Delta Upsilon	21 1/3
Zeta Psi	12

Non-fraternity	5 1/3
Pi Delta Phi	1

The final events in the series will be held on Seaverns field, this afternoon.

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATERS CHOSEN

The men who will compose the teams in the triangular debate with Tufts and Clark this spring have been announced. They are Neil F. Leonard, '21, Harold C. Marden, '21, George B. Wolstenholme, '22, Donald A. Shaw, '21, Basil B. Ames, '22, and Clyde E. Russell, '22.

More complete details of the debate will be given in the first issue of the ECHO after the recess.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE

The fifth and last of the lectures for the benefit of the library fund was given in the Chemical Hall lecture room, last Monday evening by Professor Neilson C. Hannay. The subject was "Oxford and Cambridge" and it would be hard, indeed, to find a man more thoroughly acquainted with his subject or more capable of presenting it interestingly than Dr. Hannay.

He began with a brief history of the two universities, telling how the beginnings of Oxford go as far back as the twelfth century, while Cambridge University was recognized by Henry VII, in 1217.

Dr. Hannay laid stress on the fact that while both universities have glorious traditions, yet the almost impenetrable conservatism would not seem altogether an advantage to Americans. The colleges have customs of government, of dress, of management, that in many cases have hardly changed in the last five hundred years.

The college students of England are more inclined to take their amusement in informal discussions of matters philosophical, political and cultural than are Americans. Perhaps one reason for this is that no student is allowed, without special permit to be outside the college gates after nine o'clock. Even so, athletics is fostered in both institutions to a degree even beyond American colleges. The entire nation, during "eight weeks" turns its eyes to inter-university contests between Oxford and Cambridge, in rowing and cricket. Then, too, there is an annual track meet, as well as a rifle-shoot, between the two institutions in London.

The actual study, too, is somewhat different from what it is in American universities. The college year itself, lasting but six months, is a period of good fellowship, of lectures and use of the great libraries, while most of the actual reading is done during the long summer vacation. There are but three regular examinations, the "Responsions" or "smalls," at the end of the first year, the "Moderations" or "Mods" at the end of the second year and the final "Greats for the degree."

Life at Oxford and Cambridge as Dr. Hannay said in the beginning, is a subject easy for Americans to rave about, yet not all the glamour, perhaps, is justified, on closer knowledge.

In conclusion, Dr. Hannay exhibited some very beautiful slides illustrating the buildings and grounds of some of the colleges, and showing the places where the greatest men in English literature spent their college days.

MUSICAL CLUBS' TRIP BIG SUCCESS

During the week of March 7, the Colby Musical Clubs invaded the Granite and Bay States, playing at Berlin, Lancaster, Haverhill, Newburyport, and Amesbury. En route to New Hampshire, a concert was given at Winthrop, Maine.

At three of the concerts, the halls were filled to capacity. Especially was this true of Berlin, where over 600 tickets were sold, and the "S. R. O." sign was put out long before the performance started.

The Amesbury Daily News says of the concert in that city: "The Amesbury public was treated last evening to a program of a kind that is not often heard in this town. The visit of the Colby College Glee Club was thoroly enjoyed last year, and the event last evening, it was the general opinion, was even more appreciated than their first visit in this capacity.

"The boys have all the pep that is expected from a college musical organization. They were especially popular in jazz numbers but added to them a musical quality that made that noisy specie of music thoroly enjoyed by all.

"Messrs. Leonard and Hois, both of whom were here last year, were received with a welcome of applause, as they appeared.

"The high school assembly hall was well filled and the event was thoroly enjoyed.

"The dance which followed was by the young people even more enjoyed than the concert and the gymnasium was a gay scene till a late hour."

Concerning the concert in Haverhill, the Newburyport News had the following: "As was anticipated, such as found it convenient to attend the second annual concert of the Colby College Glee Club at the high school hall, last evening, were favored with a concert program of high quality. The club was here a year ago, and it gave such general satisfaction that quite a number hoped for its return some time during the present season.

.....The program which was carried on won well deserved applause. The club is made up of artists and is so composed that it not only provides an orchestra, but a mandolin club as well. The young men were entertained here over night."

