ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

Timothy B. Hussey, Esq., of North Berwick Describes Life and Scenes in the Holy Land.

With entertaining descriptions drawn from scenes afforded by an excellent set of stereopticon views, Mr. Timothy B. Hussey of North Berwick held the close attention of a large audience of students and friends at last evening's lecture on the Holy Land. In spite of the severe storm which raged early in the evening nearly every seat in the chapel was occupied and all who attended were evidently well pleased with the address. The lecture was decidedly informal but while it contributed greatly to the amusement of the hearers it was at the same time interesting and instructive. A close acquaintance with the geography, the people and customs of Palestine allowed Mr. Hussey accurately to describe objects and conditions in that country; while the constant display of wit and humor, with the amusing anecdotes of personal experiences there, was the cause of much merriment.

After the speaker had been introduced by President Roberts, he began by outlining the routes followed on a voyage to the Holy Land and spoke of stops at Madeira, Gibraltá, Algiers, Malta, and other ports on the Mediterranean. The first scenes illustrated a visit to Alexandria and the Nile valley. Pictures were here given of the pyramids, the sphinx, and mummies from the museum of Cairo. Pyramid climbing was described in the manner customary at the pyramid of Gizeh which is 460 feet high and covers 11 acres. The speaker said that a trolley line eight miles in length today conveys the traveler from Cairo to the site of the sphinx.

The second city visited was the modern Jaffa. Although the Mohammedans have frequently received offers for improvement, the bay is still crossed on row boats which pass treacherous bars and ledges before gaining the security of the beautiful harbor. Jaffa was described as a large, old Oriental city, easily recognized as the Joppa of Bible times.

From this point the scene changed directly to Jerusalem, with the first view of the city from the Mount of Olives. In the center of the picture was the Golden Gate which has been sealed for centuries. The various other gates of the city were named and it was explained that each gate is really a large square room with a diagonal passage for entrance to the city. Prominent in the picture were the Church of the Holy Sepulcher and Mt. Moriah with its mosque and the surrounding valleys. Another scene showed the Mount of Olives and the several roads which cross its sides and summit.

The walls about the old city of Jerusalem are 40 feet in height, 5 in width, and only two and one-half miles in length; but it is estimated that over half the total population of the modern city lives without this area. Just outside the walls the Ancients buried their dead and the number of tomb stones is especially large by the golden gate which stands opposite the mosque of Omar. This mosque is beautifully finished with precious metals and pillars of alabaster and is richly furnished with expensive carpets and tapestry.

The tomb of David, with the little American burying ground close by, and the church of the Holy Sepulcher were the objects next described. High in the structure are windows for all nationalities, and it is from this church that the priests distribute holy fire to the people. The courts of the building are filled with throngs of peddlars clamoring to sell their sacred trinkets, while others offer all sorts of information concerning the incidents which have occurred here. It is here that the Orientals believe the Crucifixion took place.

Near the Jaffa gate to Jerusalem is the new Grand Hotel. There are thirteen good hotels in the city today, but in a population of 60,000 only one street is wide enough for carriages. The streets are narrow and slippery, the sidewalks are halfway between the shops, and with no protection for their wares the shopkeepers leave for worship when the summons is heard.

The Temple area, which has recently been opened to others than Mohammedans, the Garden of Gethsemane, the Dome of Rock, the Tomb of David, and the pillar of Absalom, mutilated by the missiles of the Jews, were other objects described. A picture was given of a meeting held by Mr. Moody on Mt. Calvary, outside the city gates where the missionaries believe the Crucifixion took place. The Jordan River was shown, increasing in width from 75 feet to two miles in the rainy season and falling 700 feet in its length of 80 miles.

The three pools of Solomon, from which an aqueduct conveyed water to the ancient city, were followed by a view of the Plains of Jericho, 72 square miles in extent and 1300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Bethlehem, a city visited by 25,000 people at the Christmas season, the ruins of Capernaum with its immense mustard plants, Herod's Palace, the city of Tiberius, stone records of the wars of Ahab, Abraham's oak, and a marriage scene were also pictured. In conclusion Mr. Hussey described the mission schools established in Palestine and the general characteristics of the Jews and Arabs who are met there.

