12-4-1892

To Harry de Forest Smith - December 4, 1892

Edwin Arlington Robinson

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.colby.edu/robinson_transcriptions

Part of the Literature in English, North America Commons

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.colby.edu/robinson_transcriptions/83

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the The Letters of Edwin Arlington Robinson: A Digital Edition at Digital Commons @ Colby. It has been accepted for inclusion in Edwin Arlington Robinson Letters and Transcriptions by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Colby. For more information, please contact mfkelly@colby.edu.
TO HARRY DE FOREST SMITH

1716 Cambridge St.
Dec 4 – ’92

My dear Smith,

Here it is Monday again and now before the week goes on any farther I will write you something to let you know that I am still here and rather anxious to get back to Gardiner. I am not feeling very lively to day as I worked last night until about one o'clock and then lay awake until four. That kind of thing takes the ambition from a man about as quickly as anything I know.

The principle things I have to trouble me just now are a midyear examination in Logic to come sometime and a thesis on the British Periodical Essayists (which I think I have mentioned) to come just after Newyear’s. Yesterday I took out John Dunton’s "Life and Errors" and the supplement to his "Athenian Oracle" to consult for the groundwork of the thing I expect to write. John Dunton was the founder of the so-called "Athenian Society" which consisted chiefly of himself, and professed to answer all questions in its power through the agency of the "Mercury". This seems to be the original form of that class of literature so well known in the Spectator etc.—Some of the propositions and answers are, to say the least, curious. For example take the following:

Queft:—

---

a WA adds a period here.
b WA has "comething"—doubtless a simple typo.
c WA omits the underline.
d WA omits the dash.
"Why does a Bladder full of Wind, thrust by force under the Water, ascend suddenly on the top thereof?"

Answer.--"Because the Air, or Wind, wherewith it is filled, returns to its natural place which is above the Water."

Question.

"Why does a Dog, of all other Animals, remain attached to the Bitch after Copulation, being not easily to be separated?"

Answer.

"Alexander Aphroditius³ faith, Prob. 75.¢ it has is because the Bitch and the P#ages of Nature very trait; and the Yard of the Dog dwelling within by the ebullition of the spirits, it is difficult after Copulation to withdraw it."

This book was printed about 1700 and was presented to the library in 1837. I find by the slip on the inside back cover that it has been taken out by two persons since besides myself since Dec 13, 1881. You see there is not a great call for Mr® Dunton³ work, though I will say that his "Life and Errors" is stamped with a few more dates. An incidental phrase in one of Mr. Gates' lectures put me on to them. I am not exactly discouraged over this thesis but somewhat uneasy. If I had a chance for a general "spew" like my last years paper on Pendennis, I should not be troubled. But then I think in I shall get through it someway.--Don't know exactly when I shall go home but probably somewhere about the 23d. Shall be glad to see you once more and have a pipe with you. I am smoking "Catac" right along now—find that a light tobacco goes better in the long run.

---

³ WA reads a comma here.
⁴ WA adds a period here.
⁵ WA reads "Dunton's".
⁶ WA reads "Don't".
Yours &c.
Robinson.

HCL  US, 77-78.

NOTES

1. John Dunton (1659-1733) was an English writer and founder/editor of the first of the British periodicals, The Athenian Mercury (1691-1697). The Mercury was especially innovative in that it featured a section where readers' questions on various subjects were answered by the members of the Athenian Society. Life and Errors of John Dunton (1705) was his autobiography, its full title being The life and errors of John Dunton: late citizen of London; written by himself in solitude. With an idea of a new life; wherein is shewn how he'd think, speak, and act, might he live over his days again. (SL)

2. One of the major British periodicals, established in 1828. (SL)

3. Or Alexander of Aphrodisius (fl. 200 C.E.), an important ancient Greek commentator on Aristotle. (SL)

\(^i\) WA reads "etc".