THE SOLDIER COMING HOME.

Dear father, the battle so fearful and grand,
That has shook all the nation, and moistened the land...

Dear mother, thy darling has fought the good fight,
For the flag of the Union, and the cause of the right...

For thy brother is coming,
The battle is o'er,
Wait his footstep at meal-time...

On my breast there is hanging a picture so fair,
Of my bonnie blue-eyed love, with bright auburn hair...

[From Harper's Magazine for June.]

ANDREW KENT'S TEMPTATION.

The day passed as if there were no hours,
and the hours and the minutes crept away quickly from mouth to mouth...

It increased as the day wore on, and the same dark question, with its same unanswered mystery, haunted him still...

"Prue! I—I didn't see you."
She stood just where the shade of an old apple-tree was thickest...

"Yes; he's gone."
Something in his voice made her look up into his face—a little surprise on her own...

"What's the matter, Andrew? are you sick?"
She stood plaiting her little white apron nervously, her breath somewhat quick...

as if he expected Pennington, dead or alive, to vanish at the sight of him.

Kent was past him in a moment. A horrible fear came upon him. A picture of the proud, white horse, rearing and plunging into the twilight...

He felt the mists cling to him and chill him as he entered the shadow of the forest: some startled crows flew up and away, cawing above the trees...

The white horse had fallen heavily upon her rider. He seemed to have struck her dying agonies from her; but she was still alive...

The voices of the crowd down at the entrance of the ravine broke the hush. He knelt down pushing back the ferns. All the lights that quivered through the mist from the setting of an unseen sun struck the face...

An explanation—some low cry of horror from the girl made him dumb. At her voice, telling him to go on, he roused, speaking almost under his breath...

"I didn't think I could have told you. I hoped you needn't know. He was a forger—the officers were there."

"What am I doing? Haven't I the right?
I am his wife."
She knelt down where Andrew had knelt, and laid the dead man's head upon her lap...

"Come now, I wouldn't take on so," his rough, good-natured voice a little husky; "seeing he'd treated yer so, I wouldn't—I wouldn't really."

A Roman matron might have looked as she looked, turning up her fearless eyes.
"But I love him," she said. Then she bent her face again, her hair sweeping over it and over her husband's...

move him. You can't sit here all night, you know," spoken gently, though as gently as Jolliffe could speak perhaps.

She looked about her at that, scanning every face. Then she rose and stood where she had knelt, silently. They raised him gently—Kent and Jolliffe—and bore him out of the ravine...

He did not wait to hear any reply on Kent's lips, but winking till he winked himself blizz, walked away. Like a bird of ill-omen, he disappeared where the night was darkest, and Andrew saw him no more.

"Prue! you out here in the damp?"
"Yes," turning and walking by his side. I haven't seen any one who could tell. They have heard from Mr. Pennington?"

"How long now, might you reckon he'd ben there?" asked some one, breaking a silence.
"About twenty-four hours." His voice was low and changed.

"I want to hear it—the whole."
She caught his eyes then; her own were dark with a sort of horror.
"Don't, Prue; don't ask me! I'd rather somebody else would tell you."

"I don't think I could have told you. I hoped you needn't know. He was a forger—the
officers were there."

"What was this about a woman, Andrew?
I heard some one talking as they went by. I asked them, but they didn't hear me."

round her neck as he used to do when he was a boy.

"I like to see that," nodded the old woman looking half frightened, though, at the sound,
"ye've been so down in the mouth of late."

"No supper, Andy?" seeing that he did not go in.
"None—no—I guess not, mother—not just now."

"What's this talk about that city feller?" sitting down on the porch he was pacing in his restless way, "I've ben waiting till you get through the work, and was kinder settled, afore I asked."

"I don't think I could have told you. I hoped you needn't know. He was a forger—the less mighty than the prayer of Habakkuk, nor less lofty in inspiration than those of Jeremiah, nor of less Christian fervor than the best thoughts of Job.

"Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said 5000 years ago, so still it must be said that the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

And at the last he says:—
"With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives to us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphans; to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

Truly has the nation an ever-abiding sorrow
in his death.

