FEATURES

10/What Does Bro Do Anyway?

Think you know how a college president spends his time? Read this account to walk a mile—or maybe two or three—in President William “Bro” Adams’s shoes.

16/Looking Back from Afar

We know they have a profound influence on the Colby community. But where do international students go after Mayflower Hill?

22/How Bern Porter Saw the World

Scientist, artist, poet, Porter '32 contributed to the invention of television, worked on the Manhattan Project, published Henry Miller, knew Einstein and Werner von Braun, and hung out with Gertrude Stein and Allen Ginsberg. A remembrance of the extraordinary life of the most irascible resident of Belfast, Maine.

Mestieri's Mules

First-year jitters? Not for new football coach Ed Mestieri, who led the Mules to a 6-2 season and a CBB championship.

Attended Religiously

Students and faculty attended a forum on religion: its place at Colby, in national politics, and in our culture.

Back to the Woods

Displaced from its longtime training site by the new Bill Alford Field, the woodsmen's team is settled into its new camp.

A Little Special

Margaree Little '08 is a veteran social activist. Problem is her Quaker-style activism has, in the government's view, made her a potential security threat, she says.
