WHAT CONSTITUTES A DONOR.

In the February number of The Educational Review is an article upon The Rights of Donors, being the "Report of an address before the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland, at Syracuse, N. Y.," by James C. Colgate, of the Colgate family of educational fame.

In a very interesting and convincing manner, the author discusses the rights of donors, the obligations of the institutions to their donors, and freedom of speech in the institutions. Near the close of the discussion Mr. Colgate speaks of what constitutes a donor, and one paragraph seems to contain so much of sound wisdom, that we are impelled to quote it, the author says:

"By the way, why should we always imply, when we speak of a donor, somebody who has given money? Isn't it time that we got away from that construction; is it not time that we should recognize as donors not only those men who have given of their abundance, but also those who have poured into the treasury of an institution their very living, all that they had, even themselves—those who have given their lives, when they have had no money to give?"

Are they not donors, as well as those who have simply put their hands into their pockets and given of their money? When we speak of the rights of donors, then, we do not refer to this man and that man who has given of his millions or his tens of millions, but we refer to those who have honestly, conscientiously, and faithfully devoted their lives and the best of themselves, to those Universities for which they have worked."

It is very true that a donor is not necessarily a giver of money, and it is evident that a man whose life has been spent in one continual attempt to further the interests of an institution in the many ways in which opportunity offers is entitled to be reckoned among the institutions' greatest benefactors. But there are many, nowadays, who do not see it in this way. The tendency of the times seems to be to forget the true value of true service.

John D. Rockefeller gave the University of Chicago a check for $1,000,000 as a Christmas present.

BASEBALL AT COLBY.

In a recent issue of the Bowdoin Orient, there appeared an article showing by tables and scores, the splendid record made by Bowdoin in the various branches of athletics. A few days later, the Kennebec Journal, whose pro-Bowdoin proclivities have become proverbial, commented at some length upon the findings of The Orient.

Believing that both articles were calculated to give a wrong impression in regard to one department of athletics, we resolved to look over a few statistics, and give Colby men a chance to see what Colby has done in baseball during the years past.

While we were looking up the matter, letters commenced to come in upon us from alumni who had read the Bowdoin report either in The Orient or Journal, and who were either amused or surprised according to whether they knew or wanted to know the facts in the case.

In reviewing the athletic past, The Orient very tactfully took football and track athletics from their beginning with the four Maine colleges, and, from the fact that Bowdoin was the pioneer in these events, disclosed a very creditable showing.

But in baseball, The Orient went back only one decade, and by so doing showed that in baseball, as the Journal says, "the honors have been more evenly divided." The fact of the matter is that championship games between the colleges started in 1881, and not before that year did baseball at Colby assume the position which it has held from that time on. It is interesting to note that during the nine years which The Orient very cleverly left out of account, Colby won the championship six times, and Bowdoin once. During all the years since championship games have been played, Colby has won the championship more times than Bowdoin, Bates and the University of Maine together. We append the baseball scores since 1880, in the hope that they may prove interesting to Colby men:

PRIVATE SECRETARY AT OAKLAND.

The Dramatic Club achieved another success in Oakland Wednesday evening in presenting the comedy drama "The Private Secretary." Manager Chipman took his troupe out of town on the afternoon train, returning Thursday forenoon. The play was presented to a full house, and gave complete satisfaction to the large audience.

Mr. J. A. Partridge was unable to play the part of "Eva Webster," and his place was taken by G. W. Chipman. Notwithstanding the change, the production was fully up to the high standard set in City Hall by the initial performance.

All the arrangements were made by L. G. Lord, and the club appreciated his hard work as stage manager and overseer of arrangements. It was largely through his efforts that the play went off so smoothly. The long continued applause given him on his appearance testified to his popularity in his native village. The club was also grateful to Manager Chipman, who supplied a difficult part and played it well.

H. L. Gray starred as "Edith," and L. E. Dudley as "Harry" was one of the characters most appreciated by the largest audience ever gathered in an Oakland hall.

The students have been pained to learn of the death of the father of Miss Koch, of the Board of Instruction and of Mr. C. C. Koch of the class of 1902. The sympathy of the college goes out to them in their bereavement.

THE D. U. RIDE.

It has come to be a settled event that the Delta Upsilon fraternity shall hold a sleigh-ride each winter, and that the sleigh shall upset and spill Dr. Marquardt and Miss Mathews into the snow. Last year on the return from Canibas Inn the whole company was plunged into confusion and snowbanks by the tilting of the sleigh. This year it was thought by the committee that the sensational part of the programme would better come early before anyone expected it. The sleigh-bells started in front of Ladies' Hall at 5 P. M. on Monday, and jingled steadily along amid songs, laughter, and whoopings of all sorts. The senior discoursed gravely to his co-ord of the time when college days should all be over, and the freshman sought frantically for things to say and said them to his co-ord as well as he could. Everybody was happy. Herr Doctor was happy. He had sung us many a pretty German song and the thought of his "Vaterland" was strong upon him.

