentieth century tradition. Scholar as well as artist, it is fitting that Colby honor him for his eminence in both endeavors, and it is with particular pride that Colby welcomes him into honorary membership among the alumni of a college that values its ties with the state in which we reside, a state whose enduring beauty is captured in his work.

THOMAS HEDLEY REYNOLDS (LLD) Within the past ten years or so colleges and universities have discovered the pre-eminent importance of cooperation with each other on every level of institutional activity. The way was paved for Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin by the establishment of our jointly owned television enterprise, WCBB. The arrival of Dr. Reynolds on the scene at Bates not only assured continuing of these efforts but gave us new impetus and strengthened our common purpose. His views on liberal arts education, sharpened and refined through nearly two decades at Middlebury as member and finally chairman of the department of history, dean of men, and dean of the college, he came to our esteemed neighbor and sister college well acquainted with the problems that are ours in liberal arts higher education today. Graduate of Williams, with a doctorate from Columbia, veteran of the North African and Italian campaigns in the second world war, he has been involved throughout his academic career in liberal arts programs. In the short time he has spent in Maine he has already assumed an active role in the community of Lewiston-Auburn and in the counsels of the state. His sound advice and his willingness to cooperate and consult with his colleagues have already made the problems of institutional relationships in his newly adopted state easier of solution. Colby takes pride in welcoming the president of Bates College, with which our college has historic and enduring ties, to membership in our own honorary alumni, and we look forward to many years of happy and fruitful association, healthy rivalry, and continued friendship.

GUNTHER SCHULLER (D.M.) Ninth president of the New England Conservatory of Music, he has been known for some years already as one of the foremost American exponents of contemporary music. From the time of the creation of his First Symphony at the age of fourteen, Dr. Schuller has become a notable composer of orchestral, choral, and chamber music, and his opera The Visitation aroused acclaim and created a commendable degree of consternation in Germany and here at home. Native New Yorker, he began his career as virtuoso on the French horn. While still a very young man he joined the Cincinnati Orchestra, and, before he was in his twenties, the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra. He has conducted the major orchestras in this country and abroad, and his works have been commissioned by foundations, colleges and universities, the American Guild of Organists, the Junior League of Boston, and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Twice a Guggenheim Fellow, he has directed the composition department at Tanglewood, and in books on jazz and on horn technique have become classics. Recipient of many awards and other kinds of recognition, he was called from the faculty of Yale to the presidency of one of the finest of New England educational institutions. Colby is proud to welcome into her honorary alumni one of the foremost apostles of the modern idiom in an age that demands the discipline of form in an elusive but challenging art.

BENJAMIN ROBERT SPEICHER (S.C.D.) For over thirty years he has been a member of the faculty of our respected neighbor and friend, the University of Maine. Recognizing that the greatness of an educational institution can be measured ultimately only in terms of the greatness inherent in its faculty, it is proper that Colby should pay respect to one of Maine’s great teachers. Born of missionary parents in China (not the China within Maine’s borders but the China that embraces one-sixth of the world), he graduated from Denison in Ohio and took his doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh. Over the years he has become a recognized authority in the areas of cytology and genetics, pursuing research and publishing papers with the same zeal and talent that have marked his instruction to generations of undergraduates and advanced students. His introductory course in zoology grew over the years from something less than a hundred to over seven hundred students, evidence that his area of academic specialization, the wasp, did not impinge on his teaching any suggestion of waspishness, nor did his students complain of his sting. One who believes in the integrity of scientific research pure and untrammeled, he is an example to his colleagues of the teacher and scholar, fair and patient, exacting and judicious, and a worthy friend whom Colby is proud to honor today.

CONTINUED, PAGE 32
What indeed are our major concerns? There is the tragic fact of our being engaged in a senseless war. In a land of plenty, with an astronomical gross national product, there is devastating poverty. More than a century after the Emancipation Proclamation there is obvious imbalance in opportunity for the members of our black society. There is nauseating commercialization of Christmas and Mother’s Day, and the communications media continually sicken us with reminders of mouthwash and deodorants. We pollute our lakes and streams and the air we breathe with wanton and unthinking abandon.

There are those who believe with all sincerity that there are no rational solutions to these imbalances, that only through the violent death of our society as we know it can resurrection come, only through fire can a phoenix arise from the ashes. As for me, I cannot agree. ‘I decline,’ as Faulkner said, ‘to accept the end of man.’ Rational discourse and orderly procedures are the only avenues to intelligent change, rather than the ‘direct action,’ whatever that means, that some demand. Man continues to be rational, and students are capable of learning something through rational instruction. The older generations are fallible, as we learned from The Graduate if from nothing else, but the student generation is fallible too. So we both have much to learn as we grope our way together.

We have come through a good bit together at Colby these last few months. Our concerns have not been primarily those overpowering social issues that have disrupted all our lives, but they have not been unrelated to them. In the counsels of committees of the faculty, of student government, in the special groups set up to discuss this issue or that, there has been implied a concern for poverty, racial imbalance, crime in the streets, pollution. But what we have been talking about mostly is rules. With a little time and patience we expect to get past this hurdle before too long. There will always be rules, and there will always be those who object to them, whatever rules there are. Edward Young, pre-romantic poet and critic in the eighteenth century, one of the earliest of the articulate rebels against the rigid formal requirements for poetic composition of the Enlightenment, observed in his classic critical document, _Conjectures on Original Composition_, that 'Rules, like crutches, are a needful aid to the lame, but an impediment to the strong.'

I would subscribe in general to this dictum. But in society, and on college campuses, we must remember that we have both lame and strong. We have to have regulations, within broad limits, that will do for both. Not only that, but who is to determine and by what criteria just who in our college community are the lame and who are the strong? It would be prudent not to inquire too closely, but rather, with the help of our total constituency, a prominent role reserved for the students, to evolve a structure reasonably well-suited to everyone, aimed especially at no one, favoring especially no one. I am optimistic in my hope that the Constitutional Convention will move us several further steps in that direction. When this class comes back for its fifth reunion you may find all sorts of different circumstances, some of which you will have helped us define. (When you come back for your fifteenth reunion, by the way, it will be 1984.)

[SIX DICTA FROM AN OPTIMISTIC RATIONALIST]

In the meantime, I would like to review with you a few of our general objectives.

What are some of the characteristics that Colby graduates (for that is what you will shortly be, 'non iam discipuli sed fratres et socii') should carry with them into the world that lies beyond for you? Here are a few. First, I should, I suppose, define the source of these dicta. The source, with all its contributory influences, which I have suggested to you, in part, is myself. One of the beleaguered professors at San Francisco State College this past year said the students finally told him that, leaving out of account certain ethnic considerations, he was _persona non grata_ with them because he was: over forty, had a PhD, with them.

I have been telling some of you ever since you have been here, even if you haven’t always been listening, that colleges have as an obligation the attempt to narrow for you the domain of ignorance. Last fall I had the privilege of speaking at an honors convocation at a distinguished neighboring college to the south of us. I remarked upon that occasion, in part:

> Human beings are born with perception, or at least they soon develop the capacity, but without knowledge or wisdom. One acquires to some degree these virtues as one lives. One of the ways to achieve such an end is by reading. Frail humanity is bounded by the rigid confines of time and space, and unless one widens his meager horizons by reading and by drawing upon the wisdom and the experience of the ages that have preceded him one lives his life in a small and windowless room, a kind of cosmic squash court. What a limited world would be yours if your experience were confined to the boundaries marked by your own senses. As one of the greatest of scholars, the late Rosemond Tuve, seventeenth century literary specialist, once observed, what would life be like if your experience were confined to books of your own writing, music of your own composition, and the shade of trees of your own planting? Such a one of the aspects of education that is relevant is your reading and your generation of the ideas that come from reading. If you don’t read anything you won’t know anything and you won’t have any ideas of your own—it is as simple as that. Reading will extend the horizons, widen the dimensions of your lives, reveal relationships that might otherwise escape you. Our lives are constantly revealing opposites to us: the poverty of Watts and the affluence of Bronxville, the banality of commercial art and the richness of Andrew Wyeth, the peaceful quiet of Thoreau’s Maine woods and the horror of Vietnam. Reading and reflecting and thinking will help you to reconcile these opposites, or at least to arrive at some understanding of this world that we find ourselves in that includes them. Remember Eliot’s great lines:

_Garlic and sapphires in the mud_

_Clot the bedded axle-tree._

Twentieth century America, and the world with it, is full of juxtaposed garlic and sapphires, and all too often surrounded by mud. Don’t despair: just read and read. Do all you can to narrow the domain of ignorance...

2 I think you should have developed a capacity for compassion. This means, I think, that you should be aware of suffering where it is (the ghetto, rural Maine, Indian villages, Latin American countryside, the other side of the tracks here in this land of opportunity, or in the hearts of your own acquaintances or family or friends). But compassion does not mean a kind of scape-goatism. It should not involve blame, nor does it imply a sense of guilt. And if real compassion is to be present, it must be accompanied by a sense of de-
Capacities, for wisdom, compassion, response, commitment, rhythm, the sense of tragic attachment, as well as involvement, and best of all a sense of humor. One does not laugh at suffering, but one must have the capacity to laugh at oneself in his efforts, whatever they are, to alleviate suffering or to see a situation in this perspective. One cannot despair. One must recognize the inevitability of occasional failure, and to see it in terms of ordinary human fallibility and frailty. One must occasionally be able to sit back and laugh at himself, and then to start again. All of this is part of what compassion is.

3 One must develop a capacity for realistic response to problems, even if they appear insoluble. Slogans are no good—they are likely to lull us into thinking there are easy solutions to impossible problems. As intellect becomes sharpened by acquaintance with the ages, one learns that life, like politics, is the art of the possible. We cannot achieve perfection. We cannot simply say ‘Down with the establishment.’ There is no such thing as ‘the establishment.’ There are any number of kinds of establishment, some of them very worthwhile. Furthermore, dramatic exhibitionism is no substitute for rational consensus. In the film that we have recently completed in an attempt to show our friends what the Colby of today is like, the students talked a good bit about ‘critical evaluation.’ That is a valid and helpful phrase, and I will subscribe to it. Critical evaluation can indeed be a realistic and intelligent response to the problems that face us, in colleges and in society.

4. One must develop the capacity for long-range commitment, not simply the hope of short-range success. Short-range success never really works out, and when it fails some of us become hopelessly alienated. In the perspective of any years in college I hope you have learned enough not to let this happen. There is the big picture as well as the little picture. After reading King Lear or listening to the B-Minor Mass, one finds that these creations subtly contribute to the growing development of one's own system of values. College experience cannot, nor should not, define your values for you. But the experiences of learning can sharpen for you the perceptions that will enable you to depend more reliably upon the instincts of your own inviolable self. These will lead you, I am confident, to the long-range view rather than the ephemeral solution that depends upon short-range immediacy.

5. One must find some way to bring oneself into harmony with the indefinable rhythms of life, the mystical, the holy, the irrational. Not everything we do or think or respond to is susceptible of rational analysis. There are mysteries in the emotions, such as in love, and in the beauty that is part of our lives, whether it becomes part of us through music or flowers or sunsets, church services or October-leaves, poetry or meadows or the surf on the sea, natural wonders like redwoods or forsythia or canyons, man-made wonders like soaring bridges or towering skyscrapers or college campuses or gem-like creations like the Parthenon and the Taj Mahal. Detailed critical analysis of the cathedral at Chartres or a motet of William Byrd or an ode of Keats is not only irrelevant but a kind of impertinence. And yet it is our nature continually to ask 'why.' It is proper to ask why. But we must also learn to be content when no one can tell us why. Even the physicist, Heisenberg, realized the principle of indeterminacy, that beyond a certain point there may be no certain answers and no precise measurement.

6. One must develop a sense of the tragic, in the classical meaning. All of us will experience failure in one way or another, at one time or another in our lives. What we must learn is that this need not lead to disillusion or to despair. The human race has learned to endure tragedy through all its history. But we have also learned not to let tragedy frighten us into inactivity. Remember Robert Frost:

They cannot save me with their empty spaces
Between stars - on stars where no human race is
I have it in me so much nearer home
To save myself with my own desert places.

Every classical tragedy concludes with a reaffirmation that life does go on. They never conclude with resignation or defeat.

[Life is all we have to lead]
In the long run the only self we have is our own. The only perspective we have is our own. Life, as David McCord said at commencement a year ago, is the only thing we have to lead. Most of us will not achieve any special exaltation in the leading of it. But what has gone into our minds and thoughts and personalities, from upbringing, environment, schooling, friends, loves, and the exigencies of the society of which we are inevitably a part, will help us determine our destinies. Before you launch upon the next stages of your lifelong experience, after what this college may have awakened you to, it would not be unwise for you to set aside time for listening to your favorite music, studying paintings of artists with whom you have found an affinity, or reading for a time in Keats or Yeats or Auden, or perhaps Wordsworth.

I confess to having been surprised to find, in an article in the New York Times during the winter, that Paul Goodman, whom many of you heard and talked with on one or another of his visits to Colby, and with whom I have a number of sharp philosophical disagreements, is a Wordsworth enthusiast. I have never read anywhere a more moving appreciation of Wordsworth's great poem* on the lonely old man who made his living gathering leeches on the moor than Paul Goodman's appraisal. I have suggested to you the importance of the wisdom of the past, of compassion and detachment, of realistic response to the ills that beset us, of long-range commitment, of the indefinable rhythms of existence, and of the sense of the tragic, which need not suggest defeat.

Whatever lies before you, may your experiences in this college help you resolve your lives and lead toward the peace and the affirmation that characterize the leech-gatherer of Wordsworth's great poem.*

*Resolution and Independence, esp. II. 15-28, 50-140.
The Alumni Relations Committee of the Alumni Council has recently completed a survey of the Classes of 1963 through 1967, the purpose being to gain an insight of the attitudes and interests of the younger alumni and determine if their needs are being met through the existing organizations and activities of the Alumni Association. A total of 1614 questionnaires was mailed with the response of 327 for a twenty percent return.

The committee divided the response both quantitatively and qualitatively according to the type of question asked. The following is a review of the questions, a synopsis of the answers gained and summary recommendations by the Alumni Relations Committee.

Since your graduation, how many times have you been contacted for local alumni-wide Colby interests?

By mail: 321 respondents marked this question. A scattered number of contacts by mail is seen, with the largest group, 17.8%, merely responding as several contacts. Less than 2% of those responding received no mail from Colby.

By phone: 322 respondents answered this question with 82.9% reporting no contact by telephone.

By personal visit: Of the 322 respondents, 96.6% reported no contact by personal visitation.

Since graduation, how many Colby alumni functions have you attended?

Of the 326 respondents, 58.3% had attended no Colby functions since graduation, with the remainder having participated in at least one Colby activity.

If none or only one, why?

The 280 answers to this question show a primary reason for the lack of participation by the younger alumni:

- moving around too much: 127 (53.2%)
- other: 110 (39.3%)
- no functioning club in area: 97 (34.6%)
- no one in your age group: 36 (12.8%)
- afraid you will be asked for money: 11 (3.9%

What alumni events would interest you to return to Colby?

This question asked for a prioritized ordering of nine selections and the total votes are as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Events</th>
<th>Total Votes</th>
<th>%</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>a. Reunion Weekend</td>
<td>236</td>
<td>72.2%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>b. Homecoming Weekend</td>
<td>199</td>
<td>60.9%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>c. Visit with faculty</td>
<td>190</td>
<td>58.1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>d. Athletics</td>
<td>146</td>
<td>44.6%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>e. Family Winter Weekend</td>
<td>127</td>
<td>38.8%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>f. Fraternity and sorority meetings</td>
<td>125</td>
<td>38.2%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>g. Alumni Seminars</td>
<td>124</td>
<td>37.9%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>h. Alumni Council meeting</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>20.2%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>i. Other</td>
<td>30</td>
<td>9.2%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Do you feel your loyalty to or interest in Colby is directed primarily toward:

This question asked for the selection of one or more of the following choices and 327 respondents made some reply to this question by marking one or more of the following choices:

- a. the college in general: 215 (74.9%)
- b. a few friends: 145 (44.8%)
- c. sorority or fraternity: 62 (19.0%)
- No votes: 5 (1.5%)

Do you feel Colby loses contact with you, or do you lose contact with Colby, and why?

The responses indicate that Colby does not lose contact except through rapidly changing addresses quite common to a group fresh out of college.

After graduating from Colby, have you been able to keep up contacts with your close college friends and if so, through what media?

Generally, the response to this question reveals that the younger graduates do, in fact, keep in touch with each other as best they can via the mails, visits and phone calls.

Are you aware of the purpose of the Alumni Fund?

Of the 327 responses to this question, 222 (67.9%) responded in the affirmative. 100 alumni (30.6%) said they did not understand the purpose of the fund and there were 5 who did not choose to answer.

Do you support the Alumni Fund, and why?

59% of the 327 responses indicated that they do support the Alumni Fund while 35.2% indicated that they did not, with 5.8% making no response to the question.

Generally the response to questions 8 and 9, and particularly the second half of the latter question, shows that the younger alumni are very busy fulfilling many societal obligations during their first years out of college. Service with the military, repayment of college loans, beginning a family, attending professional school and beginning new jobs are all encompassing to them and they find themselves very committed, financially and otherwise.

Should Colby have an Alumni Association? How can it be improved?

A strong 87.3% believe that Colby should have an Alumni Association, 5.5% thought not, and 7.3% made no response. Many of those replying went to considerable length to express themselves and several thoughts are common to many of the responses. The younger graduates feel a need for more class news in the Alumni and other college publications. They also express an interest in establishing or joining a local alumni club and becoming directly involved in other areas of the college. Generally, the Alumni Relations Committee, which analyzed these reports, found a marked increase in loyalty
On studentry (America, France): a tradition that permits learning from experience

Jean Bundy
In May and June of 1968, France went through one of its worst internal crises of the century. It experienced the longest and most crippling general strike since the 1930's. For the first time in this century the barricades—that are the traditional symbols of revolution—were raised in the streets of Paris, the scene of the most intense violence and destruction in the country. Many of the lovely trees that shaded the boulevards of the Latin Quarter, center of Parisian student life, were cut down to form the bases for the barricades; to them were added benches, sidewalk gratings, rubble and paving stones. At some points the barricades consisted almost entirely of cars that had been overturned and burned. While only a handful of deaths could be directly attributed to the violence of those two months, thousands were injured in the street fighting and reports suggest that many more were injured in the course of police 'interrogations.' In addition, the French economy was dealt a blow so serious that some experts predict it cannot be overcome for at least another year. If, in the wake of this eruption, General de Gaulle won a resounding vote of confidence from the French, his defeat in the spring of 1969 must be partially explained by the failure of his government to do anything positive about curing the ills that lay behind the revolt of the previous year.

What was apparently mentioned only rarely in the American press about this revolution was the fact that the incident which set off the whole sequence of events was a student demonstration at Nanterre against a university ruling on parietal hours. Obviously, there was more at stake, and the problems were more serious than the matter of parietal hours at one institution, for student 'unrest' to explode nationally into such violence.

The fact that student organizations are frequently in close association with political parties facilitated the spread to the equally politically oriented labor unions. But the fact remains that it was this single event—one that is common to many American campuses—which touched off the entire explosion. In the face of this evidence, one is led to ask if current student unrest in this country could possibly lead to the same kind of national disaster.

In comparing French universities with our own, it is clear that the differences far outweigh the similarities, but such a comparison may show how the actions taken by American students to this point fit into the pattern of international student revolt.

French universities have traditionally been much freer than American institutions. Students went to class when and if they wanted, only as they felt the classes might be helpful in preparing for the annual examinations. No one took attendance, there were no assignments, no quizzes, no mid-term grades, just the examinations which came at the end of the year, and which the student took only when he felt ready for them. The social freedom of the student was just as great; he lived where and with whom he wanted, for there were very few dormitories. If many students spent years finishing the work for their degree, it was largely because all this freedom was too tempting and too great a challenge after the almost total lack of freedom and the impossibly rigorous standards of the French secondary schools. These schools frequently graduated as few as thirty to forty percent of their students in a single year, and without such graduation there was no entry into the university. The logic of the system was impeccable, and completely French—no one should get a university degree who could not submit to the severity of the lycée or who could not accept the responsibility of the freedom of the university. The lives of those who survived were based on a humanistic experience that was second to none in the world.

Whatever the excellence of its educational system, France has suffered several humiliating military defeats in the last century, it has lost its colonial empire, and for several decades it has been marked internally by political and economic instability. All of these things cannot, of course, be directly attributed to flaws in the educational system, but it is inevitable for a country experiencing such difficulties to question the validity of that system. It was clear that a purely humanistic education was not enough in a world increasingly marked by technology, and those responsible for education in France saw the need for a system which would allow for a greater balance between the humanistic and the technological. After World War II, changes began to be introduced, but many of them have been rather superficial. One of the major changes in higher education has been increased adoption of the campus idea, and in the past ten years or so numbers of new campuses have been created, along with an accompanying limitation of the traditional freedoms of the French student. Within the academic program there have also been some changes, most of which have tended to bring the French system much closer to our own. In this regard, it is interesting to note that during the events of last spring, it was frequently suggested that if the French students had what most American students already have, there would have been no unrest.

[to thwart humiliating routine]
While there has been some resentment, as at Nanterre, of the restrictive regulations of the new campuses (regulations which are often stricter than those of most American campuses), most student criticism was aimed at the academic program itself as being totally irrelevant to the needs of France and her youth. Most young people have high hopes for the future, and they are usually very sensitive to the ways in which those hopes may be realized in a given society. Thus, if the French student was critical of the education being offered him, it was primarily because he sensed that the positions of authority and leadership in France would go not to those with the traditional humanistic training, but more and more to those equipped to meet the demands of a totally new industrial and social technology. He had already grasped the lesson so clearly stated in Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber’s best-selling The American Challenge that if France and the other European countries are to survive, they must learn to compete with the industrial power of the United States on its own terms. He knew that despite the excellence of the traditional education, it led too often to unemployment or at best to the humiliating routine of the civil servant. Thus, the French students were demanding something more practical, more professional. They were impatient with a government which talked of reform but was painfully slow in instituting significant change. A French friend of mine, appalled at the action taken by the students, pointed out that there had been projects for reform in the Ministry of Education for at least ten years. But the circulating of projects in any bureaucracy is a never-ending operation, and it was the student reaction to inaction that focused the attention of the world, for almost two months, on the streets of the Latin Quarter.

There are obvious parallels with the situation in American universities, but the contrasts are far more striking. The first lies in the very nature of the institutions. In contrast to the complete autonomy of most American colleges and universities, all French universities are part of the national system and are governed by the Ministry of Education, so that degree programs differ little from one institution to another. Unlike his American counterpart, a university professor in France is not free to move at will but is assigned to a university by the Ministry. Thus, excellence in a given area at any single university is as likely to be an accident of ministerial bureaucracy as the result of any careful planning. Therefore the criticism of the French students can be more accurately leveled at a system, whereas the nature of unrest can vary greatly from one institution to another in this country. If the American student is not working from such a long tradition of political acuity and involvement, he is part of a culture in which change is taken for granted and impatience with inefficiency or slowness is much greater.

[the other option is illusion]
But the most striking distinction is to be found in the fact that the revolts in the two countries are pointed in exactly opposite directions. While the French students sense the need for a more rigidly structured program leading to more specifically professional goals, the American student, sensitive to the increasing imbalance in our society in favor of the professional and the technological, responsive to the increasing criticisms of the inhumanity of contemporary American life, seeks the greater freedom of a humanistic approach to education. In short, we are being urged to move toward the kind of program that has existed in France. It seems unlikely that there will ever be a shortage of technological training in this country, but the liberal arts colleges might do well to consider these demands in the light of what has happened in France, both recently and over the years. While we tend to refuse to learn from history, the very traditions and bases of the liberal arts college should permit it to learn from the experiences of others. If we do not soon find the ways to let the students in our country assume the real responsibilities of freedom, they may eventually choose, as did the students of France, the illusory freedom of irresponsibility.
Of words and visual bridges

Earl Sundeen
A delightful gentleman I once knew wore a hearing aid. It was one of those older ones which had a control knob on a battery box carried in his vest pocket. I recall seeing him at more than one verbose, dull business conference, unobtrusively reach to the knob and turn the meeting out while he puffed on his cigar and wore an expression of tranquil, attentive wisdom. Occasionally he would turn up the volume and check to see if anything interesting was being discussed - and then turn us all out again. I envied him. I later realized that most of us instinctively 'tune out' that which we don't want to hear or which we can't understand because the surrounding noise is overpowering. The noise on the campus is no exception.

Bursting at the seams like an overfilled tank under pressure, students are spouting forth evidences of their newfound awareness, knowledge, and indignation because the world does not seem to function as they have learned it should. Reactions, charges, countercharges, and demonstrations are the order of the times with complete lack of understanding on all sides. The seething turbulence on some campuses is echoed by a guarded rumble on others and an uneasy feeling that 'somebody ought to do something' on still others. The missing element in all this turbulence is something going by the overworked title of communications.

'Communication' has been used to describe everything from office memos to electronic beeps in space and from fluttering eyelashes to foghorn political pitches — and perhaps they all qualify to varying degrees. We are, however, concerned here with studying a fundamental principle almost completely ignored in today's educational picture. Communication takes place when an idea, a fact, is received and understood by another. By this broad definition, much of what is going on around us is not communication. There is transmission aplenty, but messages are not received, not understood.

An individual who sincerely desires to communicate can only do so by following certain principles. First, he must consider how he can get the attention and generate interest on the part of the intended receiver of the idea. The phone bell must ring and the receiver be picked up before there is any point in attempting to convey the message. Secondly, the language used must be one which the receiver understands. The words or other media and the terminology must be quickly recognized by the recipient. Third, the idea or message must be so stated that the recipient will be intrigued or compelled to listen and will not immediately tune out. If we cannot hold the listener's attention for the duration of the message, the message does not register. If the message does not register, the transmitter can expect neither action nor reaction. The complete ignoring of these basic principles is the simple and obvious reason for so much of the impassioned screaming in evidence today.

A demonstration which attracts attention sufficient to alert the eye and ear of many who have not been listening might be considered a legitimate part of the attempt to communicate. If it is then not followed by the next logical steps of conveying the idea in terms which the recipient can understand and act upon, the demonstration either is not really intended to communicate or misses its purpose completely because the necessary procedure to get through is not realized. The demonstration which arouses indignation by its violence or misdirection cannot generate a receptive state of mind on the part of the intended receiver.

A teacher or professor who lectures in terms that cannot be readily understood by his students and who dispenses his wisdom in a take-it or leave-it manner has no true desire to communicate or frequently merely wishes to demonstrate his superiority. This is often the case with the presenter of a highly technical paper in a narrow skill area. He may have no wish to communicate truly but rather prefers to talk in terms which are obscure,
The entire circus of miscommunication could be considered humorous, if it were not so tragic in human meaning.

making vague reference to vast areas of knowledge in order to demonstrate his proficiency. The advanced study thesis often follows such patterns. The wisdom of the ages is forever embalmed in uncounted doctoral theses which do not truly communicate.

The man who parades on Main Street with a sign which says 'Stop the War' is not talking to the right people. In fact, because he has not been able to make contact and communicate with people who might effectively do what he wants, he is resorting to arousing the public in hopes that the larger noise will arouse the mystical 'they' whom he visualizes as running the war.

This entire circus of miscommunication could be considered humorous in its ludicrous failures if it were not so tragic in human meaning. Most of the people we have described sincerely want and need to communicate and have never learned how. The motivated student burns with desire to apply his knowledge and make his mark on the world and finds instead that the world simply is not listening, or so he thinks. He insists that the establishment will not listen to any intelligent ideas because they do not want their own concepts displaced. His true problem is that he has not learned to use fundamental, necessary principles of communication for his own purposes.

