1971

Colby Alumnus Vol. 60, No. 3: Spring 1971

Colby College

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.colby.edu/alumnus

Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.colby.edu/alumnus/70

This Other is brought to you for free and open access by the College Archives: Colbiana Collection at Digital Commons @ Colby. It has been accepted for inclusion in Colby Alumnus by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Colby. For more information, please contact mfkelly@colby.edu.
The Colby Alumnus

Spring 1971
Colby has been a coeducational college for 100 years, but in the 1960s men began to be housed in dormitories formerly considered to be on the "women's side" of the campus and likewise women were housed on the "men's side." The president and trustees have approved "dormitory autonomy." The college has not introduced coeducational dormitories. This article includes the board's statement on the subject.

Next fall Colby will have two new deans; a fourth Charles A. Dana Professor and two Avalon Visiting Professors will join the faculty.

Photographs of commencements before World War I convey the tranquility of a relatively uncomplicated world. The pictures were made from glass negatives given Colby by the son of the photographer, the late Professor Edwin J. Roberts.

Cover photos: Peter Pennypacker '69

Paul G. Jenson, newly appointed dean of faculty, meets members of the Educational Policy Committee, Anthony Maramarco '71 (Simsbury, Conn.) and Carolyn Additon '71 (Pittsburg) during an April visit.
Environmental Studies

The stimulus of being in Maine, a largely unspoiled state fighting early and hard to stop pollution, is producing vigorous response at Colby. An environmental studies program will be introduced in the fall. The multidisciplinary major won faculty approval in March partly in response to student concern over the environment reflected by formation in December, 1969, of the Colby Environmental Council. Faculty members have been influential in this area as well, both as educators and by fostering environmental protection laws.

Environmental studies will draw from the department of chemistry, geology, biology, mathematics, administrative science, government, economics and sociology. It should form a bridge between academic disciplines, and the public and private interests beyond the college. Majors will be prepared to work not only with groups fighting pollution and to pursue careers in environmental education, but for graduate work in traditional disciplines such as law, theology, business and medicine. To accomplish this, they will need to understand the relationships between ecological systems, contributions of the disciplines to environmental studies, and to gain working experience with some aspect of Maine's environment.

The resurgent Environmental Council, with roots in the outing club, has become an independent student organization. It began meeting weekly this spring and is putting out a newsletter. With help from a Student Government allocation, the council developed a letter-writing campaign against the SST and is recycling paper. The group plans to boycott products in nonreturnable containers and bring conservationist speakers to campus.

Aid for New Program

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation has awarded Colby $5,000 to support the environmental studies program. The grant will be used to expand pertinent library resources.

The Kellogg trustees are concerned with matters such as population growth, environmental deterioration and depletion of natural resources; they believe "that the nation's small, private liberal arts college can make a substantial contribution toward solving these problems by strengthening their programs of environmental studies," said Robert F. Kinsinger, vice president.

Pullen on Patriotism

Yesterday's revolutionaries are today's consensus patriots. But both "hard hats" and dissident, antiwar youths now claim to be patriots. Where did things get turned around?

John Pullen '35 provides important insights into the question in a new book, Patriotism in America, an exhaustive survey of 200 years of national sentiment published May 4 by American Heritage Press.

His "acknowledgements" point to Colby as a principal vantage point: part of the book is based on letters from Colby soldiers, Zemro Smith and Nathaniel B. Coleman in 1862-65 and Robert C. Ransom Jr. in 1968. The Civil War letters appeared in the 1969 summer-fall Alumnus in an article by Mr. Pullen.

In the picture above, Stephen R. Orlov '71 (Hull, Mass.), outgoing Student Government president, talks to an NBC newswoman about reaction to a March appearance by Georgia Legislator Julian Bond. The "First Tuesday" team was following the civil rights leader on a speaking tour.

How do we define "patriotism" if yesterday's rebel becomes today's patriot? Pullen contends that the distinction always has involved changing values, conscience and judgment, with some sort of opposition to the government being the one constant. "The whole history of our people indicates that public support for the national government varies according to the degree of conviction people have that its course is justified not only on rational but on moral grounds. When this conviction is strongest, we have been the most united, . . . when it has been weakest, we have been most divided."

Pullen documents his contention with public opinion research and historical examples: Daniel Webster gave us a new meaning for the word "hawk" in 1812, when men were drafted for "Mr. Madison's War," the precursor of "Mr. Johnson's" and "Mr. Nixon's War." The author also reminds us that Lincoln was denounced for prophesying an undeclared war in 1861. The episode of Fort Sumter and the war's beginning are treated in a chapter entitled "Abraham Lincoln's Tonkin Gulf.

Both received $6,000 grants from the Providence, R. I., foundation. They were among 70 students chosen from 34 institutions in the country. A charitable trust established by Mrs. Thomas J. Watson Sr. in memory of her husband, the foundation chose Colby last fall to join "outstanding colleges and universities" in the program.

A 'Greening' for Business

The biggest sell-job American business ever faced concerns not a new product but business itself. It must prove to a discontented nation that business can work for everyone, including a "turned off" generation from which it must recruit.

This note of urgency ran through Sol M. Linowitz' speech April 2 to Colby's 20th Institute for Maine Business. The former Xerox board chairman and ambassador to the Organization of American States is convinced of a widespread frustration and sense of helplessness "that simply has no parallel in our history. . . . These are times of paradox when we have learned to achieve most and to fear most; when we seem to know more about..."
how to make war than peace, more about killing than living. It is a time of unprecedented need and unparalleled plenty when we send men to walk the moon yet recall Santayana's words that men have come to power 'who, having no stomach for the ultimate, burrow themselves downward toward the primitive.'

Accordingly, the social involvement of business must be deep and real. Ambassador Linowitz, chairman of the National Urban Coalition, finds the success of area coalitions depends on business involvement. Yet firms that established urban aid programs after the 1967 riots are "starting to cut them back."

Many students, Linowitz said, feel there is no place for them in business. They think that it has failed to respond to today's problems by evolving concepts of "social and moral responsibility": in a Newsweek poll of 800 seniors, he noted, only about 12 per cent listed business as "first choice"; and of 2,500 (two thirds of them business majors) surveyed by the Society for the Advancement of Management, only 15 per cent thought business had been 'very' or 'quite' helpful in aiding minorities and the needy, or in controlling pollution. Linowitz warned that unless business convinces youth of its commitments to social ideals it will have difficulties recruiting young people who are searching for solutions to age-old problems.

Retirements

Three faculty members retiring in June have distinguished themselves professionally and as Colby graduates: F. Elizabeth Libbey '29, Earle McKeen '29 and Leonard W. Mayo '22. All have received Colby Bricks.

Miss Libbey returned to her alma mater in 1945 after holding state and college library positions. She is the associate librarian, and was instrumental in organizing and maintaining the Colbiana historical section.

Professor McKeen, director of career planning and placement, had a notable career in public education as principal and superintendent before returning to Colby 15 years ago. He served two terms on the Alumni Council.

Dr. Mayo, distinguished social scientist, former trustee and member of Presidential committees, accepted the post professor of human development in 1966. He had served for 15 years as executive director of the association for the Aid of Crippled Children.

Tributes to these respected friends will appear with profiles in the summer Alumni.

Music Student's Dream

Students of Colby's ninth Summer School of Music will add a new dimension to the eagerly-awaited series of six concerts by the Hungarian String Quartet.

The school's most gifted advanced players will join their mentors for the last four concerts to play Brahms quintet and sextet compositions.

Each of the six Tuesday concerts will be at 8 p.m. and include one selection by Mozart, Bartok (quartet cycle) and Brahms. The dates are July 13, 20 and 27; Aug. 3, 10 and 17.

Information on tickets may be obtained by writing P. David Walker, director of special programs, in care of the college. They are available for the series or for individual concerts.
The Board on Student Housing: Autonomy (without Live-ins)

The evolution from coordinate colleges to coeducation at Colby is entering its most complicated phase. After seven years of changing dormitory living patterns, the president, with the authorization of the board of trustees, has given students the right to make their own "house rules."

The changes haven't always satisfied some students. But they might startle alumni steeped in the coordinate tradition of virtually separate colleges for men and women.

At any rate, the board is holding for the time being to one traditional arrangement — separate dormitories for men and women — despite some student pressure for experiments in coeducational living.

The chairman of the board of trustees in April of this year referred to the Committee on Student Affairs a request from students that the feasibility of coeducational dormitories be studied during the next academic year.

Dormitory autonomy, limited by guidelines established by the college community and the board, is perhaps the most significant product to emerge from the machinery set up last year during the Constitutional Convention. Mid-semester referenda in each dormitory and fraternity house produced a definite pattern: 24-hour visiting privileges in all cases; a general lack of restrictions such as "quiet hours," and emphasis instead on "mutual consideration." Guidelines for autonomy provide for changing the rules of each living unit by initiative and referendum. Whether the current rules endure would seem to depend on how considerate students will be.

The first departure from the coordinate system occurred in 1964 when 80 women were moved into Averill on one edge of the male side of the campus. One result was a limited co-ed dining arrangement in Roberts Union. The Averill women moved into the new Dana Hall the following year. In 1967, Averill and East halls were used to house women, and the scales were balanced as men moved into Coburn and Woodman on the distaff side of the Hill. In 1968 all dining halls were serving men and women.

The board's student affairs committee explained its stand against co-ed dormitories when it made recommendations on dorm autonomy. The committee consists of board members, faculty, administrators and
THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES RECOGNIZES THE NEED TO establish policy which determines to a consider­able extent the tone of campus life. Indeed, the college charter requires the corporation "to make and ordain, as occasion may require, reasonable rules, orders and bylaws, not repugnant to the laws of this state . . . for the good government . . . of said institution." While wishing not to interfere with the day-to-day administration of dormitory life, the board feels the responsibility to provide guidelines within which the on-campus constituencies may operate. In the past, we have created such policies as those relevant to fraternity life, the pattern of men's and women's dormitories and coeducational dining. We expect to continue to speak on those broad issues which are significant to the private residential nature of the college.

There are two issues currently before the college community to which we need speak at this time. Both concern the pattern of dormitory life and both have been the focus of considerable discussion on the campus in the past two years. One is the matter of coeducational dormitories, i.e. men and women sharing the same dormitory. The other is dormitory "autonomy," a phrase much abused and needing considerable specificity of definition to be discussed meaningfully.

On the matter of coeducational dormitories, we do not think this is an appropriate or desirable mode of living for Colby students, nor do we wish the college to project the type of image which such housing arrangements would create. At this time, we feel the risks to psychological, emotional and physical health are sufficient to deter us. Moreover, we also recognize that the college exists within a larger community. While the academic community wishes to provide leadership and to challenge standards and beliefs in those realms in which it demonstrates expertise, it also wishes to live within the bounds of acceptability, as broadly defined by its various constituencies, in the social realm. Thus we feel that the creation of coeducational dormitories would not be acceptable to the college community.

As to dormitory autonomy, the charter granted to the college by the State of Maine requires that the corporation (the president and board of trustees) exercise the ultimate authority over residence hall life. In practice, this authority has been delegated to the administration, and we are now asked by the students for a further delegation to each residence unit. We believe that such a delegation, if properly understood and responsibly carried out, can contribute to the growth of our students. We thus authorize such a delegation from the administration to each living unit for the purpose of establishing and enforcing its own hours, visiting privileges, and the conditions under which these may occur.

The college dormitories are private residences rather than public buildings. Therefore, certain safeguards must be maintained if dormitory "autonomy" is to enhance student growth.

1. The right of privacy must be guaranteed to each student, so that every resident shall be protected against personal intrusions, theft or damage to personal property, excessive noise, or other invasions of privacy sufficient to constitute a nuisance.

2. Freedom from coercion or exploitation is essential. This includes the right of every student to have access to his own residence and its facilities at all times; to have his objections to the behavior of others fairly heard and considered; to seek reconsideration of rules at any time.

3. Men's dormitories are to house men, and women's dormitories women, and no "live-in" arrangements for members of the opposite sex are permitted.

4. No regulations shall be made which are not in conformity to local, state and federal law.

5. Where needed, the college will provide reasonable security for dormitories.

Nothing herein should be construed to mean that the corporation has abdicated its authority, or its right to modify or revoke its decision. We shall continue to have great concern for the tone of the campus, both intellectually and socially. We believe that these two aspects are inextricably related to one another, and that as we increase the academic responsibility assumed by students we can also increase the social responsibility.

With the autonomy principle approved, students, faculty and administrators had to work out guidelines. They established that visitors must be welcomed by one or more residents; each student should have access to his own room at any time and be able to sleep there at any time without visitors present.

Residents of the i8 dorms and eight fraternity houses were asked to vote on visiting hours, quiet hours and judicial systems. Various systems, with

(continued on page 11)
The new dean of students, special assistant to the president of Stanford University, will teach in the English department. Wyman will succeed Albert A. Mavrinac, professor of government, who has been acting dean since last fall.

The deans will assume their duties July 1.
Professor Parker, chairman of the department of philosophy at Purdue University, is a writer and lecturer of international reputation.
Miss Marshall, noted Shakespearean and Elizabethan scholar, was Jesse T. Peck Professor of English Literature until her retirement last year from Syracuse University, where she taught since 1948.

Paul G. Jenson
Professor Jenson, 45, a native of Milan, Minn., began his teaching career in 1950 as a psychology assistant at the University of Minnesota, where he earned his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. He received his B.A. at Luther College (Decorah, Iowa). After 11 years of teaching at Macalester College in St. Paul, where he was chairman of the department of psychology, he was appointed to the administrative post at Temple Buell (formerly Colorado Woman's College). His main responsibilities were the faculty and curriculum. He has been involved in institutional and curricular studies at various institutions. For several years he served as coordinator of the Committee on Liberal Arts Education of the North Central Association, the largest of six regional accrediting associations, and for a year was administrator of the program.

Willard G. Wyman
Professor Wyman, son of the late Army General and Mrs. W. G. Wyman of Damariscotta, was born in Peking, China. He entered Colby as a transfer student from the U. S. Military Academy following service in the Marine Corps. He returned to his studies at Stanford in 1961 after working on a Montana ranch, conducting pack trips in the high Sierra, writing advertising copy in New York and teaching in California.
The 40-year-old Wyman earned his master's degree at Stanford in 1962 and a Ph.D. in 1969. He devoted his doctoral dissertation to American short story writer Wilbur Daniel Steele. He served as teaching assistant and instructor of English at Stanford and was associate dean of students for two years. During 1969-70, he was special assistant to President Kenneth S. Pitzer, who since has resigned. Now on a leave of absence, Wyman

Appointments

When a new semester begins in the fall, the college will have two new deans and three additional named professors.

Appointed by President Strider this spring were Paul G. Jenson, to dean of the faculty; Willard G.
Wyman '56, dean of students; Francis E. Parker,
Charles E. Dana Professor of Philosophy; and Mary
H. Marshall, Avalon Visiting Professor of English Literature for the semester. Carl J. Friedrich, Eaton
Professor of the Science of Government at Harvard, will teach "History of Western Political Thought" for the semester, also under the Avalon Foundation grant.
(See the winter Alumnus.)

The dean-elect of the faculty is vice president of academic affairs at Temple Buell College in Denver.
He will succeed Acting Dean R. Mark Benbow, pro-tessor of English, and join the faculty as professor of psychology.
ON THE PICTURES

Edwin Jay Roberts, a faculty member from 1909 to 1915, contributed more to the college and community than his competence in chemistry. He had a keen eye for the charm of the old campus and the pastoral beauty of its surroundings, plus uncommon photographic skill.

The photographs of commencement activities on these pages were made from some of his high-quality glass negatives. Nearly 100 of them were given to Colby by his son, John E. Roberts, professor of chemistry at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The Alumnus will use others from time to time.

Few amateurs had better command of their equipment in those days. "He was meticulous as becomes an analytical chemist in many habits," his son recalls. He developed, enlarged and printed his own work. Each negative is wrapped and inscribed with the precise time, location and date of the scene, and with all photographic data down to the chemicals used in development.

Roberts completed his Ph.D. degree, married and came to Waterville the same year to teach analytical, inorganic and elementary physical chemistry under the legendary Professor George Parmenter. "The Roberts were frequent chaperones at student dances and students were often visitors at their home," his son remembers. "He loved the outdoors, whether canoeing on rivers in Waterville or walking the shores of Lake Winnisquam in Laconia (N.H.)," where he spent much of his life. He left Colby for Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute: "... what a terrific change from the pleasant, unhurried surroundings of Waterville" where he "thoroughly enjoyed everything but the winters..." He took over a family fuel business in Laconia in 1918, but retained his interest in things scientific, books and wood-working. He died in 1968.

