

Colby

Inklings Magazine

Volume 2
Issue 2 Spring 2016

Article 27

April 2016

A Conversation in the Blue

Jay Huskins
Colby College

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.colby.edu/inklings>

Part of the Fiction Commons, Nonfiction Commons, and the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Huskins, Jay (2016) "A Conversation in the Blue," Inklings Magazine: Vol. 2: Iss. 2, Article 27.
Available at: <http://digitalcommons.colby.edu/inklings/vol2/iss2/27>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Colby. It has been accepted for inclusion in Inklings Magazine by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Colby. For more information, please contact enrhodes@colby.edu.

a conversation in the blue

Jay Huskins

Your poems are getting better. They're sharp these days. Yeah. I thought I knew more when I was younger. Do you know less now? Hard to say, but I know what I know.

What does that mean? There's no doubt. I don't question how much I miss my husband. I miss him too. He was a good man. I think I miss you more though. He was a great man. Was I? No. But I miss you more. I could've been a good man. You could've been king of the world. I was for a moment. You were an idiot. You know, I've never regretted her. I know. It's been a long winter. I'm enjoying it. It was a long summer. I wish I just let you live. I did. Not how you wanted. But I lived. I don't know if I could ask for more. I know.