AN INCIDENT during the passage of Gen.
Grant from New Jersey to New York is thus related:—

A long-haired, Southern-looking gentleman, who from the blueness of his nasal appendage probably hailed from Acadia, excited the anger of a brawny Irishman by asserting in a very offensive manner that Gen. Grant was smaller in mind than in person, and that Gen.
Lee had invariably whipped him.

"I am," replied the other with pomposity.
"Are you a rebel?"
"I am proud to say that I have been, and am now on my way to the friendly shores of England."

"Well," continued his interlocutor, "please carry this to the old country for me, with the compliments of a Fenian," and with that he hit the Southerner a crushing blow on the snout, which brought the ruby, and made the trudger of Gen. Grant most happy to sneak away and avoid further notice.

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—The New York Tribune, with the assent of its neighbor, the Times, takes ground as follows on the negro suffrage question:—

"We are very willing—and believe the Unionists, white and black, would be willing—to accept an instalment of justice, and have the whole matter settled amicably and finally. If the Southern States will provide that every black who can read intelligently, who owns real estate and has paid a tax, shall be a voter, we would gladly accept this as a settlement of a vexed question, though it would probably not, for the present, enable one negro in a hundred —perhaps not one in five hundred—to vote.
But if the blacks are to be proscribed and banned forever—if they are to be taxed by the votes of whites who pay no tax, yet allowed no voice in levying those taxes or spending those proceeds—if they are to be held evermore as outcasts and lepers in the land of their birth—if they are to be debarr'd from all political rights by the votes of "three millions of rebels," and told that this is their punishment for having aided to overthrow the rebellion—why then we think the republic will owe them at least a determined effort to see them righted, and we shall incline to make that effort."

PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—Col. Halpine tells the following concerning the late President Lincoln. He writes:—

Our late President was once speaking about an attack made on him by the Committee on the Conduct of the War, for a certain alleged blunder, or something worse in the Southwest —the matter involved being one which had fallen directly under the observation of the officer to whom he was talking, who possessed official evidence completely upsetting all the conclusions of the committee.

"Might it not be well for me," queried the officer, "to set this matter right in a letter to some paper, stating the facts as they actually transpired?"

"Oh no," replied the President; at least not now. If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business.
I do the very best I know how, the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me went amount to anything.
If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

TO KEEP HENS FROM SITTING, the following plans are proposed:—

I have a gate made of laths, which proved too light for service as a gate, and I have laid it down upon some blocks which support it about two feet from the ground, and have placed a coop on it. Whenever I have a hen that wants to sit at an unseasonable period, I put her under that coop; the wind drawing up between the slats makes it too uncomfortable for the fowl to sit down long, and she soon gets out of the inclination.

Tie a bright red rag to her tail. When a hen nestles herself into her seat she always takes a very composed look at her surroundings, and as she catches a glimpse of the fiery object behind her, it is very amusing to see how quickly she will start and run from her nest.

A writer in the Home Missionary, for June makes the following pertinent observation:—

It is not easy for one not accustomed to the West to realize how largely every moral interest falls upon the shoulders of the few, in each new place, who have brought hither the New England faith and enterprise. While the trackless prairie is carved into fertile farms, and the towns spring up like mushrooms, it is a few individuals, mostly poor enough, upon whom comes the burden of providing for the peculiar New England institutions. Nobly they bear it; nobly New England reaches us a helping hand. Proudly we see New England enlarging her borders to the very boundary of the continent.

THE BORER.—The only sure remedy for the apple tree borer, is purely mechanical.
Probe the holes with a wire or whalebone, and crush the maggot; then wrap the lower part of the trunk for a foot or more with tanned paper, first removing the earth, so that the lower edge of the paper will be near the roots, and draw the earth back again.—[American Agri-culturalist.

Gov. SMITH, of New Hampshire, thus closes his annual message:—
"For myself, I shall feel that the great purpose of this war is not attained, the great lesson of this punishment not learned, until free schools, free churches, and a free ballot, are es-published wherever the Federal authority extends. This we owe to the good order and permanent security of all the States...