"Perhaps in the archives of the chemistry department at Colby there is a bottle of a beautiful pink powder labelled 'Neodymium Oxalate, E.J.R.' If so, I assure you that this is of the highest purity and many fond memories of Colby are contained therein," his son writes.
"Cheering the buildings," an old custom: alumni at Shannon Laboratory June 23, 1914

The famous R. B. Hall's band rests as Lora May Danforth, 1914, delivers the class day speech.

Commencement, June 23, 1914
The distaff procession leaving Recitation Hall, 1913

Marching to "last chapel," June 12, 1914
Singing the class ode,
June 24, 1913

Junior class day, 1914
Appointments
(continued from page 6)

has received a Ford Foundation grant to write an assessment of contemporary student radicalism and the management of a modern university.

Francis E. Parker
Purdue’s philosophy faculty has nearly doubled since Professor Parker’s appointment in 1966. Undergraduate majors tripled and graduate student enrollment increased from four to more than 30.

Parker taught at the University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore College and from 1954 to 1966, at Haverford College, where he was department chairman. He also was a visiting professor at Bryn Mawr College and Indiana University. Parker studied and did research in London and Rome last year during a sabbatical, and is a fellow of the American Council of Learned Societies. He is a former president of the Metaphysical Society of America and the Association for Realistic Philosophy.

Parker is the author of many articles and two books, Logic as a Human Interest (with Henry B. Veatch) and The Story of Western Philosophy. He is writing a book on the logic and metaphysics of knowledge.

Born to an American missionary family in Malaysia, he attended school in Indiana where his father taught religion at Evansville College. Now a university, Evansville awarded Parker an A.B. degree in 1941. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He received an M.A. from Indiana with a thesis in philosophical psychology, and a Ph. D. from Harvard where his thesis was entitled, “Identity of Percept and Object in Recent American Realism.”

Mary H. Marshall
Miss Marshall’s appointment to teach under an Avalon foundation grant affords her the opportunity to become familiar with the Mayflower Hill campus: she taught at Colby from 1935 to 1948.

She is a graduate of Vassar College and received her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale. Miss Marshall is the author of articles and reviews in journals on medieval, Elizabethan and modern drama. She received two Guggenheim Foundation research fellowships. Medieval drama has been her primary area of research.

She served as chairman of the committee which developed the honors program for the College of Liberal Arts at Syracuse.

Dormitory Living
(continued from page 5)

provisions for complaints and appeals, were adopted. Large units tended to choose some kind of representative method, while small ones generally adopted a “town meeting” form. A petition signed by a quarter of a unit’s residents can initiate a vote on any rule. A 75-per cent majority prevails.

A primary concern was privacy and security in women’s residences, especially because of past forays into the largest, Dana, by unwelcome and unruly visitors, a good number of whom had no connection with Colby. A watchman, formerly stationed at Roberts, now makes his headquarters at Dana, where locks were changed because so many “bootleg” keys were extant. Women’s units are locked at times varying from 10 p.m. on weekdays to 1:30 Sunday morning.

“Dormitory autonomy obviously places greater demands on individual character, exercise of good judgment and consideration for others,” said Associate Dean Doris L. Downing in a January report to the college rights and rules committee. “We hope that with acceptance of an increased voice in their own living arrangements, our students will also accept increased responsibility for their successful operation. There is a period of learning ahead — learning that ‘dorm autonomy’ is not synonymous with doing as one pleases and ignoring the rights of others.”

Asked to evaluate the first month of autonomy, Dean Downing said it was too early to judge “either the social or academic results — and the judicial systems are still untested.” Moreover, “each dormitory develops a character of its own.”

She said early feedback “makes me think that 24-hour visiting privileges have not turned out to be the Utopia some students anticipated. I wouldn’t be surprised next fall to see some dorms voting to limit visiting hours somewhat and to be more specific about quiet hours.”

Autonomy has changed the role of dormitory head residents and student assistants. Fewer rules mean less necessity for enforcement, but more judgment and discretion are demanded of head residents and assistants. Dean Downing emphasized the importance of choosing them with great care. “We will try to provide reasonable security measures for women’s residences, subject always to the cooperation of the students from within,” she added.

“We do believe we are making progress toward reconciling security needs with the increased independence of students.”
News of the Classes

50+

Dean Ernest C. Marriner '13
17 Winter Street
Waterville, Maine 04901

Before his recent death, Clark Chapman '09 became a member-emeritus of the Supreme Council, 33rd Degree Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. He had long been an active member. Clark had been prominent in Masonry since 1910, having served as past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Maine and past commander-in-chief of Maine. He was elevated to the 33rd degree in 1935.

Lewis Levine '16 has been honored by the Waterville YMCA. He received a plaque for his outstanding service to the city's youth. Lewis is a trustee of the public library.

Phyllis Sturdvant Sweetser '19 has retired after many years as librarian of the Prince Memorial Library at Cumberland Center. She is compiling a history of the town under the auspices of the Cumberland Historical Society.

We were saddened to learn of the death of Lena Penney Floyd '02 of New Sharon, who attended Colby from 1898 to 1900. She was a Waterville native and graduate of its high school. Mrs. Floyd had been a widow for 17 years. Her husband was a physician. She leaves two sons and a daughter.

The grandson of our oldest alumnus, the Rev. Albert Lorimer '96, is a Colby junior and is spending the spring semester in California at the University of Redlands under an exchange program. Craig Lorimer, a biology major, became interested in the majestic redwood trees and studied them under the direction of a Humboldt State College professor to satisfy his January independent study requirement at Colby. The Rev. Mr. Lorimer lives in a nursing home in South Portland.

1922

Vina Parent Adams (Mrs. Asa)
99 Forest Avenue
Orono, Maine 04473

Avis Barton Bixby enjoyed a tour of eight European countries last June. Next summer she plans to visit her daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Casey '48, in California. These retired folks do get around! . . . At a meeting of the Maine Rehabilitation Association at the University of Maine, Leonard Mayo was the featured speaker. Len has served as chairman of the President's Executive Committee on Employment of the Handicapped under Presidents Johnson and Nixon. He is professor of human development at Colby.

I was sorry to hear of the death of Robert Jackson in December. Bob ran a dairy farm and had been active in Waterville civic affairs. . . . Jerry Doyle of Portland is retired. He spends his winters in Bellaire, Fla., and attends the Colby St. Petersburg Club meetings. . . . Asa and I spent several weeks in Phoenix, Ariz. . . . Lorena Scott, retired in Long Branch. N. J., spent part of the summer in Maine. . . . Helen Raymond Macomber still carries on her insurance business in Ambler, Pa.

Plan now to attend our big reunion a year from June.

1923

Melva Mann Farnum (Mrs. Marlin)
Buckfield, Maine 04220

I was delighted to hear from S. Alton Ward for the first time. He retired in 1966 after working for Monsanto Chemical as a safety engineer. But he still serves as a consultant. His hobbies are gardening, bee-keeping and traveling. . . . Leonette Warburton Wishard still travels a good deal but her trips are confined to the United States. Bridgeport, Conn., is her home but she spends her summers at Epping, N. H. She welcomes friends. Leonette spent a month in Florida last fall and visited Ethel Harmon Barta '24 and Elizabeth Kellett Craven. . . . Louise Tilley is a loyal correspondent and encourages me with her warm praise of my news notes. Louise and Lorena Scott '22 enjoy exploring Maine, and they try to call on Colby friends. They saw Vera Moore '19, Louise Steele, Feneda Hawksley Boone and Gertrude Fletcher Lowery. . . . Ida Jones Smith writes that her daughter-in-law has been hospitalized for months because of tuberculosis but expected to be discharged in March. Then Ida would be relieved of the care of the grandchildren, Allan (4) and Frances (2). Ida planned to do a good deal of traveling during the spring and summer. . . . Velma Briggs Moore remained in her South Portland home after her husband's death, but often visits her two sons and their families. Velma's older son, Harold, has been promoted by his Pennsylvania-based construction company. Velma's younger son, Eugene, is head of a Sun Oil Co. oceanography laboratory at Dallas, Tex. . . . Vera Collins Lindsey and her husband, Edgar, have retired to Florida to be near their daughter and six grandchildren in Fernandina Beach. During Vera's 11 years of service in the Haverhill (Mass.) Public Library, she had been working on the history of the city during the Civil War. She hopes to return to Haverhill for the summer in order to finish her project. . . . Lucy Osgood Dean and her husband, Arthur, attended a luncheon to promote Colby. They enjoyed reunions with Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Pratt '21, and Dr. and Mrs. Libby Pulsifer '21. The Deans' daughter, Dorothy, and her missionary husband, Leighton Wiant, were under a 13-week curfew in Malaysia with soldiers quartered on the Methodist farm while they searched for Communists in the area. The Wiant children made many friends among the officers. When the troops left, Leighton received a plaque of appreciation from the Malaysian government for his cooperation. . . . Edythe Porter Dunstan followed through with Leslie's plan for their retirement. She is living in a Florida home on the lot he had purchased only a month before his death. Edythe writes movingly of the natural beauty, the gracious neighbors and the comfort of being surrounded by the things familiar and dear to Leslie and herself. . . . Thomas Callaghan and his wife would like to hear from any friends near their homes in Florida and in Williamson, Conn., where Tom still carries on a part-time real estate business. . . . It was a pleasure to hear at Christmas from several classmates and receive a picture of Anson and the second Mrs. Lowitz in their Cos Cob, Conn., home. . . . Elliot Chase enjoys retirement at his Skowhegan home and Lakewood camp summers. Elliot and his wife visit her sister in Florida in the winter and stop with relatives in North Carolina on the way back to Maine.

Helen Dresser McDonald was bereaved by the loss of her husband, William, last November. Her daughter and son-in-law, Lt. Col. and Mrs. (Ruth) David L. Roberts '55, took Helen back to the Panama Canal Zone to visit them. Helen returned to her Portland home in February. Spike and I enjoy ourselves here in Buckfield. At Christmas with six Nicolls, six Gilsons and granddaughter, Linda, there were 15 of us on hand for a memorable celebration.
A Broken Dream

A riches-to-rags period in the creative life of Holman F. Day '86 is recalled in the inaugural winter edition of a Maine film makers' journal, Reel World. As a successful writer, Day "spoke of the common man in the peculiar vernacular that is Down East," says Mildred Cole's article. "Yet, despite his propensity for recording the Maine character in its most common aspects, Day himself strove for uncommon things. Like a major motion picture company headquartered in Augusta. That was not a common thing."

The company functioned smoothly for about 18 months making 20-minute two-reel films with quality players, including a very young Mary Astor. Some outdoor scenes were filmed near the old Colby Campus in Waterville. But the 1921 depression hit just as "The Rider of the King Log," based on a successful Day book, was set for a $400,000 run through chains across the country. Everyone involved with Holman Day Productions, Inc., lost heavily. His "Clothes Make the Pirate" was made into a successful film later, but Day got little out of it since he had sold the rights to the production. He wrote Hollywood scenarios in the 20s with some success but eventually returned to the novel and short story. Day died in 1935. "He was an extremely popular writer... Had he developed a message in his works they might have had greater depth and thus have ranked higher on a literary scale," said Reel World. "But he preferred to entertain rather than to preach and so he is remembered today for his artistic portrayal of the common man."

The Maine Commission on the Arts and Humanities is gathering Day's film for the archives in Augusta.

---

1924

Anne Brownstone Prilutsky (Mrs. Nathan)
419 Cumberland Avenue, Apt. 32
Portland, Maine 04101

John Berry, chief urology surgeon in the Albany (N. Y.) Veterans Administration Hospital, has been promoted from associate to professor of surgery in the Albany Medical College. He traveled to Japan and Hong Kong last year to attend meetings, and to India, where he lectured before the Urological Society. He is trying to improve the operation named for him, "The Berry Procedure." ..

Cecilia Simpson Thyng, retired from teaching in Saugus, Mass., is living in China (Maine). Recent travels took her to Arizona, California, and Florida, where she called on Mary Whitten Garfield. .. Gren Vale and his wife are in their new home in Brookfield, Conn. He has the welcome mat out "to our Colby friends of all ages." Last Homecoming weekend Gren served as a member of the 50-year football team.

Frank Porter, part-time admissions counselor at Bentley College (Boston), plans to retire in June. .. Mildred Todd Weir, a retired teacher, attended a discussion group, "Joy in Retirement," led by "Spike" '23 and Melva (Mann '23) Farnum. Mildred lives in Gorham...

Lawrence Putnam retired from his medical practice in May. He was honored by the board and staff of the Holyoke (Mass.) Hospital at a dinner attended by many former patients. He joined the staff in 1930, and served as chief of obstetrics, president of the medical staff and chief of surgery... Mary Gordon Harvey and her husband sold their home in Fishing Creek, Md., and are living in Trappe, Md. They plan to move to Florida. .. Harry Greene is a gynecological oncologist (tumors) in Brooklyn, N. Y. He has a private practice and serves on oncology boards in five hospitals. He has been honored with the Sword of Hope Award by the American Cancer Society. .. Ervena Goodale Smith took care of an invalid sister this winter. But she did go to a garden club and to a camera club with Joe, who is "retired and enjoying it. He has his long-awaited darkroom. Joe saw Cranston Jordan and his wife recently.

Roland Payne has retired from the Algonquin Regional High School. He winters in Florida and enjoys short trips around New England during the summer. .. William McDonald is "really retired." His daughter was graduated from Colby in 1958, but he thinks his grandchildren might be headed for Bowdoin...

Dorothy Gordon retired from her work at the Ledgemere Kindergarten in Cape Elizabeth. She still lives there and last summer, visited Valley Forge and other historic spots. While camping, she was visited by a bear... Everett Marston, retired, does volunteer church work, works with the Boy Scouts, the South Shore Poverty Program, and adult education courses in the English novel. .. Joseph McGarry, another member of the 50-year football team, was a guest of the college at Homecoming. He will soon be a great-grandfather. .. Marion Brownly, a retired teacher of English at Northfield (Mass.) School, is living in New London, N. H. She is chairman of the human resources committee of the League of Women Voters and chairman of the Baptist Church Christian education committee. She and her husband go to Brattleboro, Vt., every week to sing at the Music Center.

Marion Drisko Tucker works with the Glastonbury (Conn.) History Society, the Veterans Hospital, the Hartford YWCA building commission and other organizations. .. George Nickerson, retired, has established a free employment service for senior citizens in the Waterville area. The federal government, Rotary Club and Episcopal Church are helping...

Ruth Fairbanks Burke lives with one of her sons in Gladstone, N. J., and works part time in an elementary school office. Ruth does volunteer work at Morrristown Memorial Hospital and has seven grandchildren.

---

1925

Doris Tozier Putnam (Mrs. Lawrence)
Box 128
Orr's Island, Maine 04066

Being a correspondent is pleasant. Besides learning more of what class members are doing, I receive a few personal notes. We seem to be a group of retired persons.

Mildred Otto Ashcroft owns and runs Crocket Guest House in Vineyard Haven, Mass. Eleatha Beane Littlefield is Wells High School librarian and cares for her 92-year-old mother. Eva Alley, retired from teaching Latin at South Portland High School, cares for her mother, who is 91. Oscar Benn gardens and fishes. With Carlton Bennett, it's fishing and golf. Kenneth Doe is moving from Franklin, Mass., to Kennebunkport. Marshall Gurney, retired Navy captain, is an aerospace consultant and owns a drive-in restaurant franchise in Temple City, Calif.

Nellie Pottle Hankins, retired from teaching at the University of Maine, is editing letters of James Boswell for publication in a Yale University edition. It's a writing family. Oxford University Press has published a book by her son and the firm plans to publish a book on Edmund Spencer by husband, John. . . . Earl Lyon is a swimming and diving official at Yale. Hollis Manning is living in Morgan, Vt. . . . Earl Merriman seems to hold the lead in the grandparent department with 12. Son, Richard '57, has been promoted to a division level job with the telephone company in Buffalo, N.Y.

Others who have retired include Mildred Briggs, Ralph Larrabee, John Laughton, Alice McDonald Mills, John Monroe, Flora Harriman Small, Ethel Childs Storer, Leota Schoff Wadleigh, Elliott Smith Weible, recovering from knee surgery, Ethel Littlefield Whittier, Francis Woodlock and Keith Wyemouth.

A belated report: it was learned that George Alec Bragdon died Sept. 22, 1969. George, a member of our class in 1921-1922, earned his degree and went on to become superintendent of schools in the Vinalhaven area and in Lincoln.

1926

Hilda M. Fife
21 Wentworth Street
Kittery, Maine 03904

Thanks to those of you who sent items. George and I are grateful for suggestions for the reunion (June 11-13). Keep 'em coming. We welcome all who were in '26, graduates and nongraduates.

We shall miss Steve Berry, Agnes Brouder, Roy Short, Roger Stinchfield, and Hope Chase Stinmeford, who died last year. Steve was our senior president. Agnes retired after 35 years of teaching in Methuen, Mass. Roy was a minister even in our college days. Roger was looking forward to our 45th. Hope died last fall. Claude cared for her at home during the years she suffered from multiple sclerosis. He has retired from Earlham College, but teaches an occasional course.