Our schools, our colleges, our universities, have been so engrossed with conveying knowledge and stimulating ideas that they have ignored those principles without whose application all knowledge and ideas will go unheeded. We have not taught our students at any level how to communicate in today's world. But you say, 'we have — we have been teaching them language and rhetoric and composition. We have been teaching them public speaking and expression,' but they are not communicating! And here we confront the problem.

[TO DO IT, YOU HAVE TO STUDY IT]

The study of communication must become a part of the education system at all levels from the elementary school through the university, if the individual is to function effectively in today's society. At the present time, a student passing through our educational system may stumble onto some of these principles by accident and thereby gain a reputation for his ability to write, speak, or communicate. Some other fortunate students attend schools where there is a conscious thread of communications techniques running through the fabric of their learning. These students are made aware that they must work at communicating their ideas. We see such developing programs at many levels, but they are few and far between.

We are, however, confronted with a greater problem. The means of communication are changing rapidly. Our word-oriented older generation (over 30) babble at the younger generation who are looking at pictures and hearing little. The young have been fascinated by the flicker ever since they were deposited on the living room floor to watch the hypnotic box while mother worked around the house. It is most revealing to stand before a group of eighth graders and see how long it takes to get their attention by talking. Compare how quickly they become silent and attentive when the projector is switched on in the classroom. Then, they will listen intently to the words accompanying the pictures. It should not pass unnoticed that the over 30's are usually attempting to communicate in a verbal language, and the young are most receptive to a new medium which we sometimes choose to ignore.

The principle is easily demonstrable in text books, comics, magazines, and even paperback books. Solid verbiage does not get through as effectively as a combination of visuals and words. In fact, one single, potent visual on the cover of some paperback books is sufficient to motivate the reader into reading a thousand pages of words to reach the promised titillation shown in the picture. Nor should we forget the visual stimulation on the record cover which sets the stage for the visual dreams of the listener.

Much of our earlier art, which in its realistic pictures preceded today's exact color photography, helped in the visual communications of a few years ago. Today we have an infinitely wider variety of visual tools to help communicate the erupting flow of knowledge. In elementary schools today, pupils are learning how to convey ideas with pictures. They are learning to assemble pictures into sequences and stories. They are learning to use visuals to communicate concepts, and they are learning to associate them with verbal language. There have been some startling results with children who seem unreachable by other means. Many have revealed their hidden fears, anxieties, and happy thoughts through visuals which they make themselves. Upper grade and high school students are learning to use more complex tools of communication. They are learning to think of language as one of the many tools of communication and how to use it in combination with other tools. They are learning how to reproduce and multiply a communication to reach peer groups and others. Here the conventional journalistic endeavor takes on new meaning, and the creative graphic display has purpose.

At the college level these skills are re-explored and expanded through more sophisticated techniques. Indeed, it is to the college that we must look for contributions to the psychology of communications. We must look for studies in how to reach individuals and groups we have not reached previously with any degree of success. Here we should be able to study more carefully the relationships between audio and visual methods of communication. These studies have vast implications involving the methods by which a sophisticated technical society, such as we judge ourselves to be, can communicate effectively with less developed groups in the world who do not understand what we are saying or why we are saying it. It is at the college level and the university level that we need studies in the methods whereby differing cultures in our society can communicate. more effectively. We need studies which will help communications between whole groups of peoples who have been taught to listen to language entirely different from ours. We need studies which will help us to understand what they are saying over and beyond their mere words.

[AN ATTRACTIVE DIVIDEND PERHAPS?]
We have more tools of communication available than we have ever had before, but too many of our scholars do not know how to use them effectively. We make frantic noises at each other, accusing, gesticulating, shouting, finger pointing, and pouring out avalanches of unheeded words and wonder why we are not understood. We wonder why others do not say things which we can understand. Our society today is in desperate need of effective communication. We do not need more radio and television stations. We most desperately need to know how to use the tools we already have and use them more effectively. There must be on every college campus, in every university, in every high school and vocational school, and every grade school, a deep awareness of the need to communicate effectively. Above all, we must look to the college and university to lead the way in new communication study programs, in visual study programs, in effective communication research.

There is an attractive dividend in this program. In their attempts to determine how society can communicate effectively in all its complex situations, the college and university will be the first beneficiaries of such developments. Their teaching should become more effective, their students should be more successful in their attempts to communicate their ideas and convictions, and they may even succeed in convincing some of our unintelligible scholars that having knowledge is not enough, that if they cannot communicate their brilliance, their genius, and thereby effectively stimulate their students, they have failed.

---

On four Civil War letters: patriotism then and now
FROM PAGE 8

[DETERMINING EMOTIONAL BOUNDARIES]
These things are recited not to depress everybody (although God knows they are depressing enough) but to suggest that if we wonder whether the people of today, particularly the 'younger generation,' are as patriotic as those of 1862, 1917 or 1942, we wonder in vain. There is no way of knowing. They have not been confronted with comparable situations: in fact, the stimuli they are exposed to are much more negative. It may well be that considering everything the young men now serving in the armed forces are the most patriotic that we have ever had. It may well be that the young people in the colleges and universities (speaking now of the substantial bulk of them, not the fanatics) are also just as patriotic but are working in a confused but determined way toward an America which will make wiser use of this quality.

Consider the foreign policy that American patriotism is now called upon to support. We have mutual defense or military assistance agreements covering close to fifty nations around the world. We have servicemen stationed in nearly one hundred countries. The agreements, if they are allowed to stand, deserve to be honored. The men, if they are allowed to stay, deserve better protection than those of the Pueblo got. What happens if more than a small fraction of these obligations falls due all at once? In the light of Vietnam, do we have the manpower to meet them? Do we have the money? And most important of all, do we have the emotional disposition? Three great wars have demonstrated that the American people, when united by common dangers and common purposes, will make any necessary sacrifices; but the Vietnam war seems to demonstrate that there are limits of patriotism beyond which no sagacious President will ever again venture, and it would be well for our leaders to determine as best they can just where these emotional boundaries are.

In the current questioning of such matters, from too much interest and confidence in the military, we may be heading toward too little, as indicated by the anti-rotc movements on so many college campuses. To deny that these are reactions to the Vietnam war, since rotc has been around for fifty years without such incidents, would be useless. But to ascribe these actions wholly to Vietnam would be to accuse some of our leading intellectual communities of a shortsightedness which they certainly do not merit. It is more to their credit, and surely closer to the truth, to believe that they are motivated by latent and longstanding considerations of reason and conscience which Vietnam has only brought into the open.

Mr. Nixon has now appointed a commission to 'develop a comprehensive plan for eliminating conscription and moving toward an all-volunteer armed force.' This is interesting and possibly significant, simply because all experience indicates that the concept will not work for a force anywhere near the size of the present one (about 3.4 million). It suggests that once the Vietnam war is over, the day of a large military force is over. And this further suggests that the Administration must already be thinking about (1) reducing our commitments abroad and (2) the realities of nuclear warfare.

Conceivably, an all-volunteer force could mean the end of rotc. But would that be desirable? What if yet-untested theories of warfare don't work out, and we do suddenly need a force of twelve of fifteen million people? Where then would be the kind of reserve officers who got us off to such a good start in 1941? It should be remembered that rotc is a major source of military leadership, contributing for example, to the Army about seventeen officers for every one from West Point.

Another possibility is that the all-volunteer force would move us a long step toward the concept of the sort of officer caste we have never liked very much and away from the traditional cooperation between the professional and the reserve officer that has always worked fairly well, and in which each has always learned a great deal from the other.

There is an amusing instance of this in Coleman's letter of 10 November 1862 describing a confrontation between Colonel Adelbert Ames of the Regular Army and Lt. Colonel Joshua Chamberlain, late of the Bowdoin faculty, representing the line officers of the 20th Maine, many of whom were from Colby, Bowdoin and other colleges. It appears that these civilian officers cured the colonel of some of his bad habits, such as swearing at them, but he on the other hand stood up for measures of needed discipline. The result was an extremely effective fighting unit, and the men of the 20th Maine must have thought that Ames contributed to this because late in 1863, when the regiment received a new flag (the old one having been shot to pieces at Gettysburg and other places) they sent the by then almost sacred symbol of the old flag to General Adelbert Ames, who had gone on to other duties.

[Living for One's Country]

It is to be hoped that until the day comes when military force is no longer needed the colleges and universities will not withdraw from the armed services the brains, talents and abilities which are so desperately needed if we are to have good armed services. It is even more to be hoped that now that the negative attitude toward the military and other aspects of our society has been registered there will be forthcoming some positive ideas leading to betterment. The realities and complexities of nuclear warfare, nuclear diplomacy and the economic structure within which we are trying to be effective almost paralyze the brain. But someone will have to think about these things and think them through—with clarity, vision and perhaps a ruthless disregard of the past. For while it was sufficient for patriots of the past to act through established reflexes, those of the future must make intensive use of their brains or the jig is up.

For this higher order of patriotism there is no better place to look than among the students and recent graduates of our colleges and universities. We of older generations are told they are brighter than we were (which is easy to believe) but even if they are not there are many more of them, consequently more brightness. They certainly have more of man's experience to consider from the momentous events of the past twenty-five years. And they do seem to have a sort of passion for humanity. In all that, there is hope that patriotism, far from declining, will be given a new meaning associated more with living than with dying for one's country.
[GIFTS, GRANTS, AWARDS]

From International Nickel Company, $5000, unrestricted, the thirteenth consecutive grant from INCO to Colby since 1957; the funds to be used in the science division.

From the American Philosophical Society, $1500, a research grant to Professor Patrick Brancaccio (English department) to revise his doctoral dissertation on Hawthorne's The Marble Faun for book publication.

From the National Science Foundation, $4800, for biological research by four undergraduates under the direction of Professors Ronald Davis and Bruce Fowles of the biology department.

[AND CLASS GIFTS]

1919 Funds for the thirty-volume British Parliamentary Papers collection, designed as a continuing project by the class.

1944 Funds for purchase of an original painting or piece of sculpture for the permanent art collection, on the occasion of the twenty-fifth reunion.

1949 A like purchase fund for an original work of art. The museum has acquired (at right) a color lithograph by Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec entitled, Mlle Marcelle Lender.

1951 Funds to establish a film workshop, to purchase equipment necessary to expand facilities available for students and faculty working with film—called, by many, the twentieth century's art medium.

1959 The English Experience, a collection of some seventy-five volumes of facsimiles of early British books (1475-1640), to be added to annually. Colby is one of the few colleges to possess this remarkable series.

1961 Restoration (and placement in the fieldhouse) of all pictures, some dating from the 1880's, relating to Colby's team and individual sports.
[TO THE READERS]
The summer-fall edition of The Colby Alumnus will be my last.

It is my hope that the past twenty-five issues have communicated a sense, at least, of what is afoot at this college, Colby. Because there is so much to be said, too little time to think and consider, and always too few pages, what has been published here for the last seven years must be thought of as fractional and in part. It may be, after all, a literal impossibility to 'tell it all,' but if you didn't believe it could be done, you'd have no business being in this strange profession.

Without the aid, creative and gracious, of students, teachers, staff members, alumni and alumnae, most of that which has been of interest and of use would never have appeared. My thanks go to all of these helpful, special people. And, especially to Richard Dyer (from whom I inherited this editorship in 1962), whose ideas and advice have been influential, and golden.

Peace.

IAN L. ROBERTSON '51

[TEACHING]
The program of courses in education at Colby College has been radically revised to provide students with better preparation for the culminating experience of apprentice teaching during the senior year, according to Professor Harold A. Jacobson, who will direct the new program. The unique feature of the program, Jacobson says, is that 'it permits students to serve as tutors in the elementary school and in junior high school during their sophomore year of college.'

The program starts in the sophomore year at Colby with a two-semester offering. During the first semester students are permitted to tutor at the elementary school level; in the second, they serve in a similar capacity in the junior high school. In the junior year the education students focus on child and adolescent psychology, as well as works as assistant junior high teachers.

During the first semester of the senior year, students prepare for practice teaching and, following the Jan-plan, conduct action research projects. Jacobson, in explaining that the new curriculum organization is based on the theory that actual experience must be related to theoretical models, notes: 'The students need opportunity to serve the local community while gaining experience and perspective on career testing.'

The 'new plan for teacher training' was the result of extensive planning by members of the Maine Department of Education, area principals, superintendents, directors of student teachers from other colleges and universities in Maine, Colby College department chairmen, administration and Colby's secondary school teaching committee. Jacobson credits Norman Smith, professor-emeritus, and Ernest G. Marriner, dean-emeritus, for being 'especially helpful.'
Contributors to the Annual Fund 1968-1969

Our civilization is fast approaching a crisis of direction. Stung by an unpopular war in Southeast Asia, made daily aware of our commitments and responsibilities in other parts of the world, our social structure is being tested as never before. What will the next decade bring in terms of the continuity of life as we know it today?

On college campuses students are asking questions. They see injustices at home and abroad. Expanded news media are creating a village of our hitherto huge world, bombarding young men and women with staggering moral and philosophical problems. We of the older generations had and still have our share of problems to cope with, but because we have lived through so much we have been able to develop a perspective which in many ways is not really comprehensible to some of our students. They are idealists. They want action now because they feel a sense of urgency, an overwhelming compulsion which says that they cannot wait. Gone is the protection many of us felt we had in our youth, and any number of old assumptions are being called into question. These assumptions are being challenged by war, hunger, prejudice, by human failures and misunderstandings.

But there is hope, and it lies in America's greatest product: education. At colleges, the microcosms of our society, students are, by studying the past, gaining perspective on the present. They are developing a capacity for compassion, objectively and with understanding, without establishing blame or guilt. They are developing realistic responses to problems without relying on inadequate slogans or dramatic exhibitionism. They are acquiring a capacity for long-range commitment, not simply the hope of short-range success. They are learning to depend more reliably on the instincts of the self. At the same time they are developing a sense of the tragic in the classical meaning. They are learning to experience failure without suffering the agony of despair. And finally, they are learning to appreciate the harmony of nature, the mysteries of emotion and the indefinable rhythms of life.

All this would not be possible if people everywhere did not believe in the value and strength of the liberal arts. What we attempt to do here at Colby would go for nought if those people named on the following pages did not year by year show their faith in our program and have the desire to share in our commitment. To all of you I bring the gratitude and heartfelt thanks of the Colby community. With your help we shall not fail. With your faith we can respond to the challenges of youth by preparing them for the day when they shall lead and we in good conscience can follow.

Robert E. L. Strider
PRESIDENT

THE ANNUAL FUND FOR CONTINUING ACHIEVEMENT 1968-1969

Alumni $212,332
Parents 84,717
Friends, Corporations, Foundations 308,067

Total Amount Contributed $605,116 Shareholders

Presidents Club
Jere Abbott
American Baptist Board of Education and Publication
Mrs. Anna F. Ardenghi
Bath Iron Works Charitable Trust
Mrs. Walter Beinecke
Bird & Son, Incorporated
Blue Hill Foundation 1946 Trust
Raymond O. Brinkman '20
Estate of A. Edward Brudno '21
Mrs. Frederic E. Camp
(Catharine '64)
Doris Carpenter
Frank S. Carpenter '14
Laura Cochrane
Mr. and Mrs. Clark H. Carter '40 (Raye Winslow '40)
Cities Service Foundation
James R. Cochrane
Colby Varsity "C" Club
Estate of Warren H. Colson
Walter S. Cornell
Cummings-Guilford Charitable Trust
Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. Currie '14
The Charles A. Dana Foundation, Inc.
Depositors Trust Company
The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States
ESSO Education Foundation
Mr. Joseph S. Fairchild (Susan '57)
First National City Educational and Charitable Foundation
Estate of Florence E. Fitch
Mr. and Mrs. Neil Ford
Estate of Samuel Fraser
Guy George Gabrielson
Estate of Doris Gallett '04
John Jewett Garland
William M. Garland, II
Gordon Linen Service
Ralph Gould
W. T. Grant Company
Mr. and Mrs. Bronson Griscom
Nissie Grossman '32
Grossman Family Trust
Estate of Katherine H. Haines
James T. Harris '27
John Heliker
Frederick T. Hill '10
Howard F. Hill '18
Louis Makes Hilton
Theodore R. Hodgkins '25
Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Hoffman (Bruce '72)
Hussey Manufacturing Company, Inc.
International Business Machines Corporation
The International Nickel Company, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Ellerton M. Jones '30
Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Jones '40 (Geraldine Stefko '41)
† Deceased

The Leonard & Glenyce Kaplan Charitable Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Crosby M. Kelly (C. Bradford '69)
Warren E. Kershner
Lewin Family Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lewin (Laurie '67, Richard '71)
Mrs. William van V. Lidgerwood
Mr. and Mrs. Rolliston W. Linscott, Jr. (Wayland '72)
Paul E. MacAber (The Mary Corona Mac-Aber Memorial in the Science Center)
Thomas B. McCabe (James '65)
Mr. and Mrs. John H. McGowan (David '72)
Mrs. H. W. Miller
Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Miller '14 (Evie Learned '17)
The New England Colleges Fund, Inc.
Norfolk Shoe Company
David Ogilvy
Oxford Charitable Trust
Palmer Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Parkhill
Estate of Charles H. Pearson
George W. Perry '14
Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Prattley
Reader's Digest Foundation
The Dorothy H. and Lewis Rosenstiel Foundation
Robert Sage '49
Scott Paper Company Foundation
The Sears- Roebuck Foundation
Shell Companies Foundation, Inc.
Mrs. Kenneth H. Sims (Dorothy Stevens '28)
Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skodnek (Kenneth '64)
Alfred P. Sloan Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Constant Southworth (Clara Martin '03)
The Seth Sprague Educational and Charitable Foundation
Louis E. Stahl
Eugene C. Struckhoff '44
The Rosamond Thaxter Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McK. Thomas '63 (Patricia Raymond '65)
Arthur T. Thompson '40
Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Thompson '18 (Carolyn Stevens '16)
The Charles Irwin Travelli Fund
United States Gypsum Company
Mr. and Mrs. George H. Vale '24
Veeder Industries
Thomas J. Watson, Jr. (Thomas '69)
Thomas J. Watson, III '69
J. R. Wiggins
Joseph C. Wilson
Robert F. Woolworth
Jacob Ziskind Trust u/w for Charitable Purposes

Associate's Club
Mrs. H. R. Amott (Jere '52)
Mrs. Grace A. Andersen (William '70)
Mr. and Mrs. George Reed Berry '36
The Boston Globe
Walter N. Breckenridge
The Chase Manhattan Bank Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Marco Chiara (Richard Beaty '71)
Colby College Alumni Association of Greater Portland
Continental Can Company, Inc.
D.K.E. Corporation
Ralph H. DeOseas '27
Duek Corporation
Edmund N. Ervin '36
Hilda M. Fife '26
Fifth Cleveland Steels, Inc.
Charles A. Foehl, Jr. (William '59)
Mr. and Mrs. William C. Gay, Jr. '59 (Dorothy Reynolds '59)
The Greene Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Sol J. Halpern (Wendy '71)
James H. Halpin '26
John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company
Roderic H. D. Henderson
Mr. and Mrs. Curtis M. Hutchins
Ingersoll-Rand Company
Robert A. Ingraham '51
Johns-Manville Sales Corporation
Keyes Fibre Company
Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Leboff (Meryl '71)
Robert S. Lee '51
The Second Abraham S. and Fannie B. Levey Foundation
David D. Lynch '49
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mackey (Linda '60)
Masonite Corporation
National Merit Scholarship Corporation
New Hampshire Charitable Foundation
William P. Palmer, III
John R. Picerne '49
Wilson C. Piper Irrevocable Trust for Corporate and Family Purposes
Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Sampson
Mr. and Mrs. Morton Sasland (Army '71)
Edward H. Turner
United Aircraft Corporation
Charles W. Weaver, Jr. *30

Underwriters Club
Francis F. Bartlett, Jr. *56
Mrs. Francis F. Bartlett (Ruth Kelleher '26)

Mrs. Robert J. Bean
(Susan Fairchild '57)
Joseph Benedetto, Sr.
Mr. and Mrs. W. Wallace Benjamin
Mr. and Mrs. Abner G. Bevin '34 (Thelma Chase '31)
Mr. and Mrs. Hartley A. Bevan '41
Mrs. Eugene L. Bondy, Jr. (Anne Lawrence '46)
Boothby & Bartlett Company
Dr. and Mrs. George N. Bowers, Jr. '50 (Myra Hemmenway '51)
Brookway-Smith-Haigh-Lovelock Company
Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Colgan (Charles '71)
Columbia University School of Public Health and Administration
Connecticut General Life Insurance Company
Mrs. Thomas Crooks
Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Doyle, Jr. (Peter '11 '60)
John Eastman, Jr.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fisher, Jr. (Eleanor '72)
Gordon A. Friesen
Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Giffey '40 (Helen Brown '40)
Morris Goldfine Family Charitable Fund, Inc.
Harry J. Greene '24
James S. Hall '50
Nelson P. Hart '56
Mrs. Lucy MacLeod Helm (Henry '69)
Mr. and Mrs. Waldo H. Holcombe (E. Lee '61)
William D. Hood '61
Mr. and Mrs. F. Jeffries (Jeanne Arnold '57)
Kenneth A. Johnson '37
The Felix and Helen Juda Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Karl R. Kennison '06 (Marion Horne '18)
Eliot Kraft '43
Harry L. Levin '44
Bernard H. Lipman '31
Gordon MacDonald '61
James L. Madden (Anne '70)
Priscilla B. Maltby '40
William T. Mason, Jr. '47
Dr. and Mrs. Leonard W. Mayo '22 (Lena Cooley '24)
J. A. Melnick Corporation
Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.
Margaret J. Moore '54
Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York
Carolyn Muzzy
New England Mutual Life Insurance Company
Phi Delta Theta
Bernard Porter
Anthony J. J. Rourke
Joseph Safaloff
Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Schmickraht (Stephen '70)
Burton Silberstein '49 Friends

A

Jere Abbott
Mrs. Charles D. Adams
In memory of Annie Dudley Douglas '14
Charles F. Adams
George Adams
Mr. and Mrs. John Adams
The Lieutenant John Parker Holden II Memorial Scholarship Fund
Aetna Life & Casualty
Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Agnew
Air Products and Chemicals, Inc.
Charles W. Allen
Mr. and Mrs. Bettye E. Allen
Edward W. Pratley '68 Memorial Fund
Frederick D. Alley
Allied Chemical Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. William H.
Allison (Edward '68)
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C.
Altholz (Charles '71)
Horace F. Allin
Waterville Branch of the American Association of University Women
American Baptist Board of Education and Publication
American Can Company Foundation
Maine Chapter American Institute of Architects
American Insurance Management Corporation
American Optical Corporation
American Stock Exchange
Katherine M. Ames
Walter R. Ames
Mrs. H. R. Amott (Jere '52)
Arthur Andersen & Company
Raymond C. Whitney '18
Henry V. Wilcox '37
Robert E. Wilkins '20
Mrs. J. Herbert Willey
Grace Fletcher '17
Mrs. Charles B. Wills
(Arlene Kiessling '47)
Henry Wilmerding '61
Mrs. George F. Wilson
(Daisy Murray '18)
John A. T. Wilson '60
W. Malcolm Wilson '33
Mrs. Morris Wing
(Elaine Johnson '44)
Robert S. Winslow '38
Mr. and Mrs. John Wolf
(Pamela '71)
Gerald Wolper '52
Charles B. Womer
James H. Woods '29
Captain and Mrs. Whitney
Wright '37 (Louise Weeks '38)
Mr. and Mrs. Emerson G.
Wulling (Lucinda '64)
Mrs. David V. Young (Barbara Forrest '53)
Dr. and Mrs. John A. Zapp, Jr.
(Patricia '61)
B

Mrs. Grace A. Andersen
(William '70)
Mr. and Mrs. Douglas M.
Anderson (Deborah '70)
Gertrude S. Anderson
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Mrs. Ralph L. Angier
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21
Mr. and Mrs. Bliss Ansnes
('Bruce '65)
Mrs. and Mrs. Reed Anthony
('Robert '69)
Mrs. Anna F. Ardenghi
Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Arkin
('Barry '69)
Arkwright-Boston Insurance
Armstrong Cork Company
Mr. and Mrs. Dexter F. Arnold
('Dexter '69)
Flora C. Arnold
Edward W. Pratley '68
Memorial Fund
Otis N. Auer
Augusta General Hospital
Esther E. Austin

B

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton D. Baer (Carl '70)
Mrs. Charles Bailey
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21
Mrs. Baltic Linen Company, Inc.
Richard Barnard
David A. Barrett
Edward T. Bartlett, II
Mr. and Mrs. W. Streeter Bass
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
Bath Iron Works Charitable Trust
V. Gilbert Turner
Martin D. Turpie '60
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tuttmann
(Alan '71)
Martin S. Ulam
Milford U. Umphrye '21
Unióral Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Allan van Gestel
'57 (June Landry '59)
Richard A. Varney '63
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Verrengia
'50 (Christine Winter '50)
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Vigue
'49
Donald C. Walrath
Richard H. Ward
Mrs. Stevenson E. Ward
('Stevenson '68)
Warner-Lambert
Pharmaceutical Company
Milroy Warren '14
Washington, D.C. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crowell
Diana Weatherby '67
Lawrence Weiss '43
Charles H. Whetlaw, Jr. '51
Mr. and Mrs. John Whitman '59 (Christina Rand '59)
S. Stephen Bonadonna
Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Bond
(Edward '63)
Philip D. Bonnet
Boothby & Bartlett Company
Francis F. Bartlett '26
Scholarship Fund
The Boston Globe
Mrs. Margaret B. Bostwick
(Audrey '51)
Nellie B. Bowen
Robert G. Bozarth
Mabel B. Brackett
Mr. and Mrs. Philip H.
Bradley (F. Weber '71)
Mr. and Mrs. William G.
Brandt (Karen '70)
Mr. and Mrs. John E. Bragg
('John '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Braun
(Laurence '64)
Mrs. Donald E. Breckenridge
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21
Walter N. Breckenridge
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21
Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Bresnahan
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21
Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D.
Brewer (Margaret '67)
Lucy T. Briggs
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Roland S. Britton
('Robert '71)
Brockway-Smith-Haigh-Lovell
Company
Mr. and Mrs. Morton N.
Brevsky
The Lieutenant John Parker
Holden II Memorial Scholarship Fund

C 6
Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Brooks
(Deborah '68)
Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Brooks
(Linda '68)
Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Brown (Frederick '56)
Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Brown (Robert '72)
Ray E. Brown
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Bryant (Ann '71)
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Robin C. Buerki
George Bugbee
Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Burke (Barbara '45)
Burlington Industries Foundation

Martha Jo Burton
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. William E. Butler (Burton '72)
Mr. and Mrs. G. Warren Butters, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. George W. Butters
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cain
(Stephen '71)
Calais Regional Hospital
Joseph P. Calandra
Luke A. Camarota
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Calvin B. Cameron (Dennis '71)
Mrs. Frederic E. Camp (Catharine '64)
Robert H. Cauette, Sr.
Dr. and Mrs. Mauro G. Carbone (Gregory '70)
Dr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Carey (Timothy '72)
Doris Carpenter
Laura M. Carpenter
Mrs. Margaret Carter
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

George E. Cartmill
Mr. and Mrs. George S. Casebolt (Margaret '68)
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Central Maine General Hospital
Mr. and Mrs. William N. Chandler
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
The Chase Manhattan Bank Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Chase (Stephen '61)
Grace Cheney
In memory of Fannie Parker Wing '97
Mr. and Mrs. William C. Chester (Sally '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Marco Chiara (Richard Beaty '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Milton Choate
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Christensen (David '69)

