GREENE HAS NOT BEEN CONTRACTED TO COACH FOOTBALL ELEVEN, SAYS MANAGER ERVIN.

Roger A. Greene of Lewiston, who has coached football at Bates for a number of years, has not been contracted with as coach for the Colby eleven for 1916, contrary to what was stated in the newspapers a few days ago, according to an official statement issued by Graduate Manager Robert L. Ervin, Tuesday night. The stories which appeared in the newspapers relative to Greene's signing up were news to the athletic management, says Mr. Ervin.

The graduate manager admits, however, that unsigned contracts were sent to Greene, to Harry Vaughn, the former Fordham coach, and to "Ginger" Fraser, but he denies that any definite selection has been made. Greene has been receiving consideration, but the official voice declares that Vaughn and Fraser have been given equal attention.

ZETA PSI DANCE.

Zeta Psi Fraternity held a successful ball in New Elks Hall, Tuesday evening. About 125 couples enjoyed an excellent order of twenty-four dances, to the music of the college eight-piece orchestra. There were a large number of out-of-town friends of the fraternity members present.

Upon entering the hall, a pleasing sight met the eye. The hall was tastefully decorated, the Zeta Psi colors, blue and white, predominating, while these were well set off by fraternity and sorority banners. The dance orders, which bore the Zeta Psi coat-of-arms, were small and neat in appearance.

The feature of the evening was the grand march which was led by John M. Richardson, '16, and Miss Ida Brown, '16. After a number of pretty and intricate figures had been executed, the men marched to one side of the hall and the women to the other. The men formed the Greek letter Zeta, while the women formed the letter Psi. The orchestra then struck up a waltz and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing.

At intermission, refreshments, consisting of fancy sandwiches, olives, ice cream, and coffee, were served by the members of the fraternity.

The patrons were: Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Black, Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Thayer, and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ervin.

The committee in charge of the affair included Arthur F. Bickford, '16, and Edward D. Cawley, '17.

The different fraternities were represented by delegates: Delta Kappa Epsilon, Ralph Kolseth; Phi Delta Theta, Francis J. Howard; Alpha Tau Omega, I. Ross Stanwood; Delta Upsilon, Winthrop L. Webb; Commons Club, John F. Everett.

GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES TO SPEAK ON THE CAMPUS.

The political clubs have arranged to have several of the Maine gubernatorial candidates speak at the chapel during the coming weeks. The first speaker is to be Hon. Carl E. Milliken of Island Falls, republican candidate for nomination for governor, who will deliver an address, next Tuesday evening.

Later, Frederick H. Parkhurst of Bangor and Edward W. Wheeler of Brunswick, other republican candidates, and Governor Curtis will speak to the students.

"Has he a sense of fairness?"

"Goodness, yes! He can tell them a a block away."

COLBY'S LITERARY MEN.

By FRED A. POTTLE, '17.

To an impartial observer, the standing of a college is judged largely by the worldly success its sons have attained. We have every reason to be proud of our alma mater; but especially on account of the number of Colby men who have ranked high in the country's estimation. Under the title, "Colby's Literary Men," we are considering only those who have won especial distinction.

William Mathews, A. M., LL. B., LL. D., class of 1835.—Dr. Mathews was graduated from Colby, then known as Wterville College, at the ridiculously early age of seventeen. He then took a course at Harvard Law School, but, after practicing law one year, gave it up for journalism. He was for five years editor and publisher of the "Watervillonian" and then of the "Yankee Blade" published in Gardiner. The remainder of his life was devoted to literary pursuits. His place in American literature is largely that of an essayist. The fact that 150,000 copies of his books were sold amply testifies to his popularity. He was always intensely interested in the college, and presented to it his own library, section by section. He died Feb. 14, 1909, at the advanced age of 90 years.

William Smith Knowlton, class of 1864.—Besides having taught school for almost half a century, Mr. Knowlton is a member of the bar, and an ordained minister, and has served in the State Legislature. His most popular literary work is probably, "The Old Schoolmaster." He attends every commencement, and claims "he has sent more students to Colby than any other teacher in the country."

