SENIOR'S LAST CHAPEL

Dr. Anton Marquardt will address the Seniors at their last chapel, 8:30, to-morrow morning. At 8:25, the three undergraduate classes are requested to form outside the northern door of the chapel, in the following order: Juniors, Sophomores, Freshmen. The Seniors will then march thru the lines formed by the undergraduates. Everyone should be on the spot, promptly, that this old custom may be properly carried out.

ATTENTION STUDENTS!

There are still many students who have not paid their subscriptions to the ECHO for the ensuing year. Please endeavor to do this at once, in order that the accounts for the year may be properly closed before Commencement. The ECHO has been published this year under many difficulties, and the money is much needed in order to meet financial obligations.—The Editor.

Middlebury College may add to its curriculum, a course in practical journalism.

SENIOR CLASS SPEAKER

A telegram has been received by Thaddeus F. Tilton from Randall J. Condon, in which Mr. Condon accepts with pleasure the invitation of the Senior Class to be the guest of honor of the class at Commencement and to deliver an address to the class and alumni at that time. Mr. Condon is one of Colby's most noted alumni, he having been in succession superintendent of schools in Providence, R. I., in Helena, Mont., and in Cincinnati, Ohio, the place where he is now located. He has been offered the position of head of the bureau of Americanization by the government, but he could not be spared from Cincinnati. In every position that he has filled he has met with nothing but success and is considered one of the leading educators in the country.

ENDOWMENT FUND

The Student Endowment Committee wishes to make its final report. While the following figures do not represent the entire amounts pledged, and some of the fraternities are still to be heard from, the committee wishes to make its report in the last issue of the ECHO. Though the amount given does not compare in size with many other contributions, the spirit that prompted the gift is characteristic of the loyal support of the student body.

COLBY For COLBY MEN For COLBY

Much has been done during the past season to put track on a proper basis at Colby. Our inexperienced men, in a season made short by weather conditions, have accomplished more to advertise Colby and build up a prestige in athletics than has any other team in recent years. Coach Ryan's achievements with raw recruits are much greater than were expected. But this is only the beginning. We should not be satisfied until our men win the Maine Intercollegiate Championship. This cannot be done in a single season. It requires time, athletes, and, above all, a full measure of cooperation from the students. Take it upon yourself to talk Colby to the athlete. Get him interested. Help him to decide upon his college. Remember what Colby does for the man with limited means. Get the alumni interested in a championship track team. The alumnus is in a position to do considerable in directing athletes to Colby. Let each and every one of us return next fall with an athlete in tow.

There are many of you who are planning to take an active part in athletics. Prepare yourself during the summer months by indulging in light exercise, such as baseball, rowing, and swimming. When the fall term begins, report immediately to Coach Ryan. Don't put it off until spring. Remember you have only a short spring season, about four weeks; therefore you must get the rudiments in the fall. It is quite evident that if several men had received preliminary work last fall Colby would have taken second place in the events at Lewiston last May.

Let us profit by our mistakes.

A. B. M.

We hear complaints about Colby's lack of equipment, and there is cause for some of them. But does not the greater part of the complaining come from those who do not use what we have? Few of us, for instance, realize what a really good library we have. Did you know that it contains 56,842 books, 1,114 of which have been added this year?

Of all the students in Colby College, 335, or 74% of the student body, have at some time or other drawn out a book or books. These figures seem fairly large until we realize that there are 110 students who have not taken out a book this year. The average number of books drawn, per student, is seven per year, less than one a month. The average daily attendance in the reading room is about a hundred, less than a fourth of the entire student body.

C. E. R.

These facts, on the face of things, seem rather appalling. Is Colby ceasing to be a "reading" college? What are we doing with our spare time? Surely no one can afford to ignore the habit of reading good literature. There is no better opportunity to cultivate this practice, if it has not already been formed, than in college. "Reading maketh a full man"—this is as applicable today as it was in Bacon's time. Let's not next year, neglect the opportunities offered us by our fine library.

There are still some men who have not obtained their ECHO Board pictures. Please get them.—
The Editor.

In statistics recently compiled, Maine stands 35th in educational measurement (considering the number of children attending school, the training they receive, progress made, salaries paid teachers, etc.) Massachusetts ranks 9th; Connecticut, 11th; Rhode Island, 26th; New Hampshire, 30; and Vermont, 32nd.