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Christoper (Robert '72)
Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cianciolo (Vincent '69)
Benita Cirulis
Cities Service Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. George Clark (Donald '69) Ambassador and Mrs. G.
Edward Clark (George '72)
Clement C. Clay
Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Cleary
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
R. M. Clements
Mr. and Mrs. George A.
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Clerkin
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. James O. Coates (Virginia '69)
Jeremiah P. M. Coen
Colby Alumni Association of Western Maine
Colby College Alumni Association of Greater Hartford
Colby Varsity "C" Club
Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Colgan (Charles '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Collins
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
J. Douglas Colman
Columbia University School of Public Health and Administrative Medicine
Catherine I. Conant
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Conchenco, Incorporated
Mr. and Mrs. John Condon (Michael '70)
Mr. and Mrs. George D. Condon (Russell '72)
Connecticut General Life Insurance Company
The Connecticut Light & Power Company
Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company
M. Anthony Constantine
Continental Can Company, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Cooper (Pam '67)
Walter S. Cornell
The Lieutenant John Parker Holden, II Memorial Scholarship Fund
Connecticut Glass Works Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Andrew F. Costello (Nancy '70)
Alden T. Cotrell
Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Courtie (Robin '72)
Emily C. Cox
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Mrs. Edwin B. Cragin (Edwin '62)
Ambrose C. Cramer
William H. Crawford
Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Cromwell
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund

Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Crooke
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Crooke
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mrs. Thomas Crooks
The Leslie C. Lyon (26) Memorial Endowment Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Crosby
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
David B. Crowley
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Crowley, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Cummings-Guilford Charitable Trust
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Robert M. Cunningham
Robert W. Cunningham, Jr.
Dr. and Mrs. Jean Curran
Mr. and Mrs. William S. Curtis (Anne '69)
Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cutler
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

D
The Charles A. Dana Foundation, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dana
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Francis S. Dane
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daniell, Jr.
Professor and Mrs. Clyde Dankert (Philip '58)
Mr. and Mrs. E. Linwood Davis
Samuel Davis
R. W. DeBusk
Mr. and Mrs. William R. DeLong (Margaret '71)
Duo-Temp Corporation
Richard H. Dennis
Depositors Trust Company
Gordon M. Derzon
Robert A. Derzon (Frank '70)
Frank J. DeScipio
James V. Devine
Henry J. Devlin
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dodge
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Paul H. Doleman
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Dr. and Mrs. Clement L. Donahue (Mildred '70)
Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm L. Donahue (Mildred '66)
Paul A. Donnelly
William J. Donnelly
The Dow Chemical Company
Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Doyle (Peter '70)
Russell M. Drumm
Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Dubois (Cheryl '69)
Mr. and Mrs. Clayton DeBosque
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. William P. Dunham (Susan '67)

Chesley M. Dunlap
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Duo-Temp Corporation
Mr. and Mrs. Richard N. Dyer
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

E
John Eastman, Jr.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Eaton (Scott '71)
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Percy J. Ebbott
Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Eddy (Andrea '71)
Dr. and Mrs. Warren H. Eddy (David '71)

Mrs. John D. Edgerton
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Murah W. Edgington
Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Effron (Walker '70)
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Eggert, Jr. (Amanda '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Mort Eiseman
Mrs. James H. Elkus (Peggy '70)
Mr. and Mrs. George T. Ellis
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States
Mr. and Mrs. Bernhardt W. Erek, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
ESSO Education Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Estabrook (John '69)

Sister Mary Eudalia
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mrs. Joseph Fairchild
Mrs. Margaret Fairchild (June '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Granville Evans (Margaret '70)
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm L. Fairchild
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Albert P. Everts
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fairchild
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mrs. Margaret Fairchild
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

F

Faculty Remembrance Committee
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mrs. Joseph Fairchild
(Susan '57)
Joseph S. Fairchild Financial Aid Endowment Fund
Mr. and Mrs. T. Albert Farmsworth (Bryant '69)
Mrs. William V. M. Fawcett
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mr. and Mrs. C. Carson
Fibereigh (Edith '72)
Federated Department Stores, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanbrough
Fernald
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Fetter (Frank '70)
Fifty Plus Club
Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Finch, Jr. (Christopher '71)
First National City Educational and Charitable Foundation
Firth Cleveland Steels, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fisher (Stephen '69)
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fisher, Jr. (Eleonor '72)
Estate of Florence E. Fitch
Roger A. Fitch
Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone Fitz-Gerald (Donald '72)
William J. Flaherty
Louis M. Fleisher
Mr. and Mrs. James B. Fletcher
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Fletcher
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Charles A. Foehl, Jr.
Mrs. (William C. '39)
Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Ford (Jane '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Nevil Ford
Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Foss (Barbara '70)
Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Foss (Peter '70)
Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Foster (Roger '71)
Mrs. Charles Fox
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Fox
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Franklin County Memorial Hospital
Thomas J. Frawley
Mr. and Mrs. Carl G. Freese
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Grace Frick
Carl Friedrich
Gordon A. Friesen
Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Friebel (Bruce '72)
David Frishman
Gilbert H. Frost Family
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
G
Thomas G. Gallagher, Inc.
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Gary Gambuti
Allen R. Gardner
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
John Jewett Garland
William M. Garland, II
Florence Gaynor
General Electric Foundation
The General Foods Food, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Fritz H. Gieseker
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
Harry C. Gifford
Dr. and Mrs. Robert B. Giles, Jr. (Richard '72)
James M. Gillespie
Mr. and Mrs. Ira F. Gilliatt
Pernell G. Gilling
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Glass
(David '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Hyman S. Glass
(Peter '70)
Hollis T. Gleason
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
John Glendenning, Jr.
Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Glenn
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
Morris Goldfine Family
Charity Fund, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Max Goldman (Charles '71)
Seth B. Goldsmith
Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Goldstein (William '72)
Mr. and Mrs. George H. Gonci
(Richard '72)
Henrietta D. Goodall, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Goodrich
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Gordon Linen Service
Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Gordon
(Robert '71)
Ralph Gould
Althea A. Gower
W. T. Grant Company
Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gray
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Great Northern Paper Company
Julian F. Greeley
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
The Greene Foundation
Harold Greene
Meyer Greene
Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Greer
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Philip Gregory
Mr. and Mrs. Bronson Griscom
August H. Groeschel
Frank S. Groner
Pat N. Groner
Grossman Family Trust
Paul Guilmite
Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Gutman
(Jean '68)
H
Mrs. Irving Hadsell
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Charles L. Haggett
(William '50)
Jack A. L. Hahn
Frances I. Hall
Mr. and Mrs. Stuart G. Hall
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Mr. and Mrs. Sol J. Halpern
(Wendy '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Tadeusz
Hamalski (Barbara '70)
Dr. and Mrs. T. Stewart Hamilton
John Hancock Mutual Life
Insurance Company
Esther Hanok
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Hargrave
(Robert '53)
Dr. and Mrs. Jeffrey H. Harris
(Russell '72)
Harris - Intertype Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Preston Harvey
(Alison '70)
Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Haskell
Havoc Industries, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. David paweli
(Ellen '69)
Adel Heimrich
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Dr. and Mrs. Sidney M. Heller
(Warren '69)
Mrs. Lucy MacLeod Helm
(Henry '69)
Roderic H. D. Henderson
Hercules Incorporated
Frederic P. Herter
Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hewitt (Duncan '71)
Mrs. Edwina A. Smyer
Heyward
Richard Highsmith
Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Hill
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Louis Oakes Hilton
John H. Hinchliffe
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Roger Hinchliffe
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
M. Hinenburg
Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Hoffman
(Edward '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Waldo H. Holcombe (E. Lee '61)
Mrs. Frances F. Holden
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Holden
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Richard K.
Holden (Judith '69)
Mr. and Mrs. Albert E.
Holdridge
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Holly
Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Holt
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Honeywell Fund
Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Hooten
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Sumner P.
Hopkins
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Luise-Lotte Horn
Household Finance Foundation
Nicholas G. Housley
Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L.
Howard (Anne '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Frederic K.
Humble Oil Education Foundation
Dr. and Mrs. Clifford G. Hunt
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Dr. and Mrs. Charles P.
Hutter
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund
I
INA Foundation
Ingersoll-Rand Company
International Business Machines Corporation
The International Nickel Company, Inc.
J
Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Jaffe
(Karen '65)
Raymond M. Jefferson, Jr.
John-Manville Sales Corporation
Edward B. Jones
Everett W. Jones
Robert M. Jones
Marie Joseph Hospital
Samuel Joslow (Marvin '47)
Tucker Joyce
The Felix and Helen Juda
Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fielding
Jukes (Mary '71)
K
Mr. and Mrs. E. Gordon Kakas
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Lehman Katz (David '69)
J. W. Kaufman
Mrs. George Kearney
Mr. and Mrs. Crosby M. Kelly
(C. Bradford '69)
Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Kelly
(Letterly '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C.
Kennedy (Mary '71)
Margaret W. Ketterle
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Keyes Fibre Company
Kiff, Voss & Franklin
Mr. and Mrs. John W.
Kilhoffer
Kimberly-Clark Foundation, Inc.
Sheldon S. King
Mr. and Mrs. Robert J.
Kingsbury (Susan '69)
David M. Kinzer
Sally E. Knap
Knox County General Hospital
Stuart Koblenz
Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E.
Kolhenon (Faye '69)
Joseph A.
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kolonel
(Martin '70)
Professor and Mrs. Seichi
Konzo (Janice '73)
The Kopper's Foundation
William A. Kozma
Gerhard A. Krems
Dr. and Mrs. Philip J. Kresky
(caroline '67)
Mr. and Mrs. J. Michael Krupnick (Elizabeth '71)
Tatiana Kushnaroff
L
Lagueux & Freres, Inc.
Lambda Chi House
In memory of Kim Miller '66
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A.
LaMonica (Linda '67)
Mr. and Mrs. David Lampert
Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw
Langmaid
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Fred M. Langsam
R. P. Lawton
Mr. and Mrs. Gerald LeBoff
(Meryl '71)
Mrs. Isabel E. LeBoutillier
A. Andrew Lee
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Lee
(Justice '69)
Dr. and Mrs. Charles A.
Lehman, Jr. (Ann '61)
Mr. and Mrs. Stephen F. Leo
(Eleanor '71)
Mr. and Mrs. John Levardsen
Elisabeth Levardsen Finegan ('52)
Memorial Fund
Richard Levardsen
Elisabeth Levardsen Finegan ('52)
Memorial Fund
The Second Abraham S. and Fannie B. Levey Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Dirk J. Levitsky
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund

Lewin Family Foundation

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lewin
(Laurie '67
Richard '71)

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lewis
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Lewis
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Liddell
In memory of Neil Leonard '21

Mrs. William van V. Lidgerwood
In memory of John P. King, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolliston W. Lindsey
Linscott, Jr. (Wayland '72)

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Littlefield, Jr.
(Lauren '71)

Mrs. Richard B. Locke

Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Loomis
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Lorillard Corporation

Robert R. Lovejoy

Ludlow Corporation

Professor and Mrs. Alexander W. Luse (Philip '57)

Ludlow Corporation

Mrs. Anna Lundcek

James McCullock

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McCullough

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McCormick (Kevin '71)

Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan
(David '72)

James I. McGuire

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McKendry (Lynne '70)

Colin Campbell McLean

Dr. and Mrs. N. G. McLetterie
(Erland '72)

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McMillan (Douglas '72)

Mr. and Mrs. Irving M. McNair, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Fred A. McNamara

Dr. and Mrs. David McNamee
(David '70)

Mr. and Mrs. David McNamee

Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Macbee
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Donald MacDonald (Gordon '61)

Paul E. Machemer
(The Mary Corona Mac-emer Memorial in the Science Center)

Burton Machinist

Mr. and Mrs. William N. Mackay (Richard '72)

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mackey
(Linda '60)

Mr. and Mrs. William K. Mackey
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21

Douglas C. MacMillan

James L. Madden (Anne '70)

Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Madell

Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Maguire (Benjamin '69)

Mrs. William Maguire
In memory of Charles Maguire '40

Maine Women's Club of New York

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Mandell
(Robert '65)

Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company

Anthony J. Maranga

Marden, Dubord, Bernier &
Chandler

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Marks
(Shelia '72)

Marsellus Family Fund

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Mason
(Donna '70)

Masonic Corporation

Mr. and Mrs. Enso W. Matson
(Anta '69)

Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Maynard
(Thomas '69)

J. A. Mellick Corporation

Merchants National Bank of Bangor

The Merck Company

Foundation

Mercy Hospital

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner &
Smith, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Messer
(Douglas '71)

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

Nasry Michelen

Miles Memorial Hospital

Dr. and Mrs. Carroll C. Miller
(Anne '71)

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Miller
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mrs. Geraldine L. Miller

Mrs. H. W. Miller

John F. Miller

Mrs. Newton Millham

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Mills, Sr.

Mrs. Chester R. Mills
(Jane '59)

William R. Milnor

Mr. and Mrs. Arvid F. Mobberger
(John '70)

Mobil Foundation, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Moore
(Patricia '69)

Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moscow
(Ann '70)

Mount Desert Island Hospital

Smith G. Mowry

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Muhle
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mr. and Mrs. Francis F. Murow
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21

Carolyn Muzzy

Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Muzzy
(Ellen '72)

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Myers
Mrs. T. J. Myers, Jr.
William P. Mylecrestrom

National Merit Scholarship Corporation

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Nester
(Peter '66)

Dr. and Mrs. Erwin Neter
(Stephen '69)

The New England Colleges Fund, Inc.

New England Mutual Life
Insurance Company

New Hampshire Charitable Fund

Howard S. Newman

Dr. and Mrs. John R. Nichols
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mrs. William G. Nickerson
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21

Dr. and Mrs. Satoro
Nishijima (John '68)

Mr. and Mrs. Yngve
Nordstrom (Jeffrey '71)

Mrs. C. F. Norment, III
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund

Edward E. Norris
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund

Norwock Shoe Company

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company

Alex E. Norton

O

Mr. and Mrs. George E. O'Connor
The Lieutenant John Parker
Holden, II Memorial Scholarship Fund

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Oelerking
(David '68)

Mrs. John Ogilvy
(Henry '72)

David Ogilvy

Mr. and Mrs. Louis F.
Oldershaw (Robert '69)

Mr. and Mrs. Lowry K.
Olmstead (Janice '71)

Dr. and Mrs. Mustafa V. Onat
(Shawn '68)

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H.
Osburn, Jr. (Frederick 72)

In memory of John O'Sullivan
Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation

Oxford Charitable Trust

P

Mr. and Mrs. S. Warner Pach
(Nicolette '70)

Albert Pako

Palmer Fund

William P. Palmer, III

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Parkhill
Floyd D. Parrish

Mr. and Mrs. Norman K.
Parsells (Norman '71)

Mr. and Mrs. William P.
Pastushok (Michael '71)

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Patton
(Linda '69)

Mrs. Priscilla Cobb Payne
(Peter Doran '58 Priscilla '62)

Mr. and Mrs. Saul H. Pearl
(James '49)

Estate of Charles H. Pearson

Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company

In memory of Neil Leonard
'21

Pennsylvania Power & Light Company

Penwalt Corporation

People's Benevolent Hospital

Bruce M. Perry

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Perse
(Richard '71)

Joseph P. Peters

Mr. and Mrs. Paul J.
Petitemmet (Jane '69)

Phi Delta Theta

Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G.
Phillips, Jr.

Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Alton E. Pickert

Mrs. Samuel H. Pillsbury
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21

Pine Island Camp, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W.
Pinkham (Christopher '72)

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Poinier
(Julyn '72)

Wilfred A. Poirier

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P.
Pond (Elizabeth '69)

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W.
Post (Frederick '64)

Mrs. Raymond T. Potter
Mr. and Mrs. David W. Power
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Power
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mrs. Leon H. Powers
(Linda '56)

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E.
Pratley

Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Mrs. Henry G. Pratley
Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Henry N. Pratt

Oliver G. Pratt

Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas
Preston (Nicholas '71)

Mrs. Roger Preston
In memory of Neil Leonard
'21

Lee Pridgen, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Provandie
The Rev. and Mrs. David Pyle
(Kenneth '72)

Q

Mr. and Mrs. H. Maxwell
Quackenbos (Ann '71)

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence A.
Quick

Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

John L. Quigley

Charles R. Quillin
Robert M. Crowell ('71)
Memorial Fund

R

Dr. and Mrs. Robert H.
Randall

Reader's Digest Foundation

Frank W. Redding

Edward W. Pratley ('68)
Memorial Fund

Regional Memorial Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. John L.
Reichardt (John '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reinhardt (Douglas ’71)
Dr. and Mrs. Arnold S. Reinman
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Walter R. Rentschler
The Paul Revere Life Insurance Company
L. E. Richwagen
Mr. and Mrs. Edgar M. Ridley, Jr (James ’72)
Mr. and Mrs. Morrin A. Riggs (L’ight ’69)
Mrs. Geoffrey W. Robbins (Geoffrey ’65)
Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Roberts (Cornelia ’65)
Mrs. Arthur G. Robinson
In memory of Arthur G. Robinson ’06 and Marguerite Robinson ’15
Milton L. Roemer
Peter Rogatzo
Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Rogers, Jr. (Paul ’63)
Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Rogerson (Edward ’69)
Alfred L. Rose
Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Rosenberger
Edward D. Rosenfeld
Dr. and Mrs. Mortimer A. Rosenfeld (Amelia ’71)
The Dorothy H. and Lewis Rosenstiel Foundation
The John A. Ross, Jr. Family Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Thomas J. Ross
Mr. and Mrs. John M. Roth
Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Round (Michael ’71)
Anthony J. J. Rourke
Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rouse
Peter ’69
John W. Ruettiger
In memory of Leslie H. Cook ’22
Edward J. Ruff (Clark ’72)
Rumford Community Hospital
Mr. and Mrs. Gaynor K. Rutherford
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey K. Rutherford
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
The Rutland Hospital, Inc.
Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Saban
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
St. Mary’s General Hospital
Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Sampson
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Samson (Richard ’68)
Mr. and Mrs. Dwight E. Sargent (Laurie ’70)
Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Sayward
In memory of Mrs. Edna McC.Wales
Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schine (Randolph ’72)
Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Schmickrath (Stephen ’70)
Mrs. and Mrs. Sheldon Schneider
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Jeremy T. Schneider
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schneider (Harlan ’68)
Harvey Schoenfeld
Leonard Schrager
Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Schulhof (Thomas ’69)
Mrs. Anne S. Schuster (Derek ’67)
Mrs. Reita W. Schwep
Robert M. Crowell (’71) Memorial Fund
Scott Paper Company Foundation
The Sears-Roebuck Foundation
Dorothy B. Seccombe
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Paul L. Selbst
Elizabeth Ann Seton Hospital
Mr. and Mrs. John G. Severson (Kathryn ’71)
Mr. and Mrs. Gerard F. Shaw
Edward Shaw Whiteley (’52) Fund
Mr. and Mrs. David W. Shearston (Peter ’69)
Shell Companies Foundation, Inc.
Mrs. Philip Sheridan
Betsy H. Short
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Sibley
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Silverstein (Jeffrey ’70)
Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Simson
The Singer Company
Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skodnek (Kenneth ’64)
Alfred P. Sloan Foundation
Mrs. A. C. Smith, III (Robert O’Neil ’72)
Mr. and Mrs. C. Fred Smith, Jr.
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Curtis L. Smith
Mr. and Mrs. Everett W. Smith (Nathaniel ’72)
Fred R. Smith Insurance Agency
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith (Todd ’70)
Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Smith
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Mr. and Mrs. William W. Smith Kline & French Foundation
Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith (Andrew ’70)
R. Ashton Smith
Raleigh L. Smith
Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Smith (Peter ’69)
Sander V. Smith
Symuel H. Smith
Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Smith (Douglas ’70)
Mr. and Mrs. William N. Snowfer and Family
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Keith Snow (Stephen ’70)
Donald B. Snyder, Jr.
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Mr. and Mrs. Morton I. Sosland (Amy ’71)
The Sosland Foundation
South Nassau Communities Hospital
Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Spallholz (Dana-Jean ’70)
Mr. and Mrs. James L. Spates (James ’65)
Paul J. Spencer
The Seth Sprague Educational and Charitable Foundation
Quibb Beech-Nut, Inc.
John M. Stagl
Louis E. Stahl
Standard Tool & Die Company
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mrs. Henricus J. Stander
Mrs. Anne Starr
Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Starr, Jr.
Robert M. Crowell (’71) Memorial Fund
Employees of Steele Canvas Basket Company, Inc.
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Steeves
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Steiner (Joseph ’69)
Stephens Memorial Hospital
Charles C. Stewart
Richard A. Stoneack
Mr. and Mrs. Hart Stotter
Jack I. Straus
Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. L. Strider
In memory of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce E. Stover, Dr. Henry Clay Hays, Neil Leonard ’21
Mr. and Mrs. Everett C. Stromberg (Robert ’70)
Mr. and Mrs. Burton B. Stuart & Family
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stuetzer, Jr.
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Vernon Stutzman
Frank C. Sutton
John T. Sutton
Mr. and Mrs. Errol L. Taylor In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor (John ’72)
Spencer C. Taylor
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Frank T. Teagle, Jr.
Mr. and Mrs. George Terhorgh (Eliot ’65)
Joseph V. Terenzio
Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Terenzio
The Textron Foundation Trust
The Thayer Hospital Associates
Mr. and Mrs. Zareh Thomajan (Gregory ’59)
Dana S. Thompson
Mr. and Mrs. Laurel W. Thompson (Anna ’69)
Mrs. Lora T. Tibbetts
The Vinal H. Tibbetts (’14) Scholarship Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Grover A. Tindall (Nancy ’70)
Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Timmer
Charles W. Tober
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trani, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
The Travelers Insurance Company
The Charles Irwin Traveli
Mr. and Mrs. Donald K. Tresscott (Deborah ’72)
Mrs. Oscar A. Triphet (Larimore ’71)
Alton F. Tupper, Jr.
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Edward H. Turner
V. Gilbert Turner
William Turner
William K. Turner
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tutman (Alan ’71)
Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Twohig (Michael ’71)
U
Martin S. Ulani
Mr. and Mrs. F. Hopewell Underhill
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Mr. and Mrs. John H. Underhill
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
UnioRoyal Foundation
United Aircraft Corporation
United States Gypsum Company
Dr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Urmy
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
V
Mrs. Anneliese Quiltz Vale
Joseph Valenti
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Van Buren Community Hospital
Richard D. Vanderwarker
Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur H. Van
Dine (Judith ’64)
Gustave Varrelmann, Jr.
Veeder Industries
Richard T. Vigueurs
Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Vinette
W
Joseph B. Wadeleigh
In memory of Maudie Eaton
Andaleigh ’09
Waldo County General Hospital
M. Andre Walker
Edward A. Walker
Edward W. Pratley (’68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wallingford (David ’54)
Donald C. Waldorf
Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Ward
In memory of Neil Leonard ’21
Richard H. Ward
Mrs. Stevenson E. Ward
(Stevenson '68)
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ware
(William '70)
The Warner Fund, Inc.
Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Company
Mrs. Bradford Washburn
In memor y of Neil Leonard '21
Washington, D.C. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crowell
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Waterville Area Colby Alumni Association
Waterville Hardware & Plumbing Supply Company
Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wathen, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Thomas J. Watson, Jr.
(Thomas. III '69)
Mrs. William P. Wattles
Webber Hospital
Lucy H. Weiser
Dr. and Mrs. Ulrich Weiss
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Guenter Weissberg
Ruth C. Welch
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wellman
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
William T. Welsh
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Kenneth N. Wenrich
Glenn A. Wesselmann
The Western Publishing Company Foundation
Mrs. Anne M. Wetherill
(Anne '71)
Thomas F. Weymouth
Mr. and Mrs. George Whalon
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
E. Todd Wheeler
Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Whidden
(Thomas '70)
G. Scott Whiting
Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Nason Whitney
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mrs. Theodore Whitney
(George '52)
E. Finley Whittlesey
Anne Gwynn Whittlesey
('43) Scholarship Fund
Mr. and Mrs. August I. Wiener (Walter '72)
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wild
Robert M. Crowell ('71) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. J. Randall Williams
(J. Randall '65)
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Willmann
(Jeffrey '71)
John Willman
Madelin A. Wilmarth
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Wilson, Jr.
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Wilson
(Robert '71)
Joseph C. Wilson
Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Wilson, Jr.
(Debrah '66)
Mr. and Mrs. William L. Wilson
Mr. and Mrs. John Wolf
(Pamela '71)
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Wolff
(Mary '72)
Charles B. Womer
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Wonders
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Robert F. Woolworth
Marion J. Wright
Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wright, Jr.
(Thomas '69)
Mrs. Marian J. Wrightington
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Mr. and Mrs. Emerson G. Wulling
(Lucinda '64)
X
Xerox Corporation
Y
Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Youngren
Edward W. Pratley ('68) Memorial Fund
Z
Dr. and Mrs. John A. Zapp, Jr.
(Patricia '61)
Jacob Ziskind Trust u/w for Charitable Purposes
Honorary
Dr. and Mrs. J. Seelye Bixler
In memory of Neil Leonard '21
Pearl Fisher
Guy George Gabrielson
John Heliker
Curtis M. Hutchins
Mr. and Mrs. Ellerton M. Jette
Warren E. Kershner
Clifford H. Osborne
Joseph Sataloff
J. R. Wiggins
Alumni, by classes

1894
Nahum M. Wing*

1897
In memory of Edith Hanson Gale
Minnie Galler Mayer*
In memory of Fannie Parker Wing

1898
Ina Taylor Stineford*

1899
In memory of
Dr. Harold L. Hanson
William L. Waldron*

1900
Stella Jones Hill
Fred F. Lawrence
Charles F. Towne*
Gertrude Pike Towne*

1901
William F. Hale*
Rhea Clark Marsh*

1902
Augusta Colby*
Edna Owen Douglass*
Angier L. Goodwin*
Nellie Lovering Rockwood*

1903
Edith Cenia Bicknell*
Clara Martin Southworth*

1904
Eva Clement Ames*
Eunice Mower Beale*
In memory of Jennie M. Cochrane

1905
William Hoyt*

1906
Anna M. Boynton*
Karl R. Kennison*
Ella E. Masey*
In memory of Arthur G. Robinson
Cora Farwell Sherwood*
Susan H. Weston*

1907 Myrta Bassett Betts*
In memory of Sarah S. Cummings
Roscoe C. Emery*

1913 Mathea Windell Allen*
Elmer R. Bowker*
Crary Brownell*
Diana Wall Foger*
John H. Foster*
Pauline Hanson*
Elmer H. Hussey*
Philip W. Hussey*
Eva Macomber Kyes*
Dora Libby Lockwood*
Ernest C. Marriner*
Belle Smith Wescott*
Iva B. Willis*
Ada Waugh Young Andrew Young*

1914
Willard B. Ashford*
Louise Drummond Beach*
Sophie Pratt Bostelmann*
Marjorie Mealer Burns*
Philip L. Campbell*
Frank S. Carpenter*
Edith Washburn Clifford*
Eugene K. Currie*
In memory of Annie Harthorn Wheeler

1915
Harold S. Campbell*
Ruth Whitman Cushing*
Prince A. Drummond*
Vivian M. Ellsworth*
Clarence L. Foss*
Aldine C. Gilman*
Leonard W. Grant*
Roland B. Hutchins*
Charles H. Jones*
Marion Seward LaCasce*
Carl B. Lord*†
Ina M. McCausland*
Ruth Brickett Rideout*
In memory of Marguerite Robinson
Ray D. Robinson*
A. Ruth Trefethen*
Myrtle Everett Waite*
Lester F. Weeks*
Ray C. Young*

1916 Hubbert H. Barker*
Elizabeth Hodgkins Bowen*
Edith Pratt Brown*
John A. Campbell*
Alice A. Clarkin
Berle Cramp*
Franklin M. Dyer*
Hazel Moore Ellis*
Frank C. Foster*
Arthur E. Gregory*
Marion Harmon*
Leon D. Herring*
Vivian Skinner Hill*
Elia Robinson Hoyt*
Cyril M. Joly*
Ralph W. King*
Hazel N. Lane*
Lewis Lester Levine*
Louise McCurdy Mackinnon*
Peter J. Mavers*
Eleanor Bradlee Mitchell*
Lucy Montgomery Newell*
Katharine Moses Rolfe*
Marion Wyman Simons*
Esther French Spaulding*
Carolyn Stevens Thompson*
Frances Trefethen†
Chester O. Wylie*