Agnes Osgood Blake and her husband spent the winter in Phoenix, enjoying the beauty of the desert and mountains. . . . Alpha Crosby Brown retired from the Dorchester (Mass.) Savings Bank, where she worked after her husband's death in 1956. She lives in Millinocket near two of her sons. . . . Marguerite Albert Cook and her husband live in Long Beach, Calif. Their daughter, Lois-Marie '52, is serving with Project Hope in Tunisia, where she is establishing a physical therapy school. . . . Clive Hall reached Florida last winter just in time to attend the "St. Pete" Colby Club. Sid Farr and President Strider were guests. . . . Evelyn Kellett spent last summer touring the Scandinavian countries. . . . Girlandine Priest Libby teaches math in Fairfield and lives on a farm in Clinton. At Christmas she went to Florida, and Alabama, where her son teaches at Tuskegee Institute. . . . Edith Grearson Phelan, ebullient as ever, writes of going skating and loving the challenge of teaching ancient history. "The kids are so great these days and know so much." Cheers, Duckie, and orchids to you! . . . Abbott Smith is retiring this spring as director of national estimates in the Central Intelligence Agency. He and his wife plan to move to Cape Cod and (he adds) "vegetate." Don't you believe it!

Carroll Tripp, director of youth work for the Vermont Church Council for many years, became pastor in 1966 of an integrated Baptist church in Trenton, N.J. He and Eva (Grant '29) went to London in October for a couple of weeks of music and theatre. One night they chatted with Dr. and Mrs. Bixler at intermission. When Dr. B. came to Colby, Al gave him his first lesson in conducting and is proud of his former student! Al was a symphony player-conductor, college professor, music education director in Trenton, N.J., and a member of Fred Waring's staff.

Madeline Woodworth is another who has recently joined the ranks of the retired. . . . Dr. Herbert Worman's avocation is the care and enjoyment of 200-acres on Prince Edward Island. He and his family spend the summer in a 150-year-old stone house there and rent another house to tourists. I need another 45 years for retirement activities. Besides my interest in town and state historical societies, I am becoming active in town affairs — the state sesquicentennial last summer and now the establishing of a Maine Room in the local library.

1928

Ruth E. Williams
University of Maine
Farmington, Maine 04938

Ava Barton lives in Belfast with a view of Penobscot Bay. She visits cousins for long vacations. Her son and his family are in Hawaii. . . . Rene Marcou can be proud of his wife, who completed three years at Wellesley and will get her degree in June from Boston College. He will retire in June from teaching but continue as director of the Space Data Research Laboratory. . . . A. Frank Stieglzer Jr. of Haverhill, N.H., is treasurer of the Woodsville Cottage Hospital expansion fund. It has raised $350,000 toward a $450,000 goal. He and Gertrude flew to Bermuda instead of to Florida for their annual March vacation.

. . . E. Richard Drummond, former Colby trustee, is a fellow of the college by virtue of membership on two trustees' committees — buildings and grounds, and investments. He has a new granddaughter, Andrea. Proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Drummond III '60. Dick endured the winter by anticipating play in his favorite summer golf tournaments. . . . Eva Page Hawkins, grand­mother of 12, is postmaster of St. George. She and her husband are planning a fall trip to California and a flight to Hawaii. . . . Edna Cohen Rapaport and husband, Jack, plan to take an extended vacation in Florida. He is recuperating from a heart attack.

. . . J. Claude Bouchard expects to travel to France, Spain and Portugal. He retired last year as chairman of foreign languages in the New Britain, Conn., secondary schools. . . . Grace Sylvester Ober, I'm sad to report, lost her husband, Stanley, last year. She is collecting bits of history of the area around her Woodland home. . . . Elwood Hammond plans to retire in the summer after practicing dentistry for 40 years. His son William is a chief petty officer with 17 years in the Navy. . . . Marion Day O'Donnell goes to New York to visit grandchildren each weekend from Simsbury, Conn., where she is English department coordinator in the high school. . . . Esther Parker Crosman enjoys the freedom to come and go as opportunities present themselves since her retirement from the General Electric Co.

Vera Day Young is readers' advisor in the Pawtucket, R.I., Library. She earned a master of library science degree from the state university. Esther plans to visit her daughter and family in Germany. Her son-in-law is an Army major.

. . . . John F. O'Brien attends State of Maine Club meetings with Colby friends at Pompano Beach. His home is in Deerfield Beach, Fla. John will be in New England for the summer.

Dorothy Sylvester Carman finds pleasure in the activities of the Deer Isle-Stonington Historical Society. . . . Charles Sansone of Dallas plans to visit Maine in June to renew Colby friendships. . . . Mona and Jack Erickson enjoyed a Caribbean cruise last winter and a summer tour of 11 European countries, including Scotland where their daughter and family live. Jack retired after 42 years in public education. . . . Curry College awarded Cecil Rose an honorary doctor of science of oratory degree last June and students there named him man of the year. Retired as dean of students, he serves as chaplain and financial aid coordinator. He and Helen plan to retire next year to a new home at Wareham, Mass., on Buzzards Bay. . . . Kenton MacCubrey's first grandson was born in January to daughter Louise and Geoffrey T. Robbins '65. Ken and Marion spent the winter in Mesa, Ariz. . . . Ruth McEvooy will retire in June from her job in Batavia, N.Y., and has no definite plans for the following year. . . . Edna Turckington toured Europe after her retirement. She visited Texas in December and moved on to Los Angeles, planning to return in March. Edna talks of a spring trip to Bermuda and a "wonderful retirement.

Claire Richardson MacDougall left for a six-week tour of Africa in February. Dakar, Ghana, Johannesburg, Cape-town and Victoria Falls were on her itinerary, along with a safari to Nairobi, Uganda and Ethiopia.

Peg Davis Farnham and Rod motored through 1,100 miles of Scottish Highlands last summer (right-hand drive!) during a trip to Europe. Peg still is an English instructor at Husson College, Bangor.

Adelaide Coombs planned to spend April in Rome.

1929

Jean M. Watson
67 Hawthorne Drive N.
New London, Conn. 06320

Teacher Grace Stone Allen and husband, Harold, retired last summer. He was post-master of Columbia Falls for 27 years. They are involved in church and community affairs and visit their son and family in Virginia. Their daughter teaches in Belfast. Alice J. Drisko Allen spent Christmas with Grace (Stone) and Harold Allen and the holidays with Flora Rideout Philbrook in Greensboro, Vt. Dick is enjoying his retirement and Alice is looking forward to hers next year.

Muriel Sanborn Armstrong sold her insurance business to one of her sons last year. She spent Christmas with another son and family in Rome, Italy. Muriel boasts of seven fine grandchildren. She spends her winters in Florida and promises to be at our 45th.

Everett W. Bell is active in Magons and taking life easy in Rockville, Conn.

Florence Young Bennett and husband, Franklin, retired after his 35 years as a downtown clergyman. They have moved to West Bridgewater Mass., to be near some of their family.

Neal D. Bousfield is in his 36th year of service with the Maine Sea Coast Missionary Society.

Charles A. Cowing is building fishing reefs off Mississippi in the Gulf of Mexico to improve sports fishing. He does volunteer work in Air-Sea Rescue.

G. Cecil Goddard is state director of the National Association of Independent Insurance Agents, president of the Waterville Osteopathic Hospital and chairman of Waterville Hospital Council. He has five grandchildren. We are glad that he got the message from his "nervous" heart attack and has resigned from all those other community activities.

Vinal Good's son, James, a senior at the University of Maine, is capturing many honors; member of Phi Kappa Phi, Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, and track captain. His daughter, Jeannette, back from a year of study at Sevenol Collegen in France, is a sophomore at U.M. . . . Nella Bucknam Hamilton basks in the sun in Aurburndale, Fla., but still loves to get back to Maine in summer. . . . Philip R. Higgins, an accounting supervisor in Springfield, Mass., has received a merit award from the Administrative Management Society along with Massonic honors. He is looking forward to retiring next year.

Martha Holt Hines' work with the Welfare League, hospital and church keep her busy in Peterboro, Ont. She and Karl have been battling the blizzards and below-zero temperatures, wishing they were at their new Florida condominium.

Gilman Hooper, vice president of a research corporation in Spartanburg, S. C., is chairman of the board of the Charles Lea Center for handicapped and emotionally disturbed children. He makes business trips to Europe and enjoys gardening and bird-watching.

Eleanor Butler Hutchins is in the Literacy Volunteer program at school and involved in many other civic projects. She and Bradford take winter trips and live in their cottage at Lake Memlonksee from June to October.

Ellen Hoyt Gillard of Willimantic, Conn., is a housewife and heads a summer camp for girls. Ellen and her husband took a winter trip to Jamaica. Their oldest daughter and grandson (aged four) are with them. A federal-aid education program headed by Charles Jordan will be phased out in June but he is "not for hire." He will enjoy his family, the beauty of Maine and travel occasionally.

Robert Lavigne turned his business over to his son and went to live in Orlando, Fla. His volunteer work keeps him busy. He travels, and summers in Westboro, Mass. . . . Chester Merrow, former dean of junior colleges in Maine and Vermont, also has had an outstanding political career representing New Hampshire's First District in Congress.

Besides being a lecturer, radio commentator and author (My Twenty Years in Congress), Chester has attended United Nations and UNESCO conferences abroad. He was a member of the National Advisory Council, and Congressional ad- viser to former Sec. of State Dean Ru$k and former Sec. of the Treasury Douglas Dillon. A long-time Republican, Chester will run as a Democrat in 1972.

Look in the March issue of the Colby Library Quarterly for Edwin Merry's comparison between the Cherryfield Barrens and Thomas Hardy's Egdon Heath. Ed retired to North Edgecomb in 1967 after a varied career that included teaching composition and poetry at the University of Maine in Portland, publication work at Wesleyan University, flying and teaching of aeronautics, and public school teaching in Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Ernest Miller, a senior bank vice president in New Milford, Conn., is chairman of the planning committee there and travels often. Ernest expects to retire this year.

Thalia Bates Savage planned to sell her Pennsylvania home and move to Marietta, Ga. She wonders if any "20ers" live nearby.

Nathaniel Sills is a motor products executive. Does volunteer work and travels a good deal.

Fred Sterns, a Skowhegan merchant, visited Israel. . . . Mark Shibles will retire as head of the University of Maine's College of Education in June and take a position as professor of education at Westfield (Mass.) College.

1931

Alice Linscott Roberts (Mrs. Wayne)
Box 188 — R. R. 2
Portland, Maine 04107

After 23 years of coaching baseball at Newton (Mass.) High School, Howard Ferguson has decided to make room for a younger man. "The day will come when you reach your 60s you begin to realize you don't have the zip that you had when you were younger." But the decision doesn't mean retirement for Howie, who compiled a phenomenal 334-117-7 record: he'll stay on as a teacher and assistant athletic director. His record includes a state championship in 1955, four Eastern Massachusetts titles and 14 trips to the state tournament. Howie began coaching at Hanover High School after graduation and joined the Newton staff as jayvee coach in 1934. Honored in 1969 by the American Association of College Coaches as high school coach of the year, Howie will continue as commissioner for basketball officials in the Bay State.

Faith and John Davidson are planning a trip to the Orient, New Zealand and Australia. John retired after 40 years in the electric utility business. They planned to be in Maine this spring but the time does not coincide with our reunion. Sorry . . . Eunice Foye Hutchins and husband come to their cottage at Onset, Mass., every summer. They recently returned from Florida. Enroute they saw Barbara Sherman Burger '32 and visited Williamsburg and Washington, D.C. In May they are going to California to visit their oldest. At reunion time they will probably be in Canada. The grandchild count is up to nine. . . . Loopy Mulligan Collins and husband started earlier than usual for Florida. John would like to retire but doctors are finding it difficult to close out their practices. . . . Another traveler to Asia will be Phyllis Fisher Gulliver. Last year Phyll broke her ankle twice. "Not being able to play golf hurt more than the break," she said. . . . Fran Page Egan is basking in the balmy south. Doris Spencer Wallis and I had dinner together. We thought that living near one another would bring us together more often. It doesn't seem to work out that way. How our tongues do wag when they get the opportunity! . . . Virgil Totman has been made a Knight of the York Cross of Honor. This honorary degree, highest in the York Rite of Freemasonry, is conferred on those who have held the highest office in each of the four bodies of the rite. Virgil is commander of the Grand Commandery of Maine this year. . . . Edward U. MacConnie will resign as principal of Seymour (Conn.) High School this summer. Ed has served the school system 40 years. . . . Dana Simmons is head of the department of education at Unity College. Dana has been principal of several high schools in Maine, most recently in Bangor. He will be a consultant to the Republic of Venezuela for the summer, assisting in the reorganization of secondary education. Rod Farnham is our reunion chairman. Let's make this a memorable one. Rod and Peg had a wonderful trip to Scotland, London, Paris and Amsterdam. Remember that June 12 is reunion night.

1932

Martha Johnston Hayward (Mrs. Bertrand) 3220 West Schoolhouse Lane Philadelphia, Pa. 19144

Much of the news seems to be of retirements — planned or in effect. Don Christie, former Gray superintendent of schools, stayed with the system as business manager. . . . After 40 years in education, Stan Clement, professional education division director at Bridgewater (Mass.) State College, will retire in the spring of 1972. Stan, former professor and high school principal, travels a lot and plans to visit the British Isles this summer. His daughter, a nun, is a teacher. . . . Warren Bice, production sales manager of a Waterbury, Conn., firm, is eager to retire. He has a married daughter, and a son who is vice president of a manufacturing concern. Warren has four grandchildren. . . . Tommy Grant, headmaster of Morristown (N. J.) School, plans to retire to Damariscotta-South Bristol in about three years. He is president of the Boarding School Headmasters' Association of the middle states. . . . Evelyn Johnson has been in social work for 28 years, the last eight in the Maine Department of Health and Welfare's Rockland district. She loves it and says nothing about retirement. . . . Frederick Knox is pastor of an Allston, Mass., Baptist Church. His daughter, Elizabeth Stodderd '55, and two married sons have nine children among them. Fred plans to retire in 1973. . . . Gwen Mardin Haynes is traveling after retirement from Trapp Academy (Kittery) — the Mediterranean, Caribbean, Orient, Canada, Europe. You name it! She has three sons and four grandchildren. . . . John DeMichele is math department chairman of the Newburgh (N. Y.) School District and town court judge in Cornwall, where he lives. John has two grandchildren.

Cy Perkins, physical education supervisor for the Bangor schools, is president of the Maine Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. He represented Maine at national conferences last year in New York, Washington and Boston, and went to Detroit and Philadelphia this spring. . . . Our peripatetic classmate Bern Porter, subject of a recent Colby Library Quarterly, is living and working in Rockland. His writings are housed in the libraries of Colby, Brown, Ricker (Houlton) and U.C.L.A. . . . Liane Rancourt Savage of Waterville teaches at Winslow High and has been medical records librarian at Seton Hospital for 20 years. . . . Everett Slocum is head of the history department at the Fessenden School (West Newton, Mass.) and the "reverse brain drain," lives in Cambridge, England, with his wife and Peter (9), Ashley Elizabeth (7) and Alexander (3). The grandparents visited Cambridge last summer. Peter Sr. manages the London office of a big American stock brokerage concern. . . . Bill Steinhoff, management analyst for the town of Oyster Bay, N.Y., planned to retire April 1. He has two sons, five grandchildren and a granddaughter.

. . . Gladys True Phelps lives in Springfield, Mass., with her artist husband. They have three sons and two grandchildren. Gladys' mother still lives in Oakland. . . . Bob Waite, industrial relations coordinator for Texas' U.S. Port of Port Mansfield, expects to retire in September, 1972. The Waite spend their winters in Texas where they visit with family, including four grandchildren; and spend the summer and fall in Maine. They have fished and hunted all the way from Alaska to the Bahamas.

. . . Maxwell Ward teaches at Lawrence High in Fairfield and lives in Clinton. After 39 years of teaching, he looks forward to the magic date — June 12. His son is getting a master's at U.C.L.A. Maxwell has a daughter and granddaughter in Turner. Phyllis Weston heads the math department in the new Skowhegan high school, center for surrounding towns. It's only fitting: now there's a Grossman's Lumber Co. outlet on the Oakland road not far from Colby. Nissie Grossman, former trustee and 1970 Colby Brick recipient, is chairman of the board of the lumber and accessories chain.

1934

Margaret Salmond Matheson (Mrs. Donald) Lakeview Drive China, Maine 04926

Francis Allen writes from Western Michigan University that after six years of planning, he has moved into his new physical sciences library. He's happy to be in this setting with a hard-working international staff including three Ethiopians, one Greek, an Indian, two black Americans and one white American. Frank is also proud of his older daughter, Denise, who will enter Western Michigan University next fall with the highest grant given to a freshman in the field of paper chemistry. . . . It was good to have Richard Kimball check in. In January he celebrated his 35th anniversary with The Employers' Commercial Union Companies. In his insurance work he travels from his home in Newton, Mass., to New York, where he works with the Multi-Line Insurance Rating Bureau. He also makes underwriting inspection visits around the country for his company. Dick writes that he would like very much to hear from a former freshman roommate and fraternity brother! And, Dick, when you are at your summer retreat at Sagadahoc Bay in Georgetown, why not visit Colby and your friends nearby? . . . U. S. District Attorney Peter Mills has made quite a successful recovery from the same type of hip surgery performed on Senator Margaret Chase Smith recently.

Barbara White Morse's best news is that on Oct. 27 she was in Winona, Minn., to welcome her first grandson, Mary Christina Preston. Daughter Sally's husband is campus minister at Winona State College. The response to Barbara's articles on low art tiles, published in Yankee and Spinning Wheel magazines, has been overwhelming. She has received 66 letters from 17 states. I am looking forward to a visit from "B. Z." the next time she travels to the University of Maine where her son, Curtis, is a professor. . . . Frances Ralph S. Williams '35, a trustee of many concerns in Maine, has been named to the executive committee of the Depositors Trust Co. Colby's administrative vice president, on his first sabbatical in 23 years at the college, has been a director of the bank since 1968. He is Herbert Wadsworth Professor of Business Administration and has held the administrative post since 1959.

Palmer enjoyed a bus tour from Salt Lake City to Yellowstone National Park last summer, and spent a week in Portland, Ore., as a Waltham Club delegate to the International Toastmistress Convention. Frannie is an associate member of the American Society of Dentistry for Children, and attended the convention of this group at the Sand's Hotel in Las Vegas. . . . Barbara Bridges Stinneford and her daughter, Sally, jumped the snow barrier and went to Nassau for a week in March. Barb asked if she could get any of the pictures that were taken at our last reunion. I tried to check on that with Carleton '33 and Louise Pierce Brown. But they were off to Florida. Lucky people!

1936

Kay Caswell Abbott (Mrs. Carroll) 21 Averill Terrace Waterville, Maine 04901

Laura Tolman Brown is school librarian and media specialist in the Schenectady, N. Y., school system, and faculty advisor for the yearbook. Laura and Carlton are members of the Schenectady Photo Society and are in charge of the overseas slide program. It provides slide pictures of Schenectady for students and church groups going overseas. Laura and Carlton have a 25-foot motor home in which they travel around the country. They plan to visit Maine this summer. . . .

Former Kennebec County Probate Judge Lewis I. Naiman of Augusta has been appointed a Superior Court judge. A former Kennebec County attorney, Lewis has been president of the county bar association.

Asa H. Roach has been elected to the board of directors of the First National Bank of Aroostook (Presque Isle office). He is a director and treasurer of the Houlton Water Company, past chairman of the Katahdin Area Council of Boy Scouts of America, former trustee of the Houlton School District and past president of the Aroostook Bar Association.

Eleanor "Billy" MacCarey Whitmore and husband, Alvin, have moved to Ellsworth, after 20 years in the Boston suburbs — from a Boston advertising agency to public relations and advertising in a local bank. They are delighted.

1939

Judith Quint Schreider (Mrs. Stanley) 23 Ballard Street Newton Centre, Mass. 02159

Dwight Sargent, speaking on Journalism Day at Wayne State University (Detroit), had some interesting comments on his life's work: "In attempting to be a community's conscience, a newspaper must be part preacher, part teacher, and part missionary. That is why I refer to journalism in the jet age as a calling rather than an occupation or a trade or an art. . . . Those who answer the call not only must be well-educated and well-motivated, . . . they must be inspired by journalism's opportunities to create a better society. . . . Like the ministry or the priesthood, it demands extra ounces of commitment." Dwight, a college trustee, is curator of the Nieman Foundation for Journalism at Harvard and former editorial page director for the New York Herald Tribune.

Wilson C. Piper, another trustee, was on a panel in Boston, for the Federal Tax Institute of New England in December. . . .

1944

Kay Howes Brooks and family have stopped roaming around the world and settled at Brandeis University (Waltham, Mass.) where Wendell is director of security. . . .

Arnold Grossman practices dentistry in Framingham, Mass. He is president of the Massachusetts chapter of the Academy of General Dentistry and will be executive secretary of a national scientific session next fall in Atlantic City, N. J. . . . Mildred Steenland Ellison continues as president of the Day Nursery Association of Scranton, Pa. Her daughter, Stephanie, has been cited as one of the outstanding high school students of English in the country. . . .

Warren McDougal has moved to Weston, Conn. His daughter, Marilyn '72, is taking her spring semester at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. . . .

Alex Anton, attorney and C.P.A. has had an accounting office in Portsmouth, N. H., for nine years. . . .

Janice Tappin Lowell served on the staff of a student leadership conference at the University of New Hampshire last summer. Janice reaches at Freeburg (Maine) Academy. . . .

Phil Nutting is president of Media-Rep Center, Inc., a magazine representative firm with headquarters in Boston. Phil has been busy in advertising circles in New England and has served as president of the Boston Ad Club and governor of the Lantern Club, the association of magazine people in the Boston area.

1947

Dorit Meyer Hawkes (Mrs. Richard) R.F.D. #1 Fairfield, Maine 04937

Thanks to those who returned their questionnaires. Those who haven't should remember there are other issues of the Alumnus.

Mae Hoyt Farrington, chief medical technologist at H. D. Goodall Hospital in Sanford, and her husband had a marvelous fall trip to Newfoundland. . . .
Elizabeth Hall Fitch is the proud mother of six, including one at Tufts and another at M.I.T. She isn’t too busy to be a first grade teacher in Concord, Mass., and she earned her M.Ed. from North-eastern in 1969. . . . A psychiatric case worker at Northampton State Hospital out-patient clinic, Barbara Longley gives her spare time to the church and civic work. . . . The Ray Greene family enjoyed Colby’s Winter Weekend. Ray is raising funds for a new YMCA in Needham, Mass. . . . Harold Joseph of Fairfield, owner of Joseph’s Clothing and Sporting Goods Store, has found time to serve as chairman of the school board. Colby solicitor on the last drive and a PAL director. He has three daughters, one married, one a senior at the University of Maine and an eighth grader. . . . A dozen roses for Dottie Cleaves Rodgers, who is a grandmother. Son, Scott, and his wife had a baby girl, Kristen Beth. Dottie works as head cook in a Belfast school. She enjoyed the Winter Weekend with Harriet and Dana Robinson.

Dr. Harold Kearney, youth education specialist at the University of Maine, is a director of the Law Enforcement Assistance and Planning Agency, the juvenile delinquency study for the state, and lectures on learning disabilities. He has written Directory of Youth Services in Maine, Let’s Explore Your Career, Directory of Educational Opportunities in Maine and Think Ahead. . . . Sylvia Gray Noyes is taking care of her four daughters and doing graduate work at the University of Maine. . . . Roberta Marden Alden is a substitute teacher. Her oldest son is a junior at Springfield College. . . . President A. R. “Bud” Schlesinger of the Naomi Knitting Mills, Zebulon, N. C., is vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, and director of the Raleigh Chamber Music Society, the Africana School of Arts and Zebulon Community Library. . . . The Rev. William Kershaw is director of student financial aid and employment at Gordon College and Gordon Divinity School in Wenham, Mass. . . . In the November election, Ted Russell was elected Kennebec County treasurer. . . . Teacher Mitchell Jaworski attended the Students Art League on his sabbatical in New York City. He has a daughter at Potsdam State Teacher’s College, another at Brattlecliff, a son in high school and a daughter in private business. . . . Charlotte Hanks Dumas and husband, Jim, who is assistant business manager at Gordon Military College, are planning a trip to Maine next year for our 25th reunion. Last year son, Jimmy, won a scholarship to Gordon Military High School. Charlie teaches science to eighth grade boys. . . . In sunny Florida, Irene Ferris Martin is a teacher of social studies in grades six through eight. Rene says the weather is great and ‘y all are welcome. . . . Dr. Donald Klein has been named medical director of Hillside Hospital, Glen Oaks, N. Y. He and his wife are establishing a child development clinic, concentrating on school phobia and childhood learning defects. . . . Marilyn Hubert, employed by the Department of Interior, is with the geologic names committee and lexicon unit. It checks maps and manuscripts to see that rock names and designations are used correctly, and codifies and records the official status of all geologic names. . . . Beverly Benner Cassara teaches at the Federal City College, Washington, D. C. Bev received her Ed.D. in 1970 from Boston University. . . . The Hawkes family is well. Dick still travels for Keyes Fibre and is in Australia at the moment. Our oldest daughter is at St. Lawrence University.

1948

Janet Gay Hawkins (Mrs. Herman) 22 Heights Road Plandome, N. Y. 11030

Notes of worth were few and far between this time around. But thanks to a few people, there is a column for the class. Biggest news is that Kay Weisman Jaffe has been listed in Who’s Who in Library Science and Who’s Who of American Women. Kay is assistant reference librarian at Boston College.

. . . Shirley Carrier Brown writes from Arizona that she received her M. A. in elementary education from Arizona State University in June. Another degree winner is Ann McAlary Hall who received her master of library service from the University of Maine in August.

Gene Hunter’s South Portland High School basketball team, a top contender among Maine’s largest schools in recent years, finally went all the way. His boys beat Presque Isle 53-55 in March to take the State Championship. Congratulations, Gene.

Three more classmates report that they have offspring at Colby. Ginny Hill Field’s son, Ted, is a freshman; the daughter of Barbara Lindsey and Robert (’47) Lucy, Sarah, is a junior as is Elaine Browning Townley’s son, Dudley. . . . Other ’48 children have been traveling abroad for their education. Phyllis O’Connel Murray’s son, Wendell, is an American Field Service scholarship student in Italy; Betty, daughter of Francis and Virginia Brewer Folino, is on an AFS award in Denmark; and Betty Coombs Cork’s daughter, Nancy, spent the summer in Brazil on a similar program.

Dorothy Worthly Cleaver’s daughter, Patty, is taking her junior year off from Smith and is studying at the University of Leicester in England. . . . Gil Taverner notes that he is still acting as dean of chapel, chaplain and assistant professor of religion at Simpson Col.

lege (Iowa) and becoming (almost) a midwesterner. . . . Last note: Charlie DeBovise mentioned that spring Colby get-together he instigated in New Jersey several years ago is growing and growing — people come from as far away as Maine.

1949

Jean Sheppard Silva (Mrs. Bernard) 33 Marla Lane Reading, Mass. 01867

News again from Dwight Erlick: still with the National Bureau of Standards in Washington, but he and Nancy have moved to larger quarters to accommodate their “best news ever”—a son, Benjamin. . . . Ray and Joan Rogers have moved to Connecticut. He is the new superintendent of Regional School District 7 (Barkhamsted, New Hartford, Norfolk and Colebrook). . . . Sid McKeen, after 20 years with the Worcester Telegram and Evening Gazette, has become assistant to the editor. Sid was editor of The New England Editor, published by the New England Society of Newspaper Editors, and is governor of the society. He also enjoys civic affairs in West Boylston, Mass.

Don Nicoll spends up to 12 hours a day in the office of U. S. Sen. Edmund Muskie. It seems his prime task is to put Muskie in the White House. . . . Guest speaker last fall at a meeting of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors was Charlie Pearce, president of the Quincy Savings Bank. . . . Dr. Thomas Pierce is now practicing in Pittsfield. This was quite a winter to move to Maine after 10 years in Florida (10 feet of snow)! . . . Bob Sage is in the news again. He very successfully headed the Annual Fund drive for Colby. Hear he is planning a new 20-story, 300-room hotel in Kenmore Square, Boston. . . . Apologies to Jean Maloof Naman, who was inadvertently omitted from the list of female ‘49ers who are members of the Merrimack Valley Colby Club. Jean plans tours for a travel agency and even tries them out. Last year it was a safari in Africa.

All for now. Keep the news coming!

1951

Charles and Joan Cammann McIntyre 27 Elm Street Marblehead, Mass. 01945

The Maine State Chamber of Commerce has elected Arnold Sturtevant president. Arnie is president of the Livermore Falls Trust Co. (Did any of you Maine residents see him on the television commercial for the bank?) He is a former president of the Maine Bankers Association, and a member of the town’s school and planning boards. Arnie and Leda (Whitney) have four children. In a letter to the Maine Publicity Bureau following his election to the state chamber, Arnie stressed the importance of promoting "our State of Maine as an unexcelled place in which to live and earn a living."

David Miller is an expert on a resource that some may be more precious than gold. He is a partner in Geraghty & Miller, Inc. (Port Washington, N. Y.), geologists with an international reputation for locating hidden supplies of fresh ground water needed to bolster the dwindling surface supply. About 97 percent of the earth's fresh water is under our feet; dig anywhere and you'll find some water. But quantity is the key to success for Dave's firm. Its accomplishments range from the domestic — increasing the water capacity of dwindling surface supply. About 97 percent of the earth's fresh water is under our feet; dig anywhere and you'll find some water. But quantity is the key to success for Dave's firm. Its accomplishments range from the domestic — increasing the water capacity of... winter people and often attend the Colby winter weekend with their family. They are living in Hampton, N. H. Jean Brewer Bridge and husband, Wally, are planning a spring trip to Spain. They live in Bangor with their two daughters, Debbie and Sandy.

Warning: A year from June is our 20th reunion! Let's start thinking about it now. The more who come back, the more fun we'll have.

1955

Ann Burnham Deering (Mrs. John)
27 Hedgerow Drive
Falmouth Foreside, Maine 04105

Nan Irons George has been appointed director of youth services in Ipswich, Mass. Nan was among the first to urge development of a center for teen-agers there. She has worked for several years with adults, young people and civic organizations to find both a location for the center and adults to supervise the activities. . . . Professor Ronald Francis was a guest last summer at the laboratory at the Photographie Institute of the Technische Hochschule in Zurich, Switzerland. . . . David Morin directed a summer workshop project at Contoocook Valley Regional High School, Peterborough, N.H. The project involved the latest adaptations of experiments with technology and media in education. . . . Sid Farr engineered another fabulous Family Weekend at the end of January. The '55 gang returned to enjoy skiing, skating, swimming, hockey and basketball games, tennis, a play for the children, a cocktail party at the Alumni House, a sumptuous dinner and cafeteria. They were Al Landau, Harriet Sears Fraser, Jane Millett Dornish, Dick and Jean Hawn Anderson, Ellie Small Hudson, Dino Sirakides, Sid and yours truly. . . . Dino is back East from California, in Roseland, N.J., following promotion to vice president for product engineering for the Monroe calculator division of Litton Industries in Orange, N.J. He had been with Litton's data systems division and with Hughes Aircraft on the Coast.

Let me hear the latest news from more of you. Those of you who are lucky enough to have teen-agers, send advice!

1958

Lynn D'Amico McKee (Mrs. Robert)
P. O. Box 2046
APO San Francisco, Calif. 96555

"The earthquake was interesting; wouldn't want it to become a habit," writes Caroline Hall from California. She's teaching in a new school and getting a lot of mileage from her free time skiing the Western areas, including Sun Valley and Mammoth. "They live up to their reputations." She spent last summer camping through Europe and spent a delightful month in Greece. She was in Hawaii for Easter and plans to get to Mexico this summer.

Clark Jones and family live in Monroe, N.C. He is eastern regional sales manager for the Craig Corp. (car stereos, tape recorders and radios). . . . Ginny George Landrey says the new baby was "quite a shock after 10 years!" Ginny's leisure time is spent "playing in the dirt" in a greenhouse full of orchids.

Stan Moger is one of three partners in a new company (one is Bob Frank '54) that specializes in media selection and arrangement. Stan collects old radio shows on tape and all the neighborhood kids are welcome at weekend movie matinees in the Moger cellar theater. "Aaron Schless in Connecticut finally got married," Stan reports.

Pam Jones Christie has been developing a program for deaf pre-schoolers in Richmond, Va., for three years. The private school was taken over as public this year. Pam has eight classes and hopes to add one a year. . . . Paul Swensen is life and financial services manager for Travelers Insurance in Bangor. He enjoys "the clean Maine air, the five-minute drive to the office, the ski slopes a half-hour away and the friendly people." . . . Al Dean has bought his partner's interest in a Volkswagen dealership. His hobby is flying planes — real and radio-controlled models. John and Marian Ludwig are also in the Leominster, Mass., area, and the two men have put in some flying time together. Quite a change for John after B-47s! George and Wendy (McWilliams '60) Denneen are in nearby Acton. Al ran into Bob Saltz on Boston's "Capital Hill" recently. . . . Sandy Doolittle Hunt is doing part-time psychiatric social work at a private Connecticut hospital and is on the board of a child guidance clinic. She completed an alcoholism seminar at the University of Hartford.

Janet Pratt Brown loves the pottery classes she has taken for two years at Carnegie Institute. Jan sees Helen Payson Seager occasionally. . . . Peter Bridge is dean of students at Champlain College, Burlington, Vt. He will complete his master's in guidance counseling at St. Michael's in June and start a doctoral program in September. . . . Joe Consolino is marketing director for Little, Brown & Co. The job sometimes takes him to Europe. He does everything from "signing contracts to taking back copies which never sold!"

Peter Doran is executive director of the Health Council of Maine, associate coordinator evaluating Maine's regional medical programs and president of the Waterville Area Alumni Association. "Enjoyed the Winter Weekend run by Sid Farr this year." . . . Helen Payson Seager and her husband have bought a vacation home on Nantucket Island. Helen, who addressed the Pittsburg Board of Education twice this fall, is with a group of teachers trying to bring the British "open classroom" concept to the city, is advocating repeal of the state's abortion law and working to improve the role of women in church affairs. . . . Mary Adams is secretary to the treasurer of the Experiment in International Living. She does volunteer work at a Bellows Falls, Vt., hospital and works with other civic groups. . . . Beryl Scott Glover and family have moved into a new home on 10 acres outside Chapel Hill, N.C.

Ann Wieland Spaeth makes time for skiing, tennis, hockey and lacrosse; teaches Sunday School, and sings in the choir. She saw Kate Knight Hall, who has moved to Winston-Salem. . . . John Baxter is coordinator of team teaching in an experimental elementary school program in Barrington, R.I., serves as critic teacher for a college teacher preparation program and is secretary-treasurer of the Rhode Island Colby Club. . . . Don Kennedy is a teaching fellow at Harvard and teaches in Weston, Mass. He will finish his doctoral course next year on sabbatical at Harvard. Don and Jean sail and snowshoe. They anticipate a February visit from the Ray Dows. Ray is district supervisor of adult social service and financial assistance for Maine Health and Welfare Department. Susan Bower Hendrickson and family are adjusting happily to their new home in Worthington, Ohio, with help from Jane and John Reisman of Columbus—a real joy being close to them.

Dave O'Brien has a new job as project administrator with the Natural Resources Council of Maine. His duties in the newly-created position will include supervising special projects and coordinating financial assistance for the state's environmental efforts. Dave is a member of the Alumni Council and the president's steering committee for the Plan for Colby. He served as an alternate member of the Yarmouth Planning Board and is a registered Maine guide. Dave is married and has four children.

I'm sorry to report that Sheila Tunnock Cox's husband, Leroy, died in January. Bill and Betty Cooper Cochran visited with Judy Merrill and Bob '56 Erb in Ramsey, N. J., Thanksgiving night—caught up on all the years, and all our children got acquainted.

Peggy Fox Hutchinson is president of the Lexington, Mass., preschool PTA, and is working on a major fund raising project. Cindy Fox Goffin received her second “Oak Leaf Duster” for another term as coordinator for family services, an Air Force volunteer group in northern Maine with the motto, “The Air Force takes care of its own.” Ann Willcox Cagle's marriage added three step-children to her life. The family owns an old farmhouse. A Tennessee walking horse, a stray dog, two canaries are “additions to an already large menagerie.” Ann completed her education at Guilford College, Greensboro, N. C., with a B.S. in math. Another sad item: Janice Klem Hansen's husband died in March 1970, before the birth of their daughter. She lives in Worcester, Mass., and is working on a master's in education.

Jerry Wolper, with the National Labor Relations Board, is teaching and enjoying a course in labor-management relations at Northeastern's Weymouth, Mass., campus. Jerry is “still trying to learn to ski.” Gary Poor says life at Clark University has its rewards—a forthcoming trip to Puerto Rico and South America. The Poors are building a bigger house, which they swore they wouldn't do again. But they must have regained their strength.

Maggie Smith Henry has two children under two years of age. Eventually she hopes to travel and ski not just look at her sewing machine. Her husband is chairman of the high school science department in Levittown (Pa.). Ronny Moran, listed in the 1970 edition of Personalities of the South, will have his second book of poetry, Narrowing the Base, published by Windfall Press.
Katherine White Keffer (Mrs. John)
5866 Bartlett Street
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15217

The class is involved in some interesting, worthwhile and fun activities. The watchword is diversity. Jo Deans and George Auchincloss are in Loudonville, N. Y., near Albany. George changed from life insurance to securities. Jo will start work July 1 at the Emma Willard School in Troy, N. Y., as director of public information. Martin Turpie has become a partner in a Springfield, Mass., law firm. Also in Springfield, Todd Marchant is assistant vice president of Valley Bank and Trust Co.

Joanne Price Rockett is a social and personal secretary in New York and looks forward to the birth of her first child this summer. Peter Van Alyea is a sales manager for American Oil Co. in Chicago. For the past couple of years Jim Haidas has been managing one of the public mutual funds of a management and research concern. In April he joins a firm on the New York Stock Exchange. He's still single and living in New York. Life in Lake Oswego, Ore., sounds pleasant for Karen Kennedy Yearsley, her husband and four children. He is an oceanographer for the federal environmental agency and they are very interested in conservation, water pollution and other environmental problems. She's taking oil painting classes, hiking and mountain climbing in the Cascades. Last June, David '59 and Dottie Baldrige Lawrence adopted a girl to join their other three children. In August they moved to Bloomfield, Conn. David has the Connecticut territory as sales representative for McGraw-Hill. Carol Seaman McFarland is busy with her two children in Binghamton, N. Y. Her husband recently passed the state architectural exams. Dick Walton is teaching undergraduate library courses at Norwich (Conn.) Community College, and really likes being back in the college environment. Bob Otis is plant personnel manager for Interpace Corp., Wharton, N. J. In Franklin, N. H., Pierce Burgess is vice president and general manager of Radio Station WFTN. He owns a one-third interest. He was elected to the Franklin city council last November.

Roger Dumas, promoted to vice president of Marine Midland Bank of New York, is assigned to the northeast district of the bank’s national division. Roger, an assistant vice president since 1969, earned an M.B.A. degree from New York University. He lives with his wife and child in Rockville Centre, N. Y. Peter Doyle is at Eaglebrook School, Deerfield, Mass., teaching science in grades five to eight.

Bev Jackson

Glockler is president of the Presbyterian Cooperative Nursery in Princeton, N. J., the largest in the county. To relax she sews, mainly for their two little girls. Her husband, Tony ’57, is with the Educational Testing Service working on a law school admissions project. Warren Biers is a political science teacher at Bothell (Wash.) High School, a climbing instructor for the University of Washington and a volunteer ski patrolman. This summer he will lead an expedition to Peru to scale the 20,000-foot south face of Chacraraju. In Boston, Bob Jordan is with a law firm and serves as public administrator of Suffolk County.

Peter Shays lives in Sharon, Mass., with his wife and two daughters. He started with the Christian Science Monitor as a reporter and is assistant promotions manager. Louise Robb Goldschmidt is busy with the League of Women Voters, Unitarian Fellowship and the cooperative school. Her husband, Art, is an assistant professor at Penn State. So she has enrolled as a part-time student. Gail Carter Ferguson came east last July from Riverside, Calif., to Troy, N. Y., where her husband is at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute as a visiting associate professor. This summer, Gail, Barry and their three children will go to Nancy, France, for a year on Barry’s sabbatical. Peggy Jack Johnston is in the Philippine Islands where her husband is stationed with the Air Force. She is president of the Hospital Wives Club, learning golf and working informally to improve race relations at Clark Air Force Base. They have traveled all over the Far East. In August they return to Denver, Colo.

Alison Hill Schueneman is an IBM systems engineer, and enjoying Marietta, Ga. She and her husband have a new home and play a lot of golf. Janene Rideout Carr is in San Francisco. She has a part-time job teaching math at Foothill College. All tanned from a Florida winter, Debbie Wilson Bullen runs her dressmaking business on a limited scale and is secretary to the president of a Watertown, Mass., plastics and adhesives firm. Jane Wiggins Wilbur and Allen have had leads in several plays produced in the West Lafayette, Ind., area. They got caught in a blizzard after sliding into a ditch on their way to a skiing weekend but managed to do some skiing at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Your correspondent is working for a market research concern in Pittsburgh. I've managed to organize a group of volunteers to help recycle paper, and served as vice president of the Carnegie-Mellon Business School wives' club. My husband will get his M.S. in May. We will move but aren't sure where yet. I really enjoyed hearing from classmates.

1961

Grace Hall Studley (Mrs. John)
68 Walton Park
Melrose, Mass. 02176

News seems to be at a premium this spring. But I hope that we will be seeing many of you at our 10th reunion and catch up on the latest.

Bruce Turner, director of personnel with Converse Rubber Co. (Malden, Mass.), has been appointed regional vice president and member of the board of directors of the American Society for Personnel Administration for 1971. Bruce also serves as a member of the personnel board for the town of Winchester where he lives, and is president of the New England Society for Personnel Management. Ed Ruscelli is director of guidance at Holliston (Mass.) High School. Ed also is a member of the Massachusetts School Counselors’ Association, the South Shore Men's Guidance Association, a committee member of the American School Counselors’ Association and of the Massachusetts Teachers Association. The Rev. William Byers, at All Saints Episcopal Church in Winchester, Mass., for four years, is leaving the ministry. Bill plans to go into business in Winchester.

Dave Marr has joined the Hartford, Conn., law firm of Day, Berry and Howard as an associate. While working for his J.D. degree at the University of Connecticut, Dave served as editor-in-chief of the law review. The Rev. Michael Wilcox is a chaplain at the University of Connecticut in Storrs. Dave Tourangeau has joined Union Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Portland as equities investments manager in the financial management division.

Dave Bustin, successful Democratic candidate for one of Augusta's three House seats, is assistant executive secretary of the Maine Teachers Association. He had taught at Lincoln Junior High School in Portland. Dave is president of the Kennebec Valley Community Action Program and the Farrington PTA, vice president of the Augusta Central Council of PTA and of the National Education Professional Staff Organization. He is also a member of the advisory committee on Teacher Education, the Jaycees and the Augusta Regional Church Housing Corporation.

Bill Wooldredge has advanced to treasurer with the Insurance Company of North America.

1963

Susan Ferries Vogt (Mrs. Peter)
6509 76th Street
Cabin John, Md. 20731

Did anyone see "Neil" Butler on the Today show in October? He discus-
This column draws on about half the questionnaires returned, which show a trend toward settling down. Joy Reinnell Adams teaches social science in Glastonbury, Conn. . . . Britt Carlson Anderson is working on a J.D. degree at the University of Denver. . . . Pete Anderson got an M.S. in education at the University of Pennsylvania. He teaches in Concord, N. H. . . . John Archambault received his master's in taxation laws. He practices in Norwich, Conn. . . . Beth Peo Armstrong announces adoption of newborn Melissa Brownell. . . . Dick and Bonnie Aube and their two sons live in Stamford, Conn. . . . Joe Bethesda is assistant in financial analysis job with IBM in Harrison, N. Y. . . . The Wes Barbour (Chris Austin '68) are in England for his last year in the Air Force. . . . Bruce Barker was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for meritorious service in Vietnam. Bruce, Margaret and their son live in Sumpter, N. C. . . . Jane Hunter Bates and her husband moved to Valparaiso (Ind.) University where she studies engineering. They have bought a home and are expecting their first child. . . . Chip Birlem is financial control manager for Sylvania in Smithfield, N. C. . . . Jim Bither is selling government bonds in Boston. . . . Pam Borst Bland is working on a nursing education master's at Syracuse. . . . Pete Blumenthal completed his Air Force enlistment. . . . Tom Boghosian is assistant professor of English at Atlantic Community College, Mays Landing, N. J. . . . Jan Brooks is back in Seattle working on a Ph.D. in French after a trip to Europe. . . . Ed Burrell is a Union Carbide auditor for Colgate-Palmolive. lives with his wife in Jersey City. . . . Debbie Chase Canavan is in San Antonio, where her husband, Neil, is completing his M.S.W. degree. John Carvelas and Betty Savicki '68 moved to Syracuse where he is a graduate fellow in economics. . . . Cathy Fitzgerald Christiano completed her M.A. at Worcester State College. Husband, Joe, expects to receive his doctorate in chemistry soon. . . . Kay McGee Christie and Walt, in Ann Arbor, Mich., are enjoying their first child, Robert. . . . Teaching at Westminster School in Simsbury, Conn., is Terry Clark. He coaches football, hockey and baseball.
eager to move into their first house in Tustin, Calif. Soon, David (2), will be joined by a new brother or sister. Another pair of homeowners are the Joseph Connollys (Ginny Grelotti). John and Marilyn Cookson have a new son, Jeffrey. John is an accountant in Boston. Jan Jolicoeur Cote resides in Cherry Hill, N. J. After an archaeological tour of Italy, Jean Craig returned to her job as catalog librarian at the University of Pennsylvania. Pat Berg Currier is an analyst for the Department of Defense at Ft. Meade, Md. Bob Davis is interning at the Cincinnati General Hospital. Martha DeCou, roared down the Colorado River in a rubber raft last summer. She enjoys teaching at Coronado High School in Colorado Springs. Couie is pursuing an M.A. in English at Middlebury (Vt.) College. Also teaching is Gerry Davies DeGeorge in Roxbury, Mass. Pete Densen is an intern at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. His Ellie (Eichmann '67) is working for public relations at the same hospital. Pete reports the Rick and Stephanie (Burton '67) Zimmermans and their son have moved to Mahwah, N. J. Ed Derderian will receive his Ph.D. from Penn State soon. Vinnie DeRosa transferred to the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey at Newark. So he has extended his time before he will receive his M.D. Kate Hollinshead Dixon and her husband, Jonathan, have moved to San Francisco for two years while Jon fulfills his internship and residency requirements at the University of California (San Francisco) Hospital. Kate is teaching eighth grade at the Pacific Heights School, and Martin have a daughter, Beth. Vinnie DeRosa is a graduate student at the University of Michigan. Judy David Floyd. A chemist for DuPont, Roger Hess (with wife, Nancy, and daughter, Jennifer) has moved to Flint, Mich., where he will work on automotive paints. Tom Hodsdon worked on New York Governor Rockefeller's fall campaign. Charles Houghton and his wife, Liz Drinkwine '68, have twins, Lou Friedler is a teaching assistant in mathematics at the University of Alberta. In August he married Sharon Eschenbeck '69. Bill Doll is in Cleveland studying for a Ph.D. in sociology. Lynne Seidenstuecker Gall is teaching second grade in Augusta and working on her M.A.T. at the University of Maine in Farmington. Anne Ruggles Gere is a lecturer in English at the University of Michigan. Tony and Jean (Grindell '67) Giles have moved to Durham, N. H., where Tony is professor of speech pathology and audiology at U. N. H. Dick and Sandra Gilmore and two sons have moved to Manchester, Mass., where Dick is an attorney. Carol Rodgers Good is working with the Madison County Association for Retarded Children and the Youth Development Council in Richmond, Ky., and continuing her social work for the Bureau of Public Assistance. Husband, Max, completed his master's degree. He teaches and coaches basketball. Pete Grabosky is doing graduate work in political science at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. Skip and Barry (Clark) Harrington are living in Wells, where Skip's law firm has opened a branch office. A chemist for DuPont, Roger Hess (with wife, Nancy, and daughter, Jennifer) has moved to Flint, Mich., where he will work on automotive paints. Tom Hodsdon worked on New York Governor Rockefeller's fall campaign.

Sinking Roots: Helping People

Tom Reif '65, a native of New York City, learned to love the Maine Coast while at Colby. Now he's back on the coast, happily committed to his work as a clinical psychologist and sinking roots. Tom and his wife, Ellen (Mitchell '65), bought 100 acres in East Sullivan near Bar Harbor and are building a house. Since graduation, Tom has studied at Michigan State, worked at the South Shore Mental Health Association (Quincy, Mass.), and received his doctorate in December. He works out of the Ellsworth Counseling Center and visits the Bar Harbor Mental Health Center once a week. "I try to help kids be happier with themselves. But how can I, with my one hour's visit a week, be more important to the child than the people he lives with? So I work with the whole family. One aspect of the job is to keep people out of the mental hospital. We try to focus on people with serious problems and on preventing those problems from developing with family life and mental health education." Tom finds that depression is a common problem with residents of small communities. "People are sometimes depressed with themselves and unhappy in their situations. They often need to talk things out to understand what they want for themselves. Eventually I hope to work with groups of teachers and help them deal more effectively with their students. "I really like this area. I intend to live here, raise a family and stay here."

Pete Fellows is assistant news bureau director at Rochester Institute of Technology. He is working on an M.A. at Syracuse. John Field is an assistant treasurer for the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. in New York City. Finnie Finkelstein is assistant director for the Institute of Human Sciences at Boston College. Claudia (Fugere) Finkelstein and Martin have a new daughter, Beth. An assistant professor at Brock University, St. Catharines, Ont., is Jean Jacques Flint. Other new parents are Carl and Judi David Floyd. He is a physicist at the Navy Underwater Systems Center, New London, Conn.
Katharine and Geoffrey. "Toad," a meteorologist for WNYT-TV in Syracuse, has been elected to the American Meteorological Society. Sue Footer Hummer extends a Nigerian welcome to any new mother, but teaches for the Ministry of Education in Zaria (North-Central state). She is in charge of the library and heads the English department.

Birdie Tracy Hye and Allen are enjoying their two years in Denmark. Allen, with a Fulbright Scholarship and Marshall, is now a Memorial Fellowship, has been completing his dissertation—a comparison of modern German and Danish theater. Birdie’s dissertation is on the modern German novel. She has one year of course work left at the University of Connecticut. The birth of Courtney Anne in November temporarily slowed their tourist activities. . . . Bill and Ruth (Loker) Ingham are remodeling their Seattle home. Bill is a fine arts graduate student at the University of Washington. Linda Johnson is working on a master’s in social work at Smith College. She spends three summers at Smith and has two-nine-month field placements. Her first is with the Family and Children’s Society, Annapolis, Md. Judy Jones is a mathematician with the Department of Defense in Ft. Meade, Md. . . . Jauna Vaughan Kasarjian and husband, Ken, vacationed in Bermuda in August. Ken is a sales representative for the Xerox New Haven office. Daughter, Kendall, is three. . . . Doug and Beth (Adams) Keene returned from 27 months in the Orient. A foreign service officer, Doug is studying Polish at the Foreign Service Institute in preparation for three years in Warsaw. Son, Garrett (5) and Sterling (3), will be multilingual. . . . Bayard Kennett is assistant treasurer at the Bankers Trust Co. in New York City. . . . Barry Kierman received his dental degree from Tufts. Between trips to Europe, Barry is practicing in Boston’s suburbs. . . . Gary Knight is a loan officer for the Liverpool Trust Co. He finds time for book club meetings and civic activities and to be home with Lynn (Longfellow ’65) and Kathryn Ann (2). . . . Terry Saunders Lane received an M.S.S. from Bryn Mawr and is a social planner for a Philadelphia transportation study. . . . Pete and Diane (Fioto) Lardieri reside in Atlantic Highlands, N. J., where Pete is mathematics department chairman at Henry Hudson Regional High School. . . . Bill Latvis will receive his M.B.A. from U. N. H. in June. He and Cathy (Cyr ’69), live in Dover, N. H. . . . Another recent graduate of Tufts Dental School is Peter Lax. Peter is a Navy dentist in Portsmouth, Va. . . . Engaged in a Ph.D. program in sociology at U. N. H. is Craig Little. . . . Kathy Beebe Lundberg is children’s librarian at the Bronxville (N. Y.) Public Library. . . . Dennis Maguire is an attorney in the mortgage and escrow division of John Hancock Life in Boston. Dennis and his wife Paula (Hayden) live in Marblehead. . . . Margie Malcolm is a United Nations conference officer in New York City. . . . Ardith Maney is an instructor in political science at the University of Maine, Portland-Gorham. Ardith worked for the New York City Department of Consumer Affairs and Bess Myerson Grant last summer. . . . Sal Manforetti represents an investments firm in Providence, R. I. Sal and Malvina welcomed a daughter this year. Tracy. . . . The Charles McDowell’s (Louise Refurn) and their six-month-old son, Charles, reside in Scott Plains, N. J. . . . First Lt. Gary McKinstry is executive officer in the Armed Forces Examination and Entrance Station, Spokane, Wash. Gary is active in the Theatre Arts Group at Fairchild AFB. . . . Charlie McLennan is a major appliances buyer for Corning Glass Works. Charlie and Andy (Marshall ’68) settled into their new home before the arrival of their second child. . . . After a year in San Francisco, Paula McNamara returned to Manchester, Conn. She works in Hartford as assistant editor in the public relations department of Aetna Life & Casualty. . . . Sue Mahoney Michael and Laurie Lewin Simms ’67 are sharing winter quarters at Aspen, Colo. Sue completed her M.A. at Columbia University Teachers College in August. . . . Ross Moubian, grading accessories specialist for Norton Co. of Worcester, Mass., is an avid photographer, especially on camping trips. . . . Harrison Monk, with his wife, Linda LaMonica ’67 and daughter, lives in Pasadena, Md., where he is a doctor in a veterinary hospital. . . . Janet Morse Morneau teaches ninth grade English in Waltham, Mass., while husband Charlie ’65 pursues a law degree at Boston College. . . . A graduate of the University of Vermont Medical School, Jeff Morse is an intern at the Maine Medical Center in Portland. . . . Ed Mowry is a pilot with the Marines in Santa Anna, Calif. . . . Frank Musche, a graduate of Tufts Medical School, is an intern at Rhode Island Hospital (Providence). . . . Sally Leighton Niblock is wife, mother (Teddy, 15 months) and an M.A. candidate at the University of Rhode Island. Husband, Ned, is working on his M.B.A. at Harvard. The Niblocks live in Newton, Mass. . . . Andy Bear Nicholas, husband, Darryl, and two daughters live in Marysville, N. B. Darryl works for the Union of New Brunswick Indian Bands in education and aboriginal rights. Mr. and Mrs. Baby Mark joined the John O’Connor (’65) family (Gretchen Wollam) this year, at Harvard. . . . After a year in Saigon and Thailand, Dick Osborne is living in Falls Church, Va., and is assigned to Air Force Headquarters. . . . Karl Ogendon was discharged from the Air Force in January after serving in Vietnam. . . . John and Linda (Brooks ’68) Perkins have purchased property in Kent, Conn. John is a math instructor and ski coach at Kent School. . . . Linda Mitchell Potter is busy caring for two pre-school sons, with her activities as director in the League of Women Voters, garden club and financial drives for the Cancer Society. . . . Lee ’67 is going to night school at Northeastern for his chartered life underwriter degree. . . .

Phil “Butch” Proulx is an Air Force captain assigned to Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico. Phil is a B-52 radar navigator (bombadier). . . . Charlie and Jane Farsham Rabeni have moved from Turkey to Pocatello, Idaho. Charlie is working on an M.S. in biology at Idaho State University. Janie is working in the engineering department of the Telephone Co. . . . Joanne Richmond is director of education for the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society in Wilmington. . . . Fred Richter, a graduate of Rutgers Law School, is a field claim representative with State Farm Insurance Co. in Ithaca. N. Y. . . . Jennie Michener Riddell and son, David (3), welcomed Matt (’65) home in November after another temporary tour in Southeast Asia. Matt is stationed at Blytheville (Ark.) AFB. . . . Bill Ryne is a stock broker in Burlington, Mass. . . . Marty Watson Schulte is a fellowship graduate student in sociology at Northeastern. Marty, husband, Larry ’64, and David ’81 and Margo (2) reside in West Newton. Mass., is home in the Brian Shacters (Ruth Kelleher) and David (3). Ruth is a part-time assistant in a private nursery school. Brian is a special education teacher at Westborough High School. . . . Brad and Sara Jane (Simmon ’68) Simcock are in Japan for a year while Brad pursues thesis research for his doctoral studies at Harvard. . . . Busy remodeling an older home are the Jerome Skubas (Maxine Etscovit). Jerome is chairman of the foundations program at the school of library science of the University of Illinois. Nancy Johnson Smith continues her pre-doctoral work at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. . . . Chuck Soule is field representative for the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia. He is an instructor of defensive driving and works part-time selling foreign cars. . . . Sue Rumsey Strong completed her baccalaureate work at the University of Wisconsin where she graduated Phi Beta Kappa. Sue is a cataloger in the library at State University College (Potsdam, N. Y.) and mother of two. Husband Paul ’64 teaches English literature at Clarkson College in Potsdam. . . Lois Rudolph Szostak combines her new maternal obligations with her job as associate systems engineer at IBM in New York City. . . Gayle Pollard Talbot has two daughters, Julie (2) and Janet (six months). . . John Tara serves Plymouth County (Mass.) as public defender.

Ellie Caiko Thompson and her two children are enjoying life in Vicenza, Italy, while John completes his military duties. . . Al and Janet Meyer Throop, spent a month on the east coast visiting friends, relatives and Colby. Then they took a freighter to Australia via the Panama Canal and New Zealand. Al is a geologist and expects to be transferred to Tasmania. . . Teaching Spanish at Ellen Cushing Junior College, Bryn Mawr, Pa., is Sue Turner. She spent the summer studying Portuguese at the University of New Mexico. . . Dede (Wilson) and Gerry Van Atta moved to San Francisco. Gerry has accepted a position with the Bank of America. . . John Vermillion is employed by Texaco’s New Orleans division. He and Ann Marie have a year-old son, Brian. John earned his law degree at the University of Kansas. In Grosse Pointe, Mich. Glenda Gerrie Walker is active in church activities and as mother to Donald (3). . . Heidi Fullerton Warburton says motherhood (Shelley, 18 months) leaves her time for art classes, sewing, cooking and the women’s auxiliary at the Hunterdon Medical Society (Flemington, N. J.), where husband, Woody, is a resident in family medicine. Diane Burr Ward and husband, Mike ‘65, are redecorating their new house in East Falmouth, Mass. Diane is secretary to the town’s finance commission and personnel board. . . Elizabeth Hernberg Went is a social worker for the Catholic Family Service in Hartford. . . Back in school after a tour of duty in the Navy, Eric Werner is doing graduate work in business administration at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. . . Mary Sue Hilton Weeks is secretary to the director of nursing at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston. . . Connie Day Weygant is manuscript editor for Ginn Collegiate Division in Waltham, Mass. . . John and Mary (Walker ’69) Wheeler bought a house on Avelline Terrace, Waterville. John is a computer programmer for Keyes Fibre Co. . . Meg Fallon Wheeler has two active children, Seth (4) and Sarah (1), to keep her busy. . . Besides working on a master’s degree in English at Assumption College and raising their daughter (Jennifer), Christie (Higgibottom) and Olney White (’64) are restoring a 200-year old house in Rochdale, Mass. . . Diane Leach Wilbur’s husband, David, is back from a year’s tour in Japan with the Marines.

Diane, who works as an accountant at Monsanto Co. in Anaheim, spent December in Japan. . . Phil Wiley is a physicist for Bedford (Mass.) Engineering. Phil and his wife, Brenda; daughter, Wendy (5); and son, Michael (2), live in Acton. . . Geoff Williams is working toward his doctorate at the University of Illinois in Champaign. . . Sue Leach Winch is a member of the Portland League of Women Voters, but her heart belongs to year-old Jennifer. . . Peter Winstanley is functional review manager for Trans World Airlines in New York City. . . David Winters is regional counsel for the Internal Revenue Service in New York City. . . Judy Igersheimer Wisentanner and husband, David, have moved to Los Angeles. . . Ann McCarthy Wong moved to New York City. . . While in Memphis, Tenn., working in labor relations for Kimberly-Clark Corp., Jeff Wright is working for an M.B.A. at Memphis State University. . . Natalie Bowser Zaremba is working for a master of education in speech pathology at Boston University. Natalie and Frank (’64) have a year-old daughter, Karen. . . After their wedding in Brescia, Italy, Sue Stout and Giorgio Zecchini returned to Akron, Ohio. Sue is a part-time teacher and studying for an M.A. in history at the University of Akron. . . Bonnie Zimmermann Henricksen has two active children and a busy husband, Clifford, who is very creative: his latest project is seeking a contact for his rock group, “Marbleheart.” . . Carol Bresler received a B.A. in French from N. Y. U. and is working on her doctorate.

1967

Susan D. Wood
70 Barnett — 7 Jolan Avenue
Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

Greetings! I said in the last column that I had no plans for fall. The address will tell you I really came up with some. Decided to take the year off and see another part of the world. I have relatives in Malaysia. “Where,” you ask? Check a map. It’s southwest of Vietnam, south of Thailand, north of Singapore and east of India. No year off. I am teaching at the International School here. It’s different and fun as well. I teach ninth grade English (my major), world history and 11th grade U. S. history. So I spend most of my waking hours reading world and U. S. history. Weekends are for touring and seeing what makes a different culture tick — traipsing through real jungle, climbing waterfalls, visiting some historic places, and trying to learn some Malay so I can drive the taxi drivers and get a work permit. I have to leave the country one of these weekends so I can come back in on a special pass and get a work permit. This gives me an insight into bureaucracy! As you might imagine, I can’t include much in this column. Suffice it to say that living in the tropics is an interesting experience. One of these days, I’ll write a letter about it. Now for the news.

Christopher Curley is the new manager of the 3.500-member Massachusetts Teachers Association Credit Union and is working to develop a system of teacher payroll deductions for credit union transactions. A native of Washington, D. C., Chris entered a stock brokerage trainee program after graduation, then joined Putnam Mutual of Boston, where he was administrative assistant to the vice president for two years. He lives in Acton. . . Larry Sears is an instructor-counselor with the Upward Bound Project at the University of Texas at El Paso. He completed his master’s in teaching in December at Antioch-Putney Graduate School in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Tim “Boo” Radley is teaching biology and an environmental pollution seminar at Brewster Academy in Laconia, N. H. . . Rick Lubov is teaching sixth and seventh grade mathematics at the Holbrook School in Holdenville. Good luck with that age group! . . Robert Minner is studying for his degree at New York University Dental School, and completed training at Naval Officer In- doctrination School in Newport, R. I., in October. . . Vic Marshall is a captain in the Air Force serving as an instructor at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas. . . Leo Amato is a first lieutenant and received the Air Medal at Lockbourne AFB, Ohio, for his contributions on important missions under hazardous conditions at Ching Chuan Kang Air Base, Taiwan. And a note about a friend who left Colby. Elmer “Sandy” Whittier is a second lieutenant assigned to Little Rock, AR, for flying duty with the Tactical Air Command. He and Leo ought to get together.

Lawrence Whooley has joined the First Congregational Church in Dalton, Mass., as minister of Christian education. He will work in connection with the church school and various church youth groups. . . Barry Botelho was married in October to a girl who was the Swedish national swimming champion and was in the Olympic Games in Japan. Barry is now employed as a financial analyst for the Xerox Corp. in Rochester, N. Y. . . I’ve also heard from Sally Ray Morin. Sal was teaching school in Rhode Island, but on Jan. 9 she gave birth to Kristi Elizabeth. Congratulations! . . Penny Powell also dropped me a line. She is teaching in a private school in New York City. It was good to hear from Penny. But she had some sad news for the class. John Wood died Dec. 29 in a car-train collision in his hometown of Needham, Mass. John was a very fine fellow. I find it hard to express my sense of loss. I would like to include a poem, "Remembrance" by Vasily Zhukovsky. I think it is appropriate for John: How many dear companions who have enlivened for us the world's rough roads are gone, each fellow traveler much missed; yet say not sadly: they have left us! But rather say, with gratitude: they were. That's it from Malaysia, everyone. Again, a request to get in touch and let me know what you're doing.

1968

Jeanne M. Amnotte
14 Chiswick Road
Brookline, Mass. 02146

Cathie Smith and Ben Bradlee '70, married last June, teach English at the University in Kabul, Afghanistan, for the Peace Corps. They will be there until September, 1972. Write them: Peace Corps, c/o American Embassy, Kabul, Afghanistan. . .

John Neuberger would like to hear from you, too. He and his wife have opened a hot dog stand in Germany, catering to the railroad workers. Their address: 5032 Huerta-Efferen Hahnenstrasse 17 (zimmor 220), West Germany. Thanks for the postcards, John. . .

Also in Germany is Jesse McGuire, resident faculty director of the University of New Hampshire junior year abroad program in Marburg. She loves the job. Since graduation Jesse has studied on a Fulbright in Germany, traveled to Greece and Turkey, and earned her master's at U.N.H., where she had an assistantship. She can be reached at 355 Marburg/Lahn, Geschw. Scholl-Str. 13/408, West Germany. . .

Abiding on the beautiful coral island of Okinawa with the Air Force is John Leopold. He took a Maine vacation (to Waterville) before shipping out to the Pacific. He is eager to get back to the Denver University Law School. . .

Jeff Lathrop called in the fall. He's living in Cambridge and attending the two-year master's program at B.U. He plans eventually to return to Maine. . .

Fred Clasquin is at Seton Hall University in South Orange after two years of the service. He met Harlan Schneider in the Musee de Rodin in Paris. Harlan spent two years in graduate school in theater and is on the road with a company based in New York City. . .

Jon Smith was awarded a Rosalie B. Hite Fellowship in cancer research from the University of Texas (Austin). He is a third-year doctoral candidate, with Braverman Ford, who was promoted to sergeant at Ft. Wainwright, Alaska, where he is serving with the 562nd Artillery. Steve is an M.P. . . .

Dick DeVincenzo is section chief of c.community relations at Western Electric's Merrimack Valley. He is learning. Fred Levine is in his third year at Harvard Law School. Last summer he worked with a Wall Street law firm. . .

Claudia Bourcier Fregosi and husband, Bill, a professor and designer of theater productions at Emerson College (Boston), spent the summer traveling in Europe, and getting to as many concerts, operas and museums as possible. Claudia is doing art work, including embroidered tapestries and personal fashions.

Margaret Whitaker enjoys teaching fifth grade science and reading in a school near her home town of Portsmouth, N. H. She spent the summer in Europe. . .

Finishing up at Cornell Law School, Bob Grossman has managed to find time to play goalie for the Law School hockey team, to watch the powerhouse Cornell varsity hockey team (which rivaled Colby's team in the days of Mike Self), and to learn to ski.

From Dick Jude: "I'm still in the Army, still single and still in the states." Dick is stationed at the Highlands (N. J.) Air Defense Site. He is information officer for the New York-Philadelphia area, and has been promoted to first lieutenant. . .

Maxine Allison has moved to the small town of Feeding Hills, Mass. She's working with retarded children under the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health. Maxine reports that Jane Brown is working toward her master's in early childhood education at Lesley. Maxine saw Glenn White Crawford this summer in Boise, Idaho, where Glenn's husband is finishing school. They have a son, Jason. . .

Bud Evans was in the Boston area around Thanksgiving to attend the wedding of Bill Revett '69 and Kathi Hill '70. He spent the summer in Washington, D. C., working for the government, and is in his third year at Cornell Law School. . . Larry Furbish is really busy as a Ph.D. candidate at Ohio State (in political science), legislative intern in the Ohio House and with baby, Jessica. He and Karen also have a son. . .

Bob and Nancy (Levine '69) True are alive, well and living in Philadelphia. Bob is in a doctoral program in educational administration at Penn. He got his master's last June and was elected to the honor society, Phi Delta Kappa. Nancy is working for the Department of Public Assistance and is taking a course in social work at Penn. . .

Rick Morey received his M.A. in history from the University of Delaware last June. . .

Leon Garner teaches in an unusual school in Damariscotta. It is for youngsters with learning problems who need more individual attention than public schools can provide. Leon has 10 children in the 12-14 age group. Leon cites the need for more commitment from parents and more public information. Good luck. . .

I did receive special instructions from Ellen Dockser, who has been seen on occasion in the Harvard Square subway station of late. She wants her friends to know that she still lives! . . .

Joe Jabar worked his way through the University of Maine School of Law (Portland) as a coach, which won't surprise anyone who remembers his outstanding baseball and basketball seasons at Colby. He expects to get his degree in June. Joe spent a summer with the Seattle Pilots (remember them?) farm system and coached two years at a Portland business college. Now he has freshman basketball at the university's Portland campus, where he handled freshman basketball during the winter. He is married and has a three-year-old son. Joe was the last of six brothers to attend Colby. . .

For those of you whose names did not appear in this column, there can be no excuse—except that you didn't write to me! (Or you didn't appear on the M.T.A.)

1969

Cherry Dubois
9 Tennyson Road
Reading, Mass. 01867

Again it's time to hear from our classmates here and around the world. Ginny Coates is doing secretarial work for a mortgage broker in Cincinnati. Last year she taught in Nancy, France. . .

Jay Gallagher, a Waltham News Tribune reporter, won first prize for a feature story from the New England Associated Press News Executives Association. His wife, Emily (Kreinick), is a state employment counselor. . .

Mary Ethree is in an American studies program at the University of Delaware. . .

A ski coach and an English teacher at Waterville High, Rand Surgi took an 8,000-mile motorcycle trip across country. . .

After teaching last year, Mary J. Clifford is working in a bank in Skowhegan. . .

Diane Davis Hacker is a dispatcher for the New Hampshire State Police. . .

Tom McBririty is an accounting manager for the phone company in Manchester, N. H., and Burlington, Vt. . .

Rob and Nancy Spokes Rudnick are at Cornell. Rob has a law school scholarship and does research for a Vermont law firm. Nancy is working at Cornell's Olin Library. They would like to hear from any Colby people in the area. . .

Mary Walker Wheeler teaches badminton at Colby and is secretary to the headmaster at the merged Oak Grove-Coburn School in Vassalboro. . .

Ben Magure is at the Great Lakes (Ill.) Naval Training Center.
... Trixie Oakley Ingram was at Boston University Art School before becoming a full-time housewife. ... Bunny Patton Cass works for a photo firm in Boston area. ... Joan Flounders Boesch, who graduated from Boston University, went to her husband's native Switzerland, and is busy at home. ... Ed Beard is at the graduate business school at Suffolk University. ... Roger Stiles works in the personnel department at Pineland Hospital in Pownal. ... Peggy Philson does neurobiology research at Massachusetts General Hospital, takes courses at B.U. and frequently goes to Princeton to visit fiance Mike Foose. ... Charlie Miller is taking courses at the University of Maine while teaching English and history in Fairfield. ... After a fun-filled summer working for the post office, Bill Lyons is at Boston College Law School. ... Sue Magdefrau Werkhoven is taking education courses, substitute teaching and tutoring high school students. ... Kitty Earnshaw works for the phone company in data communications. She went to London, and saw Denise Harvey, who is working near Brussels. ... Judy Holden is working on a master's program in special education at Catholic University and is helping develop projects for the Teacher Corps. ... Tom Wright teaches math to dyslexic children at a private school in Hardwick, Mass. ... After spending a year in London, Tom Watson is at Boston College Law School. ... Ray Williams works at the Fort Devens hospital medical library. ... Don Esty teaches English to grades five through eight in Rosemont, Pa. He lives in a restored 18th-century house. ... Howard Cutler is a VISTA volunteer helping with community organization in North Carolina. ... George Higgins is atTufts Medical School on two scholarships. During the summer he'll be at Maine Medical Center (Portland) doing anesthesiology. ... An honors graduate of Germain School of Photography, Ron Caruso is an industrial photographer, and writes television commercials and musical sound tracks for the firm. Ron also is writing music for a Grammy Award-winning lyricist. ... Robbie Kent English works for the Chicago office of the French National Railroads and is on the Chicago council of the Experiment in International Living. ... Jean Clarke Davis is a labor market analyst for the Vermont Department of Employment. She and her husband, Jim Davis '67, are building their own home. ... Jim and Ann Montgomery Osborne are cottage parents for girls at Brandon (Vt.) Training School, a school for the retarded. ... Dexter Arnold is doing graduate work in history at the University of Wisconsin. ... Wendy Gillingham is an art editor in the high school graphics department of Ginn & Co. ... Sue Johnston teaches Latin and English in Billerica, Mass., and advises a new activities club at the high school. ... Leslie Stevens is "Out-reach Program" director with the Lewiston Model Cities Agency. ... Judy Lee Richter is at Cornell majoring in child development and plans to get a Ph.D. while working as a teaching assistant. She and her husband, Fred '66, traveled 3,500 miles last August in the Maritime provinces. ... Ines Ruelius Brown is in a doctoral program in pharmacology at the University of Rochester where she has a grant. She and "Buz" '70 hiked in Colorado and hope to go back this summer. ... Bob Anthony teaches in Yarmouth and planned on a week in Hawaii in April. ... Rose Manwaring is a computer operator and programmer with Berg-Haus. ... Besides taking courses for a master's in education at Claremont (Calif.) Graduate School, Jessie Burdick is teaching pre-school children in a free school in Claremont. Jessie also moonlights at the school's money-making arm—a bar! ... Pat Walker enjoys her work as a medical social worker at Beth Israel Hospital, Boston. ... Steve Goodwin is working on a master's in business administration at the University of Massachusetts and plays on bridge clubs. ... Buffy Huse Smith teaches chemistry in Newtown, Conn., while working towards certification. She visited Jamaica over Christmas. ... Larry Kassman is a second-year student at Upstate (N.Y.) Medical Center. ... Congratulations to Sue Mathews, who had a paper published on hereditary anemia in mice. She is working as a research assistant in hematology, catching up on her guitar playing and reading. ... Karen True is at the B.U. School of Social Work and works at a drug "hot line" center. ... Doubling as student and teaching, Jane Master Rohrbach attends Kent (Pa.) State College for a master's in education, teaches German at a junior high and is a hospital volunteer. ... Cathy Seymour Nelson is a technical assistant at the University of Vermont's Bailey Library. ... Steve Neter will receive an M.A. from the Latin American Institute at the University of Texas. ... Bill Ruett is in Tucson receiving combat training on the F-4 Phantom jet. ... Don Caouette, at Whittemore School of Business, received a scholarship and does underwriting with Travelers Insurance. ... Criss Negro Boothby, who studied commercial art, is an executive secretary at Filene's and does some display work. ... Larry Adams, a second lieutenant, is secretary of the officer's club at the Air Force Base. ... While finishing her degree in library science at Simmons Debby Van Hoek is working part time in a lab library at Harvard Medical School. ... Mary Ellen Lyle is teaching and enjoying the sun and working on a master's in English at the University of Hawaii. ... Curt Schneider teaches junior high English, and coaches basketball and baseball in Auburn, N.H. ... Gary Austin is an aircraft maintenance officer in Phan Rang Air Base in South Vietnam. ... Dave Demers teaches at Messalonskee High in Oakland. He coaches baseball and assists with football. ... After receiving a master's in teaching from the University of Massachusetts, Dee Thompson is a second grade teacher in Weymouth. ... Phil Johnson works and studies at Andover-Newton Theological School, and is a student minister at the United Church in Walpole. He hopes to be ordained by the end of 1972. ... Joy Nelb Ericson is a programmer for Pratt and Whitney Aircraft in Hartford, where her specialty is teleprocessing. ... Jamie Klingsenشت has a fellowship at the University of Pittsburgh and is studying for an M.B.A. ... Dick Phillips enjoys the good life of a tennis pro in Palm Beach. ... Carol Hayward Olson teaches fourth grade in Harwich, Mass., and has done graduate work in education. ... While studying at Andover-Newton, Steve Fisher is counseling part time at Newton High School and working at the Hancock Church in Lexington. ... Connie Tingle teaches two introductory botany labs at the University of North Carolina. ... Mark Janes is a zone manager for Investors Diversified Services in Rochester, Minn., coaches the Rochester Junior College hockey team and works in year-round youth hockey schools. ... Lowell Wilkes expects to get his master's from the Sloan School of Management at M.I.T. this June. He works part time as a programmer in Cambridge. ... Dick Jacques completed basic Guard activity and hopes to go to the University of Connecticut school of Pharmacology in September. ... Dick Chabot, now serving in the artillery, hopes to be out of the service this summer. ... Janet Rubenstein is at the Medical College of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. ... Benjy Benn Handley is a bookstore purchasing agent. Her husband attends the University of Montana. ... Alan Levin is at Columbia doing graduate work in business administration. Alan spent part of last summer in Europe. ... Sand Reed is a social worker in Vermont and plans a trip to India this summer for the wedding of Jaya Ganu, a special student our senior year. ... Jeanne Bryant Stanwood took some biology courses last summer. She's expecting a baby. ... Sandy High Walters is an industrial artist for Mobil Oil, and has taken some graduate courses at Princeton where her husband is working on a Ph.D. in classical philosophy.

Jane Chandler Carney is a bank examiner, also her husband’s job. So they get to do some traveling together in New England. . . . Steve Anderson is in the Air Force flying transport planes out of Newport News, Va. . . . Most of Jean Peterson Balsley’s time is spent with her daughter, Elaine. Chris ’68 is working on his master’s at Wesleyan University. . . . Martin Swartz is at dental school at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. . . . Linda Gray, an industrial statistician is doing economic research and analysis at the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston. Linda is becoming a bit disenchanted with Boston’s prices, drivers and subways. . . . Vicki Carter, avid Jim Plunkett rooter, received an M.A. in Latin American studies from Stanford in June. She has two part-time jobs, program aide on the Committee of International Relations at Stanford and assistant to the Latin American curator at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace. . . . Dan Todzia is a personnel specialist for Uncle Sam, who drafted him in July. According to Dan, it’s not the greatest life. . . . Nancy LeVine True, in addition to taking a course at the University of Pennsylvania, is doing social work in Philadelphia to help put her husband, Bob ’68, through graduate school. . . . Rick Littlefield is at Temple’s School of Law and did some traveling last summer in Europe. . . . Cheryl Stitham received her M.Ed. in special education and is teaching retarded kids in Scarborough. . . . Larry Greenberg is working on a Ph.D. in economics at Columbia, where he has a faculty fellowship. . . . Craig Stevens is working towards a master’s in photo-journalism at Fairfield University. He has a graduate assistantship and teaches ghetto kids photography. . . . Pete Smith is in the Army. But the lucky guy is in Garmisch. Germany, with the ski patrol! The Law Center at Georgetown University keeps Joel Greenfield busy these days. . . . Kris Kreamer Evans is teaching eighth grade language arts in Winthrop. . . . Lyn Bixby claims to be “vegetating uncontrollably” in Okinawa where he is attached to the Army Air Defense. . . . Kate Hooper is teaching second grade in New York City. . . . Margaret Allan Ewell teaches educable retarded children in Oakland. . . . Craig Smith is in the Medical Corps at an Army hospital in Okinawa. He enjoys his work. . . . Bill Merritt is at Purdue teaching plant biology on an assistantship. He will pursue a Ph.D. project under a cancer research grant. . . . Kate Batten Ward is teaching high school math in Bountiful, Utah. Her husband, Stevenson ’68, is in the Air Force. Last summer they camped through much of the West. . . .

Anne York Samson teaches grades three through five in Rome (Maine). She and her husband, Rick ’68, are half the staff. After doing some graduate work at Arizona State for a year, Rick Stinchfield was awaiting orders to Vietnam. . . . Bob Greene is at the University of Maine Law School. . . . Jon Eustis, in Korea, did get some free time during Christmas to visit Thailand, Malaysia and Hong Kong with wife, Paula (Joseph). . . . A tragic postscript: Bole Stelfey died March 19 in Pittsburg of cancer. He and Donna (Massey) were married last June, and Bole was studying for the ministry at B.U. Jim Martin ’70 has written a poem for Bole, “Pain That Is Delicate, That We Have Saved.” Perhaps it’s appropriate to close with it: “No one could save this./ Or say that in half-cold, late winter sunlight/ You died./ Not those words./ Two notes from you:/ ‘Peder­ sen’s Israel’ is worth the price./ ‘The Greek language is not./ Are you flown apart, or bolder?/ No one has acted indifferently./ Let there be groups of us/ And let us be moving! Past you,/ And her, folding your road./ Like one black flag for us/ Who are dumb in your wake,/ Less jarred by progress/ Than you by history.” (An obituary is included in the Deaths section of this issue.)

1970

Laura R. Schmidt
22 Greenwood Street
Melrose Highlands, Mass. 02177

Since graduation, our class has branched out into diversified areas and places. Ron Di Orio is serving in the Peace Corps in Afghanistan. So are Ben and Cathie (Smith ’68) Bradlee. The Corps sent Mike Doud to the Himalayan foothills of India, and Kathleen Kitchen recently completed the U.S. Army Military Police course at Ft. Gordon, Ga. Peter Adams was commissionned a second lieutenant at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., where Phil Norfleet did his basic training. Wayne Blanchard is a second lieutenant at Malmstrom AFB, Mont. He married Sally Peterson. Mark Zac­ caria is enrolled in pilot training at Laredo AFB, Tex. . . . Several members of our class are doing graduate work in law: Ann Arbor and Bob Fabani are at Georgetown in Washington, D.C. Nicky Pach and Artie White attend Boston College. Judy Freedman and Barry Hurwitz are at Suffolk University, Boston. Brian Cooke studies at Brooklyn (N.Y.) Law School. Rich­ ard Irvine attends the Faculty of Law at Queens University, Kingston, Ont. . . . Andy Hayashi is a candidate for a master’s in business administration at York University in Ontario. Ilan Hadani is enrolled in a similar program at Babson College, Wellesley, Mass. Marty Kolo­ nel, who married Jean Miller ’68, is at Amos Tuck, Dartmouth. Peter Mack­ inlay is doing graduate work in English at the University of Chicago. Charlie Terrell is in the Afro-American studies program at Boston University. Mike Baskin studies architecture in Boston, and Barbara Hamaluk is enrolled in a year-long course at Katharine Gibbs in the same city.

The teaching profession is lucky to have acquired many ’70 graduates. Bud Earle enjoys teaching fourth grade in Waterville. Mike Self teaches at Waterville High. So does Jeff Lovitz, who coached Colby’s freshman soccer team. Dickie Moss is a substitute teacher for the school system. Todd Smith coached Colby’s jayvee hockey team. Others teaching in Maine are Martha McCall at Lincoln Academy, Newcastle; John MacLeod at North Yarmouth Academy; Paul Tabor at Mt. Abram High School, Farmington; Kit Wells at Buckfield High and Peter Yakawonis at Madison High. . . . Donna Fowler is a junior high math teacher in Rutland, Vt. Sandy Holler teaches English at the same level in Clinton, Conn. Another junior high instructor is Marlene Goldman, who specializes in science and math at Sharon, Mass. Kandie Andersen teaches roller skating in Cranford, N. J. Sending her best from Israel, where she teaches and does community work, is Joan Katz.