C. H. Libby, '08, who is teaching at Groton, Mass., passed the holidays in Portland.

CATALOGUE FOR 1908-1909.

The Eighty-ninth Annual Catalogue of Colby Makes Its Appearance on Scheduled Time.

The opening of the new year found the current edition of the annual catalogue in complete printed form and ready for distribution. Except that the cover is of a somewhat darker gray the general appearance of this number is similar to that of its immediate predecessor which appeared last April. There is also noticed an increase of four pages over last year's catalogue, making a total of one hundred and nine pages. Additions to the faculty are Fred Loring Thompson, B.S., Director of Physical Training, and Henry Adelbert White, A.M., Instructor in English.

The summary shows a faculty of seventeen and a total of 283 students distributed among the different classes as follows:

Graduate students	1
Seniors	49
Juniors	38
Sophomores	62
Freshmen	133

The most noticeable contrast to last year's catalogue is in this matter of enrollment. The register for the present year shows an increase of 44 students or an attendance greater than last year's by 14 per cent. Of this number 39 are of the men's college.

A detailed outline of the admission requirements for the A. B. and B. S. courses is given on page 45 of the new catalogue; a complete synopsis of the courses leading to each degree, on pages 71-76.

Among the new courses offered will be noted several as follows: Two extra courses in elementary Greek for those who have not studied this language in preparation for college, and courses in physiology and hygiene for students of the men's college.

The library now contains 45,700 volumes and over 20,000 pamphlets.

The new members of the Board of Trustees are Forrest E. Goodwin, Esq., Skowhegan; Arthur J. Roberts, A.M., Waterville; and William C. Crawford, A.M., Allston, Mass. Mr. Crawford was elected by the Alumni Association.

The catalogue also contains calendars of the semester arrangement for the present and the next academic years the usual register of officers, committees, students and honors, descriptions and synopsis of courses, an account of the equipment and administration of the college, and information concerning the Colby Alumni Associations and the Colby fitting-schools.

THE AROOSTOOK TRIP.

Musical Clubs With Twenty-five Members Visit Up-Country Friends and Give Four Concerts.

On Monday, January 4, the Colby musical clubs set out on their much talked of Aroostook trip. Most of the fellows had returned to Waterville in season to start from this point and by the time Brownville was reached, with one or two exceptions all the members had joined the company.

The hall at Brownville was anything but ideal, and the clubs had held no recent rehearsals; but the audience was large and by its appreciation called forth the earnest efforts of the clubs. In spite of seeming drawbacks, the concert was a success and the reception and entertainment at the hands of the townspeople was greatly enjoyed. Here as elsewhere during the trip, a dance followed the concert.

The second stop was somewhere up near the North Pole at a place called Caribou. The town looked as if the clubs had reached there at the season of the spring floods, and the heavy rains of course interfered with the attendance. The audience, though small, appeared to enjoy the concert, however, and no doubt would have been much larger under more favorable conditions.

Wednesday afternoon the fellows arrived at Presque Isle, and were at once conducted to their places of entertainment. The cordial reception with which all were greeted may be described by relating the experiences of one group. Four of the club were entertained at Dr. Kilburn's, where after a pleasant hour of rest and recreation, the summons called them to a regular Thanksgiving repast of turkey with all the fixin's. In the absence of the doctor, one of the fellows was obliged to officiate with the carving knife and the antics of that bird will long be recalled by the spectators. It is said that at another house the turkey was supplemented by champagne, "et cetera." At any rate the concert here was second to only that at Houlton and praise was unstintedly given.

It was left, however, for Houlton to put the finishings touches upon an extremely successful and enjoyable trip. Thursday afternoon A. K. Stetson invited the clubs to a moving picture show and while there slides were thrown on the screen, welcoming Colby's musical clubs. Others bore requests for selections by the quartet, which were gladly given. At four-thirty o'clock a reception was held at Ricker Classical Institute. Here the rooms were prettily decorated with the Colby colors and music and refreshments increased the pleasure of a very enjoyable hour.

At the Houlton opera house the clubs gave their best concert, to their largest and most appreciative audience. Round after round of applause greeted every number on the program and every face wore a happy smile. No one could for a moment doubt the existence of much good feeling between Ricker, Houlton and Colby.

On Friday afternoon the members of the clubs returned to Waterville. The next concert will be given at Augusta on Jan. 19, and the annual concert in Waterville will occur on Monday evening, Jan. 25.

Among the visitors at the D. K. E. house during vacation were Charles G. Shannon, '98, H. C. Bonney, '07, P. S. Farrar, '08, and Tom Williams, Ex- '10.

Colby is represented at this session of the Maine legislature by Senators William S. Knowlton, 1864, of Monson and William H. Looney, 1877, of Portland. The college also extends congratulations to Judge Warren C. Philbrook, 1882, recently elected attorney-general of the State, and to Beecher Putnam, 1889, insurance commissioner.

The Bates catalogue for 1909, which has just been published, shows that the resources of the college have been doubled within the past few years. Andrew Carnegie and Bartlett Doe, late of San Francisco, each subscribed $50,000 to the endowment fund and $60,000 additional was raised to fulfill the conditions of the Carnegie subscription. Two bequests of $5000 each have also been added to the resources of the college. Last spring Mr. Carnegie subscribed a second $50,000 for the erection of a science building. The terms of the gift require that $50,000 be raised from other sources and of this amount $20,000 has thus far been contributed. Statistics are also given in the new catalogue which show that there have been 1,380 graduates from Bates. Of these 45 per cent. have become teachers and 10 per cent. ministers.

Perhaps no year has given to the world more distinguished men than 1809, and the centennial of their births will be widely celebrated during the twelve months that are to come. One hundred years ago were born statesmen, authors, at least one great scientist, and a famous musician. On Feb. 12 the United States will pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln; on Dec. 29, England will observe the hundredth anniversary of the birth of William Gladstone, the greatest British statesman of the nineteenth century. In America, Edgar Allen Poe was born on Jan. 19, 1809, and on Aug. 29, Oliver Wendall Holmes; England's literary contribution for the same year was Alfred Tennyson who was born on Aug. 6. On Feb. 12, 1809, Charles Darwin, the great English scientist, was born; and less than two weeks earlier, or on Feb. 3, Germany produced Felix Mendelssohn. Historically, also, the year 1809 is worthy of special recognition in this country for then was purchased the Northwest Territory, which today comprises several of the largest and most prosperous of our middle and western states. The same year, too, afforded to that section Cyrus McCormick, a native of Virginia, whose inventions of harvesting machinery revolutionized the wheat industry and so extensively promoted the prosperity of the great West. All these anniversaries will be celebrated during the coming year and we shall thus gain a renewed appreciation of those whose memory we honor in this way.

RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS: It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom, to take from us our beloved brother, Aaron Appleton Plaisted, of the Class of '51, be it

RESOLVED: That we, the members of Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon, express our deep grief at the loss of an honored and loyal brother, and be it

GENERAL CATALOGUE.

After several months of preparation Dr. Hall has placed in the hands of the printers the first instalment of copy for the 1909 general catalogue of Colby graduates. The last general catalogue of the college was published in 1887, over twenty years ago, but this was supplemented to some extent by the address book of alumni and alumnae, which was issued in 1905. The need for a new and revised edition of the general catalogue has been continually felt, however, and the work was undertaken some time ago. The difficulty of acquiring accurate information concerning the graduates, constant changes in address and employment, together with the greatly increased number of classes and students since the previous edition, have made the task well-nigh insurmountable; but with the exercise of patience and persistence Dr. Hall has now practically completed the work of collection and arrangement. The work of printing the volume will probably occupy some time but with due allowance for corrections and further additions it is expected that the catalogue will appear before Commencement.

WINS FIRST GAME.

The Basket Ball Team is Victorious Over the Dover-Foxcroft Athletic Association.

