Jardine, Maine,
Feb 22 - '94.

My dear Lachan,

I wrote you a letter some time ago in which I fear I said too much. As I remember it, the main point which I mentioned was the matter of foreign employment. I might easily be misunderstood and that is also a different light from that in which I intended to "see." I am subject to fits of over-emotion - I might say impatience - and often such views I am like to say or to write a little more than I mean. I fancy that the letter as a whole might have gone in such as to the
I am at a loss for words to express what I feel at the present moment. I have been in Cambridge for some time, and I am beginning to realize what a great change it has brought about in my life and in my ideas. I am beginning to understand that life is not just a series of events, but a continuous process of learning and growth. I am beginning to see that no one can truly be happy without a sense of purpose and direction.

I am beginning to see that the things I have been doing in the past are not enough. I need to find a new path, a new way of living. I need to find a new purpose in life. I need to find a new direction. I need to find a new way of thinking.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about pleasing others, but about pleasing myself. I need to find a new way of living, a new way of thinking. I need to find a new way of being.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about living, but about growing. I need to find a new way of growing, a new way of learning. I need to find a new way of becoming.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about success, but about failure. I need to find a new way of failing, a new way of learning from failure. I need to find a new way of growing from failure.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about reaching my goals, but about reaching out. I need to find a new way of reaching out, a new way of connecting with others. I need to find a new way of reaching out to others.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about getting things done, but about getting things done. I need to find a new way of getting things done, a new way of being productive. I need to find a new way of being productive.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about being happy, but about being content. I need to find a new way of being content, a new way of being happy. I need to find a new way of being happy.

I am beginning to see that life is not just about being successful, but about being successful. I need to find a new way of being successful, a new way of being happy. I need to find a new way of being happy.
content at all times and I can no doubt shall;
it has made me wonder what more was written on occasion.

I'm just read "Marta Alberici" by Cheston.
It's a Off your thing - my friend does talk a lot in his speech up to your, telling what I suppose you will soon read. Of all I have sent a time past.

I mean I just letter from Intellectual and long ago or which he requires for your lonely part. Yet has been suit for me a child is had no just told from a trouble journey. Not from want to Cambridge he wrote, gave been little for Odessa. I wish him is really to Dante. He is his famous picture and still is much more Dante's in continental pleasure.
So far that I can right or wrong?

Well, I send the stay thing for a reply.
the only men you substitute. Do you want to me tell me a little more about you. I now urge my assistant and write a letter to Ford now. I found the real men is there thing my much fault to Vermont
the must always.
If not called for in 10 days, return to Box 595
Gardiner, Maine.

Mr. George W. Latham
Delaware Literary Institute Franklin, N.Y.