1917
Harriet Canham Alley*
Mildred Greeley Arnold*
Elmer W. Campbell*
Helen D. Cole*
John F. Everett*
Mildred Bartom Flood*
Hazel M. Gibbs*
Gertrude Donnelly Gonya*
Harold E. Hall*
William M. Harriman*
Francis E. Heath*
Morrill L. Ilsley*
Thomas F. Joyce*
Leonora A. Knight*
Elise M. Lane*†
C. Wallace Lawrence*
Paul D. Lovett
Evie Learned Miller Lillian Tuttle Morse*
Frederick A. Pottle*
Lucy Taylor Pratt*
Cecil A. Kellins*
Irma M. Ross*
Hazel Durgin Sandberg*
Marion White Smith*
Ralph N. Smith*
Ruth Murdock Thayer*
Anne F. Treworgy
Nathaniel Weg*
 Mildred Greene Wilbur*
Oliver C. Wilbur*
Winifred Atwood Wilbur*
Grace Fletcher Willey*
Lester E. Young*

1918 Mary Jordan Alden*
Bertha Terry Arnold*
Carlton M. Bailey*
Merrill A. Bigelow*
Howard G. Boardman*
Helen Kimball Brown*
Helene B. Buie*
Warren S. Churchill
Violet French Collins*
Ala E. Davis*
Florence Eaton Davis*
Elizabeth R. Fernald*
Charlotte Gilman*
Howard F. Hill*
Ross S. Holt
Frederick K. Hussey
Marion Horne Kennison*
Marguerite Bradbury Lampley
Norman D. Lattin*
Alberta Shepard Marsh*
Harris B. McIntyre*
Harvard E. Moor*
Katharine Sturtevant Moore*
Raymond H. Parker*
Alfred H. Patterson*
Alton A. Philbrook Marion Starbird Pottle*
Emma H. Prescott*
Dorothy L. Robertson*
Hugh L. Robinson*
Ruth M. Robinson*
Violet Shaw Scott*
Winifred Shaw Terrill*
Paul A. Thompson*
Otto L. Totman
Clifton M. Tracy
Zella Reynolds Tracy
Stanley M. Wallace
Leila M. Washburn*
Raymond C. Whitney*
Daisy Murray Wilson*

1919
Charles V. Andersen
John D. Anthony
Willard B. Arnold*
John C. Ashworth
Ralph E. Brabul
Katharine Harvie Burrison*
Lillian Pike Chick*
William W. Chute
Ira E. Creelman*
Mildred Dunham Crosby*
Marion Griffin Demuth*
Mira L. Dolley*
Weston W. Driscoll

1920
Pauline Higinbotham Blair*
Raymond O. Brinkman*
John W. Brush*
John F. Choate*
Lillian Dyre Cornish*
Anne Murray Doyle
Anna McLaughlin Fallon*
Harriet Swester Greene*
Merrill S. Greene*
Donald G. Jacobs*
M. Lucile Kiddier
Ernest L. McCormack*
Rafael J. Miranda
Raymond S. Owen*
Carl W. Robinson*
Everett A. Rockwell*
Hugh A. Smith
Clarence A. Tash*
Lucy O. Teague*
Stella Greenlaw Thompson*
Robert E. Wilkins*
Ruth E. Wills Maude Tooke Young*

1921 Pauline W. Abbott*
Alice Clark Anderson*
Thecla French Arnold*
Laura V. Baker*
Helen Hodgkins Berry*
Stanley R. Black*
Arthur J. Brimstone*
Paul L. Brooks*
Alice LaRoque Brown*
Chauncey L. Brown*
William E. Burgess

1922
Asa C. Adams*
Vina Parent Adams*
Eleanor C. Bailey*
Raymond J. Bates*
Marguerite Craig Beach*
Virginia M. Bean*
Walter D. Berry*
Avis Barton Bixby*
Julia Hoyt Brakewood*
In memory of Leslie H. Cook
Dorothy M. Crawford*
Kenneth C. Dolbearn*
Elizabeth Dyer Downs*
Jeremiah J. Doyle, Jr.
Charles H. Gale*
Edwin W. Gates*
Ruth Baughart Greenleaf*
Miriam Hardy*
Robert M. Jackson*
Catherine Larrabee*
Helen Raymond Macomber
Leonard W. Mayo*
Bertha Gilliatt Moore*
Edna Briggs Morrell*
Edna Chamberlain Nelson*
Charles J. Paddock*
Ediphine Fish Plummer*
Clive E. Russell*
Lorena F. Scott*
Evan J. Shearman*
H. Theodore Smith
William L. Stears
Arthur J. Sullivan*
Annie Choate Sweet*
Hazel Dyer Town*

1923 Myrtice Swain Andrews*
Reta Wheaton Avery*
Arthur L. Berry*
Doris Dicky Besse*
Frederick D. Blanchard*
Anlene Ringrose Brown*
Elliot F. Chase*
J. Russel Coulter*
Lucy Osgood Dean*
Edythe Porter Dunstan*
J. Lesic Dunstan*
Stanley G. Estes*
In memory of
A. Galen Eustis
Marlin D. Farnum*
Melva Mann Farnum
Frederick G. Fassett, Jr.*
Edward R. Frutle
Agnes Cameron Gates*
John B. Gove*
Wendall F. Grant*
Gertrude Weller Harrington*
Edith Weller Juchter*
Chilton L. Kemp
Elizabeth B. Larrabee*
Merton E. Laverty*
Anson C. Lowitz
Marguerite Starbuck Lunt*
Eleanor Wilkins McCarthy*
Helen Dresser McDonald*
Velma Briggs Moore*
Margaret Aubert Paul*
Marion Drisko Powers
Harland R. Ratcliff*
Ilsa Jones Smith*
Louise E. Steele*
Louise W. Tilley*
Mary E. Warren
Ernest R. Werme

1924
John L. Berry*
Martha Martin Biggs*
Charles M. Cough*
George M. Davis*
Ethen Reed Day*
Suc R. Daye*
Mary Watson Flint*
Paul W. Gates
Dorothy M. Gordon*
Harry J. Guest
Mary Gordon Harvey
Grace Fox Herrick*
Maulle Herron Hult
Louis Langman*
Charles S. Lewis*
Carolyn Hodgdon Libby*
Louise A. Libby
Marion Cummings Mann*
Everett C. Marston
Franklin C. Matzeck*
Lena Cooley Mayo*
William J. McDonal*
Joseph W. McCarry
Ralph D. McLeary*
J. Haalland Morie
Marion Brown Newcomb*
Margaret Gilmore Norton
Ruth Allen Peabody*

1925

Eva L. Alley
Mildred E. Briggs
Alfred King Chapman
Herman Glassman
Joseph P. Corham
Raymond S. Grant
Nellie Pottle Hankins
Theodore R. Hodgkins
Clayton W. Johnson
Seymour J. Koff
Frank R. Porter
Anne Brownstone Prilutsky
Lawrence A. Putnam
Katrina Hedman Ranney
Rachel Conant Rowe
Evelena Goodale Smith
Joseph C. Smith
Arthur H. Snow
Pearl Thompson Stetson
Marion Drisko Tucker
Gren E. Vale
Merle Rokes Waltz
Mildred Todd Weir
Fred M. Weiss
Helen Gray Weston
A. Hilda Worthen

1926

Ruth Kelleher Bartlett
Francis F. Bartlett
Agnes Osgood Blake
F. Christine Booth
Agnes J. Brouder
Alpha Crosby Brown
Pauline Lunn Chamberlin
Helen E. Davis
Paul M. Edmunds
Hilda M. Fife
Adelaide Gordon Fitts
William M. Ford
Donald C. Freeman
Doris Roberts Gates
Emily Heath Hall
F. Clive Hall
James H. Halpin
Doris Dewar Hunt
E. Evelyn Kellett
Alfred N. Law
Clifford H. Littlefield
Evelyn Smith Leiblen
Agnes Osgood Blake
Kenneth Leon Wentworth
Phyllis Bowman Wiley

1927

Carl A. Anderson
Sylvia V. Brazzell
James C. Brudno
Ena True Carlson
J. Ardelle Chase
Ralph H. Deorsay
Evelyn M. Estey
Helen Smith Fawcett
Perly C. Fullerton
Rose Seltzer Gahan
Barrett G. Getchell
Fayalene Decker Goodman
James J. Harris
Alon J. Hilton
Mabel Root Holmes
Robert C. Hunt
C. Evan Johnson
J. Douglas Johnston
James C. La Grua
Harriet Fletcher Lockwood
Marguerite Chase Macomber
William A. Macomber
Maynard W. Maxwell
Thomas F. O'Donnell
Albert U. Peacock
Arlene Mann Peakes
Greely C. Pierce
William E. Pierce, Jr.
Ralph F. Prescott
Chve E. Riley
Miriam Rice Schutz
Esther Knudson Shettleworth
Theodore G. Smart
Gweth T. Smith
Richard P. Staunton
F. Clement Taylor
Fred L. Turner
Lura Norcross Turner
Elizabeth Alden Wassell
Faith D. Waterman
Marion Sproll Williamson
Ellis F. Parmenter
Olive Soule Parmenter
Herschel E. Peabody
Jennie Nutter Peacock
Edith Greeran Phelan
George E. Roach
Marian Rowe
Doris Garland Russell
Margaret Smith Shearman
Abbot E. Smith
Kenneth J. Smith
Roger A. Stinchfield
John S. Tibbetts
Carroll D. Tripp
Albert W. Wassell
Esber E. Wood
Herbert McC. Wortman
Mollie Seltzer Yett

1928

Iurma Sawyer Andrews
Roland B. Andrews
Louise Bauer
George P. Bernhardt
Glahys Bunker Bridges
Dorothy Sylvester Carmans
Miles F. Carpenter
Everett O. Champin
Helen Merrick Chandler
Robert C. Chandler
A. Donald Clark
Cornelia Adair Cole
C. Stanley Corey
Esther Parker Crosman
A. A. D'Amico
Amy D. Dearborn
Nellie M. Dearborn
E. Richard Drummond
John N. Erickson
Mona Herron Erickson
Margaret Davis Farnham
Edmond F. Fiedler
Cecil E. Foote
Nathaniel M. Gallin
Lela H. Glidden
G. Holbrook Hawes
Eva Page Hawkins
Augustus M. Hodgkins
Dorothy Daggett Johnston
Martin M. Keats
Walter F.Knofskie
Albert W. Larsen
Arthur B. Levine
Arthur W. Littlefield
J. Lewis Lovett
P. Kenton MacCubres
Claire Richardson MacDougall
Jene J. Marcou
Harriet Towlie McCrory
James T. McCrory
Ruth M. McEvoy
Laurice Eades Merriman
Edward R. Newhall
John F. O'Brien
Marion Daye O'Donnell
John S. Parker
Edna Cohen Rapaport
Cecil H. Rose
Roy V. Shorey
Alberta Van Horn Shute
Dorothy Steiner Sims
Sydney P. Snow
A. Frank Stiegler, Jr.
Pauine Sinclair Stinchfield
Ruth Hutchins Stinchfield
Alice M. Taber
Albert J. Thiel
Charles E. Towne
Edna E. Turkington
Ellen L. Vinal
Susie Stevens Watson
George C. West

1929

Alice Paul Allen
J. Drisko Allen
Everett W. Bell
E. Richard Benson
Martha Allen Blackwell
Neal D. Bousfield
Joseph B. Campbell
Oscar M. Chute
Charles A. Cowing
Beatrice Palmer Frederick
G. Cecil Goddard
Lillian Morse Henry
Martha Holt Hines
Richard P. Hosdson
David F. Kronquist
Lowell P. Leland
F. Elizabeth Libby
Doris Wyman Lord
Lemuel K. Lord
Mary Vose McGillicuddy
Ruth Norton McKay
Earle A. McKeen
Ernest E. Miller
Murray B. Miller
Dorothy L. Morton
Barbara Weston Noves
Sophie Reynolds
Rosalie Mosher Reynolds
John R. Richardson
Ruth Bartlett Rogers
Robert W. Scott
Mark R. Shibles
Roy E. Smith
In memory of Alden C. Sprague
Fred J. Sterns
Allen J. Stinchfield
Eva Grant Tripp
James H. Woods

1930

Pauline Bakeman
Forrest M. Basson
Philip S. Bisher
Robert P. Brown
Barbara Taylor Cahill
Helen Paul Clement
Lucy Parker Clements
Aaron Cook
W. Thornton Cowing
James E. Davidson, Jr.
William B. Downey
Millian L. Egert
Dexter E. Elsmore
Lucile Whitcomb Elsmore
Leroy S. Ford
G. Gilbert Henry, Jr.
Karl R. Hines, Jr.
Ralph B. Hurlburt
Miriam Sanders Marcho
Edgar B. McKay
Mary Rollins Millett
Albert C. Palmer
Norman D. Palmer
Helen Chase Paradey
Ruth Park Smith
William H. Stinsfleth
Frances E. Thayer
Barbara Libby Tofield
Pauline Brill Trafton
Charles W. Weaver, Jr.
Edith M. Woodward

1931

Evel MacDougall Aleman
Myrtle Paine Barker
Thelma Chase Bevin
Barbara Gurney Cassidy
Isabel H. Clark
Louise Mulligan Collins
Mary Cadwaller Combellack Faith Rollins Davidson
John S. Davidson
Gertrude Sykes Elwell
Arthur B. Esty
Arlean Woodman Evans
Roderick E. Farnham
Howard L. Ferguson
Dorothy Shippee Friend
Elbridge D. Grafton
In memory of Louise Grearson Haley
Beulah Stiles Harris
Anne Macomber Holden
Eunice Foye Hutchins
Andrew J. Karkos
Frances E. Libby
Bernard H. Lipman
1912
Dorris Heaney Batt
Marjorie Rogers Beach
Marjorie Cate Berke
Sue Rose Bessey
Robinson D. Burbank
Clifford F. Came, Jr.
Elizabeth Furbush Chase
William R. Conley
Muriel Howe Delany
Jane Soule Engert
Vita Fedorovich
Dorothy Smith Fernald
Lawrence Fittson
Ann Jones Gilmore
Milton W. Hamilt
Harry L. Hicks, Jr.
Barbara R. Hohlen
Max A. Holzrichter
Robert I. Johnson
Mary E. Jones
Ruth Crowell Knight
Richard N. Kohn
Alton G. Laliberte
Arthur B. Lincoln, Jr.
Christine Bruce Lyon
Priscilla George McNally
Ruth Sanderson Meredith
Lawdood E. Palmer, Jr.
George A. Parker, Jr.
Walter M. Pejko
Muriel CARrell Philson
J. Franklin Pino, Jr.
J. Richard Rancourt
Betty Barter Richardson
Gordon A. Richardson
Betty Royal Spiegel
John L. Thomas, Jr.
William E. Tucker
Shirley I. Wagner
John B. Warner
Marion Thomas Whipple
Betsy Libbey Williams

1942
Hubert S. Beckwith
Jeannette Nielsen Braddock
Thomas R. Braddock
Eleanor Smart Braunmuller
Norman A. Chaletsky
Betty Tobey Chote
Kathleen Monaghan Corey
Marjorie McDougal Davis
Robert C. Dennison, Jr.
Patricia Ford Ellis
Thomas W. Farnsworth, Jr.
Richard A. Field
Madeleine Hinckley Gibbs
Harry P. Hiilebrandt
Elwin F. Hussey
Meyer C. Jacobs
George H. Jahn
Howard R. Johnson
Eliot B. Kraft
Anita Poole Lariberte
Perley M. Leighton
Ronald D. Lupton
Frederick B. McAlary
James R. McCarrol
Barbara Philbrick Mertz
Hope Gillingham Meyer
Frank J. Missell
Ruth Graves Montgomery
James W. Moriarty
Geraldine Fennessey Parker
George A. Popper
Marjorie Brown Pursley
Thomas A. Pursley, Jr.
Elizabeth Durand Ransom
Sidney J. Rauch
Ronald M. Reed
J. Kenneth Shepard
Lymon A. Small Hilda Niehoff True
Rubs Lott Tucker
Louis J. Volpe, Jr.
Lawrence Weiss
Donald C. Whitten

1944
Alexander Anton
Rae Gale Backet
Helen Watson Boldi
Ralph S. Braudy
Priscilla Gould Brock
Vivian Maxwell Brown
John C. Calahan
Virginia Hall Calahan
Cornelius Callaghan, Jr.
Jane Bell Corvdon
Alexander E. Dembkowski
Alice Drake Deming
Alice Leith Fisher
William E. Frazier
W. Harris Graf
William R. Hibei
Jean Ferrell Howe
William Hutcheson
Hope Mansfield Jahn
Lois Peterson Johnson
Louise Callahan Johnson
Robert E. Kain
Nancy Curtis Lawrence
Harry L. Levin
Barbara Blaisdell Libby
Carlisle L. Libby
Mary Smith Lyon
N. Douglas MacLeod, Jr.
*Josephine Pitts McAlary
Nancy Pattison McCarthy
A. Warren McDougal, Jr.
Evelyn Gates Moriarty
G. Richard Mountfort
Elias R. Nawfel
Philip E. Nutting
John E. Poirier
Barbara Bavis Primiano
Elizabeth Wood Reed
Edward H. Saltzberg
Mary Weeks Sawyer
Burton G. Shiru
Stanley H. Short
Robert W. Sillen
James Springer
Carl Stem
Eugene C. Struckhoff
Priscilla Keating Swanson
Gertrude Szalwicz
John A. Thompson
Pauline Foley Thompson
William H. Tobey
Remo M. Verrengia
Harold I. Vigue
Alden E. Wagner
Sarah Martin Wahl
Philip H. Watson
James M. Whitten
Elaine Johnson Wing
Martha Wheeler Zeltsman

1945 Christi C. Adams
Adelle Grinrod Babes
Beverl F. Booth
Marilyn L. Bryant
Gordon A. Crook
Muriel Sterling Fellows
Richard R. Fellows
Georgeann Guilfoold Fielding
Lisa Cole Fisher
Edwin S. Gibson
Leslie Tufts Green
Elizabeth Lohnes Grudin
Margarette Broderick Gustafson
Floyd L. Hittelng
Jeanne Parker Holmes
Doris Blanchard Hutcherson
Joan Gay Kent
Rossin E. Kramer
George H. Lewald
Rita A. McCail
Grace Keefer Parker
Kenneth L. Quinby
Frances Willey Ripper
Gerard H. Rosenberg
Joan M. St. James
Douglas N. Smith
Helen Strauss
Sherwood J. Tarlov
Francis B. Ward, Jr.
Maurice M. Whitten

1946
Cloud G. Aarseth
Anne Mcconnell Bondy
Philip J. Boyne
Martha Blackington Caminiti
Priscilla Tibbets Durgin
Carol Robin Epstein
Nancy Parsons Ferguson
Wilfred R. Granger
Francis J. Heppner
Dorothy Dunham Hobbs
John L. Huley
Glencoe Miller Kaplan
Elizabeth Scalise Kilham
Hannah Karp Laipson
Marie Kracler Lowenstein
Hilda Robertson Lyons
Adelaide Jack McCollin
Jean O'Brien Perkins
Betty Soule Pope
Austin Ryder
Roselle Johnson Thorian

1947
Nancy Burbank Allured
Robert E. Anderson
Elizabeth Richmond Anthony
Dorothy Briggs Aronson
Joan Hunt Bankfield
Margaret Scott Carter
June Chipman Coalson
Elizabeth Wade Drum
Charlotte Hanks Dumas
Helen Jacobs Eddy
Albert J. Ellis
Mac Hoy Farrington
Elizabeth Hall Fitch
Elinoa Farnham Frolo
Stanley F. Frolo
Joanne Bouton Fry
Murray J. Gore
1965

Randall W. Antik
Richard W. Bankart
Jocelyn Coyle Berrnan
William F. Boothby, Jr.
Karen Jaffe Brown
Kennon W. Bryan
Sally Thompson Bryan
Frank T. Carney, Jr.
Jonathan Clarner
Timothy F. Cleghorn
Alison A. Coady
Gordon M. Corey
Linda Stearns Corey
Bruce M. Davey
Richard W. Davis
Myers Denny-Brown
Nelloba Roberts Dietz
Joan Richards Dolan
Robertina Gilow Drewes
Barbara C. Driotcour
William P. Ferretti
James C. Foritano
Patricia McClay Gauer
Michael C. Gilman
Katharine Parker Gordon
Robert A. Gordon
Holly J. Gower
Jay K. Gronlund
Alfred J. Grzelecki, Jr.
Judith E. Guittill
Nancy Winslow Harwood
Richard B. Harwood
Alana Kogut Hasler
Virginia Cole Henkel
Ann Williams Heyd
Adora Clark Hill
Thomas A. Hill
George D. Hooker
Dale C. Jewell
Shepard J. Kantor
Lynn Longfellow Knight
Thomas Korst
Diane Terry Kowal
Harold F. Kowal
Lora C. Kreeger
Lewis Krinsky
Robert B. Lewis
Margaret A. Lutz
Gerald P. McElroy
Barbara C. Mcgiccardy
Norman F. Miner
Gail Lenz Mitchell
Shirlee Clark Neil
William B. Neil, Jr.
William A. Oates, Jr.
Suzanne Walker Ostrem
Sheila Webster Pierce
Arnold Repetto
Matthew A. Riddell
Paul M. Ross
William M. Savage
Albert Seferian, Jr.
Lynn Smith Short
Arthur S. Sills
Anna Owens Smith
Starbucks Smith, III
Charlene Corsun Solomon
James L. Spates
Eliot F. Terborgh
John D. Tewhey
Patricia Raymond Thomas
Barbara Howard Traister
Fred J. Wetzel
J. Randall Williams, IV
Loretta Kirk Williams
Anne Godley Wilson
Cassandra Cousins Wright
Judith Evans Wruble

1966

Nancy Reinhert Adams
Britt Carlson Anderson
Peter C. Anderson
Nancy DeWitt Antik
Elizabeth Peo Armstrong
Richard A. Aube
Wesley E. Barbour
Bruce W. Barker
Peter L. Blumenthal
Katherine McGee, Christie
Joseph J. Connolly
Virginia Grelliott Connolly
John S. Cookson
Jan Atherton Cox
Thomas A. Cox
Jean E. Craig
Patricia Berg Currier
Martha DeCou
Peter Densen
Kate Hollinshead Dixon
William J. Donahue
Malcolm L. Donaldson, Jr.
George S. Duke
Joan Manegold Dukes
Richard L. Dunnell, Jr.
J. Frederick Eagle, III
Sarah Vaughan Eagle
Thomas A. Easton
Susan Foster Ebinger
Lynne Egbert Egbert
James E. Fell, Jr.
Lynn Seidenstuecker Gall
Anne Ruggles Gere
Anthony S. Giles
Peter N. Grabsoby
Ruth Loker Ingham
William P. Ingham
Steven P. Johnson
Bayard W. Kenney
L. Gary Knigh
Terry Saunders Lane
Howard M. Latham
Peter J. Lax
Ardith L. Maney
Salvatore V. Manforde
Ann L. McCarty
Charles J. McLennan
In memory of Kim C. Miller
Russell N. Monbleau
Harrison G. Monk
Frank G. Neal, III
Sally Leighton Niblock
Walter R. Nock
Richard T. Osborne
John S. Perkins
Lawrence H. Pike
Charles F. Rabeni
Margaret Farmham Rabeni
Robert S. Rand
Ralph S. Record
Jane Michener Riddell
Diane R. Roesing
Peter Swartz
John S. Tara
Robert E. Thompson
Erik Thorson
Allen H. Throop
Janet Meyer Throop
Carl O. Tighe
Katherine B. Tower

Richard J. Waddington
Glena Gerrie Walker
Linda Kaiser Wantman
Stuart C. Wantman
Margaret Falkin Wheeler
Geoffrey P. Williams
Richard H. Zimmermann

1967

Charles H. Anderson
Sue Barden
Ledvard S. Baxter
Edward C. Berube
Charlotta Howard Blyle
Barry G. Boleho
Phillip W. Bromwell
Kevin F. Burke
Frances Richter Comstock
Robert E. Comstock, Jr.
Joseph B. Connolly
Susan Daggett Cullen
Walter J. Cullen, Jr.
Elen Eichmann Dennis
Susan H. Dunham
Elizabeth Nelson Easton
Joseph M. Fine
Barbara J. Fitzsimmons
Jane Machia George
William H. George
Jean Grindell Giles
Carol Severance Glenn
Christopher H. Glenn
Natalie Furlong Graceff
Phyllis E. Hoar
Robert E. Jackson
Peter C. Jensen
Philip M. Kay
Ross M. Kolhoen
Charles R. Levin
William J. Loveday
Donna G. Lumpkin
Eric A. Meinell
Linda LaMonica Monk
Suzan M. Monk
Marcella Ray Morin
Michel G. Picher
Pamela Cooper Picher
Walter L. Procko
Lou Richards
Thomas H. Saline
Douglas M. Schait
Dez V. Schuster
Michael M. Smith
Kurt M. Swenson
George L. Tillinghast, Ill
Jean Mueller Tillinghast
William L. Vanderwell
William A. Walker
Diana K. Weatherby
Patricia J. Whitemore
Clark H. Whitting
Kathryn Haskell Whittier
Susan D. Wood
Stephanie Burton Zimmermann

1968

Nancy J. Abbott
Robert S. Ayner
Maxine F. Allison
Jacqueline B. Aulton
Deborah A. Ayer
Mary Austin Baur
Mary Calabrese Baur
David A. Berube
Gail Schumacher Berube
E. Richard Drummond

[RETIREMENT]

E. Richard Drummond '23, Bangor investment counselor, is retiring from the board of trustees after twenty-seven years of service.

The Drummond family has been closely associated with Colby for more than a century. His father, the late Albert F. Drummond '88, was a trustee from 1918 to 1929.

A Waterville native, Drummond received his master's degree in business administration from the University of Pennsylvania. During his undergraduate days he was prominent in football, hockey and track. He received All-American and All-East nominations as a fullback in football and was captain of hockey. Throughout the years he has been deeply involved with sports programs at the college as a member of the athletic council. He is now president of Pierce, White and Drummond, Inc., a Bangor brokerage firm with which he has been associated since 1936.

His duties on the board have included assignments on various committees including academics, investments, and nominations. Drummond will continue on some committees as a Colby Fellow. He has been a member of the planning committee for the college's annual Institute for Maine Industry; a class agent for the alumni fund; and a member of the alumni council. Drummond accepted key roles on many fund-raising campaigns during more than two decades when the college was developing its new campus.

[STAFF, FACULTY]

Appointments

F. Alexis Schulten as track coach, to replace Richard Wotruba. Schulten, NCAA champion in the hammer in 1965 and 1966, and NCAA champion in 1964, was an All-American; his 1965 record of 64½ feet for the 35-lb weight stood until last year. Schulten, who also held the national record in the hammer, is a graduate of Bowdoin and an outstanding tenor soloist.

Frank Stephenson, formerly assistant to the dean of admissions, director of annual giving, replacing Robert Bruce. A 1962 graduate. Stephenson was an All-American hockey goalie. He has been with the admissions office since 1966.

V. S. Naravane returned to Colby as visiting professor this fall; it is the philosopher's third tour at the college. On the faculty of the University of Poona, he was a guest lecturer last summer at Chiang Mai University in Thailand and at eight Australian universities.

Irving Faunce '69 has been named news assistant; the Gardiner native has been a reporter with the Waterville Morning Sentinel and the Kennebec Journal, and has handled assignments for United Press and the Maine Times.

Leonard W. Mayo, professor of human development, has received the Regional Outstanding Service Award from the National Rehabilitation Association in recognition of 'a distinguished career and in appreciation of tremendous contributions to the rehabilitation of the handicapped.'

Mrs. Inez Noyes, head cataloguer for fifteen years at the Colby library and during 1968-69 head of technical services, retired last spring. A graduate of Franklin College, she has done graduate work at Michigan, and has held positions at that university, Columbia, and Syracuse; at Worcester Free Public Library; and has taught library science courses at Syracuse and Colby.