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

HARPER'S FERRY, VA., June 6th, 1865. Dear Mail!—A hot sultry day when everybody wants to find and stay in the coolest place...

There are at present stationed in this valley some twenty-five thousand or thirty thousand troops. This number will be lessened somewhat, but a sufficient guard will be left to protect the interests of the people.

But the men are going home. Yes, that is a sure thing. We see evidences of it every day. Thousands of Sherman's men have passed through this place on their homeward route during the past week...

The Christian Commission has still work enough for its delegates now in the field, although with the discharge and mustering out of the armies its work will mainly or entirely cease.

By a pleasant coincidence Waterville is just now largely represented in the Commission in this Department. Rev. N. C. Brackett, late of the College, is Field Agent; head quarters at Harper's Ferry.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS for July is full of nice stories for boys and girls, prettily illustrated; and when we see such a beautiful provision made for the youth of our country...

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—The July number of this magnificent monthly has been received direct from the publication office.

PETERSON'S LADIES' NATIONAL MAGAZINE.—The Ashes of Life, is the title of a beautiful steel engraving in the July number of this popular magazine...

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—The July number of this magazine opens with an engraving appropriate to the season, called "On the Cliff," a picture of two lovers enjoying the repose and freshness of the sea-shore...

STREET COMMISSIONER DOW!—a word in your ear, privately. We who live on College street would be greatly obliged to you, if, while dumping gravel to improve the road, you would so dispose of it as to spoil our street for a race course.

Now, Boys.—The trustees of the North Kennebec Agricultural Society will pay a premium of three dollars for the best collection of insects destructive to vegetation...

How not to do it, is a subject which puzzles some of our Generals who are more distinguished in the military profession than as orators.

THE PETITION FROM COLORED MEN.—Senator Sumner has received from the colored men of North Carolina a petition to be presented to President Johnson, asking for the right to vote.

THE LEWISTON JOURNAL, which is bold and earnest in denouncing the liquor traffic and prompt to sustain the execution of the laws against it, says that intemperance is decreasing in that city.

TARDY JUSTICE.—England and France have finally withdrawn belligerent rights from the confederates.

RARE CHANCE TO BUY DRY GOODS!

We refer those who have waited long and patiently for a fall in the price of dry goods to the advertisement of Messrs. E. T. Elden & Co., in our paper to-day.

F. F. WHITTIER, extensively known in this State as a travelling liquor agent, has been arrested in Houlton for poisoning his wife.

THE HUTCHINSON FAMILY.—that glorious band of sweet singers—are giving concerts in Equality, Victory, Liberty, and Fraternity.

Those who read the advertisement of Hubbard, Blake & Co., will get indications of enterprise based upon the right foundation—a determination to merit success.

THE EDITOR of the Charleston Mercury, in his letter to the Christian Register of the present week, relates the following:—"Said a gentleman, well known here, to me—himself a South-man and a large slave-owner, who had by word and act notoriously sided with the South—'What Maryland to-day wants is, five hundred thousand Yankees.' I smiled and said that I had not placed the number quite so high, when he repeated with emphasis, 'Yes; sir; five hundred thousand Yankees.'"

THE EDITOR of the Universalist, having been censured by a correspondent for intimating that Jeff Davis should be hung, retorts as follows:—"After the excitement has passed, and Jefferson Davis is hung, we may be sorry! But in all soberness let us say, if Jefferson Davis is not hung, the hand that in this land ever signs a death-warrant, should drop from its socket. If he is pardoned, let every prison door open."

DEA. BURGESS, a venerable citizen of this town, died last week, at the advanced age of 93 years. We hope to make further notice of his long life, at a convenient time.

THE ARMED WORM, or some insect similar to it, is making fearful ravages among the orchards and forest trees in this vicinity. It is conceded that the apple crop is nearly destroyed.

Gen. Howard, to whom the President referred the grievances of the Richmond blacks, told them that the odious pass system had been abolished, and that hereafter they would receive the full rights and protection of the military and civil authorities in their right as freedmen.