MEN! Go to chapel Thursday morning. Special speaker.

Y. M. C. A. ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR 1921-22

Election of officers for the year 1921-22 was held in the college chapel last evening. The following men were elected: President, Charles H. Gale, '22; vice-president, Clifford Peaslee, '22; secretary, Walter T. Moreland, '22; treasurer, C. L. Brown, '23; finance, Merton E. Laverty, '23; deputation, Raymond J. Bates, '22; music, Evan J. Shearman, '22; social, Merlin D. Farnum, '22; religious, Frederick H. Eastman, '22; membership, Leonard W. Mayo, '22; reporter, F. A. Robinton, '24; publicity, Walter D. Berry, '22; faculty advisers, Professors Brown, White, Edwards, Rollins.

EASTER VESPER SERVICE

"This is the time of revival," said Rev. C. A. Knickerbocker, pastor of the Universalist church of Waterville, at the Vesper service held in the chapel last Sunday. "Now is the time when we go down deep into the wells of human experience, and feel the hand of God urging us on to great efforts. As Jesus Christ had his Gethsemane, so every man has his own Gethsemane. It may be in the home, it may be anywhere, but, wherever the experience occurs, we are brought into closer contact with God. The spirit of Jesus was transmitted to a handful of disciples and they have passed it on to millions of people, so that now the name of Jesus Christ is the most revered name on earth in which he gave his life. We are called upon today to catch the spirit of Jesus in this Easter season, and to give, give, give all with which we have been endowed for the sake of others. That is the Christian's goal! God never follows,—he always goes on before."

Selections were rendered by a quartette from the women's division. Langman gave a violin solo, with Daniels at the piano. The chapel was filled with a large and appreciative audience.

FOOTBALL DANCE DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

About seventy couples attended the dance given at Elks Hall, for the benefit of the 1920 football team, last Friday night. Exceptionally good music was furnished by Daniels' College Orchestra, and dancing was enjoyed until 11.30. Refreshments were served in the hall, at intermission.

The patrons and patronesses were Mrs. Arthur J. Roberts, Dr. and Mrs. J. Wm. Black, Dean Nettie Runnals, and Dr. Philip W. Harry.

COLBY MAN BACK FROM ORIENT

Says Famine in China Worse Than That of 1817

Arthur G. Robinson, '06, since 1915 stationed at Tientsin, China, where he was connected with the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., has returned to New England and is now engaged in field work for the Chinese famine relief.

He said the last great famine was in 1817. Eight million perished then, and this famine is far worse than that. Its after-results are almost as much to be dreaded as the present conditions. China will suffer a tremendous loss in its man power. The cities will feel it next.

What the country will gain, if it can be called a gain, will be the development of industry which is fostered by the relief work being done in China. A railroad is now being built which otherwise would never have been constructed, owing to political and economical friction.

Mr. Robinson, after graduating from Colby, taught at Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, from 1906-10. From 1910-13, he was connected with Y. M. C. A. work at Kansas City, Mo. In 1913-14, he was a teacher at the Language School, Nanking, China. During 1914-15, Y. M. C. A. at Tientsin, China, where he has continued up to the present time.

COLBY NEEDS MORE MONEY

Pres. Roberts Talks Plans at Alumni Dinner

President Roberts of Colby College announced at the beginning of his speech at the Boston Colby Alumni Association last night at the City Club that Colby will soon open another campaign for funds.

It will raise $100,000 in order to receive $50,000 offered by the General Education Board on that condition. In explaining the need of preparing for the future, he declared that "we would never see in our day a return to pre-war prices and that colleges must not try merely to tide over the present, but must look ahead to a decade of heavy expenditures."

"The people generally are staggering under the heavy load of taxation," said the speaker. "There will be no lowering of living costs while people are paying such taxes. The handworkers must have wages if they are to pay these taxes and live, and business must have high prices to pay high wages."