Ward E. Shaw, former cataloguer, has become the head of technical services.

Chaplain Frederick M. Hudson left in June to become academic dean and professor of religion at San Francisco College for Women. Robert Bruce, director of annual giving since 1965, moved to Bard College to become director of development. Richard Wotruba, track coach last year, is now a dean at Assumption College.
The Process of Change

Recorded by M. HAVEY '72

A report of actions taken by the Constitutional Convention on campus, October 3-5, was sent to all alumni and alumnae. The convention was called 'to scrutinize the existing organizational structure of the college and its interrelationships, with a view toward possible restructuring of the divisions of authority, representation in the decision-making process, and the process of decision-making itself.'

Delegates reconvened November 22-23 to draw up final recommendations to be presented to members of the board of trustees for consideration at their meeting on January 31.

Results of these deliberations will be reported in the Alumnus.

These photographs by M. Havey '72 give the flavor of the October convention, on which the Echo commented editorially, 'If there are students who wonder how they should feel about the results, the appropriate feeling is one of relief and pride. Colby has successfully attempted to change itself, and its success should be recognized.'
Howard L. Koonce, assistant professor of English, and Robert E. Reuman (facing camera), professor of philosophy.

Left to right, Shipp Webb '70 and Paul Perez, associate professor of psychology.

At far microphone is Andrey Starkis '70. At near microphone is Howard L. Koonce.

Left to right, Gary Newton '72; Robert Wilson '71; Colin E. MacKay, associate professor of English; and Alice Tall '71.

K. Frederick Gillum, professor of history.

Leonard W. Mayo, professor of human development and permanent chairman of the convention, and George Coleman, registrar and convention secretary.
[PROMOTIONS]

Three members of the faculty have been appointed to named professorships.

Chosen to be Charles A. Dana Professors are Allan C. Scott in biology and Jean D. Bundy in French in the department of modern languages. Both are department chairmen.

R. Mark Benbow, chairman of the English department since 1966, has been appointed Roberts Professor of English Literature succeeding Alfred King Chapman, who retired in June. The professorship honors Arthur Jeremiah Roberts, president of Colby from 1908 to 1927. He taught English at the college for 18 years prior to accepting the presidency.

Scott and Bundy are the first faculty members to be appointed Dana professors. The program was established in 1967 with a grant from the Dana Foundation (Bridgeport, Conn.). Under the terms, the college agreed to supplement foundation funds from its own resources.

Professor Scott came to Colby in 1951 after 15 years at Union College. He received his A.B. from Clark University; his M.S. from the University of Pittsburgh; and his Ph.D. from Columbia. For nearly three decades he has been affiliated with the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., where he spends summers in zoological research.

Professor Bundy entered the teaching profession in 1952 at the University of Wisconsin, from which he earned his M.A. He was on the faculty at the University of Texas for six years prior to his appointment at Colby in 1963. Professor Bundy received his B.A. with honors from Washington State College. Further graduate work was done in France at the University of Dijon and at the University of Paris, before he received his Ph.D. from Wisconsin.

The new Roberts Professor of English Literature, Professor Benbow, is a graduate of the University of Washington and received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Yale. He has taught at Colby since 1950. Promotion to full professor came in 1962 and to department chairman in 1966.

A Shakespearean scholar, he has twice been a Fellow at the Folger Shakespearean Library, doing research in the field of Elizabethan tragedy.

ARTHUR TOTTON THOMPSON (SC D) It is especially gratifying when Colby honors one of her own graduates. After receiving his bachelor’s degree from Colby Dean Thompson served in the Army, then proceeded to engineering degrees from Pennsylvania State University and Harvard, and a master’s degree in business administration from Chicago.

After eighteen years in the engineering department at Penn State he moved six years ago to Boston University as Dean of the College of Engineering. His publications are voluminous and varied, his civic and professional associations wide. Colby has drawn upon his talents and energies for service on the Alumni Council. This past few weeks has marked his being presented at a ceremony in Chicago the Education Award of the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers, in recognition of his success in ‘developing curricula, fostering sound training methods, and encouraging students to enter the engineering profession.’ Colby does not have an engineering program, nor does the State of Maine have a conspicuous proportion of industry (nor even trains), but as a liberal arts college we salute with admiration one of our graduates who has with distinction extended the dimension provided for him by his undergraduate career.
Happiness Is Winning

A jubilant varsity football team carried Coach Dick McGee from Seavers Field following its 29-6 win over Maine Maritime Academy November 1. McGee reaches for the game ball as assistant coach Mike Hodges, at right, also gets the victory ride.

Sports IRVING FAUNCE '69

[FOOTBALL]
In spite of a 2-6 season, Coach Dick McGee has plenty of reasons for optimism as he looks to the future of Colby football.

Starting nine freshmen on offense and four freshmen on defense, the team came up with victories in the final two games. It defeated Maine Maritime Academy 29-6 and edged Bates 14-13. The Bates victory gave Colby second place in the Colby-Bates-Bowdoin series, won by Bowdoin.

Due to a manpower problem, the decision was made last year to allow freshmen to participate on the varsity squad. That decision paid off as freshman quarterback Brian Cone (Littleton, Mass.) threw five touchdown passes and scored eight times himself, tying Bruce Kingdon's record for most TD's in one season. Cone's classmates, Dave Lane (Saco, Me.) and Joe Mattos (E. Providence, R. I.), were the leading scorer and leading rusher respectively. Lane, a halfback and split end, had seven touchdowns and 14 extra points to tie Bruce Kingdon's season scoring record of 56 points. Mattos, a halfback, picked up 563 yards in 146 carries.

The team, playing without a senior, was led throughout the season by juniors Jim Faulkner (Alfred, Me.), John Hopkins (Concord, Mass.), Dennis Cameron (Charlotte, N. C.) and Ron Lupton (Warwick, R. I.). Added to McGee's staff this fall were Mike Hodges (U. of Maine '66) and Waldo Covell (U. of Maine '55).

With Colby's points first, the scores were: 14, St. Lawrence 21; 28, R. P. I. 29; 13, Tufts 40; 6, Springfield 34; 34, Trinity 44; 14, Bowdoin 38; 29, MMA 6; 14, Bates 13.

[SOCCER]
Frustration was the key word for second-year coach Jack Scholl (Springfield '66) and his varsity soccer team which finished with a 2-7-3 record.

Mule booters lost four contests by one point and were tied three times. Bright spots were a 7-0 shutout of the University of Hartford and a 4-3 victory over the University of Maine.

Sophomore goalie Bill Allend (Waterville) had 96 saves during the season and showed promise for next year. High scorers were Ilan Hadani (Tel Aviv, Israel), a senior, with six goals and his classmate Frank Apantaku (Apapa, Nigeria) who netted five while picking up three assists. Bill Buckner (Mt. Kisco, N. Y.), a junior, had five goals and one assist.

Seniors Jack Wood (Needham, Mass.) and Roman Dashawetz (W. Roxbury, Mass.) were co-captains.

The scores, with Colby's total first: 3, Norwich 4; 2, Lowell Tech 2; 7, U. of Hartford 0; 0, Springfield 4; 1, U. of New Hampshire 2; 2, Brandeis 2; 0, U. of Maine 3; 1, Bowdoin 1; 1, Bates 2; 4, U. of Maine 3; 0, Bowdoin 4; 1, Bates 4.

[CROSS-COUNTRY]
Capping the season with a strong second-place finish in the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship, the cross-country team compiled a winning record under first-year coach Alex Schulten (Bowdoin '66).

Running without Sebsibe 'Sebs' Mamo, Ethiopian record-setter who has completed his track eligibility, Mule harriers nevertheless established a 6-5-1 record, which included wins over Bowdoin, Bentley, Merrimack, Lowell Tech, Brandeis and the University of Maine.

Solid performances were produced by senior captain Craig Johnson (Branford, Conn.) and Dan Timmons (Sherbrooke, Que.), another senior who is also goalie on the hockey team. Coming on strong near the end of the campaign, Paul Liming (Lewiston, Me.), a junior, finished third in the MIAA meet.

Totals, with Colby's scores first: 41, Bates 18; 87, Coast Guard, 32, Boston State, 38, Tufts, 87, Bentley, 103, Merrimack, 135, Lowell Tech, 117 (seven-team meet); 63, Springfield 28, U. of New Brunswick, 49, Brandeis 95 (four-team meet); 22, U. of Maine 33; 23, Bowdoin 32; 51, Bates 20, Bowdoin 79, U. of Maine 88 (MIAA Championship).

[THE FRESHMEN]
First-year soccer players under Coach John Kempers opened with a pair of wins before running into trouble. Their scores, with Colby's totals first: 2, Hebron Academy 1; 3, Hinckley School 2; 0, U. of Maine 1; 0, Bowdoin 4; 0, U. of Maine 1; 1, U. of New Hampshire 4.

Freshmen cross-country runners put together a 7-2 record lor Coach Alex Schulten. The scores, Colby's totals first: 28, Hinckley School 43, Waterville High School 63, Kents Hill School 88; 54, Deering High School, 28, Mt. View High 66, Carrabec High 88, Winslow High, 129; 36, U. of Maine 22; 18, Bowdoin 37.

[CAPTAINS AND AWARDS]
Captains for fall sports were elected by team members, and awards were presented by coaches at the traditional 'break-up' dinners held at the season's conclusion.

Varsity tri-captains in football for 1970 are John Hopkins (Concord, Mass.), defensive safety; Ronald Lupton (W. Warwick, R. I.), fullback; and James Faulkner (Alfred, Me.), linebacker. All are members of the class of 1970.

Lupton, the son of Ronald D. Lupton '43, was also named the recipient of the Herbert E. Wadsworth Memorial Award for 'loyalty and leadership.' Others singled out were Dave Lane (Saco, Me.) and Joe Mattos (E. Providence, R. I.), freshman halves, for their offensive efforts, and Greg Chapman (Eastdale, Mass.), a sophomore, and Hopkins, both for their offensive work.

In soccer, juniors Dennis Hartung (Chappaqua, N. Y.) and William Buckner (Mt. Kisco, N. Y.) were elected co-captains while Jeffrey Lovitz, a senior, was selected most valuable player.

Paul Liming (Lewiston, Me.), another junior, will captain the 1970 cross-country team for Coach Alex Schulten. Lewis Paquin, Jr. (Barre, Mass.) was selected as honorary captain for the freshman squad.

[THE GIRLS]
The distaff side of Colby athletics was convincingly present in Maine and New England tennis play with the girls winning the state singles and doubles championship and playing well in the New England Inter-collegiate Tournament held at Wellesley College.

Karen Andersen (Cranford, N. J.), a senior, defeated her classmate Deborah Anderson (Wellesley, Mass.) in an all-Colby final to gain the state singles championship, and the team of Jane Stinchfield (Augusta, Me.), a senior, and Amanda Eggert (Long Island, N. V.), a sophomore, defeated the Bates team for the doubles title.

In New England competition, Deborah Anderson made it to the singles semifinals before bowing to a Wellesley girl. The Stinchfield-Eggert duo was eliminated only after reaching the quarterfinals.

Mrs. Marjorie Bither is the women's tennis coach.

State and individual honors in the women's state archery meet went to Colby. The team totaled 653 points to defeat Husson, Farmington State and Aroostook State. Lee Hobbs (Lynnfield, Mass.), a sophomore, was top scorer with 256 points while Terri Ashburn (Tarrytown, N. Y.), a freshman, totaled 192. Other members of the team include Stephanie Burgoyne (Kinston, N. C.) and Carolyn Pointier (Wilton, Conn.), both sophomores.
The club’s annual dinner was held on the evening of June 12 in the dining room at Mary Low Hall. The preceding social hour included group singing with Miss Charmian Herd at the piano.

In the absence of President Francis Heath, 1917, who was confined to a hospital in Dallas, Texas, the meeting was conducted by the Vice President, Paul Thompson, 1918. The dining room was crowded with 81 diners, 59 of whom were members of the club and 22 were guests, mostly husbands and wives of members.

Six additional persons came in for the postprandial program, including Mrs. Nellie Rockwood, 1902, who related some delightful original verses. Total attendance was therefore eighty-seven, the largest in the club’s history. That age is taking its toll shown by the fact that there were only five attendants from classes previous to 1911. The largest class representation were by 1915 and 1917, each with ten present.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Lucile Pixette Zukowski, Colby 1937, a member of the mathematics faculty since 1943. She gave an excellent talk, pulling no punches about recent student agitation at the college, but assuring the alumni that the incidents had been most happily handled by president, administration, and faculty.

Brief speeches for various periods in Colby history were made for 1908-11 by Albion Blake, 1911; for 1914-18 by Frank Carpenter, 1914; and for 1911-18 by Howard Boardman, 1918.

The club voted to contribute from its treasury $200 to the Alumni Fund.Greetings were sent to the absent president, Francis Heath, and to Colby’s oldest living graduate, Albert Robinson, 1893, who recently celebrated his one hundredth birthday.

Officers elected were President, Paul Thompson, 1918; vice-president, Burton Small, 1919; secretary-treasurer, Ernest Marriner, 1913; member of the Alumni Council for three years, Cyril Joly, 1916.

The club presented the secretary with a handsome Colby clock.

Dear Colby Alumni and Friends,

This is the last issue which will reach you under the expert editorship of our good friend, Ian Robertson, ’51. Ian’s first issue was the summer edition of 1962 and during the intervening seven years, the Alumnius has continued to grow in stature to become one of the top alumni magazines in the country.

Awards have been presented to the Alumnius over the years, the most recent announced by the American Colleges Public Relations Association. The ACPRA has given a Special Merit Award to the magazine for the spring through winter issues of 1968-69, marking it as one of the best in the nation.

Ian’s years at Colby have been most happy for him and for us. His leaving is prompted by a personal desire to continue his education with additional graduate study. I know you join me in wishing him and his family Godspeed and all good wishes for happiness and the success we know he will have.

Sincerely,

Sid Farr
Alumni Secretary
Since retirement, many of our members have enjoyed the pleasure of travel, but few have done it so persistently and so unusually as have Phil Hussey, 1913, and his wife Marion. Disappointed by set-backs in Phil’s health so that trips to Russia and to Australia had to be cancelled, they decided this winter to visit some of the lesser Caribbean islands, then motor across the United States, all in one continuous trip before returning to Maine.

Some day I hope we can give you Phil’s complete, fascinating account of that trip, but space here permits only the briefest reference. On a new Spanish cruise ship sailing from Miami, they visited a dozen of the smaller Caribbean islands seldom seen by tourists. Returning to Miami, they picked up their car and drove with leisurely stops, some a week long, across the nation by a southern route. Both Phil and Marion are golf enthusiasts, so both in the West Indies islands and at stops across the country, they played every golf course located at any stopping place. Having made several previous trips to the West, they this time avoided the usual tourist sites, but took in the lesser known places. On their way home, they learned of our big snow storm, so headed south to Atlanta, to await better northern weather. At that, when they reached Kennebunk, they found four feet of snow in their front yard.

Soon Phil and Marion will be off again for one of their repeated trips to Europe, but you may be sure not to visit repeated sites.

FROM PAGE 17

as a result of having a definite job to do as a class agent or admissions interviewer. In other words, the younger alumni do wish to participate in the activities of the college through the Alumni Association.

Upon the conclusion of the survey analysis, the Alumni Relations Committee published eleven recommendations for consideration by the Alumni Council:

1. A current directory of the last four graduating classes be published annually and distributed by October.
2. Have the ALUMNUS include more class news. The secretary-treasurer of each class should be encouraged to contact classmates for more class news.
3. Have the ALUMNUS include more campus news.
4. Effect earlier publication and distribution of the ALUMNUS.
5. Since one-third of the younger classes are unaware of the purpose of the Alumni Fund, emphasis should be placed upon further explanation of its role.
6. Gifts to Colby annually should be requested with the realization that the amount need not be large in early years, but hopefully the size of the gifts will increase as the donor is able to give larger amounts.
7. Plan meaningful jobs for young alumni, examples of such are:
   a. Admissions interviewers
   b. Alumni responsible in club areas for changes of addresses
   c. Class representatives or alternates to Council meetings
   d. Specific assignments at area club meetings
8. Encourage college spirit through successful athletic teams. Ideally this esprit de corps should be developed during the undergraduate years.
9. Preannouncement of “celebrated” Colby alumni attending local meetings.

Results of a Survey of 1950, 1952

(compiled and written by Norval E. Garrett ’51)

As one closely connected to the Class of 1952, and a member of the preceding class, it was my pleasure to collate the returns and to make some sort of interpretation and summary of what was received. Fortunately time has not dimmed my memory to any great degree and I read the returns with almost as much interest as did your Class Secretary. It is a pity, however, that more did not see fit to participate.

Replies were received from 70 members which would indicate about a 25% return; far too few to work with realistically. Regardless, certain information of interest was received and all comments are based solely upon this minority reaction to the questions.

Twenty-one states and one Canadian Province were represented by 39 males and 31 females. Twenty-three people live in Mass., seven in N.Y., six in Me., five in Conn., and four in Calif. The balance are spread from Ontario to Florida and N.Y. to Utah and Colorado.

Sixty-eight are married and a total of 186 children have been produced: An amazing average of 2.74 per person, which is above normal.
This year Arthur Goodwin, 1902, celebrated his 88th birthday. His son, two daughters, nine grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren were, many of them, present for the celebration. He has been a prominent citizen of Melrose, Mass., since 1906, and for twelve years was a member of the U. S. House of Representatives.

Arthur Stimson, 1907, and his wife celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary this spring. In 1909 they were married in the very house they now occupy on Marston Road in Waterville. After many years as a teacher in Maine schools, Arthur returned in 1930 to the ancestral Marston Road farm.

Some of our Fifty- fivers just refuse to retire. After operating with his wife the well known Connoisseur Shops in Melrose, Mass., and then combining them with Wood's Gift Shop, Ray and his wife have sold those interests, but not to sit back and do nothing. They have opened a new venture, the Acme Clerical Service. Ray is also busy with community duties: treasurer of Melrose Rotary, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and financial secretary of the United Methodist Church.

This year Herman "Heimie" Goffin, 1916, was the first member of the Portland High School class of 1909 to notify the committee that he would be present for their sixtieth reunion. An athlete in both school and college "Heimie" played on Colby teams that won seven of nine state series football games in three successive seasons. He was a prominent member of "Ginger" Fraser's unexcelled 1914 team.

Eighty-eight percent are property owners, primarily in suburbia (76%), but also in the city (12%) and country (10%). Moving incidence is close, in the range from "no-moves" to four times since 1922. Amazingly 17, the largest individual group, have never moved.

Travel in foreign country is a rather meaningless statistic due to our proximity to Canada; regardless, 36 have stated that they have traveled in foreign areas.

Community activities bring out closer the middle-class flavor of the group with ample proof of who supports the family and neighbor-oriented activities through physical assistance as well as monetary. In the incidences of activity, 32% cite charitable work, 19% PTA and 15% scouting. The other areas are inconsequential. Social work (10%) could, in some cases, be interchanged with charitable work and on this thought deserves recognition. Oddly enough, ten people do not see fit to become involved in any such activity.

As far as graduate work is concerned, degrees cover a wide area with six ViAs the most popular. Two PhDs and two PhDs are recorded. Thirty people undertook no graduate work. Much graduate work was undertaken but not completed. Finally, one statistic close to me is that one class member is at work on her PhD. Maybe other advanced degree work is underway but was not recorded on the questionnaires.

Present employment is interesting with 30% in Business Administration, 20% in Education, and 9% in selling, of which the latter may be connected with general business. Twenty-four percent appear to be housewives at the moment. In connection with present occupations a study was made to see how closely present employment is connected with the graduate's major concentration while at Colby. Aside from 16% which were inconclusive, 17% were definitely not and 14% were positively connected. Nine percent were in a vague way and 11% were housewives. Connected with employment it was found that English, Business Administration, and Psychology courses, in that order were designated as the most valuable. As far as regrets for courses not taken, Education, Advanced Math, Psychology and History were cited in that order. In both cases individual professors were cited by name.

On incidence of return to the campus ten have never returned, twelve have been back once, nine twice, 23 from 3-5 times, 13 once a year and three more than once a year. The last statistic includes one Waterville resident and one who has a summer home in the area. Twentieth reunion plans could improve these statistics as 37 indicate they plan to return, 19 are undecided and 14 replied in the negative.

Winter Weekend participation has shown 13 have attended and 37 have not. The low participation is understandable, particularly by our family, because of weather conditions. Regardless, for those who have never participated, it is a great weekend and well worth the effort.

The Class Gift has brought forth much comment which I shall not relate here. Twenty-one have seen it. Its form does not appear to represent the conservative middle-class nature of the group.

Alumni Club participation is a very weak link in the picture. Twenty-five belong and 45 do not. Many areas have no clubs and many existing clubs are very weak. Only six people have been alumni club officers and only 12 attend annual meetings. These statistics are not proud ones and must be extremely troublesome to Sid Farr.

Colby athletics strangely are well-followed. Thirty-eight people follow the program with prime interest in football, followed by hockey and basketball. Fifteen people attend games. It is fun to attend Colby games in your area and many clubs have gotten together, notably at athletic events at Trinity in Hartford and at Springfield College.

In conclusion, the pattern at "seventeen years on", clearly shows an upper-middle-class flavor in society: the backbone of the human race. The jobs are professional and the chief benefits of outside activity are fellow men. Graduate work was undertaken but not to an outstanding degree. There is a fair degree of allegiance to Colby, possibly more than was admitted, but a bad failing in alumni club participation. A good number have indicated interest in the 20th reunion. The athletic programs are followed in varying degrees, but Colby's athletic schedule does not show up notably outside of north central New England because of the nature of its opponents and the type of schedule to which the college is now committed.
SOPPY to report the death of our classmate, Marion Waterman Wood on April 9, 1969; never having fully recovered from the operation she underwent last fall. Our class newsletter will never be the same without her cheery note. Even the last one bubbled with enthusiasm. Marion lived a full vital life, active in educational activities: the Retired Teachers’ Association and many civic organizations. Marion was a true Colby family spirit.

ULA ORR CLARK keeps very busy working full time as a copy holder in the proof room of the Newswalk News; plans to celebrate her 55th reunion with the Class of 1914 of Colby Academy. Her eldest son Francis, an urban planner, is now with the Bureau of Roads in Washington, D.C. . . . Last year Esther Power retired after an exciting career in Washington, D.C.; since 1913 in one of the Government Security Agencies in the Department of Defense. Prior to that, Esther was an Associate Professor of English at Southern Illinois University — after having received her PhD in English from the University of Chicago. Upon retirement there followed a season of travel, Turkey, Athens, the Greek Isles, Germany, and England where she revisited her old college, St. Hugh’s at Oxford. Then a revisit to Colby, but this time to the new campus. This past summer Esther planned a second trip to Europe, this time mainly to Geneva and other places in Switzerland; then to Ireland and London. . . . RALPH K. HARLEY of Hanson, Mass., was honored in a ceremony, April 1969, by the Hanson American Legion Post as a 50-year charter member of the American Legion which he joined in 1919, the year the American Legion was organized. Mr. Harley entered the U.S. Army in September 1917; sailed for Brest in early April, 1918; and was in the St. Michel and the Meuse offensives. He retired in October 1959 from the U.S. Rubber Co., now Uniroyal, Inc., after 40 years of service.

MRS. ASA C. ADAMS (VINA PARENT) 99 Forest Avenue Orono, Maine 04473

Congratulations ’22ers for the many interesting responses to the news questionnaire. As someone remarked, "We’re only old once—why not make the best of it?" To prove it, EDNA CHAMBERLAIN NELSON and husband, retired from the Los Angeles school system, raise and train Arabian horses on their ranch in San Gabriel, Calif. Edna has also written a book, The Magnificent Percheron — widely sold and listed in the Library of Congress . . . JULIA HOLT BRECKWOLD, retired from the South Bend, Ind., Public Library, has been traveling in Mexico, Yugoslavia, Greece and Italy. . . . EVAN SHEARMAN is pastor of Highland Lake Congregational Church, Westbrook, Me. . . . WALTER BERRY, retirement home in Camden, Me., spends winters traveling with trailer caravan through Florida and western states—visiting New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec this past summer. Says Huck, "Keep moving and stay young."

JERRY DOYLE wintered in Belleair, Fla. He received the Golden Legion Award from Phi Delta Fraternity as a 50-year member . . . AVI BARTON BIXBY, retired as housemother at Northampton School for Girls, enjoys visiting her daughter in California. . . . ARTHUR SULLIVAN, retired, spends three months traveling — California, Hawaii, Mexico, Ireland, England, Portugal, Madeira, Majorca, Spain, Greece, Italy, Turkey. Cruises the Maine coast in summer.

ASHLEY BECKMORE retired from Marts and Lundy but works part time in advisory capacity. . . . CHARLES TOLMAN has retired as assistant secretary and treasurer of Central Maine Power Co. . . . HUGH WHITTEMORE is active in Adult Education and Retired Educators Association. . . . RUTH GOODWIN is still teaching piano in Waterville. . . . CURT HAINES, retired Vice President Sylvania Electrical Co. winters in Florida and travels — New Zealand, Australia, Pacific Islands. . . . LEN MAYO, professor of human development at Colby, elected to Public Policy Committee of the Advertising Council, an organization supported by American business to promote better advertising. Among other well known members of the committee are Ralph Bunche, General Gruntheuer, Howard Rusk . . . CLYDE RUSSELL — raising purebred Jersey cattle on his farm and chairman of Winslow’s Bicentennial Committee for 1971. . . . Sympathy is extended to HAZEL OVERTON, widowed during the past year and now living in Peak’s Island.

MRS. LEONARD W. MAYO (LENA COOLEY) 9 Sunset Terrace Waterville, Maine 04901

The Class of 1912 convened at Roberts Union on June 7th for a most pleasant dinner, with Ralph McLeary, chairman of the reunion committee presiding. Dean Runkles who was guest of honor spoke briefly and delightfully. JOE SMEITH, MARION DRISKO TUCKER and RUSS ALEXANDER reminisced of our college years. Marion and Ruth gave an outstanding resume of Foss Hall rules observed by ’22ers, highlighting the forty year gap twist them and now. GREN VALE brought along a ’24 Oracle and read entertaining bits about the remaining members. Greetings were read from many who could not come but hope to for the big one five years hence.

CRANSTON and BILLIE JORDON wrote at Christmas from St. Petersburg, Fla., of their lovely new home there, completely equipped with a travel trailer and two boats — the Bon Vivant and the Skylark — and of their plans to travel to New Orleans, to the Everglades Park and New Iberia via trailer and to sail to Pensacola, Sarasota, Key West and the Bahamas. While these plans are taking shape they are settling into their new home and community. Cranston writes: "Billie is busy with plans and flowers, church organizations, garden club, bridge. I am doing volunteer tutoring with potential drop outs in the schools, doing professional substituting when I can, training a crew and racing the new sailboat, making recordings of music and bird calls, and now working with the eight track tape cartridges. My archery gear, cameras, and fishing equipment are waiting for a dull moment." It sounds to us as though they may wait a long time — what a happy retirement story!

The St. John Valley Times of Madawaska, Me., in a recent feature story writes of WASENA B. BLAKE, professor emeritus from Fort Kent State College. In 1967 as a sign of gratitude and appreciation, the newly remodeled library was officially dedicated and named in honor of Miss Blake, who had managed and built up the library’s resources. From 1936 to 1959 Miss Blake supervised the publication of the year book, The Aculdian, and undertook similar responsibilities regarding the publication of the school's newspaper, The Cauldron, from 1936 to 1943. During her last years at the college Miss Blake provided the necessary leadership in organizing the Alumni Association Action Program. She is also the original founder of the Alumni Fifty-Year Table and recently started the Fifty Plus Table. Miss Blake was awarded the title of professor emeritus at the commencement exercises on June 9, 1963. She officially retired from academic life that following August. Waneta is living with her long time friend, Mrs. Mary Hafford, in Fort Kent — very busy with alumni activities at the college.

