COLBY 7: BATES 3.

Colby won the baseball pennant this year by beating Bates on the campus last Saturday. It was an interesting and hard-fought game, although Colby maintained a good lead at all stages. The top end of our batting list hit like fiends, and although credited with many errors, Bates fielded well. Three hits in succession and an error scored three runs in the first. In the third four hits in a line including two home runs made three more. Two of Bates' scores were on passed balls. Coombs pitched a fine game as usual and was well supported by Cowing. Tilton put up a fast game on second after the first inning. But the star of the day was Willey. The way he pulled down the high ones surprised everybody. At least two errors were saved in this way. For Bates, Kendall played a good game at first, his chances being on low balls instead of high. In the second Austin made a fine running catch of Pile's low liner. The infield all played well. Bower got one of John's speediest ones in the jaw in the fourth inning. Luckily the hurt was not serious and he was heartily applauded when he took his place again.

The game was called promptly on time and Bowman, after a couple of fouls, sent a fly twenty feet back of first which was taken by Pete. Austin hit the first ball for an easy grounder to second. Mose, however, didn't figure right and the ball rolled to centre field. Kendall sacrificed prettily and Austin stole third but overslid and was out, Cowing to Craig. Bill hit the second ball pitched for a grounder to first and was out. John tapped the first one for a hot liner just by short. Newman repeated the trick. Craig had three balls and played the limit. Forced at last to hit he lined a hot one over second. Austin came in on the run to stop it but the ball wasn't frightened a bit and kept on until Shorty crossed the plate. Leighton hit to third and almost beat the ball out. Willey closed the inning with a grounder to second.

Kendall opened the second inning with a grounder that Pete could have taken or Wiley could have turned in for an assist but both neglected the opportunity. Bill threw high and he was safe on second. Wight fanned and Bower was out on a high foul fly. Rogers drove a liner over Pug's head. Pile made a pretty throw but it was too late. Rounds was out on just three pitched balls. Pug hit the first one to third and was out. Tilton struck out on three pitched balls and Austin robbed Pile of a hit to center field.

Doe was easily disposed of on strikes and Bowman also failed to connect. John lost control for a second and gave Austin four straight balls. Kendall put up a high fly which Newman got fairly under and then muffed, both men taking two bases. The next ball pitched went by Bill and Austin scored. John then fanned Wood. Bill came up and hit one that Doe barely touched. John liked the looks of the first one and sent it like a bullet over second. It dodged the fielders and finally brought up among the bicycles at the corner of Cornburn. John had time enough to cool off at home before the ball came back. Before the grandstand had finished cheering Willey stepped up and drove the first one within a foot of the same place. Shorty beat out a hit to third.

COLBY'S CELEBRATION.

Perhaps the Colby students do not understand how to celebrate the winning of a victory which also won the State Championship. And then again perhaps they do. Those who were in town last Saturday evening will most certainly incline to the latter opinion.

First of all came the meeting in the Chapel at which the plans for the celebration were made public. A little later the special car so kindly furnished by the Waterville and Fairfield road came along, and was filled by the crowd of excited students. Down through the city they rode, cheering, singing and yelling; blowing horns and waving banners; until no one could have been ignorant of the victory. For nearly an hour the ride continued, and then the students returned to the college.

At eight o'clock Boulette's band appeared on the campus and rendered a number of selections while the final preparations for the parade were made. About one half hour later the student body, four abreast, preceded by the band and bearing transparencies, left the college buildings and headed down town. The march was enlivened by songs and cheers and the setting off of Roman candles, and the "lock step" was used with much effect.

Down Main street as far as the city hall the line advanced; then it turned back and visited each of the professors in turn. Professor Roberts was the first one called upon, and he spoke in hearty praise of the team and its work. To Cowing and Leighton, for whom it was the last college game, he referred in a few fitting words, and then after cheering the speaker and the two seniors, the march was resumed.

The next call was upon Professor Bayley, but as he was not at home the students sang, "Won't you come home Bill Bailey" and passed on to the next man, Professor Hatch. His voice was hardly in the best of order for speaking, but in a few words he expressed his pride in the team and its work.

Professor Parmenter said that while he had always known it was good baseball to bunch hits, he had never before met a team which was given to bunching home runs. After rousing cheers, the boys passed on to claim a speech from Professor White, who said that next to the songs of his own alma mater, those of Colby stirred his heart most effectively.

Professor Hedman came next and in a few characteristic sentences expressed his approval of the team and its work. As R. J. Patterson, the general manager of the Waterville and Fairfield resides in the same building, he was called for, and after being introduced by Professor Hedman, he assured the boys that a special car would be at their disposal as often as they repeated the trick of winning the pennant. The cheers which followed this statement were doubly enthusiastic.

It was already time for the bonfire, so a last call was made upon Professor Black, whose remarks were greeted with great applause. The pullman steamed into the station just before he concluded and after he had finished, the passengers were given an opportunity to hear the band and to learn how well the Colby boys can cheer.

When the train left, the company marched to the athletic field, where a huge bonfire had been prepared by the freshmen. This was lighted and amid more music, cheering and fireworks the students executed a war dance about the blazing pile. And thus ended a notable night in the history of the college.

"NIGHT SHIRT PARADE."

A year ago the men of the college voted at a mass meeting not to destroy property at the traditional "night shirt parade" and at that time and since then it has been quite generally the opinion that a night shirt parade without the destruction of property would be well-nigh impossible. But last Monday a practical demonstration was given of the possibility of such a parade and that too one of the most successful ever held in the history of the college.

Coming as it did on the very heels of our winning the state baseball championship, one would naturally expect the celebrating to be overdone by some, but such was not the case. Everything connected with the parade was done in a most orderly manner and we are not speaking hastily in saying that cold water and milk were the only liquid refreshments indulged in that morning by any student.

As the sun rose it shed its light on a strangely decorated campus. Dissected wagons and carts adorned the lawn and in front of the two colleges had been constructed the new women's dormitory and the central heating plant. From the third story of Recitation Hall came the melodious calls of President White's pet Jersey. In front of the hall was seated the graceful and grinning figure of old "Bones" from Biological Laboratory, calmly watching over the old cannon in front of him. As seven o'clock drew near angry exclamations were heard from the river bank, where a group of pulp mill employees were gazing at their boats which during the night had been anchored in the middle of the river. Finally, however, they found one of the skiffs on the chapel platform and later in the forenoon another in the Chemical Hall. At eight o'clock no bell was heard summoning the sleepy students to recitation, nor did it ring until the next morning at eight, but all went to recitations as usual, only to find that there was not a seat of any kind to be found in any of the college buildings. Some of the professors gave cuts while others heard lessons with the students standing or sitting on the floor. Diligent search was made all through the forenoon for the missing chairs and settees, but all in vain for not the slightest clue could be found as to their hiding place. In the afternoon, however, some one thought of the North College attic and there, sure enough, was the entire seating equipment of the college.

The old chapel desk was also missing and later it was discovered that it had been put aboard the "blind baggage" of the early morning Pullman and had been forwarded to Bangor, whence it passed through here again to Augusta and from there it was finally shipped back on the three o'clock in the afternoon. The work of fixing up the campus and buildings was done between midnight and three in the morning, at which hour the annual parade was made downtown to the tune of Phi Chi. Directly after the parade the student body, en masse, escorted the city's dignified steam roller up College avenue through the gate near North College, and down the walks to a position in front of the chapel, where an attempt was made to dump the fire and exhaust the steam. But a policeman soon appeared on the scene and taking the steam roller in charge skillfully acted the part of engineer and took the machine back to its quarters.

Chapel exercises that morning were very much abbreviated and the two members of the faculty present were obliged to sit on the front pews as all the chairs were missing. The singing books were also gone and were not found until Wednesday afternoon. Taking everything into consideration the parade was a most successful one and one that will afford many a pleasant recollection to the participants.

"ZE MODERN ENGLISH."

A farce entitled "Ze Modern English" will be presented by the Colby Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. at the Ware Parlors Monday evening, June 20. Following is the cast of characters:

Marquis de Trouville, Edward B. Winslow
Ralph Random, Carl R. Bryant
Tom Fenchurch, Linwood L. Ross
Mrs. Random, Alice R. Tyler
Evvy, Eunice C. Mower
Marie de Trouville, Virginia G. Noyes

The characters are under the instruction of Miss Mabel Dunn. Great care is also being taken in the preparation of a musical program in addition to the farce. This program will include the following numbers:

Vocal Solo, Rex W. Dodge
Piano Solo, Myrtis E. Bassett
Male Quartette,
Vocal Solo, Rose M. Beverage
Vocal Duet, Mr. Winslow, Miss Morrisette
Piano Solo, Esther Robinson
Mandolin Club,

An admission fee of twenty cents is asked, and ice cream will be on sale. The proceeds will go toward the Northfield and Silver Bay funds. Here is an opportunity to help both associations and enjoy an excellent program at the same time.

CONFERENCE BOARD.

At recent meetings of the Conference Board several actions have been taken of interest to the students. Professors Roberts and Hedman have been chosen by the faculty and Winslow and Soule, '04, by the students to act as a Reading-Room committee. It was voted that the college should meet the expenses of the Reading-Room up to the end of this school year and that it should be put in charge of the Reading-Room committee free from debt at the beginning of the fall term. It was also decided that the $1 already paid by the students will be sufficient to meet the expenses without further charge this spring. It was voted that the expense for repairs in the college dormitories should be met by general rather than divisional assessment, and that the expenses incurred by the college for such repairs in the form of an itemized account should be submitted monthly to the Conference Board for examination and approval. Professor Hedman, and Roberts, '04, Maxfield, '05, and Chipman, '00, were chosen by the Board as a committee to revise the constitution of the Conference Board.

Announcements have been received in town of the wedding of Mr. Herbert S. Philbrick, '07, and Miss Grace E. Mathews, to take place June 23 at Ashton Park, Newton Centre, Mass. Miss Mathews was dean at Colby from September 1890 to June 1902.

The college has just witnessed a "night-shirt parade" which is generally admitted to have been "the best and most successful ever held." This parade, then, should surely furnish a competent standard by which the custom may be judged, for if the best be condemned, the worst cannot be justified. Let us consider the events which occurred early last Monday morning in a cool and impartial manner; let us consider the motives which influenced the participants; their actions, and the results of these actions. Let us consider further the general effect of this demonstration upon the world at large, upon the friends and upon the enemies (for surely such deeds create enemies) of the college. Let us consider the effect upon the student body itself, upon its spirit and upon the relation between it and the faculty on the one hand and the townspeople on the other.

The "night-shirt parade" is one of the most recent but most indefensible of our college customs. It is one of the few surviving relicts of the days when the amenities of life were few and rough manners and rough actions the rule. We have retained the vices but not the virtues of our predecessors. The cause for this custom is not far to seek. There is implanted in the breast of man a desire to break away from all restraint and to destroy. It is by the control that he exercises over his impulses and by his respect for the rights of others that the civilized man differs from the savage. Civilization is a struggle upwards and the course of history shows how strong is the tendency to revert to savagery. An orgy like the annual parade shows the barbarian inherent in our nature that lies fettered by convention, bursting his bonds. We will not enter into the ethical considerations involved, but can anyone believe that such a relapse from the standards of life and thought which distinguish the Christian from the savage will be productive of good to the individual?

We can speak of a parade to be conducted in a perfectly orderly manner, that may play a good joke and do no injury, but so long as there are a hundred odd individuals who take part, such a parade will be impossible. Among the participants some will be found who will take advantage of the opportunity to let loose a spirit of hoodlumism which we would scarcely expect to find in the students of a respectable college. And those who had no intention of overstepping the bounds of propriety, influenced by the example of others and the intoxication of the spirit of lawlessness, find themselves doing deeds which in sober moments they would blush to think of. It is a curious fact that when a number of people come together for the purpose of doing something contrary to law and order, no ordinary considerations will prevent them from performing deeds of which, if alone, they would never have been guilty.

Last Sunday night the men of Colby College arose at midnight and worked until daylight. A hundred men can accomplish a great deal in four hours and a great deal was accomplished. Every college building was broken into and every chair was taken out and hidden in the loft of North College. Some of the chairs were slightly damaged and it required much labor and inconvenience to return them, but what did that matter when we consider that several professors were forced to give cuts and that the recitations of all were seriously interrupted for several days. Further difficulty was caused the professors by tampering with the college bell which it took a day and some expense to repair. Truly this was well done. If we could only have burned down a building or in some other way got rid of recitations for the rest of the term it would have been much better, for we are not here to get anything out of our course but simply because our fathers sent us. This was not all that was accomplished, however. Our friendly relations with the Hollingsworth and Whitney Company whose president recently gave $500 towards beautifying our campus and whose club house has been frequently used by Colby students, were strengthened by tying the boats of the employees out in the middle of the river and carrying two skiffs up into the college buildings. The employees, many of them women, were forced to go round by the footbridge and were late to their work in consequence, an offence frequently punished by dismissal. A good joke this! If some poor woman had lost her place it would have been still better. The townspeople were well repaid for the assistance which they have rendered the college in athletics and at the time of the burning of North College by the depredations of the students upon wagons and tool houses. The hymn books in the Chapel, the gift of a friend of the college, were placed in a sewer and are not yet returned. Surely our friends delight to have their gifts treated thus and we may look for many much-needed donations in the near future as a result of our actions. The recitation rooms of several of our professors were damaged to a greater or less extent. A professor who is doing his utmost for the students, who has expended a considerable amount for their benefit, who endeavors to make his room as pleasant and instructive for his classes as possible, feels himself rewarded when he finds it turned into a stable. Was no other noble deed accomplished? To be sure, and one which displays to the world the innate manliness and nobility of character of our students. The wife of the president of this institution, a woman who has nursed with motherly tenderness those of us who have been sick, who has done all in her power to make college life pleasant for the students, alone in the house with her little children, was insulted and frightened by the very ones whom she had befriended.

And this was the best and most successful parade in the history of the college! If similar actions were perpetrated in any other college in the country the participants would be expelled at once. But similar actions could not occur in any other institution. The feeling of the students would be so strong against the introduction of such a custom that the promoters would be forced to give up their attempt. Shall we remain inferior to other colleges in our morale? By no means. We owe it to our good name and the best interests of our college to abolish once for all this custom which bears evil but never good, which estranges our old friends and creates none but enemies in their place, which destroys our self-control and promotes lawlessness and the spirit of insubordination.

COLBY 7: BATES 3.

Leighton hit to second and only by fast running prevented a double. It was useless however as Pete was easily doubled on his grounder to Doe.

Wight started the fourth with a hit over Pug. Bower got a hot one on the jaw. With two men on bases and nobody out Rogers fanned. Rounds sent a liner to Pete who loafed back to first for a double play. With two strikes on him Pug hit to short and was out at first. Tilton went down the same way and Pile fanned.

Doe gave Leighton an easy fly. Craig threw high on Bowman's hit but Pete stretched himself about a mile and the man was out. Pete took Austin's fly for the third out. Cowing put up a high fly which short and left had a fight for, but Wight held it. John hit to third who made a good stop but a wild throw. Newman tried to hit the ball too hard and had three strikes in succession. Doe took care of Craig's fly.

Kendall knocked out a grounder to Pete who fumbled but threw to John in time to get the man. Wood gave Tilton an easy fly and Wight fanned the air. Leighton hit to short who threw low, leaving him safe. Willey was an easy victim. Pug gave Bower a high fly which he muffed but Tilton fied out to Bowman.

Bower started the seventh with a strikeout. Rogers, after two strikes and three balls had been called, sent a hot one to Leighton which went for a three-bagger. Rounds and Doe both struck out but meanwhile Rogers had scored on a passed ball, just dodging Bill. Pile reached first on Bower's error and stole second. Bill sacrificed, Wood to Kendall. Coombs placed a liner over second for his third hit and Pile scored. Newman went out, Bowman to Kendall, and Craig, Doe to Kendall.

Bowman sent a liner to the Observatory but it was a foul. Then he sent an easy one to Tilton. Austin hit an easy one to Coombs. Kendall gave Tilton a hard one but was out on a pretty play. Leighton was safe on Doe's error. Pete sent a grounder to right field but was out at first. Leighton landed on third in season to watch Pug let three go over the inside corner unmolested and Tilton go out, short to first.

Wood died easy, Tilton to Willey and Wight went out the same way though it was a harder chance for Willey. Bower hit a feeble one to Coombs and the game was over.

THE SEASON'S AVERAGES.

Batting and fielding averages of the different teams are now appearing regularly in the papers. A great deal of variation is noticeable due to the different decisions of the scorers. This account is taken from the official score book of the team. Coombs easily leads the batting of the team in the six Maine games. His average is .500 instead of .476 due to a sacrifice hit in the first U of M game. Craig and Cowing also cleared the .300 mark. For the season Captain Cowing leads with .359 followed by Coombs and Craig. The team's average for the Maine games was .203. Forty-one hits were made for a total of 54 bases. For the entire season the team average was .214, 103 hits being made with a total of 126 bases.

Capt. Cowing and Leighton had the honor of going through the entire season without an error. The fielding average for the season was .917 while for the six Maine games it fell to .903. Ten bases were purloined in these games while 46 men arrived safely at the desired bag during the season.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE.