On last Friday evening Colby opened the basket ball season, which extends through the winter term, with a game at Dover where the Dover-Foxcroft athletic association was defeated by the score of 36 to 25. The game was hard-fought and exciting, and much rough playing was indulged in by both teams. The Dover and Foxcroft fellows succeeded in evening the score at the middle of the second half but the Colby players rallied and won out.

The line-up:

CAMPUS CHAT.

E. T. Allen, violinist, and the quartet of the Colby glee club took part in a concert given at Norridgewock last evening.

Many of the students enjoyed the skating on the river back of the campus the latter part of last week.

H. H. Goodwin, '12, who taught school at Palermo the closing weeks of last term has returned to college.

On Friday the basket ball team leaves for Bar Harbor where a game is scheduled with the team representing the Bar Harbor Y. M. C. A.

W. G. Lunt, '12, is teaching at Palermo.

On Feb. 12, the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Charles Darwin, the great English scientist whose theories of evolution have so extensively influenced modern thought, Professor Chester will deliver a lecture in the college chapel concerning the life and works of this distinguished man.

Andy Applebee, '11, has been forced to leave college for the present because of ill health.

George A. Gould, '08, has accepted a position with the Carpenter-Morton Co., dealers in paints, oils and varnishes, and is now engaged as a traveling salesman in Tennessee.

On New Year's day, the engagement of Carolyn E. Hill, ex-'08, first assistant in Easton high school, to Merle R. Keyes, '08, sub-principal of Parsonsfield Seminary was announced.

During the trip to Aroostook the members of the glee club met many Colby men who joined in giving the club the royal welcome it everywhere received. At Houlton A. K. Stetson, '07, H. B. Betts, '07, Nathaniel Tompkins, '03, and Dr. H. L. Putnam, '86, were seen; and elsewhere during the week the fellows met John Roberts, '03, E. W. Loane, ex-'08, Clayton Ward, '07, and many others.

Edwin W. Merrill, '09, returned to college Saturday morning, after attending the bi-annual congress of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at Pittsburg, Pa. He also visited V. Ray Jones, '08, in New York and made a trip to West Point to see John Hatch, ex-'08.

E. W. Merrill, '09, officiated at the services of St. Mark's Episcopal Church of this city on Sunday.

Isaac Higginbotham, '11, preached in Dorchester, Mass., during the vacation.

John Hatch, ex-'08, West Point Military Academy, '11, visited friends at the A. T. O. house during the vacation.

Isaac Higginbotham, '11, reader of the glee club, assisted in a concert given at Norridgewock last evening.

Robert Baker, '12, preached at the Good Will Farm chapel on Sunday afternoon in the absence of Mr. Hinckley.

DE FEMINIS.

MAUDE N. EATON, Editor.
CASSILENA PERRY, Manager.

Miss Inez Hazen Card, '08, and Mr. Lester Hinckley were married at Newburyport, Mass., on November 14. They are living in Somerville, Mass.

Miss Inez Mace, ex-'11, has returned to college.

Miss Emerald Bradman, ex-'11, has returned to college.

Miss Charlotte Tebbetts of Belfast has been visiting Miss Leona Achorn, '10.

The Y. W. C. A. is to give an oyster supper with extras at Foss Hall, Friday evening, January 16. It is to be served on the European plan.

Mrs. Tebbetts of Belgrade has been visiting her daughter, Miss Marion Tebbetts, '12.

Misses Ruth Day, Florence Cole and Kathie Runnels of Foxcroft, were entertained at Foss Hall Friday. They were in town to attend the concert by Ellen Beach Yaw.

Miss Bessie Jones of Portland called on Miss Ethel Butler Sunday.

Miss Pearl Davis, '09, and Miss June Philbrick, '09, attended a house party at the Phi Kappa Sigma house, Orono, Dec. 17.

Miss Esther Weeks, ex-'08, who has been acting as governess at Nogales, Arizona, is expected back at the opening of the next semester.

Mrs. Llewellyn Powers has recently presented to the College library a beautifully and substantially bound edition of the Encyclopedia of American Biography, in fourteen volumes. Each volume is stamped on the front cover as the gift of Llewellyn Powers to Colby College. This addition to the resources of the library very fittingly honors the memory of one of the most distinguished sons of the college.
