PRESIDENT RESIGNS.

Dr. White to Accept Position in New York.

The announcement, made to the students at the close of chapel last Thursday, to the effect that President White will leave his duties at Colby after the present year, came as a complete surprise to all. On Monday, Feb. 10, he was elected associate corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society of New York and has decided to accept this new position.

Dr. White will act as the associate of Dr. Henry L. Moorhouse, who has been the efficient head of the society for the past twenty-five years. The work of the society includes a missionary department by which aid is given for the preaching of the gospel and the establishment of churches in the more recently developed sections of the country. This is the oldest department of the society and by the employment of gifts and loans it has built a large number of churches in the central West and on the Pacific coast.

The society controls between fifty and sixty educational institutions, mostly in the South, especially for the negroes, and in the West for Indians. Among the institutions controlled by the society are Shaw University, Raleigh, Va., Union University, Richmond, Va., Spelling Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., and Indian University. Schools are also supported in Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and Alaska.

Evangelistic and charitable departments are maintained for the foreign immigrant population and the society's work requires the use of as many as thirty different languages, including Chinese and Japanese.

The society employs about fifteen hundred workers, who are found in every state in the Union, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and Alaska.

Dr. Moorhouse, who has for a long time actively superintended the affairs of the society, felt the need of an associate in the work and President White was the man selected for the position. Though far more lucrative than, and in several other ways preferable to his present office, President White had considered the position only in a general way and his appointment was hardly less of a surprise to himself than to the Board of Trustees and all connected with the college.

President White graduated from Woburn High School in 1883 and from Brown University in 1887. In 1890 he completed his course in Newton Theological Seminary, receiving the degree of A. M. From 1890 to 1894 he served as pastor of the First Baptist church of Somersworth, N. H., and from 1894 to 1900 he was pastor of the First Baptist church of Nashua, N. H.

In 1900 he served as the general secretary of the New Hampshire Baptist convention and was in 1901 chosen president of Colby.

Dr. White will probably begin the UNION MEETING.

Rev. Mr. Cayer Addresses the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of Colby.

This term's union meeting of the Christian Associations from the two divisions of the college was held in the chapel on the evening of Feb. 11. Charles C. Dwyer, president of the Y. M. C. A. opened the meeting and introduced as the speaker for the occasion, Rev. Paul N. Cayer of the French Baptist church of this city.

Rev. Mr. Cayer read from the Scriptures a chapter on the subject of Charity. The title of his address was "Marriage,"—a question of interest to "bachelors of arts and bachelors of age." The marriage which he discussed was "the union of Jesus Christ and the human soul, not only a breath, a bundle of sensation, but an object having an individual, intrinsic, eternal value."

"We display our love for Christ by several means. Worship is a characteristic of love. We like to read from one we love and that we do in reading the word of God. In prayer we enjoy talking with God as a friend with a friend. We praise Him, and by the law of sacrifice devote our all to Him.

"In part of Shakespeare we find many silly things about love. He says love is a conflagration, a flood, insanity, and so on. That is good for the stage but not for the stage of life. Our grandest teaching of love, outside of the Bible, is not in Browning though we call him the poet of love, but in Shakespeare's "Love's Labor Lost." Here love is superhuman; it gives to every power a double power.

"If you are called to the ministry, love your hearers. If you are a doctor, love your patients. If a lawyer, don't "skin" your clients, love them; if a merchant, don't steal, but love your customers.

"After courtship comes marriage. Without fear of backsliding, the divorce of religion, you are united now to live eternally with Christ."

duties of his new office soon after Commencement.

During his services for Colby, he has won the regard of his associates, of the students, and of his many friends in Waterville and throughout the entire State. As he departs to live and work in New York he will be followed by the sincere best wishes of all.

APPOINTMENTS.

Of those who submitted articles for the Senior Exhibition, the following have been selected to speak: from the women's division, Myrta A. Little of Hampstead, N. H., Lucy E. Treat of Cohasset, Mass., Florence E. King of Newton Center, Mass., S. Angelina Corbett of Foxcroft, and Helen L. Cocherane of Brunswick; from the men's division, Frank B. Condon of Belfast, V. Ray Jones of Monson, Malcolm D. Smith of Bridgewater, Frank W. Lovett of Brandon, Vt., and Howard A. Tribou of Rockport.

BASKET BALL.

Fast Maine Central Institute Team Trimmed by the Score of 27 to 8.

On Friday evening, February 14, immediately after the lecture by Dr. Putman, Colby defeated Maine Central Institute at basket ball by the score of 27 to 8. The game was interesting throughout from the spectators' point of view and a very satisfactory one to the college. Both teams played a remarkably good game and the visitors gave Colby one of the hardest rubs of the season. Earlier in the season, before the new floor had been laid in the gymnasium and while the team was still practicing at Coburn, Colby was defeated by M. C. I. at Pittsfield after a fast game. Their team came to Waterville with the reputation of being the fastest "prep" school aggregation in the State.

The game was fast throughout and although a number of fouls were called on both teams no unnecessary roughness was indulged in by either side. No team has played in Waterville this winter which has covered its opponents the way the visitors did last Friday night. A Colby man would break away from the crowd time and again and receive the ball only to find an M. C. I. man with him and it was only after pretty dodging that the pass was made. For Colby McLellan played the best game, making five goals, while Gilley excelled for M. C. I.

The game, at the outset, promised to be a fast one. For the first few minutes neither side scored. Three fouls were called on Colby, all of which Gilley missed. Mackenzie made a goal for Colby and more fouls followed, one by Colby and two by M. C. I., none of which resulted in any scoring. When Colby fouled again, however, Gilley, who had just got his eye in line, scored the first point for his team. Blake missed two chances for goals on fouls by Blaisdell and Bickford. The score was 2 to 1 in favor of Colby and her antagonists looked dangerous. At this time McLellan limbered up and threw three baskets in succession, making one of the prettiest plays this season. He followed this by fouling and Gilley made his point, but McLellan evened up by getting the basket when Blaisdell fouled on the next play.

Both sides fouled but neither got its basket and Blake shot a goal just before time was called for the end of the half. The score was 11 to 2 in favor of Colby.

Both teams started the second half without any change in the line up. Mackenzie scored for Colby and Smith for M. C. I. Good followed with another and Sturtevant fouled, McLellan missing the goal. Blaisdell fouled and Blake missed the goal. Gilley shot the second goal from the floor for his team. Smith, McLellan and Blake followed this with three baskets for Colby. M. C. I. fouled but

"EARLY ATHLETICS."

History of The Growth of Interest in College Athletics.

On Friday evening, Feb. 24. the student body had the great pleasure of hearing Dr. Harrington Putnam of the class of 1870, lecture on "Early College Athletics." The lecture was given at the Chapel and a good audience was in attendance. A brief sketch of the history of athletics in the American colleges may be found in the following notes upon the address.

Until about the time of the Civil War there was no sympathy by the college in general with athletics. The college man and the man of fashion avoided physical exercise. Edward Everett, speaking about that time, lamented the attitude that was maintained toward such training, and Emerson noted the superior appearance of English students to American college men because the former indulged in games and outdoor sports. Dr. Holmes wrote in 1858: "We have with us a few boating men, and one or two who ride a horse; but if one should run around the Common, society would drop him in five minutes." Robust health was uncultured, unrefined, and,—what was more dreadful still,—unfashionable.

The story is told of a young man and a young woman who had never met but who had become well acquainted, through much correspondence and were even engaged to marry. They arranged to meet, coming with their parents to Saratoga. But on the way, the carriage containing the young man's party broke down, and this necessitated his working out in the sun for several hours. By the time the party reached the hotel, the young man was so hearty, brown and muscular that the maid was quite disgusted and she would have none of him. All enticements and all cosmetics failed. The match was off. Harvard and Yale had their first great rowing contests in 1852. But it did not amount to much until 1859.

The old time Indian Club weighed from thirty five to forty pounds. Dumb bells were of about the same weight. The latter were the main articles used for physical development. At an athletic exhibition, the first number would usually be an Indian club drill. Later a fair sized man would come upon the stage and raise a 50 pound dumb bell. Then a smaller man would come in and raise a 75 pound dumb bell. Lastly a very small man would appear and raise one weighing 100 pounds. Then the applause would be deafening.

A few years passed and the craze for heavy lifting was increased. This was the time of the "yoke lifting" said to have a record of 3300 pounds. The yoke was succeeded by the "lifting machine." This was the only sort of physical work that athletics of those early years did.

The great idea of physical training

In speaking of President White's resignation the belief has been quite generally expressed that his successor must be a clergyman of the Baptist Church. Where such an idea can have found its origin is not easy to understand, and though it is yet far too early for stump speeches or electioneering in general, we wish to deny the existence of any requirement of this nature. President White has still to serve for several months, the present college year is little more than half completed, and at least one class in college will never attend Colby under another president. Consequently the question of his successor is a matter which does not demand a great deal of attention at this time; but if it is to be discussed at all, this false impression should be removed.

Of itself, the idea that a Baptist minister is better qualified, or less, if you please, than anyone else for the presidency of a college, is entirely without foundation. The charter of the college, moreover, is wholly free from any statement which would make Colby in any way denominational. The only provision, tending to this end, (and that because of which retired professors of Colby do not receive incomes from the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching,) is attached to the conditions governing the endowment of $50,000, presented by Dr. Colby in 1864, and requiring that "the president and a majority of the faculty shall be members in good standing of regular Baptist Churches." Thus when the time for electing a president arrives a Baptist minister should and will possess no advantage whatever.

Colby is to be complimented on the recent arrangement with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, whereby a Colby graduate may enter the Institute with the Junior class. In this connection, the following extract, quoted from a letter recently received, may prove of interest.

"This means, I suppose, a college education and a professional training in six years, one year less than is expected of the minister or the lawyer. Considering the desirability of getting early into life, this looks well,—when we take into account the high standing of the Institute, extremely well. You speak of the Institute as the "best technical school in the country;" had I written your article I might have had the courage to use stronger language. A professor at Oxford said to me some time ago, "We regard the Massachusetts Institute of Technology the best institution of the kind in the world." This is an impression very common here. A prominent educator quite recently remarked, "It may still be wise to go to Vienna for medicine and to Berlin for theology; but there is no institution in Europe which should tempt one, seeking a technical education, to turn his back upon our Institute." In every respect it is believed to be up-to-date; its training is most critical and severe. It shows no mercy to weaklings or the lazy, and so graduates only efficient men. Hence its diploma counts for much."

was to get rid of weight. The theory was that if you were not fat outside you were inside, for you got out of breath when you ran. Men under training could drink hardly any water, and were consequently almost in a state of fever.

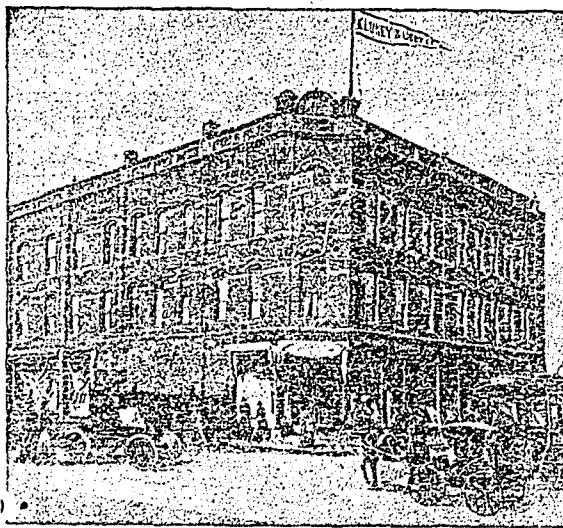

Rowing took on importance in 1859 when Harvard defeated Yale. This continued to be the craze for 20 years. In 1868 came the famous contest between Harvard and the Ward Brothers. A little later the Harvard crew challenged Oxford. Harvard suffered defeat. It was not a matter of scientific stroke, either, it was a matter of over training.

It is an astonishing fact that great football men are often not able to do hard physical work. This is because the sudden cessation from training is exceedingly hurtful to the constitution. In England they have no training table,—our men train too hard. Most of the athletics of the past were wrong. There should be a certain amount of training every day in the year. One ought to keep in good condition all the time. The strain in large cities is very great, and if one is not in good condition when he takes up the world's work he will prove unequal. Nature will swing back. Athletics in this country are too confined to a privileged few. They are not generally advantageous to the college men. The time will come when the state will take up the athletic training of children. It must look to the colleges to furnish the right material and examples. The athletics of the future must be made common, not privileged; and they must be for men and for women, for the young and for the old.

Dr. Harrington L. Putnam, '70, was a visitor at chapel Saturday morning.

On Friday President White will attend one of the lectures of a special course given this week at the Bangor Theological Seminary.

"STEWARDSHIP."

Dr. W. E. Witter of Boston and Dr. Cook of Bloomfield, N. J., secretary of the general Committee of Systematic Benevolence, were visitors at chapel last Friday and after the regular exercises Dr. Cook delivered a short but very interesting address before the students. He spoke, in part, as follows: "Life is a stewardship. It is a stewardship of personality; we have no right to do as we please with ourselves, but are obliged to make the best of ourselves for God and for men. In the second place we are stewards of time. Time is an entrustment; we have no right to waste, 'kill,' or misuse our time. Then life is a stewardship of opportunities, of privileges. Again it is a stewardship of money.

Thus in all respects we are stewards of the various departments of our lives, and if we are to live for the good of man and the glory of God, it is required that we, as stewards be found faithful."

CAMPUS CHAT.

Professor Lawton's class of college men attending the Baptist Sunday school entertained the young ladies' of Mrs. Dr. Pepper's class, at the Baptist vestry last Saturday evening. A short program was rendered, after which games were enjoyed. Refreshments of ice cream, fancy cookies and coffee, were served by Mrs. Whittemore and Mrs. Lawton. As a result of the unsettled weather the attendance was not very large but an unusually pleasant time was reported by those who were present.