26

MRS. PAUL P. CHAMBERLIN (PAULINE LUND)
Box 25
East Boothbay, Maine 04544

JERE G. WHITE was the recipient of the New Jersey Agricultural Society's Gold Medallion for outstanding service to agriculture. Mr. White was manager of the Jersey Fruit Cooperative Association, Morristown, N.J., from 1940 to 1967 and is still serving as a consultant. CLIFFORD LITTLEFIELD retired in June 1967 from teaching at Worcester Academy, Worcester, Mass. After a brief time at his retirement home in Raymond, Me., he found himself drawn back to teaching, this time at North Yarmouth Academy. Your correspondent had a nice visit with ELSIE FROST RAPP and her husband at Longboat Key, Fla., where they spent last winter. We are all thrilled that EVELYN KELLET was one of this year's recipients of Colby Bricks.

HILDA DIFE retired from the University of Maine's English department as of July 1. After teaching a course on Milton in Summer School she is looking forward to being at home at 21 Wentworth Street, Kittery, Me. She expects to become more involved in what, up to now, have been extracurricular activities. Her special interests include anything pertaining to local history. She is presently a trustee of the Maine League of Historical Societies. She is busily involved with the revision of the 1957 Maine A Guide Down East, which will be published for the Maine Sesquicentennial next year. Maine Old Cemetery Association is another pet project. Hilda has also done some research on Madam Wood, Maine's first novelist, and expects to continue this in her retirement. Anyone who knows Hilda can be sure that she'll be busily involved in a variety of things even in retirement.

28

RUTH E. WILLIAMS
Associate Dean of Students
Farmington State College
Farmington, Maine 04938

RUTH VILES CLARK is a traveler. After extensive European trips in 1966 and 1967, she plans on an eight-week trip starting in August to Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Luxembourg, Belgium, and France. She is president of the Storrs, Conn., Women's Club, is regent of the D.A.R., is on the board of the League of Women Voters, and has been chairman of several fund raising drives. EDNA COHEN RAPPORt went to Nassau this past winter with her husband. Her daughter and husband, Dr. and Mrs. Irving Paul, have moved to Boston for two years where he is studying to be a specialist in orthodontia. MARION DAVE O'DONNELL has enjoyed camping at various national parks while crossing the U.S. and also visiting Banff and Jasper National Park in Canada. This summer she is going to England, Scotland, and Ireland. Marion is chairman of the English department at the junior high school in Simsbury, Conn.

E. RICHARD DRUMMOND tried out three great golf courses recently at Seaside Plantations, Hilton Head Island, S.C. He is a trustee and treasurer of Maine Central Institute, chairman, Finance Committee of Bangor Nursing Association and chairman of a committee for the Bangor Y.M.C.A. He feels that Dr. Robert E. L. Strider has guided the Colby Campus through a very difficult period on college campuses by reason and negotiation. EDNA E. WURKINGTON spent last summer in Europe and plans to spend this summer in Texas and California where she has sisters. She is active in and a past-president of the Malden, Mass., Club of Zonta International. She is still dean of girls at Malden High School and teaches three U.S. history classes. CRACE SYLVESTER has been working on material for a literary scrapbook on the town of Baileyville for over a year, but has no publishing date in sight for a book. NELSON BAILEY, who retired as principal of Lincoln Academy in 1967 after having been there since 1942, is now on the faculty of Unity College and still operates Willow Beach Camps in China, Me.

AVA DODGE is looking forward to going back to Hawaii sometime in the future to be with her family again. She is still working for Selective Service in Portland. RUTH M. MECEVOY made a trip to Italy last fall and is making a London Theatre tour this spring. She is president of the Batavia Branch of the American Association of University Women. CLAIRE RICHARDSON MACDOUGAL spent November in Mexico with her son Bruce A. MacDougal, M.D., a resident physician at Massachusetts General Hospital. She spends six months at her home on Bonita Beach, Fla., and six months at her home on Novell Road in Bangor, Me. DR. C. STANLEY COREY took an extensive automobile trip last spring over the Arizona and California desert areas and visited friends in Colorado and Illinois. He was acting vice president and provost of Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, from September 1 to December 31, 1968. He is now on sabbatical leave until the spring quarter of 1970.

ROLAND and IRMA SAWYER left home in September 1968 and traveled through the northern states, down the west coast, east through the southern states, arriving home in April 1969. They covered 24,800 miles and hauled their trailer 12,000 miles. Needless to say, they are retired as of June 1968. CLAUDE BOUCHARD reports travel in France and Italy. He is chairman of the Foreign Language Department of the secondary schools of New Britain, Conn., and director and program chairman in the Kiwanis Club. He presented a demonstration class in French at the NDEA Institute. He has built a new home in Clinton, Me., to which he hopes to retire in a few years. GUS HODGKINS left May 4, 1969 on a trip to Hong Kong, Japan, and Hawaii. He attended the International Rotary Convention in Honolulu and returned on June 4. He is a charter member of a Rotary Club in Niskayuna, N.Y. (a suburb of Schenectady) and has served as president. He completed 36 1/2 years as division sales manager of L.G. Balfour Company on January 1, 1967. His wife Mabel and he now spend winters in Venice, Fla., and serve as resident-owners of housekeeping cottages on Lake George, Bolton Landing.
WATERVILLE, MAINE    HAMMOND, INDIANA
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA

managers of molded pulp and fibrous plastic products

Keyes Fibre

Cascade Woolen Mill

MANUFACTURERS OF WOOLENS
OAKLAND, MAINE

The Knowlton & McLeary Company
3-5 CHURCH STREET
FARMINGTON, MAINE 04938
(207) 778-4455

printers of The Colby Alumnus for over 20 years

the store for men and boys

Levine's

WATERVILLE, MAINE

LUDY, '21    HOWIE, '41    PACY, '27

N.Y. summers. . . FRANCES BRAGDON CONE welcomed her eighth grandchild Courtenee Lee Christopher on January 24. She has been an officer in the Thompson Falls, Mont., Business and Professional Women's Club. Her youngest son graduated from Medical School at Irvine, Calif., on July 14.

ALGERIA VAN BORN SHUTE has enjoyed a trip through the West and to Alaska. She is editor of the Maine W.C.T.U. paper Star in the East and is listed in Who's Who of American Women and the Dictionary of International Biography. She has retired from the library of the Manchester Elementary School. . . ESTHER PARKER CROSBY spent two months in Bermuda this spring. She has a granddaughter, Heather Gonzales, daughter of CORA L. CROSBY '63, born in April. She retired last year. . . AUGIE STIEGELER enjoyed some time in Boca Raton in March. He has been president of the Colbass Lions Club and director of the Woodville National Bank. . . KATHERINE GREANEY took a leisurely tour by car of Ireland last October and takes in educational conferences in various parts of the U.S. She was chairwoman of the Registration Committee for the November Convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in Washington, D.C. The curriculum bulletin which she has been responsible for producing has been cited by ERIC. She has been active on committees of the N.C.T.E. and is on the editorial board of the Maryland Council of Teachers of English. . . NATHANIEL GALLIN has returned from travels through Spain and Portugal. He has been a member of the board of trustees of the League School for the Emotionally Disturbed Children of Brooklyn. N.Y. . . DOROTHY BAGGETT JOHNSTON and Doug have returned from a visit to son Jack '55, who lives in Chicago. They went in January to Florida and on to Shreveport, La., for a visit with friends made when they lived there. Doug retired in December of 1968 from Bird and Lowe, Inc. They are now happily settled at their home on Cape Cod.

30 MRS. GEORGE E. TRAFFTON (POLLY BRILL)
Lake Avenue
R.F.D. - Box 91
Rockland, Maine 04841

MIRIAM SAUNDERS MARSH is active in A.A.V.W., bridge and Tri-Delt Alumnae. She and her husband have been visiting her daughter and her two children in Colorado. . . HELEN BRIGHAM TREFFETEN is retiring from part-time teaching at the University of Maine. She has a son, a dentist in Ellsworth; one a civil engineer in Denver, and her daughter is married to an engineer. . . JEAN AND AL TURNER live in Manchester, N.H. Al has retired this year, after 38 years with Mobil Oil. They spend much time golfing and spend some time in the South. Jean mentions fortieth reunion . . . WALLACE W. MEYER of Palmer, Mass., lives in a beautiful trailer 12 x 58 in a marvelous trailer spot. (Must be seen to be believed). If anyone wants retirement advice, write; also, if anyone has advice to a soon retiree for a career in writing for 25 years or so, it will be welcome. . . LEROY HENRY FORD of Keene works for H.E.W. in N.H., adjudicating welfare eye problems, a member of the executive committee of the State Medical Society and State Delegate to the American Medical Association, and is on a 10-man committee studying the feasibility of changing the AMA Biomedical Research project. Still practices medicine. Hope born 1956• A son, Bruce Marion, to Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Groening (LUCY BLAINEY), adopted May 1968; a son, Andrew Howard, to Mr. and Mrs. James K. Frick. man (SHIULA MCGAHLIN), August 30, 1968. 1958• A daughter, Nila Ellen, to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Curtiss (ANITA FALTER), December 2, 1967; a son, Nathan Andrew, to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Judd, May 12, a son, Aaron, to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Feldman (PHILIPPA BLAINEY), June 6, 1968; a son, Kenneth M. King, III, to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. King II (JOAN ADAMS), January 27; a daughter, Cynthia Clifton, to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lee (CHARLOTTE CLIFTON), adopted January 24; a son, Michael Deam, to Mr. and Mrs. Deam Peterson (MIRVIS ELIY), adopted October 5, 1968; a son, John Jr., to Mr. and Mrs. John S. H. (CAROLYN ORTH), October 26, 1968; a son, Scott, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cooper (CAROLYN ORTH), June 30, 1968. 1959• A son, Jonathan Edward, to Mr. and Mrs. DAVID S. BLOOM, May 18. 1962• A son, Malcolm Fraser McLean, IV, to Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Fraser McLean, III; a son, Brendan Jack to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mosher (PATRICK JACK). 1963• A daughter, Elizabeth Anne, to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ackerman (EUGENE MISTELMORE), April 28, a son, William Rich, to Mr. and Mrs. PETER COGHAN (NANCY JUDI '61), December 23, 1968. 1964• A daughter, Deborah Marie, to Mr. and Mrs. John H. GOW, III, July 4, 1968; a son, Gary, to Mr. and Mrs. Gary Waller (ROBERTA ROBINSON), June 13, 1968; a son, Kenneth Andrew, to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Schatz (SANCY GREEN), December 4, 1968; twin daughters, Anne and Melissa, to Mr. and Mrs. JAMES COSBEE, III (VIRGINIA MARSHALL '65), January 3; a daughter, Mary Frances, to Mr. and Mrs. ARTHUR K. SNOW, October 13, 1968; a son, David Lee, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Uhrluh, Jr. (DANWE WINSLOW). January 1969; a son, Andrew Betty, to Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT CHEW (SALLY BERRY), February 4, 1968; a son, Richard V. R., to Mr. and Mrs. JOHN V. R. LYMAN (CAROL HAYNES), February 16, 1968; a son, Christopher Phillippus, to Mr. and Mrs. STEPHEN THOMPSON (JOAN PHILLIPS '63), June 26, 1968; a daughter, Beverly Blair, to Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT T. FAYETTE, MAY 5, 1968; a son, Lee Edward, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Irving (DOROTHY THOMPSON), January 28. 1965• A son, Timothy Roll, to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bierman (JOELYN COYLE), April 27; a son, David Frederick, to Mr. and Mrs. NEIL CLIFSHAM (JOE FOWLER '66), September 7, 1968. 1966• A son, Justin Todd, to Mr. and Mrs. James Eggars (LYNN EBERG), December 11, 1968; a daughter, Katheryn Ann, to Mr. and Mrs. GARY KNIGHT (LYNN LONGFELLOW '65), April 25.

of Mayflower Hill, page 125. Says Phil, "I owe a lot to Colby and Ernest Martin, and feel I have spanned a great deal of history from the time mentioned by Martin to the present and without the boost mentioned, it is doubtful if I would have finished college." At present, he has his own business, Research and Consulting in Mineral Extraction Methods and is a special consultant to B.F. Goodrich Co. and the Armour Industrial Chemical Co. of

41 the Colby Alumnus SUMMER-FALL 1969
McCook, Ill. He is also a full member of American Institute of Mining Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers; Australian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy; the American Association for the Advancement of Science; American Society of Professional Engineers.

Mary Rolens Millet enjoys her family and live grandchildren. While her son Jim was studying in England, she visited him and has returned since, also spending two weeks in Vienna and Salzburg, Lucerne, and Ireland. Hopes to spend Christmas in Spain and the islands. Mary, too, reminds us of reunion next year... John A. Chadwick, of Worcester, Mass., writes: "Being financial secretary for a congregation which is moving out of the inner city because a redevelopment plan requires it, assuredly has given me a keen awareness between a group's dollar income and the inflationary costs of erecting a new edifice. I now possess a firmer grasp of the tasks facing President Bixler and President Strider in building our Colby. Enjoy my work as an assistant principal of Millbury Memorial High School where the "kids" are full of ginger, and the days filled with the exhilaration of seeing them capture new vistas of living usefulness."... Stanton D. Weed of Augusta retired last December after 32 years with the State of Maine; 26 years as Motor Vehicle Director and six previous to that with the State Audit Department. He was appointed to a 4-year term as Clerk of Courts of Kennebec County and started new duties Jan. 1, 1969. "Took my state pension and now have shorter hours, less tension and much fewer to supervise." Stanton was awarded a plaque at the 15th Annual Maine Highway Safety Conference by Governor Curtis for 26 years of highway safety work. The reflective covering on Maine license plates was due to Stanton's efforts in 1959, making Maine one of the first states to use the material... Edgar R. McEwen has been named full-time director of New England Atlantic Provinces-Quebec Center at the University of Maine, Orono, effective July 1, 1969. He has been serving as part-time in the above position and teaching half-time as associate professor of modern society... Pauline Morin Miller from Westbrook, Me., and her husband are moving to Florida in the fall and building a house there. Her daughter, Felicity Howlett, has a B.A. and M.A. from Tufts and is starting her PhD in music at Cornell on a four-year grant.

Lucy Parker Clements has taught 33 years in Searsport and will retire after next year. Lucy is chairman of Teachers’ Club Scholarship Fund, which will present a high school graduate with a $500 scholarship... Beatrice Miller Campbell and her husband are working hard keeping up with the rat race and looking forward to retirement in 1972. They have purchased island property in Idaho where they expect to find peace, tranquility, and great fishing... Evelyn Maxwell Burak's husband Henry is acting as college and town coordinator and has initiated a program for students from Smith and Amherst Colleges to participate in panel discussions at various organizations. It has been well received and the students are enthusiastic and eager to continue it... Pauline Brilliant Truett is retiring as librarian and director of speech and debate at Rockland District High School after 27 years of teaching. She now looks forward to a profitable hobby gift shop for which she has been collecting for three years. Her husband will retire from his engineering work, and they plan to build a rustic type home and shop somewhere in the Rockport area. For the seventh year, she and her speech people attended the National Championship of the National Forensic League at George Washington University. This year Pauline has received dedication of the R.D.H.S. yearbook, The Cauldron, and has presented the Pauline Truett Award, to those speakers who have participated in all types of forensics for three years, and won on a state or New England level... Mary K. Waskett of Rockland, Me., works full time at the Farnsworth Library and Art Museum.

Norman D. Palmer is a Professor of Political Science and South Asian Studies, a Senior Associate of the Foreign Policy Research Institute, and former chairman of the Political Science Department and the International Relations Graduate Program at the University of Pennsylvania. Norman, with his wife Evelyn and daughter Pat, spent several weeks in Europe, mostly in Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia; and he and Evelyn have returned from a visit to Portugal.

32 Mrs. Bertrand W. Hayward (Martha Johnston) 3220 W. Schoolhouse Lane Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19144

Marge Van Horn (Mrs. John Bernier), who works for the Maine State Bureau of Taxation, is Augusta's Mother of the Year. She has six children: John, a Colby graduate, Robert, June, William, and twins, Elise and Elaine... Red Curtis has been appointed to the Urban Renewal Agency of Waterville, Conn. He is sales manager of Anaconda American Brass Co. and is a top amateur golfer... Bernie Porter is back in Maine from Guatemala, where he was a member of the International Executive Service Corps... Nissie Grossman, who went to Harvard Business School after his graduation from Colby, has been made chairman of the board of L. Grossman Sons, Inc., with headquarters at Braintree, Mass. He is chairman of the Colby Corporate Support Program as well as a fellow and Colby trustee.

40 Mrs. Herbert S. Schwab (Virginia Gray) 16632 Linda Terrace Pacific Palisades, California 90272

Because of the cooperation of so many of our classmates, we have lots of news. In fact, probably so much that some of it will have to be held over for the next issue. Many thanks to all of you who responded so promptly and so completely to the questionnaire. We are sure that we flushed out news of some members that otherwise would never have been known.

Arthur Thompson, dean of the College of Engineering at Boston University, was the 1960 winner of the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers Education Award, one of the nation’s top manufacturing engineering awards. It was granted for his development of curricula, fostering sound training methods, and encouraging students to enter the engineering profession... Warren Pearl has resigned as football coach at Brunswick High School but has retained the position as athletic director. As coach, he compiled 95 victories over 49 losses in 17 years and has had two undefeated seasons... The presidency of the Rhode Island Bankers Association was bestowed on Ed Jenison in May. Ed is vice president of Industrial National Bank of R.I. He and his wife (Helen Foster '38) have moved to North Scituate after 23 years in Cranston. Ed and Helen enjoy vacationing in Maine each year and planned a trip to Hawaii for September, with several visits to spots on the west coast and Canada on the way home...
ELEANOR STONE KEMP (Mrs. Wyman F.) has left Sanford High School as counselor after several years and is counselor at Lincoln Junior High in Portland. Her husband is training director at S. D. Warren Co.

CONSTANCE PRATT SPINNEY writes that she is a medical technologist at Athol Memorial Hospital. She lives on West St. in Barre, Mass. . . . AL TIMBERLAKE is Manpower Development Supervisor at the S. D. Warren Co. in Westbrook, a job which entails quite a bit of traveling in this country and abroad. Daughter Sharon just graduated from Colby and daughter Nancy is at Mt. Holyoke. Wife Margaret (MARGARET CAMPBELL '42) teaches French at Deering High in Portland... LOUIS ST. JOHN, who came to our class from class '98, lives in Fort Kent. He is a potato grower and a pulpwood purchaser for the Great Northern Paper Co. He lives close by the famous Allagash wilderness and owns a summer home on Jerry Lake in Quebec.

BETH WESTCOTT is a librarian in Providence, R.I. . . . MICHIGAN TECHNOLOGICAL University in Houghton claims MIKE BERRY as professor of chemistry, but his interests don’t stop there. He is active in the Masons, the County Historical Museum, collects minerals and has his own “rock-hound” equipment, busses himself with model railroading, and grades College Entrance Exam Board Advanced Place­ments in chemistry. He had run into Connie Swift last year at Rider College and is eagerly looking for­ward to our 30th reunion. . . . RUTH HENDRICKS MAREN writes from Gainesville, Fla., that tennis, gardening, and book discussion groups keep her busy. She has a new home at Salisbury Cove, Me., and urges all classmates passing by to drop in. She travels often with her doctor husband. Very impressed with the Colby campus, she is anxiously awaiting our 30th. . . . A fact which we personally had forgot­ten is that ELMER WARREN had been made an honorary member of our class. From the registrar’s office at Colby, Elmer went to the National Life Insurance Co. in Montpelier, Vt., in personnel and planning services. After re­tiring from that in 1967, he went as special assistant to the headmaster at The Hinckley School up above Waterville where you will find him now. He still pursues his woodworking hobby. He voluntarily states that our class is the best ever turned out by Colby — and we voluntarily agree with him!

After 27 years in the Navy, ROGER WHITE has retired and is living in Newport, R.I., where he is administrative officer for Anderson-Nichols and Co. of Boston. It’s not strange that his hobbies are boating and fishing, and in the last ten years, he has been around the world twice. . . . ELLEN FITCH PETERSON resides in Natick, Mass, and works part time in the public library. Her older daughter Jean Peterson Balsley graduated from Colby in June. She has done a great deal of traveling on vacations to interesting places in the south, west, and Canada. JOHN GILMORE lives in Cape Elizabeth and works as a guidance counselor at Deering High. He and his wife (ANN JONES ’42), a guidance counselor at South Portland High, have two children: DICK ’66, law student at Boston University, and SUSANNE ’68, married. . . . The dean of instruction at Ricker College in Houlton is DAVID COTTON. He is also active as a lay reader and senior warden in the Episcopal Church and is a member of the Aroostook County Board of Men­tal Health. . . . ERNE MARRER has a new job as City Manager of the newly incorporated city of Lafayette, Calif., a residential suburb ten miles east of Oakland.

FRANCES GRAY still teaches French in junior high in Eugene, Oreg. She remains active in the Episcopal Church and in 1968 had a ten-week vacation in Europe. . . . Five years of night courses resulting in an M.A. from the University of Maine in 1967 equipped PEGGY JOHNSON KENNER to return to school as a teacher of English and Latin. She is also active in the Pythian Sisters as well as raising five children at home. She sees a great deal of change in teaching now and in the 1940's. . . . DR. PRINCE BEACH, Col. U.S.A. Ret., is associated with the Veterans Hospital in Houston, Texas, and is associate professor of urology at Baylor University College of Medicine. He lists his hobbies in this order: golf, ornithology, electronics. He served 26 years in the Army’s medical corps and in retirement likes to summer in Maine. . . . As a psychological consultant in the West Hartford, Conn., public schools, PHILIP STINCHFIELD is also an assistant professor in the extension division of Central Connecticut State College and a visiting lecturer at the University of Maine summer school. At the time of writing, he was recuperating from a coronary but expected to be back to work soon. He toured Europe in the summer of 1966 and in 1968 participated in a professional institute at Syracuse University. He would like to see Colby recruit some of the “disadvantaged, able, white high school gradu­ates of Maine rather than trying to compete with all others for the few able blacks.”

From the STEBBINS (ROGER and RUTH GOLLE) menage on Mercer Island, Wash., comes word that they are in full agreement as to hobbies — golf, fishing, gardening. Roger is a buyer for Sears Roebuck and does a lot of traveling. Ruth is part-time church secretary. They like the Pacific northwest in spite of their ten years as residents of the Golden State. . . . Editor and publisher of two weekly newspapers and journalism teacher at Campbell College are jobs that occupy the time of RALPH DELANO of Benison, N.C. He takes time out to sing with the Barber Shop Quar-

ki BOOKSTORE

the Colby Alumnus SUMMER-FALL 1969
MRS. JOHN E. GILMORE (ANN JONES)
Misty Lane, Broad Cove
Cape Elizabeth, Maine 04107

PHILIP WYNNE has been named chairman of the Corporate-wide Shipping Committee of Republic Steel Corporation and is headquartered in Republic's Cleveland General Offices. ... MELTON HAMILTON has been appointed professor of health administration at Temple University. ... FREDRIC SARVANT, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Economics at the University of Vermont, has been elected to the chairmanship of the South Burlington Planning Commission. Fred has wide experience in the field of natural resources and regional planning.

MRS. JAMES W. MOURIARY (EVELYN GATES)
37 Sherburne Circle
Weston, Mass., 02193

PHILIP E. NUTTING, after other executive positions, now is president of the MediaDep Center, Inc., an advertising sales organization covering New England, Canada, and upper New York State. ... N. DOUGLAS MACLOED, JR., is president and treasurer of Macloedny Corp. Stock Co. Trade name is 'Curvit'. Summer home in Bristol, R.I. where he hopes to move full time within three years. ... WALTER McDOUGAL was recently made vice president - Investment Counsel of The Paul Revere Life Insurance Company and The Paul Revere Variable Annuity Insurance Co. He has a daughter in the class of 1972... REV. G. RICHARD MOUNTFORT, JR., is presently pastor of the York Street Baptist Church. York, Me., and director of Higher Ground Camp for children in Westworth, N.H. ... NANCY CURTIS LAWRENCE has a son at the University of Delaware and is still active in town affairs.

VIVIAN MAXWELL BROWN has moved to Framingham where her husband is corporate director of industrial relations for S. W. Industries, Inc. Newton with plants all over the country. ...ALEXANDER E. DEMBOWSKI, after open-heart surgery and disability retirement in 1960 from the United States Navy, spent years travelling and relaxing. Now he is in a limited law practice in Boston and Falmouth, Mass. areas. ... HARRY L. LEVIN has been working for the last five years in various capacities for the Population Council in New York City. This has meant international travel. ... RUSSELL BROWN spent three months early in the year travelling in Asia. He preached the baccalaureate sermon at the Rose Chapel to 1200 students at Central Philippine University. The chapel was named in honor of Dr. Rose who graduated from Colby. ... PAULINE FOLEY THOMPSON had a daughter who graduated from Colby last spring. ... BARBARA GRIFFITHS TRAVIS has gone back to teaching in Springfield, Mass.

LOUIS M. DERANEY is currently with National Park Service, Land and Water Rights, Washington Service Office. ... NANCY WATSON has been named chairman of the Corporate-wide Shipping Committee of Republic Steel Corporation and is headquartered in Republic's Cleveland General Offices. ... MELTON HAMILTON has been appointed professor of health administration at Temple University. ... FREDRIC SARVANT, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Economics at the University of Vermont, has been elected to the chairmanship of the South Burlington Planning Commission. Fred has wide experience in the field of natural resources and regional planning.

ALICE KATKAUSKAS DRAKE DEMING of Birmingham, Mich., is working in the labor market and getting a master's degree at Wayne State after tragically losing her 18-year-old daughter and husband in a plane crash. ... RICHARD E. WHITTING of Rumford was elected a director of the Rumford Community Hospital. ... JAMES W. WHITTING was appointed part-time lecturer in education at Bates College. He also has been appointed Maine counselor to the American Library Association - director of Region I, which comprises New England. ... BARBARA BLAISDELL LIBBY is chairman of the English Department of Lincoln Academy. Husband Carlyle is a building contractor dealing largely in summer cottages in the Pemaquid area. ... PHILIP H. WATSON has been head of British Overseas Airways Corporation for seven years. At present is Commercial Training Manager, U.S.A., currently involved in training personnel in the use of their new computer system for reservations and use at the airports.

42 44
The response to my questionnaire was overwhelming! Great to hear from so many of you — and such a busy, well-educated and prolific class. The prize for the most children goes to Virginia Bracklely Piccirillo with 12!

In the fields of advanced degrees, education and the like, this class is right up front. BoBo Folio is teaching art in Essex Junction and took a graduate course in art education this summer... Bud has taken a new position as sales manager for S. T. Griswold Chemical Division... Louis Sutherland is a physics instructor at Eastern Maine Vocational Technical Institute and received his M.S. from the Colby Summer Science Institute in 1948... Bill Ather­ton was recently appointed to the Board of Examiners for Advanced Placement in Physics on the College Entrance Examination Board and has jumped into the job with both feet. According to my statistics, he and Bonnie appear to be the first grandparents in the group.

Elaine Browning Towsnly is a toy buyer in Laconia, N.H., and has a son Dud, a Colby sophomore, who broke the college record for the intermediate hurdles... Melzine McCaslin Pierce is working on her master's degree in library science, as is Ann Mcalary Hall who will have hers in 1970 from the University of Maine... Shirley Stowe Sarkis has received her degree from Southern Connecticut State College... Joan Crawley Pollock — and I hope I'm right in my sleuthing — writes from California that she has entered a teacher development program piloted by USC and is continuing her graduate studies in education along with this... Phyllis O'Connell Murray writes that she and her husband and three children are forsaking the New Jersey suburbs at long last for the good life in Vermont. She will continue teaching in the elementary grades... Another firm advocate of the good life is Ray Webster on station in Wiscasset, Me. He's sales manager for Paris Manufacturing Company, runs an antique shop in the summer and has taken to renovating old farmhouses... Joe Bowler writes that he pulled up stakes five years ago and moved to Florida where he sells industrial control equipment. He, too, is in favor of the good life.