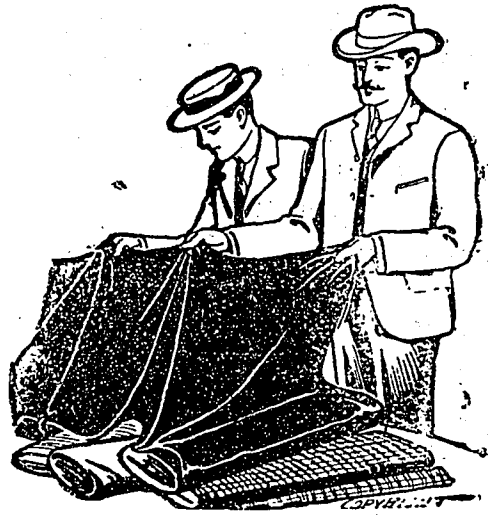

The next session begins Sept. 26, 1904. The course is carefully graded and covers four sessions of eight months each. Instruction thoroughly practical. Free quizzing in all branches; ward-clinics, limited in size; clinical conferences and modified seminar methods of teaching. Particular attention to laboratory, bedside and ward-clinic work. Clinical facilities unexcelled, and the largest and finest clinical amphitheatre in America. Thoroughly equipped new laboratories and a modern hospital, remodeled and reconstructed throughout. CAMPUS CHAT.

Pres. White preached at Castine, Sunday.

Buck, ex-'04, was on the campus the first of the week.

Miss Eleanor Stone, ex-'05, of Bangor was in town Saturday.

Misses Walker and North, Bates, '04, were in town Saturday.

Miss Mattie Shaw, ex-'05, of Caribou, was in town last Saturday.

Miss Grace Warren, '08, spent Saturday and Sunday in Waterville.

John Dyer, '00, of Charleston was in town to attend the Bates game.

G. E. Manter of Kents Hill Seminary was the guest of Cotton, '05, Monday.

Miss Alena L. Young of Rockland visited her niece Miss Howard, '05, on Monday.

Toppan Robie of Lewiston was the guest of his cousin Miss Smith, '05, on Saturday.

Prof. Sorensen took his class in Sociology through the Lockwood woolen mill, Thursday morning.

The engagement of Miss Christia May Donnell, '06, and George Edward Tolman, '04, is announced.

Miss Ethel Russell, '00, of Augusta, and Miss Blanche Pratt, '02, attended the Colby-Bates game Saturday.

Raymond McFarland, principal of the Leicester Academy, Leicester, Mass., was the guest of Frye, '05, Saturday.

C. C. Koch, '02, a junior at Newton Theological Seminary was the guest of friends on the campus, the first of the week.

Bakeman, '01, and McKoy, '02, of Newton Theological Seminary were the guests of friends in the city Saturday and attended the Bates game.

Teague, '03, manager of the Manchester, N. H., agency for international correspondence schools, was the guest of friends at the "Bricks" over Sunday.

Miss Gertrude Moody, '03, was in town a short time Monday. Miss Moody was on her way to her home in Canaan after teaching a year in Mechanic Falls.

The annual initiation of Kappa Alpha was held on Friday evening of last week. The following members of the junior class were initiated: Miss Allen, Miss Blaisdell, Miss Buzzell, Miss Howard, and Miss Pinkham.

The Dramatic Club has elected the following officers for next year: President, W. J. Hammond; Vice-President, E. C. Lincoln; Manager, J. B. Pugsley; Secretary, A. K. Stetson.

Much anxiety is felt by the students and faculty over the illness of our beloved janitor, Sam. He appeared better on Saturday so that he was able to attend the Bates game in a carriage, but since then he has had an ill turn.

A meeting of the track men was held after chapel Wednesday to elect the captain for next spring. Bean, '05, appeared to be the only eligible man as he is the only member of the junior class at the present time who is a point winner. He was elected without opposition.

Through the kindness of the Redington Co., Horace Purington & Co., Mr. Dunham and Mr. Preble, who have given the editor the space usually occupied by their ads, we are able to offer our subscribers over a column of extra reading matter this week.

What Hapgoods Has Done.

During the year 1903, Hapgoods secured high grade positions in business and technical work for over 500 young college, university and technical school graduates. Our campaign for 1904 is now in progress. More firms than ever are looking to us for capable graduates, and we wish to get in touch at once with every senior who is seeking a position in business or technical work.