One of the most dangerous "signs of the times" is the general disposition of the worst type of copperhead papers to praise the reconstruction policy of President Johnson; and they praise it, too because, as they allege, it will head off all efforts to promote negro suffrage.

THE COLORED PEOPLE of Tennessee have petitioned the Legislature for the privilege of voting, presenting as an argument in behalf of their request their unswerving devotion to the Union, in every capacity and under all circumstances, throughout the terrible struggle of the rebellion.

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—What is the position of the administration on this question? This inquiry a correspondent the Boston Advertiser answers as follows:—

THE NEW EVENING POST'S Washington despatch says that Governor Hahn of Louisiana has published a card stating that the Legislature of that State has adopted the amendment to the Constitution abolishing slavery.

GOOD AUTHORITY says that General Grant will make quite a tour in July, on completing his pressing business in Washington, and that for the first time in his life he will visit the New England States.

IMPORTANT DECISION.—At the law term of the S. J. Court of New Hampshire, a decision of some interest to expressmen and their customers was rendered.

THE LONDON EXAMINER, after complacently asserting that Mr. Adams was for the most part educated in England, proceeds to say, that "no man can be freer from boast or bounce, flourish or swagger, exaggeration or shallow enthusiasm than the well-informed and well-bred gentleman who, fortunately for both countries, has during the last four years represented the Republic here."

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—Even the Boston Courier sees the absurdity of making the color of a man's skin determine a man's right to vote.

A KEEN RETORT.—Rather keen and suggestive was a repartee made the other evening by a little fellow in Pittsfield, Mass., barber shop.

WANTS.—To moisten them with water occasionally, and rub over them a piece of unslacked lime, will never hurt to remove them in due time.—[Phronological Journal.]

Rev. J. F. W. Ware of Baltimore, in his letter to the Christian Register of the present week, relates the following:—"Said a gentleman, well known here, to me—himself a South-man and a large slave-owner, who had by word and act notoriously sided with the South—'What Maryland to-day wants is, five hundred thousand Yankees.' I smiled and said that I had not placed the number quite so high, when he repeated with emphasis, 'Yes; sir; five hundred thousand Yankees.'"

LEWIS, Stephens and Hunter have petitioned for special pardon. Pardons are being rapidly issued to parties who apply.

THE NEW YORK EVENING POST'S Washington despatch says that the military authorities of the Department of Washington authorize the denial of the rumored destruction of the monuments on the Bull Run battle field.

Gen. Howard has received a letter from South Carolina, stating that forty thousand freedmen are engaged in cultivating the soil and nine thousand children are regularly attending school.

A deputation of colored residents of Richmond had an interview with the President recently in relation to the inhuman treatment they have received at the hands of the military authorities in that city.

THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNORS OF GEORGIA AND TEXAS.—A despatch of Saturday from Washington, states that the President has appointed Andrew J. Hamilton, of Texas to be Provisional Governor of that State; also Jas. Johnson of Georgia, to be Provisional Governor of Georgia.

THE LATEST STATEMENT about the condition of President Lincoln's estate is to the effect that he left about seventy-five thousand dollars, all invested in government bonds.

GOOD AUTHORITY says that General Grant will make quite a tour in July, on completing his pressing business in Washington, and that for the first time in his life he will visit the New England States.

HIGH RENTS are disgusting all at Richmond who have to pay them. Every one who has a house or store is to be hanged that the entire Yankee nation is coming after it, and charges accordingly.

SCANDAL ON THE BRAIN.

Of all the many maladies, And many human ills, That reach the brain...

There's Miss Fitz-Fry, the dear good soul; She never thinks of self...

Some people dress long and go to church, With faces long and grim;

And meekly say their morning prayers, But just as soon as church is o'er...

They go to school, oh, have you heard The strange and curious news...

How Mr. Mill, and Mr. Mill, Have taken some new views...

Now don't you think last Monday night, When I went to school...

And this you'll find, where'er you go, That some will talk and pry;

And seek to have a finger in Some other body's pie;

But ever how they strive to feel, Themselves the sharpest pain;

When suffering with the dread disease, Of "Scandal on the Brain."