In the business world again — Sanford Kroll is executive vice president of Lincoln Controls, a division of Aynet, Inc... Cy Perkins is currently working for the Navy in Portsmouth and writes that his son, Malcolm, has been accepted by Colby for the class of 1973... Gordon Miller, vice president and director of industrial relations for the Barry Wright Corporation, was just named to the Board of Managers of the Accumulation Fund at Paul Revere Annuity Insurance Company.

Jumping around again — Harriet Hutchinson Dusty received her master's in education from Northeastern in June, 1968, and is working as science supervisor at the Wrentham Public Schools... Bob Rosen has done a bit of travelling as a visiting professor at the University of Khartoum, Sudan, in 1966-67, and at San Diego State College, 1968-69. From 1964-65, he received Ford Foundation grants and has participated in the summer program on Industrial Relation at M.I.T. Recently, Bob was elected to Who's Who in the South and the West... Daniel Klein is still in California as a practicing psychologist. In addition to maintaining a private practice, he is on the staff of the

There is no finer way to support your alma mater than by making a gift — either outright or in trust. However, it is important that the gift be made in a manner that will be most beneficial, not only to your college, but to you and your family as well.

Our experienced trust officers will be glad to meet with you and your attorney and discuss the financial aspects of an educational gift that will serve as your personal memorial in the years ahead. Write or telephone for an appointment now.

J. Neal Martin
Vice President and Trust Officer

DEPOSITORS TRUST COMPANY
THE BANK THAT IS BUSY BUILDING MAINE
MEMBER FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION
MEMBER FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Trust Department / Augusta, Maine 04330
Area 207  623-4721
Veterans Hospital in Menlo Park and associated with the College of San Mateo as the psychologist for their Canada Campus.

Bits and pieces... PEG HORSCH LIGHTBODY is currently the president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Maine Medical Association... BOB LUCY was named principal of the Lee, Mass., High School in October 1968... RONALD FARKAS was elected secretary to the Prudential Shopping Plaza Merchants Association... BOB MARDEE, among many things, has been elected to the board of the Sugarloaf Mountain Corporation.

Winding up — and again, thank you for all the news — your correspondent and husband will have returned, by the time you read this, from a three weeks' trip to Norway where they cruised the fjords on a 30-foot yawl. Truly, the trip of a lifetime!

MRS. NORVAL E. GARNETT (NORMA BERGQUIST) 67 Dellwood Road Cranston, Rhode Island 02920 Ordained to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church in 1968, REV. GRAHAM T. PIERCE has been appointed administrative assistant to the Episcopal Bishop of Maine and assumed his new duties in Portland on May 15. His wife had been a substitute teacher in Springfield, Mass., from where the family (Graham, William, Robert, Sarah) recently moved... WILIAM W. HAYS has been elected a vice president of the Lyons and Carnahan Division of Meredith Corporation, publishers of elementary and high school textbooks. A former elementary school principal, he received his master's degree from Bridgewater State College... REV. SAMUEL G. BROWN and JANET PERIGO BROWN are living in Woburn, Mass. He is the pastor of the Montvale Congregational Church and Janet is the executive director of the board of the Combined Visiting Nurse Association of the area. She studied at Cornell and received her master of science in nursing from Boston University in 1965. They have one daughter, Jane-Elizabeth... The U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award was received by the unit of which GEORGE W. GREDORE is a member. He is now a technical sergeant and has done further studies at Santa Monica City College and San Francisco State College.

BENJAMIN R. SEARS was elected a selectman of the Town of Bedford, Mass. Active in town affairs for many years he is a realtor and a director of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board... An article in the Kennebec Journal showed JOAN ACHESEN BRIDGE teaching French pronunciation to an elementary student in Augusta. For the past two years she has been working in the French program in the public school system and is a strong advocate of the aural approach... DR. RICHARD CHAMBERLIN has joined the staff of the Regional Health Agency—Upper Kennebec Valley. He will direct the Division of Continuing Medical Education. He is part of a team at Thayer Hospital serving as the Director of Extended Care and Social Medicine... One of the community leaders named chairman of a team of the 1969 Appeal of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston was MARK MORDECAI. He is president of Daniel Mordecai Co., Natick food brokers. Edna and Mark have four children and reside in Wayland, Mass. She is working with the Mental Health Association and does volunteer work with disturbed children... JAMES A. MACLEAN has been appointed a sales manager, Central Region, for Owens-Corning. He is responsible for sales of Fiberglas textile and industrial products. He and his wife, Nan, have two children and reside in Toledo, Ohio.

CAPTAIN RODNEY H. HOWES received the Air Medal at Tuy Hoa AB, Vietnam. He was decorated for meritorious achievement during aerial flight and cited for outstanding airmanship and courage on successful and important missions under hazardous conditions... The new director, Manpower Development, at Aetna Life and Casualty, Hartford, Conn., is PAUL A. ALDRICH. He joined the firm in 1952. He and Mimi live in West Simsbury with their three children... DAVID E. LYNN has been elected a deputy controller in the Controller's Department of Bankers Trust Company, N.Y. He joined the bank in 1956. He and his wife live in Larchmont and are the parents of two sons, David and Douglas.

MRS. GEORGE B. WALSH (JANET STEBINS) 61 Canyon Oak Drive San Rafael, Calif. 94903 This year our classmates are making news from all corners of the United States... From Texas comes word that TOM NEWMAN is manager of Mobil Oil's Dallas Resale Marketing District where he is responsible for gasoline sales in excess of 90 million gallons in northeast Texas, as well as for the sale of various Mobil products to service stations, wholesalers and farmers. Prior to this position, Tom was marketing manager of the company's Peoria, Ill., district since 1966. The Newmans have three boys, Todd, Kelly and Tom... Springfield, Mass., is the new home of BOB and JACKIE RHODES. Bob was recently named claims manager in the Springfield service office of the Fireman’s Fund American Insurance Companies... Captain BOB ADAMS, a helicopter pilot in the 501st Combat Support Group at Eielson AFB, Alaska, was recognized last January for helping his unit earn the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award. The unit was cited for exceptionally meritorious achievement by providing assistance for the people of Fairbanks and the surrounding communities during the severe floods in that area in August 1967. Bob has also completed a tour of duty in Vietnam... In June the S.S. United States returned Jim and Sheila McLaughlin Freckmann to U.S. soil after five years of Embassy life in Rome. The Freckmann family which includes Chad, Barry and Andrew will reside once again in the Washington, D.C., area. Jim is with the Department of Agriculture.

From Waterbury, Conn., Hamilton Beach has announced that all product managers will report directly to Larry Pugh. Larry has been named to the newly created position of general market manager after serving the company since 1966 as market manager for mixers and blenders. Previously he had been a divisional sales manager for Borden's in Albany... Julie Brush Wheeler of Portland, Oreg., was Colby's delegate on the occasion of the joint inauguration of new presidents of Reed College and Portland State University in April... Paul Christie, who is with Libby-Owens-Ford in Richmond, Va., has a new title as manager, Architectural Construction, Southeastern Region. As part of his new assignment, Paul enjoys traveling to Florida where he was formerly district manager for Libby... Our new neighbors in the Big Valley are Judy and Don Vollmer with their children, Vicky and Ian. Don is assistant vice president in the national division in Bank America's San Francisco head office. He maintains a complete banking relationship with firms concerned with forest products, chemicals, oil and special real estate. Prior to Bank of America, Don was a financial analyst for three years with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development in Washington, D.C.

Charles Morrissey of Hanover, N.H., has been selected to be included in the 1969 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America. Charlie's Time Share Corp., which has developed into one of the major New England computer consulting and education firms, has announced the formation of a subsidiary, Computer Environments Corp. He is executive vice president of the new company, and is continuing as development vice president of T.S.C. Computer Environments Corp. is now listed on the Over-the-Counter market... From Hawaii comes news that Andy Johnson has left private law practice to assume duties as deputy county attorney of the County of Maui... Bob Weiss has recently been appointed associate director of research at Scholastic Research Center, a division of Scholastic Magazine.

Many thanks for the great response to the questionnaire! So far over 70 replies have been received. In fact, they were so cordial and newsworthly, I've decided to send out a class newsletter, realizing that the editors of the Alumnus would frown on a 3-page insert just for men news. So... this column will be devoted to a digest of information from the far-flung Class of 1957. The following is a bit of statistical whimsy gleaned from the questionnaires, giving you an idea of what's happening 12 years later — after the cap and gown.

Members of the class wrote from 18 states and Scotland, with Mass., Conn., N.H., Me. and Calif. and N.Y. showing the densest Colby population. Over half the replies showed classmates moving and/or travelling extensively and expensively.

The ladies are an active group, with most being wives and mothers, but many moonlighting in teaching and social and civic service. A great number are full-time teachers. Business, business management and education lead for the male occupations, followed by medicine, banking and insurance. There were a dozen varieties of vocations reported by Colby men, not to mention being husbands and fathers.

From Peter and Mary Ellen Chase Bridge we hear that Peter, after having been in both the ministry and education for several years now, has decided to leave the ministry and concentrate on education. Peter will be working on his M.A. in guidance and counselling at St. Michael's College... Ray Dow, who spends his usual day at the Lewiston District Office for the Maine Health and Welfare Department, also "moonlights" as consultant to two extended care facilities in Lewiston and Norway. Ray spent his leisure time this winter plowing away snow with his four wheel drive "Scout"! The Dows too enjoyed visits with the Don Kennedy and Barry Sisk families... Philippa Blume Feldman lives in California where her husband, Jerry, is an associate professor of history at the University of California at Berkeley... Anne Kimsey Brakeman is a mother and housewife who has managed to keep her sense of humor through it all — Anne says "definitely no promotions or awards, no new additions to the family — thank heavens, no additional degrees earned — wish it were so" and as for...

---

SAVE WITH

Waterville Savings Bank

WATERVILLE, MAINE

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

GEORGE H. STERNS '31

FRED J. STERNS '29

HERBERT D. STERNS '41

WATERVILLE

SKOWHEGAN

STERNS

authentic university fashions

for men and women

---

Atkins

PRINTING SERVICE

34 Main Street, Waterville

Edward L. Atkins

---

57

MRS. RICHARD B. CANTON (MARTILYN PERKINS)

47 Beach Street,

Marblehead, Massachusetts 01947

---

58

MRS. ROBERT MCKEE (LYNN D'AMICO)

P.O. Box 2046

APO San Francisco 96555

---

47 the Colby Alumnus SUMMER-FALL 1969
leisure hours — "the Chicken Pox is about to engulf us again, the dog is in heat, the puppy isn't trained yet — it's that kind of a day!"

Congratulations to Ronnie Moran who has been awarded a Fulbright Lectureship to the University of Wurzburg, West Germany, for the academic year 1969-70. Ronnie has just finished his third book which hopefully will be out next year...Anita Falter Currier spreads herself in every direction — just finishing up as vice president of the Coast Guard Academy Wives Club, taking over now as fund raising chairman, has been writing a weekly column for The New London Day and writes feature articles for the same about people and events at the Coast Guard Academy, creating handicrafts some of which are sold in local shops — Christmas orders come in July so the summer is thus occupied. Then she has enough time and strength left for modern jazz dance lessons!...Mary Lou Giganti Bracciotti and her husband took a break from winter with a vacation for fun and sun at Grand Bahama Island...Archie Twitchell, city manager of Grants Pass, Oregon, is on the board of directors of the Oregon Section of the International City Managers Association and the Oregon League of Cities. Winter for Archie meant ski patrolling on weekends and a couple visits with the Frank Seebodes.

Frank Cooperthwaite is operations officer aboard the USS Conyngham — a guided missile destroyer. Frank served a term of Vietnam duty during 1967-68. He has just too much travel minus his family and he, Ellen and their three children look forward to overseas shore duty late in the year...Ginny True in San Francisco occupies after work hours as a volunteer director of a tutorial center for 75 black youngsters. Angie De Carlo too is active in the same project. Ginny invites anyone who comes to San Francisco to look her up — she's getting to be a good tour guide — "and cheap too!"...Frank Walker and his family spent summer's weekends aboard their sloop cruising the Penobscot, Blue Hill and Frenchmen's Bay area...Peggy Fox Hutchinson and her husband Ben's weekly activity continues to be the church choir. The Hutchisons planned two weeks vacation to Atlanta, Ga., was downed by the mumps attacking the children. Instead they did settle for five days at Cape Cod...Pete Doran's extra hours go to being the president of the Waterville Area Colby Alumni Association, program chairman of the National Committee for Mental Health Education, and restoring an old colonial home.

Leigh Bangs works for Dow Chemical Co. He and his family have bought a 16' Rebel sailboat — named "Sailboat." They sailed it last year on Saginaw Bay of Lake Huron and this year will be sailing on Lake Isabella where they have bought a lot and are planning a cottage. Leigh passes on a welcome to Colby friends who are out his way...Glen Goffin now holds the Air Medal and five Oak Leaf Clusters for over 100 B-52 missions in Southeast Asia and recently was awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal for Meritorious Service. Glen spent a fortune “saving” money while overseas and visiting Guam, Thailand, Taiwan, Okinawa, Japan and Hong Kong. Glen has a huge coin collection and invites anyone interested in trading to get in touch. Cindy reports that she is having Christmas in December with all the treasures Glen brought home. She has just finished a second term as Coordinator of Family Services and has become a member of the Air Force Times 1000 Hour Club . . . Cindy Gardner Bevin and Doug spent several days skiing this winter with Dick and Robin Hunter Clutz and then met Kay and Justin Cross skiing in New Hampshire. Cindy describes their apartment as looking much like a youth hostel what with many house guests coming and going. Next year when both the children share a school schedule Cindy hopes to do some substitute teaching . . . Joan Muri Hocking has all her work done for a PhD in English from the University of Rochester except her dissertation. Joan and her husband have returned to the Midwest where he is working on his PhD in business administration. In between times, fun has been traveling all around the country in a travel trailer.

CARLYLE SMITH, now senior minister of the First Congregational Church in West Springfield, Mass., finds his new position a challenge — “in an urban situation with all the sills of the inner-city and surrounding area with which to deal.” Carlyle doesn’t know what leisure time is but has hopes for some traveling and does enjoy painting in oils . . . JUDY BROWN DICKSON is housewife and tutor — in reading and spelling for the elementary grades. Judy has an open door to all who might come to Alaska to get a taste of “the last frontier” either for vacation or to live . . . SHEILA Tunnock Cox and her husband went on a camping trip to the Western National Parks and then flew on to New York where Sheila attended The Second International Congress of the Transplantation Society, which was a series of scientific forums and meetings. She had a scientific paper published last year in “Transplantation — A Serial Study of the Bone Marrow Changes in Runt Disease.” Otherwise Sheila is busy with all the business of decorating and caring for a new home . . . ANGELA Decarlo finds that after almost four years in San Francisco exploring the city takes up hours and could take years yet. She also enjoys taking advantage of the fine restaurants and theater as often as possible.

MARCIA GRIGGS ATSAVES spends an afternoon a week as volunteer in an elementary school library typing, reading and recording on tapes books — mainly French, some psychology, and literature, for The Recording Society for the Visually Handicapped. At home Marcia is an avid gardener. She had just finished spreading 500 pounds of pine-bark mulch when last heard from and what with a McLean, Va., address I suspect she’s the gardener at “Hickory Hill”! In April Marcia joined Mario on his business trip to London for some theater, much walking through the city, and meeting interesting people . . . LOIS Munson Megathlin has been busy “getting the accumulation of seven years dust cleaned away and ready to move” — back to Maine! Skeeter received his master’s degree in Urban Affairs last winter and since they have enjoyed belonging to the “world of leisure.” Now Skeeter has been named the director of planning for the city of Portland and “we’re getting our dime ready for the Kittery Bridge” . . . SALLY Fritz Jobin and family moved back to Mass. from Puerto Rico during the winter. Now Sally is full-time housewife and her husband is doing research at M.I.T. . . . Getting used to exploring a new location — North Carolina — consumed the winter months for BERYL SCOTT GLOVER and family.

ANN HARDING JAMISON says “if any one would have told me I would stew over Azalea petal blight I would have giggled!” But here she is a total garden enthusiast. Jim has been flying the F-4 in Vietnam and Ann hoped to join him in Hawaii for his R and R . . . KUDIA STETSON BATES is busy with three children, decorating an old house suiting Actuarial Firm. The Bates family spends a week each summer at the Belgrades and get to look in on Colby and its many changes... HELEN PAYSON SEAGER is busy "raising hell at school board meetings," working on a neighborhood human relations committee, and waiting for a baby to arrive - like momentarily. In February the Seager family visited Disneyland and this fall Helen planned to join her husband on the committee. and waiting for a baby to arrive - like momentarily. In February the Seager family visited Disneyland and this fall Helen planned to join her husband on the staff of an informal tutoring service, affiliated with a local coffee house, for intelligent drop-outs... PHYLIS HARDY PETERSON doesn’t find as much free time as before since son Michael joined the family - "adoption comes highly re­commended by the Petersons." Phil is presently learning to play the guitar. "We built a home on the Belgrade Lakes in the summer of 1968 and will probably continue to work on it for the next thirty years!"

DON KENNEDY is still teaching and writing for The Atlantic Monthly. He received a William Robertson Coe Fellowship - American History - to Stanford for the summer and sounded eager to take on San Francisco. Don is doing part-time study at Harvard for a doctorate... In May, NORMAN and CHARLOTTE LEE and their new daughter flew to Portland, Oreg., and then on to San Francisco for two weeks and a visit with the JACK SINTONS... JOHN BAXTER reports that with JOHN EDEN’s election as president, and his own as treasurer of the Rhode Island Colby Club, the class of ’58 is firmly in control of this dedicated and loyal Colby group!... In March FRAN WREN RAYMOND and the children flew to Hawaii for a grand reunion with Bob during his R and R. The family eagerly awaited Bob’s return in July. Bob will have completed a year’s tour of duty in Vietnam and expected to be stationed again back at the Pentagon. Fran has been keeping herself busy, especially with the Girl Scout Program.

AL TARR has been on temporary duty with the 4153 Bomb Wing at a forward base in the Western Pacific. He is a S.A.C. navigator, flying the B-52... DICK CAMPBELL has been appointed product marketing manager for the Millers Falls Co. Previously, "Soup" was the advertising and sales promotion manager... LARRY CUDMORE has been appointed the manager of the Worcester, Mass., store of Sears, Roe­buck and Co. Prior to this assignment he was a mer­chandise manager, responsible for Sears appliances in thirty-seven stores. Larry in his spare time enjoys golf and water sports... Among the "Outstanding Young Men" hon­ored by the Maine Jaycees was ROBERT WYMAN. He is assistant vice president and chief executive officer of the Unity branch of the Federal Trust Co. and a founder of Unity College. In spare time he is a volunteer fireman, a member of Masons and Shrine.

60 MRS. EDWARD F. HEKIN, JR. (JUDITH MILLER)
2867 Page Avenue
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104

LEON NELSON is the newly elected president of the Boston Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. SHERRY GARDNER BEAULIEU was awarded the "Outstanding Officers’ Wives certificate for the Brist Strategic Aerospace Division in recognition of outstanding qualities of unselfishness and loyal support for the Air Force way of life." Husband, Leo is a flight instructor at Castle Air Force Base... RICK LANSING received his mas­ter of arts degree from the University of Colorado. ... RICHARD LUCIER is Eastern Regional Manager of Ealing Film Loops, the world’s largest producer of cartridge film loops for the education field.

Several of our bankers have received promotions: PETER STOCK is an assistant cashier for the Connecticut National Bank; TODD MARCHANT is investment officer for the Valley Bank and Trust in Springfield, Mass; DICK TYSON, manager of the Summer Street Industrial office of the National Shawmut has been elected assistant vice president... JUDY GONZAN COTE and DON ’59 are in Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich... BEVERLEY JOHNSON ARNETT is a busy mother of three. Husband Keet is manager of systems at Thom McAn, Melville Shoe in Worcester.

62 MRS. RONALD K. Ryan (BRENDA PHILLIPS)
87 Hamilton Street
Hampton, New York 13346

The football coach at Kennebunk, Me., High School is BRUCE KINGDON, who had coached varsity football for the last four years at Kents Hill School. As a coach, Bruce has never had a losing season, and his overall record for the past four seasons is 16 wins, nine losses and two ties. His football jersey, number 40, is the only one ever to be "retired" by Colby, never to be worn again by a Colby griddler... FRANK L. WISWALL, J.R., has been named Yorke Prize of the University of Cambridge, England. A member of the Maine, New York, and U.S. Supreme Court bars. Dr. Wiswall practices as a Proctor and Advocate in Admiralty and writes in the maritime and international law areas. The Yorke, awarded by the Faculty of Law upon submission of a manuscript, is one of the established prizes of Cambridge University. It carries with it an emol­lument in pounds sterling and a publication grant. Dr. Wiswall's work, which deals with the comparative development of Anglo-American Admiralty Law, is being readied for publication in the near future... PETER M. DUGGAN has been appointed an associate product manager of grocery marketing for Heinz U.S.A., a division of the H.J. Heinz Company. Peter received his master's degree in business from the Graduate School of Business Administration of Columbia University. He and his wife, Mary Vance, are living in Pittsburgh, Pa.

SAM MCCLEERY is a Delta Air Lines second officer assigned to the Houston, Tex., pilot base... DAVID BERNHAM has been elected an operations officer in the administrative division of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. Dave and his wife Barbara are now living in Hull, Mass., and have two children, Bridget and Andrew... SAMUEL G. COHEN has opened a law office in Waldoboro, Me. Sam is a 1965 graduate of Suffolk Law School in Boston and before enter­ting the service in the spring of 1966, was associated with the Alan Grossman law firm in Rockland, Me. He and his wife Bobbie have a son, Philip... WILLIAM BARNETT is working for Liberty Mutual Insurance Company in Boston as a workman's compensation representative. Bill was married on January 25, 1969, to Marjorie Anne Buck in Vallejo, Calif. She is now a staff nurse with the Visiting Nurses Association in Boston... ALAN NEIGER has announced his association with Jack A. Perry in the practice of law in Fairfield, Conn. The firm will be known as Perry and Neiger. Al was admitted to the Connecticut Bar in 1965 after receiving a bachelor of laws degree from Boston College Law School.

I apologize for the brevity of this column, classmates. It was a busy spring and I neglected to get out a questionnaire. One note of interest — It has been our good fortune to be living next door to KAY STANLEY's parents. Dr. Stanley is a botanist at Colgate and an exceptionally fine neighbor. Kay and her husband Dave Maxfield are living in Elgin, Ill., where they are both engaged in social work. Dave is also working on a master's degree, having received his bachelor of divinity a few years ago. They have visited Hamilton several times in the past few years and we always enjoy talking about Colby.

Enjoy yourselves, work hard and please write anytime. It would be wonderful to hear from more of you.

KAREN M. KNUDSEN
7825 Manchester Avenue
Playa Del Ray, California 90291

FRANK PARKER is with the Casco Bank and Trust Co. in Portland, where he was named assistant treasurer. BARNEY HALLLOWELL has been studying at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, a free-lance photographer and an art instructor in Lincoln, Mass. One of 10 professional newsmen in the country to receive a Washington Fellowship at the Journalism Center is MORGAN SICCONLEY, who covers New London city government for the Day... JON CHOATE, while studying for his master's degree in mathematics, took time out to coach the freshman hockey team and take them to an impressive number of victories. Where?... none other than old rival, Bowdoin College. Jon intends to return to Groton School in Connecticut where he will teach and coach. TODD SHERMAN has been decorated with one of the highest U.S. awards for gallantry in combat, the Silver Star, at Tan Son Nhut Air Base, Vietnam. Since his arrival in March, he has flown more than 100 missions.

The Boston Globe took notice of our DANNY GEORGE and congratulated him with a four-page spread on his activities with VISTA as a "drop-in" lawyer on skid row in Portland, Oreg., where he was assigned to work with homeless men. Dan intends to practice law in Boston... RAY PERKINS is a PhD candidate at Duke University for a degree in philosophy... SARA (SHAW) and DUSTY RHODES are living in Jacksonville, Fla., where Dusty is an Air Intelligence Officer in the Navy presently on the Kitty Hawk in Southeast Asia... DOROTHY (THOMPSON) IRVING taught for three years, received her master's degree in Reading and is presently enjoying motherhood in Wilmington, Del. KEN PALMER has completed his four years with the Air Force and is now a graduate student at Babson Institute. He and BETSY (STEVENS, '65) are living in Needham, Mass.

Last spring we heard that JACK and SALLY BOBER were in Watertown with the expectation of Jack's graduation from Harvard Business School and a move to New York. Sally intended to teach German in Mamaroneck in the fall... JOHN MCNABB is attending the Amos Tuck Business School at Dartmouth having served in the Navy for three and a half years... MARC CUMMINGS is the eastern sales representative for Kopp Glass Company. They have two children and are living in Glenshaw, Pa. After coaching and teaching at the Hinkley School in Maine, BRUCE LIPPINCOTT has retired to the life of the "professional" student at Lehigh University, where he is concentrating on a master's degree in biology... LARRY DYHRBERG has finished his first year of PhD work at Boston University... JUDY (ASSETT) AVDELLOTT has been a guidance counselor in Rochester, N.Y., until recently... LOIS (PHILBRICK) ROCKWELL is a science specialist for Montgomery County, Md., Public Schools. She is working with teachers in implementing the new science curriculum... MARTHA (FARRINGTON) HIROTA, teacher of English in Bath, tells of the Colby stretching world — she ran into Professor Gillum in the Cologne, Germany railroad station and NANCY ECHLE at St. Peter's!

Teaching English in the Evanston, Ill., Township High School is KEN NVE, while BARBARA DOWLING is teaching the mentally disturbed children in Brooklyn, N.Y., after two years in Germany and two years in graduate school in San Francisco. Assigned to Warner Robins Air Material Area Headquarters, Ga., as an assistant staff judge advocate is JACK FRIBERG. GARDNER GRAY is with the Navy in San Diego as a naval aviator at the naval air station Miramar. Leaving the teaching profession is DAVID VOGT, who will be occupied with film production concerning kindergarten and first grade children and interaction patterns... BEN BEAVER, after four years of sea duty with the Navy, "took advantage of the GI bill and finished a year at Harvard Business School."... CINDY WULING, with an MA in library science, is the head librarian at Kellogg Junior High School in Rochester, Minn. When last we heard from MARGARET (MATRIM) DODGE (MARTY '65) she was waiting for their first child in Cordova, Alaska!

Working on a master's degree while teaching at Suffield Academy in Connecticut is BRUCE WALDOW. John BRASSEW would have a book published in August, a movie released in September, spend two weeks in Europe, and attend New York University Graduate School! Also in the publishing business is THEODORE BIDWELL, who sees that the Market Guidelines, an advisory stock market publication, is printed weekly... PENNY (WHELLER) and RALPH BRADSHAW are at Washington University where Ralph is an assistant professor in the medical school. They have two children ages 5 and 7... CYNTHIA FISCHER is continuing her studies at McGill University in Montreal where her degree will be in special education... BARBARA GORDON SCHOWENHEIS has been reporting for the Asbury Park (N.J.) Press and is teaching English at the Long Branch High School. After three years with the Navy, BILL PATRICK is now a personnel representative for Becton Dickinson and Co. in Canaan, Conn.

MARGARET (CHANDLER) and BRUCE DAVEY '65 are living in Rochester, Minn., where Bruce is a clerk of courts for Judge Harry Blackmun, and Peggy is a library assistant at the Mayo Clinic... MARJORIE and DICK ZIPSER are at Oberlin College, where Dick has accepted a position on the faculty... Teaching for the Lookout Mountain State School for Boys in Colorado is MARIA (PHILLIPS) while husband JOHN SHELDON '63 works for Trans World Airlines in Denver... With an MBA from Boston University, MICHAEL COHEN is presently a marketing analyst for the Lincoln-Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn, Michigan...
NARD STUPSKI completed a tour of duty in Korea and is now with the Air Force in Wiesbaden, Germany... Princeton University has named IKE BALBUS an assistant professor of political science... Having completed a year in South America on a Fulbright Scholarship and two years of study at Columbia University, Jon Fredrikson is now attached to the Navy in Honolulu as a financial analyst.