"Es braust ein Ruf wie Donnerhall—", he began, and then it happened. The leading horse was whirled off his feet down under the trampling of his mates, and the sensation was on. Then were frightened screams and gallant rescues. In a twinkling all were safely out of the sleigh. After a hasty consultation most decided to walk the rest of the way, as Gleason's, the destination, was only half a mile ahead. Herr Doctor took the lead "zu spatzieren gehen" and piloted the walkers safely toward the light gleaming in the distance. A few remained behind, some heroically, to rescue the horses, and some to watch their heroes. After a half hour of repairing the sleigh was able to go on, and all reached the supper-table safely.

That supper-table was a welcome and cheering sight. From Herr Doctor and McKoy at the head to Workman at the foot there was not one who was not hungry, and the Pater Sanctissimus of the Epicureans said "It is good for us to be here." Songs and stories found their way between bites, and Dr. Marquardt twice arose to return tit for tat when the "Dutch Company", and "Du bist mein Honig" were sung to him.

After supper the company gathered in the parlors, and if there was little room there was much going on. Various games, music and dancing, a college story written by the man from Freeport, and a couple of dissertations by Dooley made the hours fly with winged feet. It seemed all too previous when we were told that the teams were ready and that we must return to the city by the river.

There was no sensation on the return trip, and everyone felt safe and comfortable, for the D. U.'s would never allow two spills in one ride. Oh no! It is not the privilege of this historian to name the hour when the party finally disembarked and straightened the kinks out of themselves. Let him add only that those who had ears to hear might have heard them when they came.

The proposed conference of representatives of the athletic associations of the four Maine colleges, to attempt to secure greater harmony in inter-collegiate athletic matters deserves approbation by everyone who admires honesty and fairness in college sport. The relation of colleges with one another will be just as harmonious as are the athletic teams in their dealings with one another. The four colleges ought to stand together in the best of friendliness, and there ought never to be any misunderstanding in athletic matters, of such a nature as to perpetuate the least inharmonious feeling between any of the Maine colleges. Perfect harmony is much desired. The proposed conference should help to bring this about.

For some time past, the condition of the campus walks has been decidedly to be criticised. The walks have been allowed to suffer from the alternating snows, rains, and thaws without any attention or effort toward keeping them clear. The result is a rough, uneven ridge of ice and snow running the length of the walks leaving for the only passable portion, a few inches on either side. This condition of things makes walking on the planks disagreeable in the daytime and nothing less than dangerous, in the dark. When the walks were covered with several inches of snow, one could walk around the campus and experience nothing worse than discomfort, but now that instead of the aggregate of the winter's snow, the walks are covered with an uneven and slippery surface of ice, one almost risks his life and limbs to venture out. This condition can be very easily bettered, and we hope it will be very soon.

In the local department of this issue, the news editor comments upon the lack of proper regard for chapel exercises, and we feel to say a word editorially upon the same subject. The spirit shown by a small portion of the students toward the morning chapel service is nothing less than disgusting. The devotional parts of the chapel exercises are entitled to full respect from all, and those who do not show the same attention and respect for these services, as they would at church, Sunday morning, show themselves to be still ignorant of the laws of decency and of the fitness of things. A student would better have six absences a week on the monitor's report, than gain the notoriety of being one of those few who persist in going to chapel to disturb those who go with the proper spirit. THE ECHO has spoken of this subject several times before, and we shall not cease our contention until a decided change is seen.

The manager of the basket ball team is making an urgent appeal for greater interest to be shown in the game by the men of the college, and THE ECHO feels that this appeal should be immediately heeded. During the few months just passing, before baseball practice gains very great headway, the preeminence in athletic sports should be granted to basket ball and those who play the game ought to give their active support toward seeing that the strength of the college is put upon the floor, when the Colby team faces the team from another college. A college ought never to send out an athletic team which does not represent the very best it can do in that particular line. We join with the manager in urging all who possibly can, to unite zealously and faithfully in attempting to put the best possible basket ball team on to the floor in the rest of the games for which Colby is scheduled.

A movement has been started to form a quadrangular league of the Maine Colleges, after the plan of the triangular league of Amherst, Wesleyan, and Williams, consisting of one alumnus, one member of the Faculty, and one undergraduate from each college. The object is to secure greater harmony between the four colleges concerning all athletic matters.

THE ECHO desires to be allowed to make a few suggestions for the benefit of those good people who are always busy in chapel and so of course have no time to think of them. It has no objections to raise to what is done there by these good people, for of course the chapel is the place for everything. No one would presume to object to conversation, dropping books on the floor, scuffling, studying, and laughter; all this is appropriate and to be expected during chapel services. But in order that it may not distract the attention of visitors from the religious portion, THE ECHO suggests: that those who converse should revive these excellent appliances, the old fashioned courting tubes; that those who have books to drop should fasten them by short cords which will not quite reach the floor; that the scufflers have punching bags set up in their seats; that those who study have double music racks capable of holding both a hymn-book and a text-book; and the merry ones who laugh all the time take some stereoscopic views of funeral processions to look at during the prayer at least. THE ECHO believes that by adopting these suggestions all the varied interests might be reconciled and our chapel services go on smoothly as a mid-summer dream.

THE SNORER.

[Authorities consulted, James' Psychology, especially the chapter on The Stream of Consciousness, Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, Young's Night Thoughts.]

"Tired Nature's sweet restorer,"
By Young called "balmy sleep,"
Alights upon the snorer,
While others watch and weep.
I lie awake till morning,
Undone with pain and woe,
While in the room adjoining
I hear my sleeping foe.
O Night, thou sable goddess,
Upon thine ebony throne,
With sceptre on thy bodice,
Why let the world alone?
Deign to regard the weeping,
And comfort those who wake,
Arouse this monster sleeping,
For tired Nature's sake.

CONCERNING BASKET BALL.

The question is often asked, why didn't you win in basket ball last night? That can be answered very briefly. The strength of the college is not in the field. It is true that some of our best men have been absent from the team on account of injuries and they are to be excused. Others too have to do outside work which takes so much of their time they have none left to play. These things coupled with the accustomed ill luck which always accompanies a Colby Athletic team has greatly handicapped the strength of the team. But this is not all. At the beginning of the season it was no trouble to get out at least three teams but now it takes a lot of canvassing to get out two teams and many times fail to do this. The only way to place a winning team on the floor is to have men enough out there every day to give the varsity team hard practice.

Basket ball is like every other college game, it takes good, hard, constant work to be able to win.

U. of M. is coming to Waterville Feb. 25, and they expect to repeat their performance of Feb. 1. It is with Colby to say whether they will do it or not. Maine has the right idea of the matter if we jog along as we have been doing for the last two weeks. We have the material here in college with which to beat the University of Maine in basket ball on Feb. 25, at City Hall if we will only get together and put in some faithful practice. The injured men are now recovered and with these men back in the game, together with a great deal more interest manifested by the men of the college, we can place a team in the field that will be a credit to the college. When a foot ball, base ball or a basket ball team suffers defeat we often hear certain members of that team criticised as being responsible for the defeat when the critic himself is just as much responsible for the defeat as the player and I will say in many cases more so, for the player puts his theory into practice, while the theory of the critic can not be demonstrated.

These words are not offered as a criticism but that we may have a little more support in this branch of Athletics.

THE GLEE CLUB.

The Glee Club is now away on its first trip for the season, giving concerts in Newport, Hartland and Corinna.

The musical clubs gave a rehearsal to which the public were invited in the chapel, Tuesday evening. A fairly good sized audience was present and all enjoyed the program thoroughly. The selections given by the Glee Club under the leadership of Saunders, are all good, the songs are catchy, and the singing is lively and spirited. The club seems to be especially well-balanced and will no doubt give the same complete satisfaction as it did last year.

The orchestra has been working hard under Mr. Brunel, as leader, and great things are expected of this part of the musical organization. The mandolin-guitar club is fully up to the average, having put in some faithful practice under Workman, who is this year's leader.

Mr. Palmer, who achieved such success last year, as vocal soloist will be heard again this year, and Mr. Saunders also has a solo with the Glee Club. Mr. Perkins begins this year as reader; he has had a great deal of experience as a speaker, and with a good list of selections ought to prove very satisfactory.

Mr. Brunel, in his violin solos made a decided hit wherever last year's clubs appeared, and there will be many this season who will be glad of an opportunity of again hearing one of the most promising young violinists in the state. The program which the organizations are presenting is as follows:

PART I.

DAY OF PRAYER.

The day of prayer for colleges was observed last Sunday by appropriate services. Heretofore this observance has come on a week-day, thus giving a full holiday, but this year, the new arrangement was tried and Sunday was the day observed. The Y. M. C. A., held special services in the association room in the forenoon, at which a good proportion of the student body was present. At 3.30 in the afternoon, the exercises were continued in the chapel. This service was open to members and friends of the college, and a good sized congregation was assembled. The service was conducted by President White, assisted by Rev. E. C. Whittemore, '70.

ATHLETIC ELECTIONS.

Frank P. Hamilton, '02, has been elected manager of the track team. Mr. Hamilton managed the freshman baseball team and has had experience in this work.

W. H. Hawes, '08, who served as captain of the track team last year, has been re-elected captain for another year.

George T. Sweet, '08, has been elected scorer and assistant manager of baseball for the coming season. Mr. Sweet was assistant manager of the track team last year, and is also assistant manager of the Echo.

Colby College,

Waterville, Maine.

The College was chartered in 1818. It is most favorably situated in a city of about 10,000 inhabitants at the most central point in Maine, in a region unsurpassed for beauty and healthfulness. It offers the classical course with 70 electives, also a course without Greek, leading to the degree of Ph. B.

The Library contains 36,000 volumes and is always accessible to students. The college possesses a unique Physical Laboratory, a large Geological Museum, and is the repository of the Maine Geological Collection. A new and thoroughly equipped Chemical Laboratory was opened in September, 1899. Physical training is a part of the required work. There is a gymnasium with baths, and an excellent cinder-track.

The preparatory department of the college consists of four affiliated academies: (1) Oborn Classical Institute, owned by the college, Waterville; (2) Hebron Academy, Hebron, (Oxford county); (3) Ricker Classical Institute, Houlton, Aroostook county; (4) Higgins Classical Institute, Charleston, (Penobscot county).