Harry Lyman Koopman, A. M., Litt. D., class of 1880.—Doctor Koopman has been engaged in library work almost from the time of his graduation, and, since 1893, has been librarian of Brown University. Most of his literary work has been in the form of verse, and has been very popular.

Holman Francis Day, Litt. D., class of 1887.—Dr. Day "needs no introduction to a Maine audience." His books, "King Spruce," "Squire Phin," "Red Lane," "The Rainy Day Railroad War," etc., have won for him a permanent place in the hearts of American readers. He has done some work in verse, mostly of a humorous or dialect type, which is entirely on a level with his prose works. He is also a playwright, his play, "Along Came Ruth," having had a very successful run at Boston and New York. His latest novel, "The Landloper," is having a tremendous sale at the present time.

Adelbert Farrington Caldwell, A. M., class of 1891.—Mr. Caldwell has been engaged in teaching at Kents Hill, Wesleyan, and De Pauw University. He has written several short stories, which have appeared in the leading periodicals of the day.

Frederick Morgan Padelford, A. M., Ph. D., class of 1896.—Since obtaining his degree at Yale, in 1899, Dr. Padelford has been engaged in teaching English at the Universities of Idaho and Washington. His works are of a literary type and have included translations from the classics.

Charles H. Whitman, Ph. D., class of 1897.—Dr. Whitman obtained his degree from Yale, and has taught English at Lehigh and Rutgers. He has produced several literary works.

George Horace Lorimer, class of 1898.—Mr. Lorimer is probably the best known editor in the United States. Everybody knows him as the editor of the "Saturday Evening Post," but the fact that he attended Colby two years before going into newspaper work is little known. He became editor of the "Post" when barely thirty years old, through being made substitute editor during an emergency and "making good on the job." He has always kept his interest in the college and is always pleased to see a Colby man, although he is, naturally, tremendously busy. His chief work outside of his editorials is, "The Letters of a Self-Made Merchant to His Son."

Charles Phillips Chipman, A. M., class of 1906.—Mr. Chipman is well known as the author of a series of books for boys, and also for his text book, "Books and Libraries." The latter was written to fill a long felt need, there being no similar text book in existence, and has proved a great success.

Besides these writers there are a considerable number of authors of works of a technical nature.

Albion Woodbury Small, A. M., LL. D., Ph. D., class of 1876.—Dr. Small was president of the college from 1889-92, and is at present head of the department of Sociology at the University of Chicago. His works are mainly text books on sociology.

Asher Crosby Hinds, LL. D., class of 1883.—After graduation, Mr. Hinds chose journalism as his profession, working on the Portland Advertiser and later on the Portland Press. When Hon. Thomas B. Reed was Speaker of the National House, he offered Mr. Hinds a clerkship. From this, Mr. Hinds rose to the position of clerk at the Speaker's table. This position implied an extensive knowledge of parliamentary law and precedents, and all his spare time was spent in compiling a scrap book of such precedents. His knowledge soon made him the authority of the House on parliamentary law and $3,500 was appropriated for the publication of his scrapbook of precedents. Besides this, he prepared a smaller manual for handy use of the members. The popularity caused by this work put him in line for the position of Congressman from the District of Maine, which office he has held for several terms.

Shailer Mathews, A. M., D. D., class of 1891.—Dr. Mathews' reputation as an author of books on religious subjects is nation wide. He is now Dean of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. He is editor of the "World Today," and is also well known as a platform speaker. Last winter, he went to Japan as representative of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, of which he is president.

Arthur Kenyon Rogers, Ph. D., class of 1891.—Dr. Rogers is now Professor of Philosophy at Yale University, and has written several valuable books on religion and philosophy.

George Otis Smith, A. M., Ph. D., class of 1893.—Dr. Smith is well known as the Director of the United States Geological Survey. He has written a large number of books and reports on geology, or geological investigations of a very valuable nature. He is a trustee of the college.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

Every year about the middle of March, when there is yet six to eight inches of snow on the ground, certain vague indications of springtime joys and activities are to be seen and heard on the campus. Already, baseball dope is one of the chief topics of conversation, and every afternoon finds the gymnasium filled with early candidates limbering up for the coming season.

Of course it is a difficult matter to make predictions at this time of year. The freshmen are always an unknown quantity, though they can usually be depended upon to contribute their quota, if there is a good nucleus around which to build the team. Last year, even up to the time of the opening of the Maine series, the outlook was not bright, but hard training and the development of new men placed Colby at the top.

This year, a glance at the pre-season prospects gives Colby men good chance to rejoice. Six veterans from the championship team of last year are on hand, while there are several freshmen who have entered with big reputations. The catching end will be one of our strongest points. Joe Deasy held down this position last year, but he will have some great competition from "Chet" Ashworth, '19, and "Jimmie" Knox, '19. The choice of slab men presents more of a problem, since the loss of James robs us of a four years' mainstay. "Bob" Mathews was in several games last year, proving to be a steady, reliable man; and it was the opinion of Coach Houser that he would this season round into a boxman of the first rank. Klain, '19, a southpaw, and Shirley, '19, came here with good reputations, which they certainly justified in the freshman-sophomore contest. It is said that Harriman, '16, and Eddie Cawley also intend to try out with the twirlers; so it seems that there will be no lack of material.

The infield should be strong this year, even with the loss of "Candy" LaFleur and "Purp" Campbell. Ralph Smith and Blackinton will need no assistance at first base. Chick Fraser intends to forsake the outfield and will make a strong bid for second, though Taylor, '19, will probably make him hustle for it. "Mike" Driscoll, '19, a lad recommended by none other than John Coombs, will try out for the hot corner, with Leary, '18, and Perry, '19, as rivals.

Drew and Greenlaw can surely make things interesting around short, if Cawley should make good at pitching. "Home Run" Allen will of course occupy right garden and Captain "Swipes" Simpson the left, though the latter may not be able to play in the first few games. By mid season, however, his arm will be back in shape for him to exercise his old hit-killing proclivities. At center, Dutch Schuster, Ray Smith and many disappointed candidates for the infield will have a rather warm fight for the honors.

We are sorry to lose "Smiling Ben" Houser as coach, after his fine work in developing a team of champions; but we are extremely fortunate to secure the services of Fred Lake, the former big league catcher, in his place. Mr. Lake has been manager of the Boston Nationals and the Boston Red Sox and, last year, acted as scout for the latter team. He knows the game thoroughly, has had much experience in judging players, and, although he has never coached a college team, should be invaluable because of his knowledge of inside baseball. Soon after the Easter vacation, he will arrive in Waterville, and practice will begin in earnest.

To all appearances, Colby will be represented by a strong, well balanced team with hot competition for every place. It is too early to predict another championship, but it is certain that the Blue and Gray will be right up in the running.

EXPELLED FOR CRIBBING.

A member of the freshman class of the men's division was expelled, last week, for "cribbing" in a test in rhetoric 3. The student was caught "red handed" in the act of using his system. The matter upon being presented to the faculty at its meeting, Friday, was treated with prompt action, and the poor freshman was handed his "walking papers."

The peremptory action of the faculty in this case comes as a culmination of the recent agitation caused by the catching of two "cheaters" during the mid-year examinations.

"Hello, Dobson! Any luck yesterday when you were fishing?"

"Great! I was away when six bill collectors called."—Exchange.

COLBY MUSICAL CLUBS AT OPERA HOUSE, FRIDAY NIGHT.

Practically every student in college has received a prospectus and enrollment blank from the War Department, inviting him to attend the training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., next summer. The government offers the services and accommodations at a very reasonable cost, and every man should consider this opportunity to enjoy a month of camp life, characterized by recreation, education and discipline. Bowdoin is thinking of sending a delegation to the camp, and many other colleges in the United States will also be represented. It would surely be a great thing for Colby, if those students who are able to take advantage of the opportunity would plan to attend the Plattsburg summer camp.