MRS. RANDALL L. HOLDEN, JR. (PAM HARRIS)
7741 11th Avenue N.E.
Seattle, Washington 98105

When heard from some time ago, Neil and Jean Clipsham and their son David were serving the end of Neil's Coast Guard obligation at the Government Center in Boston. They were living in Arlington Heights... RUSSEL MONBLEAU has been promoted to District Product Specialist for Norton Company. He now resides in California while covering the sales activities and technical problems for Norton's line of grinding fluids. His travels take him throughout the westernmost states... PAM TINSON, who spent her freshman year at Colby and transferred to a school in Kentucky, is living in Boston on Park Drive... PETER NESTER, LTJG-USNR, is an A.S.W. officer on the USS Longbeach... LOIS RUDOLPH SZOSTAK is working at IBM as a systems engineer... LARRY ECKEL is finishing his work for a master's degree from Harvard in personnel and guidance. This past year he interned in the Philadelphia area.

DAVE WOOLEY has been promoted to group leader in the research papermaking and systems group at the Oxford Paper Company in Rumford, Me... CARL BEGIN, a candidate for an MBA at Dartmouth, has been awarded a S. Judson Dunaway Scholarship for the 1969-1970 academic year... PETE LARDIERI, a gymnast's coach at Henry Hudson Regional High School in N.J., coached his team to the Shore Conference Gymnastics League title... In September JANET MURSE MORNEAU began her teaching duties in the Waltham, Mass., School Department... MIKE CUTLER has been named assistant treasurer in the Banking Department, Customer Services Group, of Bankers Trust Company, New York... 1st Lt. BOB THOMPSON has been recognized for helping his unit earn the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award. Bob has been stationed in the 951st Strategic Missile Wing at Whiteman AFB, Mo... Heartiest congratulations to DIANE VAN WYCK on her recent election as the class marshal of the Class of 1969 at Harvard Law School. Diane is the first woman in history to receive this honor.

JEANNE M. AMNOTTE
14 Chiswick Road Apartment 5
Brookline, Mass. 02146

Mr. and Mrs. RICHARD LEWIS (BARBARA BIXBY), who were married on Nov. 30, 1968, are living in Bayville, N.Y. Barb received her MS in English and secondary education at C.W. Post College and plans to teach junior high English. Rich is assistant to the corporate manager of public relations at Instrument Systems Corporation in Huntington, N.Y... The PETER HOBARTS (ANN WILSON) have been in Florida, where Peter is an Ensign in the USNR. He is flying T-28's at Whiting Field, Milton, Fla. Ann completed her MAT from Wesleyan University last summer with courses at the University of Alabama at Mobile... Both KENT and CECILY (SMITH) JOHNSON are working at the Hartford Insurance Group office in Cherry Hill, N.J. Kent is a special agent, and Cecily is working in the Claims Office... Married on August 31, 1968, in Oakland, Me., were OLIVE SILES and MICHAEL SHU. They are now living in Newington, Conn. Michael works in the audit department of the Hartford National Bank and Trust Co. Olive is employed by the Aetna Life and Casualty Co. in the contract drafting section... In September the BRYNERS, ANDY and LISA (FERNALD) moved to Hanover, N.H., where Andy is working toward an MBA degree at Dartmouth's Amos Tuck School. Since graduation, Andy has been employed in the Management Training Program at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Lisa has been working in the Drawings and Prints Department of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

Living in Waterville and teaching are Mr. and Mrs. PAUL NELSON (BARBARA KUCZUN). They were married on February 16, 1969, Paul is at Messalonskee Regional High School in Oakland, teaching science. Barbara teaches Spanish at Lawrence High in Fairfield... MARK EDELESTEIN and JEAN REEVE were married on May 18, 1969. Mark has been a graduate student-teaching assistant at the University of New Hampshire. He received his MA in August. Jean earned her MA in English at Wesleyan University, where she was the recipient of an Academy of American Poets prize. Mark and Jean planned to go to England in September to teach secondary school for a year... PAUL and JUDY (DIONNE) SCOVILLE report that they are well and very happy in Texas. Paul finished pilot training with the U.S.A.F., receiving his silver wings in June. Judy has been working as secretary to a research professor at Texas Technical University. The Scovilles are expecting their first child... MIKE METCALF sends this word on his activities: "I am teaching history and government in Van Buren, Me., 260 miles north of Waterville (and still in the United States). Radically different culture (Acadian-French Canadian), and poverty situation (2000 of the town's 3900 people receive some sort of public assistance), plus the wide open spaces make the place a really fantastic experience. Would be teaching in Maine again next year, but I, too, alas, have received notice to report for service in the Armed Forces."

Jeanette Brooks Perkins and her husband JOHN '66 both received master's degrees from the University of New Hampshire. They are teaching at the Kent School in Connecticut... KAY SIMPSON was married last year to E. Thomas Gamble, a graduate of Salem State College. He is a high school physics teacher in Georgetown, Mass. Kay received her BA in biology from Salem State in June... Mr. and Mrs. DAVID BRYAN (NANCY DODGE) are both receiving their master's degrees in January of 1970. Nancy will get an MA in student personnel administration, and David a Master's in Business Administration, both from Columbia University... JOHNN LEOPOLD studied Chinese Mandarin at the Defense Language Institute in Monterey, Calif., in preparation for a position as a language specialist in the Air Force. After completing his military obligation, John plans to return to the University of Denver College of Law to complete the legal studies he began in the summer of 1968. Pfc. Joe Delia has been in Vietnam as a public information officer with an Engineer Battalion. Rick Mansfield was married on Dec. 22, 1968 to Marylou White. He has been in the Naval Flight Program in Pensacola, Fla., flying the T-28B. Rick writes: "I miss Big John's and haven't found a place here to compare with it yet, but I'm still looking." Scott Cooper has been stationed at Fort Holabird, Md., in order to receive instruction in military intelligence. The nine-week course qualified him as an intelligence analyst, capable of determining and pinpointing enemy positions and relaying the information to the proper departments.

Jeremy Schneider and wife Dawn Marie have been at the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla., where Jerry is in Naval Air Training. He was commissioned an ensign on May 9, 1969. Also in pilot training, but with the Air Force, is Greg Crawford. Greg attended O.T.S. at Lackland A.F.B. in San Antonio for three months to receive his commission. He is currently at Reese A.F.B., Lubbock, Tex., for approximately a year of flight training. Elizabeth Savicki is teaching biology at Braintree High School in Mass. Janet Shiner taught ninth grade science at Kalamazoo High School in Hawaii this past year. She planned to do some travelling during the summer, then to attend Purdue as a graduate teaching assistant in the biology department. Joyce Ingram was also teaching in Hawaii during the 1968-69 school year. Joyce taught at Hilo High School, Hilo. She plans to remain at that position another year. David Berube is in Washington, D.C., working as an Evaluation Assistant in the Selective Division of VISTA. On July 7, 1969, he began a two-year training program as a Management Analysis Intern in the Office of Management and Organization under the Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce. Steve Ford was at Villanova Law School for the school year, but entered the U.S. Army in July 1969. Since February John Nishijima has been attending Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration.

Mary Jo Calabrese Baur lived in southern Spain from June 1968 to January 1969 while her husband Vic was in the Navy Reserves. She did quite a bit of travelling in Spain, Portugal, Italy, France, Germany, Switzerland, and Morocco. After returning to the States, Mary Jo taught French at Peabody High School in Massachusetts. Paul Martin attends Boston University School of Business Administration, working for a master's. Robert Garrett was married to Kathy Alford '70 in Europe over Christmas. They are living in Gulf Breeze, Fla., while Bob is at Naval Flight School in Pensacola. After a short stay in Texas, Bob and Kathy will be residing on the East coast again. Joe Boulos, also at flight school in Pensacola, but as a Marine 2nd Lieutenant, received his wings in July. He was then deployed to an A-4 attack squadron at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station on the West Coast. Barbara Brown Loveday has been at the University of Chicago, working for her master's in education, which she received in August 1969. Her thesis topic was Shakespeare for Children. Her husband Bill is in a two-year master's in business administration program at the same university. He will receive his degree in June of 1970. Jeff Hannon is presently employed in personnel at the Bath, Me., Iron Works. He is waiting to report for five months active duty in the Army Reserve.

Geraldine Randall received an MA in English in June from the University of Virginia. She returned there again in September to continue PhD study in Medieval-Renaissance Literature. Pamela Hale is a PhD candidate in English at Tulane University in New Orleans. David Parker is doing graduate work in sociology at the New School for Social Research in N.Y.C. Linda Beland is working at Georgetown University for an MS in French. Bob Grossman writes that he has completed his first year at Cornell Law School and found it "slightly tougher than Colby." He still had time to play goalie for the Law School intramural ice hockey team, and to get in a little duplicate bridge. Lt. John Hutchins is a traffic control officer at Clark A.F.B. in the Philippines. He is directly responsible for the ground handling of all aircraft originating, terminating, or transiting the station during his duty hours.

Another Colby man is also serving in the Philippines as an Army officer. Jeff Goodwin enlisted in the Army in December of 1966, completed O.C.S. with a 2nd Lieutenant's commission at Fort Lee. From there he was assigned to Clark Air Base, the Philippines. Jeff expected to be at Clark until possibly November. Jane Pfeiffer is in Boston, working for a bi-weekly newspaper called The Prudential Center News. She is enjoying the varied aspects of the job, including interviewing businessmen, storeowners, artists, and musicians, and doing lay-out and make-up. She also covered King Hussein's visit to Boston and managed to get an invitation to the Boston Fireman's Ball. Chris Austin married Wes Barbour '66 on July 13, 1968, and joined him in England in September. She has been doing substitute teaching there and hoped to teach junior high full time beginning this fall. They are located at RAF Lakenheath, an hour from Cambridge, and would welcome visitors. Larry Furbish completed his master's in political science at the University of Maine. He has begun work on his PhD at Ohio State. Lee Urban is now an Ensign in the Navy, assigned to Little Creek, Va. He will be a supply officer on an amphibious ship. He received training for this work at a six-month session at Supply School in Athens, Ga., where he and five other men shared a "Georgia mansion."

Craig Weeden was an enlisted man in the Navy for eight months, when he was selected for O.C.S. He receives his commission from Naval Officer Candidate School in Newport, R.I., on July 18. He plans to marry Donna Quigley (U. Conn. '71) on July 19, 1969. Bob Hayden sends greetings from Fleet Training Center, U.S. Naval Station at Newport, R.I. Patricia Davis married Donald B. Murphy on August 17, 1968. Pat is working at the Jackson Laboratory, Bar Harbor, for Dr. Elizabeth S. Russell, a well-known geneticist. Pat's husband Don is studying for a master's in genetics and biochemistry at the University of Maine. Richard Riemer entered Wharton Graduate School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania in September...MARY MILLER is at Brown University graduate school in biology...HOPE JAIN WETZL is working for the city of Buffalo, N.Y., teaching grade three...CATHY MCDANIEL married WILLIAM VANDERWEIL '67 in a May ceremony at the Colby chapel. They are now living in Muskogee, Okla....DEBBY AVER returned in January from a trip to Europe and spent two months practice teaching at her local high school. She also took courses at the University of New Hampshire in education. Debby planned to teach high school English, preferably in Maine.

DEBBIE STEPHENSON, back from a tour of Europe, is working for Goldman Sachs & Co., a Boston brokerage firm....NANCY DEANGELES completed her MA in Spanish at Stanford in June. She has enjoyed California immensely, especially weekends at Squaw Valley ski area....PETE SWETT has been serving in the U.S. Army, stationed at Nha Trang, Vietnam. He holds the rank of Sp/4. He is serving as a crew chief on Huey helicopter for a Battalion Commander. He was scheduled to return to the States last March....DICK FOSTER expected to begin the master's program at Cornell in Organizational Behavior in the fall. He has received a full assistantship....BILL MCKINNEY and his wife Linda are living in Hartford, where Bill is working for an MA in Studies of Religion at Hartford Seminary Foundation. Bill's concentration is in sociology of religion. He hopes to go on for a PhD after next year. Both Bill and Linda are active in the Ripon Society of Greater Hartford, a progressive Republican organization. Bill is also working part time with Center City Churches of Hartford, a coalition of downtown churches organized to meet inner-city problems....DICK JUBE enlisted in the Army in November, 1968. He attended O.C.S. at Fort Sills, Okla....GERRY KIRSHENBAUM is teaching elementary school in N.Y.C. In addition, he is enrolled in a master's program in psychology at Temple University in Pennsylvania.

JUDITH DE LUCE decided to go back to school after a year as research editor for the Grolier Information Service (the reader research service division of the Encyclopedia Americana). She received a graduate fellowship from the University of Wisconsin for an MA in Latin....TED BROMFIELD is attending California Western University School of Law, where he has been elected to the Honor Code Committee. Ted has this to say about conditions in San Diego: "While there were several earth tremors this year, I am happy to report that they were far less severe than the Waterville winter!"...Although most kappus had planned to attend Columbia Law School, the Selective Service had other ideas. Them enlisted in the Army for two years. He is now assigned to the 3rd Armored Division in Frankfurt, Germany, as a legal clerk in the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate. He finds that the job offers the opportunity to learn many practical points of law which will have future application when he returns to law school....JO WOOD spent the year in Boulder, Col., as assistant director of the University of Colorado Pre-School "Kiddie Kampus." This is a school provided for children of both faculty and students of the university. Jo spent all her spare time skiing. She saw TOGGER and BRITT ANDERSEN at Vail. Jo is working at Wheeler School, Providence, in the admissions and guidance department, as well as coaching tennis....KEN YOUNG began his second year at Boston College Law School in September.

RICK MORIARTY reports that he is alive and well, enjoying medical school at the University of Vermont...KIMBERLY MCGILL is studying at the School of Interpreters at the University of Genoa in Switzerland....LEE CON GRADUATE completed her Colby degree in January. She and her husband are living in Farmington where both are teaching. Since January Lee has been teaching fifth and sixth grade English and reading in West Peru, Me....ANN ORCHARD MORRIS is employed by New England College in Henniker, N.H., as an admissions counselor. She travels to the high schools in Massachusetts to talk with guidance counselors and students....JED DAVIS writes that he spent the year working in the Establishment. He has been employed by Chase Manhattan Bank in N.Y. C. in the Credit Department....Since September 1968 RICK MORRIS has been doing graduate study in American history at the University of Delaware. He hoped to complete his MA in the summer, and to teach American history at Worcester (Mass.) Academy, a private boarding and day school for boys....PETER JOST is going to Rutgers Law School. He has so far managed to escape the draft. Pete finds the Newark scene takes some adjustment after Waterville, Me.

ELIZABETH BRIDGES is working as a planning assistant for the Massachusetts Department of Commerce in Boston. She is living in a commune, which she finds a "creative" experience....STEWART ARMSTRONG received a bachelor of music degree from B.U. on May 18, 1969. He was married on May 24 to Virginia Mills in a Boston ceremony, at which two Colby men were ushers - Michael Shu and DAVE MANNING....CAROLE FRASER FOWLER (Mrs. Northrup) has graduated from Douglas College with an AB in English and American Literature. She is working at the new Livingston College of Rutgers. Nort has completed his master's and will finish his PhD in approximately two years. Carole and Nort say that they miss Maine very much, but try to be there on vacations as much as possible. They have also visited Nort's parents in St. Croix, the Virgin Islands, twice. Carole's plans are to take graduate courses in library science for the MLS degree....Since graduation SHIRLEY O'NEAL has been working for an international high school exchange program, International Student Placement Service. Last year she was in Europe (mostly Scandinavia) for six months, visiting schools and American students, and recruiting European students. At the end of May she left for three months in Europe as orientation leader, both for Americans and for Europeans....AL GRAY is in the Army. He completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J., and then attended eight weeks of military police training at the U.S. Army School and Training Center, Ft. Gordon, Ga.

LINDA REYNOLDS is teaching in the Brockton, Mass., school system in a primary special class. Linda received her master's degree in work with the mentally retarded from George Peabody College, Tenn....JON IRISH, a candidate for the degree of Master of Business Administration at Dartmouth's Amos Tuck School, was awarded an S. Judson Dunaway Scholarship for the academic year 1969-70....STEVEN CAMPBELL joined the Peace Corps after graduation and is serving at Barragan, Colombia, working with farmers, with their cattle and pasture crop problems....AL CROSBY is employed by the stock brokerage firm of Hayden Stone, Inc. He is now in San Francisco, where he has been relocated....PETER POWELL is in Washington, D.C., serving as staff assistant to Congressman Louis C. Wyman (R-N.H.). GARY WEAVER, a 2nd lieutenant in the Navy, in Key West, Fla., attended Navy frogman school... ANNA GIDEON writes that she has graduated from the University of Michigan in December, 1968, with a BA in linguistics. She will be continuing linguistic studies, also Bible school and a year of medical training... JEFF LATHROP served as Colby ski coach last winter.

KIKI O'CONNELL spent the year teaching English at Ellsworth High School. She also conducted French classes for adults... BARB STANFORD TREMBLAY taught French in a junior high in Maryland. This fall she hoped to be teaching both French and German at the high school level, while continuing work on her master's in French.

NANCY SHORT is employed as an associate programmer for Honeywell Inc., Waltham, Mass. Her specialty is writing Cobol Compilers. She is engaged to Wayne L. Hall, Bowdoin '67... JANE FINKLEDAY went to Arizona in October, 1968. She has been employed by Gulf American Corp. Jane and DONNA MASSEY '69 planned to be in Europe for a while this fall. Jane reports that she enjoys the Great Southwest, and has run into several Colby people, including Gregg Crawford, Peter Nester, and Phil Kay... After leaving Colby, LORRAINE MACKERT working in Washington, D.C., for a year. In June she graduated from the University of Denver. Lorraine is now working toward a master's in library science at Denver. In September she planned to take a trip to England to visit WES and CHRISS AUSTIN-BARBOUR... BILL PALOMBO was married on June 21, 1969, to Patricia Perrell (U. Mass. '69).

Last, a word on the Class Letters everyone was asked to send. The return was a complete surprise to me: almost eighty replies arrived at my mailbox over a period of about a month. Some of those contained reports on numerous other class members, so the volume of information was considerable. Letters came from twenty states and five foreign countries, including Vietnam. Of those men replying, twenty were or would soon be in military service. Graduate school and teaching were the most frequent occupations of non-service males and of females. Our class column appears in the Summer and Winter issues of The Alumnus, so you will be receiving letters twice a year. Please keep writing in. Nancy Beach and I are now in a new apartment, still in Brookline, but at the new address given above.

1916
LUCILE FOSTER WILSON, 76, died March 30 in Lexington, Massachusetts. A member of Chi Omega, she had been a school teacher; she was born in Waterville and prepared at Coburn Classical Institute.

FRANCES E. TREFETHEN, 74, died May 25 in Concord, Massachusetts. Born in Kent's Hill, she prepared at Coburn Classical Institute; she was a member of Delta Delta Delta, and taught mathematics following graduation. She was executive secretary at the Dalton School in New York and for Mrs. Gibbs of the Katherine Gibbs School. She leaves three sisters and a brother (RUTH '15, JOSEPH '31).

1917
CHARLES F. BAXTER, 75, died March 21 in Waterville, Maine. He attended Colby for two years and received his DDS from Cincinnati College of Dental Surgery. A practicing dentist in Waterville for forty-three years, he retired in 1968. Dr. Baxter was affiliated with professional and civic groups and had been past president of the Lions Club. He leaves his wife, daughter, son and brother (EDWARD '25).

1920
MARION WATERMAN WOOD, 69, died April 9 in Houlton, Maine. Formerly a teacher at Gardiner High School, she was active in church and civic associations. A member of Phi Mu, Mrs. Wood was born in Taunton, Massachusetts, and prepared at Crosby High School in Belfast. She leaves her husband, son and brother (JOHN '21).

1921
ELFRIEDA WHITNEY NICHOLS, 70, died April 28 in Hartford, Connecticut. A native of Houlton, she prepared at Ricker Institute, and was in Sigma Kappa. Mrs. Nichols, a fifty-year member of that sorority, was formerly president of the Hartford Chapter (1966-1967). She leaves her husband.

1922
ROBERT L. STONE, 69, has died in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He was, for thirty years, sales manager of the contact sales division of Westinghouse Company. He was born in Irvington, New Jersey, and prepared for college there. He leaves his wife and son.

1925
MARITA COOLEY HARRISON, 67, died March 19 in New York City. Born in Skowhegan, she had been a teacher for many years, retiring in 1968 from the high school faculty in Teaneck, New Jersey. She leaves her husband.

1927
PHILIP S. METCALF, 63, died March 29 in Walpole, Massachusetts. A native of Portland, he prepared at Lisbon (Me.) High School. From 1933 to 1958 he was associated with Walpole Woodworkers, Inc., serving the last seventeen years as president (he was chairman of the board at the time of his death). Mr. Metcalf was the speaker on numerous radio programs, including The Bible Speaks to You, sponsored by the Christian Science Church. He leaves his wife and two daughters (JANE HEALEY '53).

1928
EDWIN W. HARLOW, 62, died April 12 in Waterville, Maine. A member of Alpha Tau Omega, he was born and educated in Gardiner; he received his MD from Boston University Medical School in 1932. Dr. Harlow practiced medicine in Skowhegan (1933-1936) and Waterville (1936-1969), and was on the surgical staff of Seton Hospital. A past president of the Kennebec Medical Society, he had also been affiliated with Massachusetts Memorial Hospital. He leaves his wife (EMMA TOZIER '28) and a son.

1929
DONALD H. ROLLINS, 62, died April 5 in Mystic, Connecticut. An electrical engineer, he was affiliated with the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics at the time of his death. The native of Winthrop, a member of Lambda Chi Alpha, was active in civic and sportsmen's organizations. He leaves his wife, son and daughter.

1930
CHANDLER R. MOSHER, 62, died in March in Castleton, Vermont. A teacher and principal, he had been an instructor at Castleton Teachers' College since 1950. His former positions included principalships at McIndoes Academy and Hardwick Academy, housemaster at St. Johnsbury Academy, and teacher at Bradford Academy—all in Vermont. Past president of the Kiwanis Club and Vermont State Basketball Officials Association, he had coached basketball, football and baseball. Mr. Mosher, a native of Ayer, Massachusetts, earned an EDM at the University of Vermont. He leaves his wife and two sons (CHANDLER II '67).

1931
GEORGE H. STERNS, 62, died April 24 in Augusta, Maine. The native of Bangor, and member of Tau Delta Phi, was well-known in Waterville as general manager and treasurer of Sterns Department Stores. A director of the Waterville Savings and Loan Association, he was an incorporator of Waterville Savings Bank, and was a director of Seton Hospital and a trustee of Coburn Classical Institute. Mr. Sterns, a former director of Maine Merchants Bureau, had also been director of the National Retail Merchants Bureau. He was a member of numerous civic, fraternal and service organizations. He leaves his wife (FLORENCE SHAPIRO '32), a daughter, and two brothers (FRED '29 and HERBERT '41).

1939
JANICE WARE SLATTERY, 52, died May 1 in Boston, Massachusetts. A buyer and fashion designer for Bonwit Teller in Boston, she had formerly been in the fashion field in New York and New Jersey. She was a native of Manchester, New Hampshire, and prepared at Peabody (Mass.) High School. She had done graduate work at Simmons in Boston. She leaves her father and daughter.

1959
FRANK W. SPERALING, 32, died last fall in New York City. Born in that city, he prepared at schools in Periomen, Pennsylvania. He was vice-president and general contractor of the Frankwill Building Corporation at the time of his death. He leaves his wife (PENELOPE DEAN '61), and his parents.
A message for the times

'If there is any period one would desire to be born in, is it not,' asks Emerson, 'the age of Revolution?' Then 'the old and the new stand side by side and admit of being compared.' Then 'the energies of all men are searched by fear and by hope.' Such a time, he concludes, 'is a very good one, if we but know what to do with it.'

Whether or not we wanted it, you and I have been plunged into a revolution. Do we know what to do? Have we the courage to meet its demands? Or, in our baffled confusion are we willing to withdraw, leaving the control of events to those who have more stamina than we?

It seems to me that if we refuse to act now and to act decisively, later on we shall never forgive ourselves, and — more — important — our children will never forgive us. A time of radical change like the present cries out for direction, and its course will in the end be determined by those who have the most reason and the most will on their side. At present, violence, if not in the saddle, has at least one foot in the stirrup. Those of us who believe in reason as an instrument of change must rally to our cause every effective ally we can muster.

And what more effective ally have we than a college like Colby? It is small so that its various constituencies can know and trust each other. It is dynamic, and has proved its own ability to meet crisis with purpose. Its attitude is firm yet flexible; it has both respect for the past and confidence in what is to come. It is devoted to freedom, but to the kind of freedom cherished by a reasonable man.

A Colby meeting last spring in Boston attended by members of the administration, faculty, student body, and board of trustees showed convincingly how well equipped the college is to face up to its problems. With frankness and good will this group moved from discussion to action and set up a timetable for committee meetings which should create an acceptable basis for authority and a system of communications of which all can make use.

If we can help Colby to solve its own problems by peaceful, democratic means, the college will help society to find its own peace. If we stand aside we invite the forces of violence to step in and take over and this, in turn, will simply provoke the counterviolence of repression. The great chance given us now is that of increasing the college’s effectiveness in the struggle to make reason prevail. To me the Colby appeal was never more urgent.

J.S. BINLER
President Emeritus, Colby College
National Campaign Chairman, The Plan for Colby
Portland Observatory, 1807

Portland Observatory was designed and built by Captain Lemuel Moody in 1807 as a lookout for incoming vessels and to sight ships in distress that aid might be sent them. Its octagonal tower rises 92 feet from the foundation. Eight white pine posts reach from the stone foundation to the lantern deck. These posts were cut on Pike's Hill in Windham. After the frame was squared it was hauled to Pride's Bridge and launched into the Presumpscot River, floated over the falls and round by Martin's Point to the town landing at the foot of Hancock Street, where there was a sand beach.

Wheels were backed into the water and at high tide the posts were floated into position on the wheels where, after the ebbing of the tide they were drawn up the hill.

House flags of Portland's shipping merchants were stored in the Observatory and flown from the tower's mast to notify the owner when his ship was sighted. A short mast was also provided on which lanterns could be hung.

Near the base of the Observatory, Moody built a dance hall, a bowling alley and a dining room, all of which were favorites with troops gathered at near-by mustering grounds.

It was from the Observatory, through the French telescope installed on the lantern deck, that Moody watched the battle between the Enterprize and Boxer during the War of 1812 and, in the manner of a modern radio announcer, related a blow-by-blow description of the action to the excited crowd gathered below.

Portland Observatory is the only remaining 19th century signal tower on the Atlantic coast.

"1803 — Maine's FIRST Bank"

Canal National Bank

PORTLAND
Pine Tree Shopping Center
North Gate Shopping Center

FALMOUTH
Falmouth Shopping Center

SOUTH PORTLAND
41 Thomas Street

LEWISTON
Corner Canal & Cedar Streets

SCARBOURGH
Scarborough Plaza

GORHAM
11 Main Street
OLD ORCHARD BEACH Veterans' Square

AUBURN
Auburndale Shopping Center

BOOTHBAY HARBOR
53 Townsend Avenue

BRUNSWICK
172 Maine Street
Brunswick Bath Shopping Plaza

WINDHAM
North Windham Shopping Center

SACO
180 Main Street

YARMOUTH
93 Main Street

COMPLETE FINANCING, TRUST & BANKING FACILITIES
Member Federal Reserve System — Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation