BANQUET OF COLBY CLUB.

The first annual reception and dinner of the Colby Club was held at the Elmwood, Friday evening, February 14, and was a success in every sense of the word. From eight until nine o'clock, a reception was held in the parlors of the hotel, the reception committee consisting of Dr. F. C. Thayer, Elwood T. Wyman, A. F. Drummond and John E. Nelson. This social part of the occasion was an especially pleasant one.

A large number of the alumni were present, besides a number of former students; nor was the attendance confined to Colby men residing in Waterville and immediate vicinity, for there were alumni who registered from all over the State.

Nearly every class was represented from the early fifties to the present time. The oldest graduate present, was Appleton A. Plaisted, '51, and there were several from '01, the class which is now passing its first year of alumnihood.

At nine o'clock, the alumni entered the dining room for dinner. After the banquet was over, Rev. E. C. Whittemore, '79, the President of the Club, who acted as toastmaster, arose and made a few remarks of introduction. He first gave expression to a cordial greeting to the members of the Club who had not been actively interested in its organization but who had been only too glad to place their names on the roll of membership, as soon as they learned that such a Club had been formed. Mr. Whittemore explained the reasons for the existence of the Club, and told how it had been organized.

He said the Club stood first of all for loyalty. Colby men are prominent in every line of business and profession. It means something to graduate from Colby. Colby is doing excellent work; she needs the cordial support of all her alumni; the Club must be loyal to Colby. The Club also stands for interest; alumni want to know what is going on both among alumni and undergraduates; the Club must keep men interested.

In the third place, it stands for fellowship; fellowship toward one another and toward undergraduates; alumni must co-operate with the college and the students; fraternity must be fostered, or the whole fabric will be in danger of falling apart.

The remarks of the presiding officer were characteristically serious and earnest, but were interspersed with some witty stories and local allusions which put the post-prandial portion of the banquet in a state of good humor at the outset.

President White was introduced as the first speaker and he was greeted with long and hearty applause from the alumni present. He spoke in an interesting manner of the four former Presidents of Colby whom he had known, one of whom, President Whitman had been his classmate in Brown, and another, President Pepper, who occupied a seat at the head of the table.

His allusion to Dr. Pepper called forth a burst of hearty applause. He had been deeply impressed with the loyalty of the faculty and with the college spirit shown by the students; he thought Colby spirit was a distinguishing feature, he could pick out a Colby man almost anywhere.

He spoke complimentarily of Professor Hedman, and congratulated the college on being able to retain him on the faculty in the face of very flattering offers from other institutions, which had done their best to secure the services of one of the best teachers of modern languages who ever went from America to the University of Paris. He spoke of the long and faithful service of Judge Bonney as Treasurer, and then spoke openly and hopefully of the present needs of the college, and its prospects. He outlined the plans for broadening the scope of the work of the college, and closed by giving his idea of the anagrammatical meanings of the letters spelling Colby: C stands for Christian ideal, conservatism and criticism; O stands for optimism; L for loyalty, B for beneficence and Y for yoke fellows. The ovation given him at the close of his remarks, showed the confidence placed by the alumni in the new executive of the college.

Forrest Goodwin, Esq., '87, of Skowhegan, was to have addressed the meeting, but he was unable to be present on account of professional business, and Hon. S. S. Brown, '58, was introduced as the next speaker. He spoke in a convincing and forceful style and his remarks were given the closest attention. He compared the conditions and relations in Colby today with those existing in Waterville College when he was a student in the institution under that name. He stated several ideas of how the Club might be of service to the college and the students.

The last speaker was Leslie C. Cornish, Esq., '75, of Augusta. He spoke of the good work being done by athletics in the American colleges, and cited President Roosevelt as a typical athlete. He thought the Colby Club should be primarily a fraternal organization, and that its great work should be to make the alumni better acquainted with themselves and with the undergraduates and their work. He spoke very earnestly of the good fortune of the trustees in being able to place such a strong man at the helm, and paid a very pretty compliment to President White—"a President who was in the chair to stay."

When the speechmaking was over, E. T. Wyman led in giving the old C-O-L-B-Y-Rah-Rah-Rah, and this yell was followed by a rousing three times three for President White.

The entire affair was an unqualified success, and there was absolutely nothing to regret unless it was that the goodly number present, had not been swelled even larger by Colby men who are confidently expected to become actively interested in the coming banquets and receptions of the Colby Club.

BOSTON ALUMNAE.

The Boston Colby Alumnae Association held a meeting at Hotel Oxford, Nottingham Ave., Feb. 8, from two to five-thirty p. m. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Herbert L. Gale and Miss Grace Gatchell, both of '99, assisted by Miss Leland and Mrs. Woodman Bradbury of earlier classes.

The afternoon was spent in a wholly informal way. Greetings were exchanged, conversation was held with old friends, and new acquaintances were made among those of classes earlier or later than one's own day. Light refreshments were served. For the alumnae to keep thus in touch with one another means their keeping in touch with the college, and a fostering of a strong college spirit, the object for which the association is working.

Those present were, Martha D. Tracy,

'97, president of the association, Elevia Harriman, '99, secretary, Miss Leland, Mrs. Bradbury, Dora Libby, Mrs. Tilton, Linda Graves and Blanche Lane, '95, Mary S. Crosswell, '96, Mrs. Gale, Grace Gatchell and Helen M. Hanscom, '97, Alice Purinton and Maude Hoxie, '99, and Miss Dunn and Miss Pierce recent members of the college.

The next meeting will be held March 8, and will be in charge of Miss Hanscom and Miss Harriman.

ZETA PSI CONVENTION.

The fifty-sixth annual Convention of the Grand Chapter of the Zeta Psi Fraternity of North America was held in Providence, R. I., February 21, and 22, in connection with the celebration of the semi-centennial anniversary of the founding of the Epsilon Chapter at Brown University.

The Convention was one of the largest and most successful in the history of the Fraternity. Every chapter was represented, the delegates coming from North Carolina on the south, and Toronto on the north, from Stanford on the west and Colby on the east, and the seventeen chapters intervening.

The delegates and Grand Chapter officers began to arrive in Providence Thursday, and the Narragansett hotel was made headquarters. This new and elegant hostelry was thrown entirely open to the visitors and it is safe to say that the Narragansett was never more entirely in the possession of college men than it was on Thursday night and the three days following.

All the sessions of the Convention were held in Masonic Hall, which had been placed at the disposal of the Fraternity, a fact which was all the more appreciated because the favor extended to the chapter was an unusual one.

Friday morning, the delegates registered and the chairmen of the twenty-one delegations presented their credentials. Upon registering, each brother received a printed program of the Convention, tickets to the various functions given by the local chapter and the souvenir badge of the Convention. This was a tasty badge in white and gold, comprising a circle within a circle on a circular field. In the inner circle was the anchor, shield and motto, "hope," of the coat of arms of Rhode Island, and in the outer circle, the words "Zeta Psi Epsilon 1852-1902."

The greater part of the first day was taken up with the business sessions. Friday evening, the entire Convention was entertained most royally by the Brown Chapter at the Squantum Club, a few miles down Narragansett Bay. The brothers were conveyed to this place by a special train, and the ride was by no means the least enjoyable occasion of the Convention. Songs and yells made the trip seem very short and a general good time was interrupted when "Squantum" was announced. This resort is one of the most elegant on the coast, and is the property of a club of wealthy men in Providence, and from the fact that several of these are Zetes, the magnificent club house was thrown open to the Brown chapter in which to entertain its guests.

After an informal reception, dinner was served, and varied entertainment provided. During the dinner, the orchestra dispensed music very freely, and when it started the first notes of "Lauriger Horatius," the entire Convention forgot what course was being served and rose to its feet with one accord and joined in the words of its ever popular "Zeta Psi, we pledge tonight, ever more to love thee."

A demonstration of the same sort occurred when the national air was played, and after the delegates had sung the three verses of America, a brother carried the flag of Great Britain to the table where the McGill and Toronto delegates were seated, and as the orchestra continued, the same voices were raised in "God save the king." At a late hour, the party returned to Providence, heaping unstinted praise upon the Epsilon Chapter in its capacity as host.

Saturday morning was held the last session of the Convention in secret conclave, this session being prolonged well into the afternoon. Various matters of importance to the Fraternity were attended to. No charters for new chapters were granted, the Fraternity preferring to maintain its established ultra-conservative position in regard to increasing its chapter roll. The last petitions which the Grand Chapter refused to grant, were from students at University of Chicago, and Ohio Wesleyan University.

Immediately after adjournment Saturday afternoon, the Fraternity group picture was taken, and commemorative anniversary exercises were held in Sayles' Hall on the Brown campus. It was especially fitting that the Epsilon should celebrate its fiftieth anniversary in this building, which was erected in honor of William C. Sayles, a Brown Zete in the class of '78. The annual banquet was held at the "Eloise" Saturday evening. The principal speaker was Hon. Elisha Dyer, Epsilon '59, Ex-Governor of Rhode Island.

The Chi Chapter of Colby was represented by Carroll N. Perkins, '04, Leon G. Saunders, '02, and Angier Louis Goodwin, '02. There were also present, the following elder brothers of the chapter: Reuben W. Dunn, '68, Rev. C. E. Owen, '79, Dr. Everett Flood, '79, Harry L. Koopman, '80, Dr. Jay Perkins, '91, Chas. E. Cohen, '92, Henry Wesley Dunn, '96, Willard L. McFadden, '98, T. Raymond Pierce, '98, and Robert B. Austiu, '99.

Miss Pratt and Miss Roberts, '82, and Miss Johnson, '03, have gone to Toronto to attend the convention.

Well, how did you like it? What? Oh, the basket ball game with U. of M., Tuesday night. Old Colby can play some!

Messrs. Allen, Daggett, Dudley, L. E. Dudley, J. P. Clark, Lewis, Teague and Stearns of the Junior class, took dinner at Pres. White's on Wednesday.

The petition was a success. The walks have all been cleaned off and life and limb are more secure on the campus than they have been for some time past.

The much needed alterations are being made in the gymnasium shower baths. Several of the useless old tubs have been torn out, and a fine large room with ring and spray is being fitted up in the space they occupied. There have been no more needed and more welcome changes made on the campus for some time.

On account of lack of space, the account of the Colby Club Banquet and Glee Club trip had to be put over until this issue. We ask the pardon of our readers for having to present material even a week out of date.

In this issue are reports of three Colby Alumni Association meetings, and every one carries the same spirit of loyalty to Alma Mater, and assures all interested, that the alumni of the college were never more earnestly active in backing every movement made in the interests of Colby, than they are at the present time.

This week, again, we are crowded for space, and in consequence, our editorial column is the department which has to suffer.

BOSTON COLBY ALUMNI.

The twenty-first annual reunion of the Boston Colby Alumni Association was held at the Brunswick Hotel, Thursday evening, February 20. The attendance was large and the meeting an enthusiastic one. Rev. William Howe, '88, the second oldest alumnus of the college was present, and was called upon to speak. His speech was extemporaneous, but was full of good things and held the close attention of the alumni assembled. He recorded the many interesting features of his early struggle for an education, and told the story of his life at Waterville college and at Newton Theological Institution. Very interesting and inspiring were these words of the Father of Tremont Temple.

Charles F. Hill, '75, the President of the association, who also acted as presiding officer, spoke very wittily his words of introduction and served very acceptably in doing the pleasure-making ordinarily expected of a toastmaster.

Then came the introduction to the Boston alumni, of the new executive of the college, President Charles L. White. President White was greeted by a perfect storm of applause, the entire body of alumni rising in their seats to welcome the new head of the college which they love so much.

President White spoke of the work being done at Colby, by the students, by the faculty, by the trustees and by the friends of the college in other capacities.

He spoke of the efforts being successfully put forward to remove the deficit, and prophesied that in the near future, the deficit would be entirely a thing of the past.

He enumerated the various lines of work which he found time to attend to, in connection with his duties, all of which were earnestly bent toward securing one grand aim,—the upbuilding of Colby's condition and position in every department of existence, until Colby should become what she ought to be,—“the greatest small college in the country.”

He spoke of the hearty cooperation of the faculty and students, and told many encouraging things pointing to the fact that the best part of Colby's history is in the future. He believed that the present time was the psychological moment for Colby to come to the front, and that ample means were on the point of being provided to make such a thing financially possible.

The address of President White was full of words of cheer. It received throughout, the most absorbed attention of all who were present, and when he had finished, the hearty applause showed how far into the hearts of Massachusetts alumni, the new president of Colby had, even on short acquaintance, won his way.

The next speaker was President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University. He told of the arduous duties of a college president, and urged the Colby alumni to give President White not only loyal support, but continual support.

President Faunce said in part: “I don't see how Pres. White could possibly do all he has said the Colby president has to do. The only reason I can see is that he was a Brown graduate. I believe he was called to Colby's presidency by the power that shapes our ends.”

“Your president is going to grow if you give him the the sunshine of your support and devotion. No loyalty or enthusiasm ever comes out of endowment—but consistent and persistent loyalty brings support. Brown university became such with Francis Wayland and $30,000. Only $13 was the beginning of Colgate university. Yale college was started by 10 men giving 40 books, all they could.”

“The American college is not seeking specifically to teach men to earn a living, but to live a life. There must not be too much science in our courses. The apparatus, the mechanism is almost outgrowing our life. There is grave danger of its surpassing the better part of our nature.”

“The two ways the alumni of a college can aid it are by persistent loyalty and living a true, earnest life for the benefit of the community.”

Other speakers were A. P. Soule, '78, Dr. F. F. Whittier, '81, W. O. Crawford, '82, George H. Sturdy, '83, and A. H. Kelley, '73. All the speakers expressed great cheerfulness for the future of Colby and voiced the universal sentiment of alumni everywhere, in commending in unstinted terms, the very satisfactory manner in which President White had gone about his work.

Before adjourning, the following officers were elected: W. H. Furber, '82, Pres.; Dr. F. F. Whittier, '81 and G. J. Peavey, '75, Vice Pres.; M. S. Getchell '93, Sec.-Treas. These additions to the executive committee were made: H. S. Weaver, '82, Dr. H. A. Smith, '86, E. F. Merriman '88, George H. Sturdy '79, E. L. Getchell.

A BATTLE ROYAL.

Poor old Maine! She missed her nine acre patch and the side nets to dive into. No ordinary floor, where the officials can do without megaphones, is sufficient to give room for their famous tackles-back formations. The Maelstrom swirled, and Ellstrom sprawled and Soderstrom slugged in vain. They were outplayed and for once got enough of roughing it.

Glover won the toss and chose the goal toward the campus for the sake of the omen. Palmer took a lowly stand against six feet six, and Dr. Frew threw up the ball. The game started with a snap and after a pretty exhibition of passing and blocking, Colby caged the first goal; the captain was the lucky man. Then the mix up began. It was fierce and hard but Colby was having the best of it and Allen soon brought up the score to Colby 6, U. of M., 0. A series of fouls and misses (not chickens and cords) followed, and then Soder at the middle of the field threw the ball wildly into the atmosphere, let out his left at Cowing, tumbled in a heap, and struggled to his feet to find that he had scored. The U. of M., yaggers indulged in cat-calls and cow-bells and looked rustically cheerful.

But their faces fell when Allen slipped by his man and scored again. And so the battle went on. Maine scored by good work, then "Spud" dodged the scandinavian and took a free throw from the center of the field. Did you notice his face when the ball was dancing on the rim? Such ecstasies of agony and expectation! But when the ball settled in the net, "Spud" gave the war-whoop and fell from sheer delight. Just before the half ended, Allen got an open chance and scored easily. The period was over and the score stood Colby 15, U. of M., 6.

In the second half Maine had blood in her eye and luck up her sleeve but it ended with blood on her nose and luck on the roof. This half was a combination of football, basket ball and marbles. It was one merry round of characteristic U. of M., fights and they were outfought as well as outplayed. There is seldom any satisfaction in playing a game in contradiction to the principles of the rule book, but it was time to show Maine that she couldn't play horse forever and keep the long end of the rope. Colby was in hard luck in throwing goals, but she didn't really need to score. Maine scored twice, while Colby caged no goals from the field, but Colby kept the ball the greater part of the time and did what clean passing there was done. More than half a dozen times the ball hung on the edge of the basket, but fate was unkind, so the score fails to show the extent to which we outplayed the vanquished.

It is difficult to make any personal mention, all of Colby team played their best. Palmer deserves great credit for the game he played against Ellstrom, who is a tall man and one of Maine's best players. Cowing played a hard game with his man, and Glover did some very fast work. Teague and Huntington played clean fast ball, and kept each other busy.

Manager Atchley kept score when he didn't forget it in his excitement. He feels confident that he gave the people their money's worth, and the world looks bright.

If you weren't at Coburn gym. on Tuesday night, Feb. 25, you missed a great game. There is but one way to make up for it—come the next time.

THE READING ROOM.

For several years here at Colby there has been a good deal of fault-finding with the condition of the Reading Room, and much of it has been well founded. With the end in view of giving to the students a good collection of representative newspapers, the new management has taken charge of the room. New racks and holders have been put up and the most representative papers from New York, Washington and Chicago, added to the list of those from Boston and Portland. Professor Taylor very kindly gives editions of the London Times. To these will be added Public Opinion, so that hereafter there can be no grounds for even the chronic kickers to find fault with the papers. During the coming vacation it is planned to give the room a fresh coat of paint and put in some reading stools and chairs.

Now these improvements are being made with the expectation that the fellows will properly appreciate them and act accordingly. Heretofore even the equipment which we did have was unmercifully abused. Whoever has a spirit which prompts him to set fire to a newspaper on the rack, thus not only depriving his fellows of the reading matter, but also endangering the building to conflagration, shows at once what may be expected from him in the future, and whoever takes delight in breaking up furniture or mutilating the papers had better go live in the slums of some city amongst the huddlums.

It rests with the students to maintain the improvements which have begun. With the hearty co-operation of the fellows the Reading Room committee will guarantee what we have so long wanted—a good college reading room.

On the left as you enter the room are the Boston and local papers; across the room, those from New York, Chicago and Washington; and on the rack are the Portland and other Maine papers.

THE MUSICAL TRIP.

It was decreed by manager Thyng that the Musical Clubs should make their debut for this season at Newport, Me., on the evening of Feb. 13. Accordingly at about four o'clock last Thursday afternoon twenty-five men laden with the necessary equipments of dress-suit cases, mandolins, fiddles, guitars, and the unspeakable bull-fiddle lined up at the station. With light hearts we boarded the train and in a short time alighted in full force at Newport and started for the town hall to receive the credentials which would assure us of our supper at some hospitable board. The result need not be mentioned, save that all appeared in due season at the hall to "tune up" and get ready for the "opener."

The first concert is always a matter of some uncertainty, and so a bit of anxiety was felt by those of old standing in the clubs. But a few minutes after the curtain rose all were at their ease and the numbers on the programme were given well, receiving generous applause at their close. Nearly every number was encored. At the close of the programme there was a short social.

Early next morning after bidding adieu to our kind and efficient entertainers we started for Hartland. We changed trains at Pittsfield going the last half of the journey in a train which combines all the modern conveniences of travel by rail, such as a sleeper, smoker, parlor, dining and baggage car, in one coach whose patent expired some thirty or forty years ago. However the people at Hartland were very hospitable and the concert in the evening was successful.

The social following the concert was very enjoyable to all who participated. Much credit is due to Miss Foss, Colby, '03, for the success of the entertainment.

An early train on Saturday morning brought us back to Pittsfield where we spent the day as best suited our wishes. Some slept, others went walking or driving, and not a few remembered their books.

Not a very large audience greeted us in the evening nevertheless the programme was given better than on the two previous evenings. A short informal dance followed the concert. Then came that long wait until past one o'clock only to receive an excellent view of a "through express." According to Tapley, "The engineer didn't even look at us." Much disgusted we returned to the hotel, but soon forgot our troubles after the genial landlord routed from his slumbers, said, "Make yourselves comfortable wherever you find a chance."

The return to College was accomplished Sunday morning and the first trip was over.

The success of the concert is due to the hearty cooperation of all the boys and the faithful work of the leaders. All three clubs took their parts well. Mr. Perkins proved himself a good reader and Messrs. Palmer and Brunel were again the favorites of the audiences.

IS DISTINGUISHED WRITER.

A Seattle, Wash., daily contains the following notice of a recent Colby graduate:

Prof. Frederick Morgan Padelford, who will take one of the chairs at the state university, was born in Haverhill, Mass., February 27, 1875, moved to Calais, Me., in 1877, and took an A. B. at Colby college in 1896. He entered Yale graduate school and took Ph. D. in 1899. At Yale he held university scholarships the first two years and a fellowship in the university in the third year. He was professor of English at the University of Idaho from 1899 until last June.

Prof. Padelford has contributed and published a few works which are considered very scholarly. His work, "Old English Musical Terms," published in the Bonner Beitrage, a publication of the University of Bonn, has received very high commendation. Alois Brandl professor of English philology, University of Berlin, Germany, said of it: "I am impelled to summarize my debt of gratitude to Padelford's work in the confession that few books in the domain of old English have so enlightened and stimulated me as his."

Analytic studies of "Julius Caesar," "The Merchant of Venice" and "Ivanhoe" are among his other efforts. Prof. Padelford has contributed to many magazines and the scholarly journals throughout this country and Europe. At present he is engaged in a work which will appear in this year's numbers of Yale English Series.

In 1899 he married Miss J. Elizabeth Pepper, daughter of ex-President Pepper, of Colby college.

Colby College,

Waterville, Maine.

The College was chartered in 1818. It is most favorably situated in a city of about 10,000 inhabitants at the most central point in Maine, in a region unsurpassed for beauty and healthfulness. It offers the classical course with 70 electives, also a course without Greek, leading to the degree of Ph. B.

The Library contains 36,000 volumes and is always accessible to students. The college possesses a unique Physical Laboratory, a large Geological Museum, and is the repository of the Maine Geological Collection. A new and thoroughly equipped Chemical Laboratory was opened in September, 1899. Physical training is a part of the required work. There is a gymnasium with baths, and an excellent cinder-track.

The preparatory department of the college consists of four affiliated academies: (1) Coburn Classical Institute, owned by the college, Waterville; (2) Hebron Academy, Hebron, (Oxford county); (3) Ricker Classical Institute, Houlton, Aroostook county; (4) Higgins Classical Institute, Charleston, (Penobscot county).