"A man who cannot write his mother tongue grammatically, lucidly, and with a reasonably fair style, or who does not think it worth while to do so, is not an educated man, no matter how many courses he may have scored, or how proficient he may be in a special field."

The above statement from the pen of President Lowell of Harvard, one of the country's greatest educators, places a fact of vital importance before the college student of today. While there are many of us, who have not yet acquired the enviable art of writing good, plain English, expressive of our thoughts and feelings, yet we should not falter in the effort to aspire to write well. Undoubtedly, President Lowell drew his lesson from actual observation,—from instances of men specializing in certain fields who have neglected the study of grammar and rhetoric and who, much to their sorrow and loss, have learned their mistake too late.

Take for example, the man who enters college with the aim of obtaining special preparation in chemistry. Having made up his mind to practise pharmacy, or after completing his college career, to secure a position as professor or instructor in chemistry, the student selects courses only of a scientific nature, at least so far as the institution will allow him to do so, and neglects composition and English literature. Perhaps, he may receive his diploma at the end of his four years; but, if he cannot write and spell half-decently as is often the case, he cannot be classed as an educated man. The college is not wholly responsible for this unfortunate possibility, although it might reasonably lay more emphasis on English as a requirement for graduation. The man whose neglect of an important subject has allowed him to drift into such a situation, is himself the person upon whom the responsibility properly falls. He has shunned the rhetoric courses because he has regarded them as profitless in the special training he has sought for his life work. Even when such a person writes a letter, a certain quality which every college graduate should be able to impart is lacking. He may be unconscious of his inability to write well, but, other people observe his lack.

Every college student, therefore, should stop to think about this matter before it is too late. The man who can write accurately and forcefully bears one of the most significant marks that belong to the college graduate. But, the one who lacks the power to write and does not think it worth while to acquire it, is not justified in regarding himself as a cultured man.

INTER-FRAT HANDBALL.

Through the efforts of Harvey Cohn, an inter-fraternity handball tournament is now in full swing. The six fraternities and a non-frat team are to compete for a cup offered by the coach. Three ten-point games will be played, each day. The four teams winning the most games will take part in the semi-finals on Tuesday, March 21st. The two winning teams will play in the finals, Wednesday, March 22nd. "Harvey" referees all games.

The summaries of the first two games of the series:

Joyce and Wood, Delta Upsilon, defeated Rollins and Osgood, Commons Club, 10-2, 10-3, 10-7.

Smith and Shirley, Delta Kappa Epsilon, defeated Tyler and Waldron, Alpha Tau Omega, 10-5, 7-10, 10-7.

Schedule for the week:

March 15, Non-frat vs. A. T. O.

" 16, Z. P. vs. C. C.

" 17, Non-frat vs. P. D. T.

" 18, D. K. E. vs. D. U.

" 20, P. D. T. vs. Z. P.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK GOOD.

Word has been received from the Fordham football management requesting Colby to accept the cancellation of the game which was scheduled between Colby and Fordham for September 30th. The reason given for such a step is that Fordham did not feel able to meet the expense incurred by such a game. The Colby management has accepted the cancellation, but with regret, for it leaves the Blue and Gray without a game on that date and with a limited chance of securing any at this late hour. However, Manager Leeds is exchanging rather favorable communications with Tufts. Should he be unable to get a college game for September 30th, a contest with some prep school will be substituted, in order to complete the schedule.

With the exception of the Harvard game, all the big contests, next fall, will be played near the end of the season, thereby giving the team an opportunity gradually to develop into the pink of condition without any interruptions. By the time of the first championship game, the team should be one of the best that Colby has put on the field in years. Certainly the chances to make it so seem just now excellent, so far as good material is concerned. Only four of last season's 'varsity men will be lost through graduation: Irvin Perry, Kolseth, "Bill" Taft, and Stanwood, and this will leave a splendid nucleus for the coach to work upon. Captain Cawley will be a tower of strength in the backfield, and he will have the support of Hendricks, Crossman, Bourne, and Fraser. Stinson and Deasy will probably go after their old positions as guards, while Coolidge and Heath will contest for the tackle positions. The ends will be sought by Perry and Leseur. There is also some promising material from the second squad which will be drawn upon, and the new year will likely bring in other good men. There seems, therefore, no reason why Colby, should not cover herself with glory on the gridiron, next season.

Nobody Lost in the C. E. S. Contest.

Something was wrong with the First Baptist Christian Endeavor Society. Interest flagged; enthusiasm ebbed low; attendance dropped lower; dimes dropped not at all.

It was evident that a change must come,—either no society, or an endeavoring Christian band. A unanimous vote was that Christian Endeavor should mean something. Therefore, a contest of endeavor between two sides, the Reds and the Blues, was started.

The contest was a success, too, for every member was looking beyond the dinner, which would come as a matter of course, and was working for a goal,—a Christian Endeavor Society. Every member, working shoulder to shoulder, helped to win victory for the colors he or she upheld. Now, everybody is interested and enthusiastic. The old debts have been paid; the society is giving to both missions and the church; the college and the city young people are working together; and a successful future for the society is assured.

Friday, March 10th, at 6.30, the dinner was given by the side that lost in points; but no one feels that either side has lost in the struggle for the Christian Endeavor Society.

The Kappa Alphas had another one of those wonderfully good feeds, Saturday night, in room 16. While the percolators bubbled, the laughs were handed around—plus the "eats" and other good things. The jolly twelve mean to make the most of these last days together, and to live up to the real meaning of Kappa Alpha.

The Y. W. C. A. meeting, Tuesday night, was led by Mary Titcomb, '19. The topic under discussion was, "What I Get from the Association."

Margaret Brown, '17, has been entertaining her mother, from North Haven for a few days.

Vivian Skinner, '16, spent Sunday at South China, the guest of Florence Carll, '12.

The Y. W. C. A. sent a box of clothes to the Italian mission in Boston.

The freshman play, "A Modern Cinderella," is to be given Monday, March 20. Admission, 15c.—Adv.

Catherine Clarkin, '17, has been obliged to remain at home for a few days on account of illness.

Miss Van Wirt of Cherryfield was the guest of Marion Campbell, '19, Wednesday.

Louise McCurdy, '16, entertained the senior Sigma Kappa girls at a birthday party at their frat rooms, Wednesday.

"Little Bert" Little was a guest at Palmer House, Monday.

Belle Longely, '19, passed the week-end at her home in China.

"Val" Curtis, U. of M., ex-'18, was entertained at Foss Hall at dinner, Friday night.

The nominating committee for the Women's League met, Tuesday, to nominate officers for next year. The election will take place, Saturday night.

Margaret Putnam, '19, entertained her mother from Houlton over the week-end.

Edith Pratt, '16, is in New York, representing the Y. W. C. A. of the Maine colleges at the annual Member Conference. She will return Friday.

Mrs. Crowell very kindly gave a reading at Foss Hall, Sunday afternoon. The reading was a one-act play by Mrs. Crowell of New York.

Wednesday, March 8, for the second time in the history of sororities at Colby, a sorority opened its doors to entertain the members of the faculty and "the faculty wives" and the members of the women's division. Alpha Upsilon chapter of Delta Delta Delta was at home to its friends from four to five. A representative from each sorority and from the non-frat girls poured: Vivian Skinner, Sigma Kappa; Marjorie Barker, Chi Omega; Clara Hinckley, Alpha Delta Pi; and Vesta McCurda, non-frat,—all from the senior class. The patronesses, Mrs. J. W. Black, Mrs. H. P. Little and Mrs. Carl Green, received with Effie Hannan, president of the sorority.

Marion Steward, '15, spent Friday night at Foss Hall, the guest of Myra Cross, '17.

Marion Brown, '12, a teacher at Bath, spent Sunday at Dutton House, the guest of Margaret Brown, '17.