Peter Lowell, owner of the Cool Moose, was named recreation director for the town of Bridgton. Ken Stead works with severely retarded children and adults near Philadelphia. Richie ’69 and Martha Luce Habeshian are living in Ashland, Mass. Martha is employed by Barry Controls in the purchasing department. Peter Spindler works in transportation for the Dover, Mass., elementary schools. Ben and Jackie (Dyer ’69) Krazlive in Brock­ ton, Mass., where Ben works in insurance. . . . Many of us have jobs in Boston. Cheryl Dinnee works with the drug rehabilitation program in the mayor’s office at Government Center. Working on High Street in insurance is Steve Saporito. After completing the executive training course, Robin Arm­ tage, Gail Cuatto and Karen Teravainen are employed at Jordan Marsh. Following up on his work as social chairman at Colby last year, Bob Saglio is with Music Productions, Inc. Also working in Boston are Chickie Barnes, Nancy Campbell, Molly Carroll, Lois Chalmers, Linda Gulbrandsen, Laura Struck­ off and Andy Vujan.

I’m working as a research correspondent for the Oppenheimer Fund on Franklin Street. My roommate, Eileen Boerner, is a secretary for Endowment Management. I would be happy to hear from any of you. Tell us all what you’re doing.
Milestones

Marriages

1953
Priscilla S. Patenaude to Guillermo Castaneda, April, 1970, in Texas.

1964
Charles P. Angwenyi to Susan N. Gihuku, March 20, Nairobi, Kenya, Africa.

1965
Barbara C. Droitcour to Norman B. Heubeck, Feb. 13, Warwick, R. I.

1966
Louis M. Friedler to Sharon Eschenbeck '70, Aug. 16, 1970, in Texas.

John A. Goldfine to Jean F. Ridington, March 22, 1969, Cherry Hill, N. J.

1968
Penelope T. Hume to Weston A. Baker, Feb. 6, North Vassalboro.

1969

Jeffrey Sandler to Ellen Anne Sousa, Dec. 16, 1970, Cranston, R. I.

1970

David Bruce McNamee to Margaret A. Freeman, Feb. 20, Bath.

Births

1958
A daughter, Karen Ellen, to Mr. and Mrs. John S. Baxter, October, 1970.

A son, William Brokaw, to Mr. and Mrs. James D. P. Bishop Jr., 1970.

A son, David Edward, to Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Dankert, July, 1970.

A daughter, Kristin Leigh, to Mrs. Mirek Hansen (Janice S. Klem), October, 1970. (See class correspondences.)

A daughter, Doreen Louise, to Mr. and Mrs. David T. Brown (Janet L. Pratt), January, 1970.

1959
A son, Jonathan Paul, to Mr. and Mrs. Laurence S. Douglas (Anne G. Fuller), Jan. 8.

1960
A son, David Philip, to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mordecai (Drusilla Harris '61), adopted July 10, 1970.

A son to Dr. and Mrs. John M. Roberts, March 25, 1970.

A daughter, Erica Lynn, to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Turpie, Jan. 29.

1961
A son, Andrew John, to Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hakola (Judith A. Hoffman), adopted Oct. 6, 1970.

1962
A daughter, Elizabeth Suzanne, to Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Wright (Cassandra Cousins '65), Nov. 18, 1970.

1963
A son, Gregory George, to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Nielsen (Marilynn Ehrlich), Nov. 1, 1970.

A daughter, Sally Elizabeth, to Mr. and Mrs. William Chase (Barbara Haines), adopted Aug. 4, 1970.

A daughter, Johanna McCune, to Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan F. Wagner (Shannon McCune), May 3, 1970.

1964
A daughter, Anne, to Mr. and Mrs. Alfo Gracefa (Natalie Furlong '67), Dec. 23, 1970.

A daughter, Jennifer Christie, to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond O. White (Christie Higginbottom '66), November, 1970.

A daughter, Karen Sue, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zaremba (Nat Bowerman '66), March, 1970.

1965
A son, Charles Edward, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles McDowell (Louise Reburn '66), Aug. 12, 1970.

1966
A son, Andrew Carl, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Aube, 1970.

A daughter, Amy Catherine, to Mr. and Mrs. James Bither, June, 1970.

A son, Richard, to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Blumenthal, 1970.

A son, Jeffrey Scott, to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Boghosian, 1970.

A son, Jeffrey John, to Mr. and Mrs. John Cookson, Sept. 25, 1970.

A daughter, Amy Louise, to Mr. and Mrs. James Bound (Bonnie Darling), June 6, 1970.

A daughter, Margaret, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, 1970.

A daughter, Amy Lynne, to Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Donaldson, February, 1970.

A son, Quentin Wayne, to Mr. and Mrs. William Eggart (Lynne Egbert), September, 1970.

A daughter, Kim Elizabeth, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Egbert (Merrilyn Aldrich), February.

A daughter, Sarah, to Mr. and Mrs. William Wheeler (Meg Fallon), May 23, 1970.

A daughter, Lynne Sharon, to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Floyd (Judith David), 1970.

A daughter, Juliet Catherine, to Mr. and Mrs. James Hummer (Sue Footer), Sept. 11, 1970.

A daughter, Beth Rachel, to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Finkelstein (Claudia Fugere), Nov. 7, 1970.

A son, James, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gilmore, Nov. 25, 1970.

1967
A daughter, Kristi Elizabeth, to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morin (Sally Ray), Jan. 9.
A son, Alexander, to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ingram (Beatrice Oakley '69), Aug. 20, 1970.

1969
A daughter, Victoria Louise, to Mr. and Mrs. Andre Boesch, Curtis Schneider, April 18, 1970.

A son, Thomas William, to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ingram (Beatrice Oakley Aug. 20, 1970.

A daughter, Jennifer, to Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Schneider, July 1, 1970.

A daughter, Karyn Jill, to Mr. and Mrs. Lulu Ames Ventres, in East Revere, Mass. She was born in Waterville, Mass. Her husband, who died in 1900 was pastor of the Rockport, Mass., Baptist Church. Mrs. Ventres was a member of Sigma Kappa. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Florence Sherburne '31. Another daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Mariner '28, died in 1965.

1902
Grace Bicknell Eisenwinter, 90, died Jan. 26 in Carlsbad, Calif. She had lived there with friends since the death of her husband, Edward. Born in Paris Hill (Maine), she was a graduate of Norway High School. She taught at the Perkins Institution for the Blind (Watertown, Mass.) and was principal of the Upper Girls School there. After her marriage, she lived in Wakefield, Mass. Her husband, who died in 1959, was pastor of the Rockport, Mass., Baptist Church. Mrs. Ventres was a member of Sigma Kappa. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Florence Sherburne '31. Another daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Mariner '28, died in 1965.

1900
Lulu Ames Ventres, 93, widow of the Rev. Ernest E. Ventres '01, died Feb. 17 in East Revere, Mass. She was born in Farmington and was a graduate of Waterville High School. Following graduation summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa, Mrs. Ventres taught for five years at Coburn Classical Institute. After her marriage, she lived in Wakefield, Mass. Her husband, who died in 1959, was pastor of the Rockport, Mass., Baptist Church. Mrs. Ventres was a member of Sigma Kappa. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Florence Sherburne '31. Another daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Mariner '28, died in 1965.

1911
Ralph Eastman Nash, 83, former class agent and recipient of a Colby Brick in 1946, died Feb. 5 in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. Nash had done YMCA and Boys Club work, was superintendent of schools in his native Harrington, personnel manager of a Massachusetts rubber company, and operated his own insurance and investments business in his home town. Beginning in 1930, he spent part of the year in St. Petersburg, where he was a fruit grower. He attended Harrington High School and was graduated from Coburn Classical Institute. A member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, he was a co-founder of the Colby College Bookstore and wrote the words to the song "Marching Along for Colby." Mr. Nash served in the Army during the first world war. He had been a member of the Alumni Council and founded the Colby Club of St. Petersburg. His wife, Mary Buswell Nash '12, survives. His first wife, the former Cora Kennison '11, died in 1915.

1912
Ruth Hamilton Whittemore died March 12 in West Hartford, Conn., at the age of 84. A retired schoolteacher and widow of Alpheus L. Whittemore '12, she was a former trustee and received a Colby Brick in 1953. She was born in Cornish and was a graduate of Sanford High School. Mrs. Whittemore had been a high school principal in Iowa, and taught in various Maine and Massachusetts schools before settling at Deering High School, Portland, in 1942. She was awarded the Brick in recognition of her work with many alumni organizations, including the Alumni Council. She was a trustee from 1946 to 1951. Mrs. Whittemore contributed to short story anthologies for students, and to Invitation to Reading published by Harcourt Brace. She moved from Portland to West Hartford a year ago to live with her son. She also leaves a niece, Violet Hamilton Brooks '39.

1913
Clair Frank Benson, 79, a retired federal patent examiner, died Jan. 12 in Arlington, Va. He was born in South Waterboro and was valedictorian of his class at Westbrook High School. He also was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. After serving in the Army during World War I, he taught mathematics and the sciences at Biddeford High School for 12 years. During his 24-years with the U.S. Patent Office, Mr. Benson studied law at George Washington University and the University of Richmond. His wife, Lucille, and two daughters survive.

1915
Roy Winfred Gilmore, 79, retired school superintendent, died Jan. 31 in Exeter, N. H. He was born in Lynn, Mass., and prepared for Colby at the New Hampton Literary Institute. He taught there and in later years, was a trustee of the school, now known as the New Hampton School for Boys. Mr. Gilmore earned a master's degree from Bates College in 1924 and taught in several New Hampshire communities before serving as superintendent in Charleston (N. H.) and Hampton. He held the latter post for more than 30 years. Mr. Gilmore was a member of Alpha Tau Omega. A daughter survives.

1917

Robert Harold Gallier, 76, died Feb. 22 in Bellaire, Tex. Mr. Gallier managed two careers, 17 years in the Army following graduation, and 30 in the office of the district attorney of Harris (Texas) County. He retired in 1964 after 12 years as chief prosecutor. Born in Taunton, Mass., Mr. Gallier was a graduate of Worcester Classical High School and the old Houston (Texas) Law School. He was a standout football player at Colby, president of the senior class and a member of Alpha Tau Omega. He first went to Texas as an Army officer to fight Mexican bandits in 1917. His wife, Gladys, and two daughters.

1918

Harris Birdsill McIntyre, 73, of Marblehead, Mass., died Jan. 30. A registered engineer, he worked for the New England Telephone Co. from 1922 until his retirement in 1961. Mr. McIntyre was a president of the Boston Alumni Association. Born in Houlton, he was graduated from Houlton High School, and from M.I.T. in 1922. Mr. McIntyre served in the Navy during World War I. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta, and once noted on a class questionnaire that 22 relatives, mostly cousins, had attended Colby. His wife, the former Eleanor Sumner, and a son, Charles S., survive.

1920

Edward Fahey, who attended Colby from 1916 to 1918, died Feb. 8 in Pittsfield, Mass. A teacher, he was a lifelong resident of nearby Dalton, where he taught business in the high school. Mr. Fahey was a graduate of Dalton High and left Colby to serve in the Army. He earned his degree at Bay Path College (Longmeadow, Mass., now a junior college). He taught briefly in New Hampshire schools before returning to Dalton. His wife, Marian, two sons and a daughter survive.

1921

John Bennett Tschamler died at the age of 71 in Togus Nov. 23 after a long illness. He had served as postmaster of Augusta for six years and had been in the postal service for 44 years. He was born in Lewiston and was a graduate of Cony High School in Augusta. A member of Pi Delta Phi, he attended Colby from 1917 to 1920. Survivors include his wife, Wallena, four daughters and two sons.

John Franklin Waterman, 73, died Nov. 26 in Belfast. He had been employed by a bank there. A native of Taunton, Mass., he was graduated from Belfast High School. Mr. Waterman served in the Naval Reserve in 1918-1919 and was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha. He leaves his wife, Louise.

1925

Word has been received of the death on Feb. 23, 1970, of Seymour Joseph Koff, 66, in New York City. A native of New York, he prepared for college at Bedford Academy and Commercial High School. Mr. Koff, who attended Colby from 1921 to 1924, earned a law degree at Cornell and a master's in business from New York University. He was in the real estate business and operated a chain of service stations. He leaves his wife, Lilyan.

1926

Helen Chase Stinanford, 66, died Nov. 16, 1970, in Richmond, Ind., where her husband, Claude 26, taught at Earlham College. Born in Brownsville, she was a graduate of Coburn Classical Institute. She taught at Winslow High School and in Burlington, Vt., before moving to Indiana. Mrs. Stinanford was a member of Chi Omega. She leaves her husband and a daughter.

1929

Martha Allen Blackwell died Dec. 1 in Sarasota, Fla., at the age of 63. Born in Washburn, she moved to Massachusetts as a child. Mrs. Blackwell attended Girls' Latin High School, Boston, and Watertown High. She had been a teacher all her adult life — in Maine, New Jersey, Vermont and Florida — and continued postgraduate work all during her career. Mrs. Blackwell served with the Office of Price Administration during World War II, and as a Red Cross Home Service Director in Bennington, Vt. She also taught voice. Her late father was Elvin L. Allen '01. Mrs. Blackwell was a member of Sigma Kappa. She leaves her husband, Clinton, and a daughter.

1931

Ira Ward Bither, a Bangor salesman, died Dec. 21 in Newton, Mass. Mr. Bither, who attended Colby in 1927-1928, was 62. Born in Linneus, he was employed for 40 years by Sunshine Biscuit Co. and was known all over the state. He was a graduate of Ricker College in Houlton. Mr. Bither leaves his wife, the former Kathleen Getchell; a son and daughter; two brothers, including Roy A. '26, and a sister.

1936

James Linwood Ross died Jan. 4 in Houlton at the age of 57. He was born in Portsmouth, N.H., attended Technical High School, Springfield, Mass., and was graduated from Deering High School in Portland. Mr. Ross was assistant editor of a weekly newspaper in Houlton until the war. He served in the Army Air Corps as a captain and won the Army Commendation Medal. Since, he had been a sales representative for a Houlton fuel oil concern. Mr. Ross was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He leaves his wife, Isabel, and a sister, Mrs. Eleanor Howard '37. His late father was Linwood L. Ross '06.

1938

Elizabeth Newell Rosenbaum, 53, died in Newport, R.I., Dec. 31. Born in London, England, she was graduated from Colby Junior College in 1936. Mrs. Rosenbaum was employed for many years as a technician in electroencephalography at the Massachusetts General and Cushing Veterans hospitals. She leaves two sons, including Thomas N. Beresford '73; a daughter; and two step-daughters, including Janet H. Rosenbaum '70.

1967

John Christopher Wood was killed Dec. 31 in an auto-train collision in Needham, Mass. He was 25. Born in Boston, he was raised in Needham. At the time of his death, he was a graduate student at the New York University School of Business. After graduation with distinction in his major, he attended Army officers candidate school. During a tour in Vietnam, he earned the Bronze Star and Purple Heart medals. He was a graduate of Needham High School, where he was captain of the hockey team and a football quarterback. Mr. Wood was a member of Kappa Delta Rho. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wood Jr., two sisters and a brother.

1969

Joseph Bole H. Steffey died March 19 of cancer in his native Pittsburg at the age of 24. A student at Boston University School of Theology prior to his illness, Mr. Steffey was married in June to classmate Donna L. Massey. They had been living in Swampscott, Mass. He was a graduate of Shady Side Academy in Pittsburgh and was a member of Zeta Psi. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Steffey, have asked that a cross in Lorimer Chapel be dedicated in his memory; friends and classmates also have made contributions. The cross, which will be used regularly in services, will be inscribed with his name, class and dates of birth and death.
Sports Vignettes: (clockwise from top) this year's varsity swimming team, coached by former Springfield College All-American Jack Scholz, was the first to enter official intercollegiate competition; senior Frank Apanaku, a member of the Nigerian Davis Cup team and among the top college amateurs in this country, is defending his Maine collegiate singles and doubles championships and leading a highly successful Colby team; sophomore Patricia Flanagan (Killingworth, Conn.) competed in the 50 and 100-yard breaststroke events in the National Women's Intercollegiate Swimming Championships at the University of Arizona in April; Coach John Winkin, with senior captain Mike Smith (Sanford), has more than the camera to smile about — with freshmen holding down four starting positions and sophomores displaying strong pitching, the baseball team got off to one of its best starts in several seasons and promised to be a real power next year.