A surprise for the alumni came when the toastmaster, T. Raymond Pierce, retiring president of the association, presented the newly-elected director of athletics, C. Harry Edwards of Springfield College. Later the alumni voted to raise $1,000 yearly among the members of the Boston association toward the support of Colby athletics, and to urge other alumni clubs to adopt this policy. Dr. Archer Jordan, president of the athletic association, explained the plan formulated by the alumni council.

William C. Crawford read an extensive plan for the development of the college during the next 15 years, written by Librarian C. P. Chipman. Other speakers were Dr. Flood, '79, and A. G. Robinson, '06.—The Boston Post, March 12.

INTERCOLLEGIATE LIBERAL ASSOCIATION

All students interested in the discussion of contemporary political, social and international affairs are invited to attend a conference at Cambridge, Mass., on the second and third of April, when a new intercollegiate liberal organization will be formed. In many colleges such students are organized into Good Government Clubs, Social Science Clubs, Forums, or other groups; but all interested students are invited whether members of such groups or not.

The program will open at 1.30 on the afternoon of Saturday, April 2, with registration and get-together of guests. At three o'clock Walter Lippmann of the "New Republic" will deliver the opening address, and will be followed by speeches from the floor and the appointment of committees. At six-thirty a banquet will be served in the living room of the Harvard Union, at which Senator Ladd of North Dakota, President McCracken of Vassar and other distinguished men will speak. The next day (Sunday) the business of the conference will be concluded; and after a dinner which will be addressed by Francis Neilson of the "Freeman," and others, the conference will conclude with the election of permanent officers.

Twelve colleges have already accepted the invitation to be present. The expenses of the conference, exclusive of meals and railroad fares, are being defrayed by private contribution; accommodations for the night may be secured free of charge.

Those who wish to attend the conference or desire further information should communicate at once with Robert Wormser, Secretary, 33 Holyoke St., Cambridge, Mass.

On Saturday, March 19, Iota Sigma Upsilon, a local fraternity at Dartmouth, became the Alpha Theta chapter of Theta Chi.

The Junior Prom at Amherst is to start at 9 P. M., May 20, and continue until 6 A. M., May 21,

PRESS OF THE CITY JOB PRINT

There is one type of individual that is a disgrace to the college life of Colby. He belongs to that species of "clever people" whose ideas of decency and gentlemanly conduct are left more to the imagination than to actual perception. He plies his trade incessantly, regardless of public opinion. Notwithstanding protests, and requests from an indignant student body for him to stop his petty thievery, he still persists in his defiance of "law and order." The individual referred to is no less than that accomplished person (or persons), who, of late, has been removing posters and notices from bulletin boards about the campus as fast as they are posted. Posters that evidence an unusual amount of work and skill are his especial prey. At the first opportunity, whether the event scheduled be one hour or forty-eight hours away, our modern outlaw makes away with his booty.

Requests and threats have been of no avail. It is time that something should be done to make the bane of our bulletin boards feels the weight of public opinion. Suspension from college activities and similar measures could be brought about by the Student Council. Let's show that Colby students will not condone such insolent and un-gentlemanly conduct.

CONCERNING BELGIAN OUTRAGE

A Colby man, after having heard the Rev. Mr. Foster, in one of his sermons, refer to train loads of Belgian children whose hands had been cut off by the Germans, wrote to the Letter Box of the Boston Post the following questions:

"How many Belgian children had their hands cut off by German officers? How many officers have been found guilty of this crime and have they been punished?"

After two months of investigation, the editor sent the following non-committal answer:

"We do not know that any official statement has been made regarding the number of Belgian children who were mutilated, or touching any punishment of the crime."

BARNES, '92, FAMILIAR FIGURE IN MAINE POLITICS.

Speaker Charles P. Barnes, of Houlton, who wields the gavel in the Maine House of Representatives, is a man who has seen much of men. He might prefer to be following the trail out under the blue sky, for he can do that equally well. Ever since he was a boy on an Aroostook farm he has been fond of the "great open."

His varied experience in public life peculiarly fits him for the position he now holds. He knows the lawmakers by name, real names and nicknames, titles and positions, and out of just what regions they all came. He has them sized up so effectually that he knows pretty much their hopes and desires.

Speaker Barnes is just a little past the half-century mark, but is full of pep. He was House leader two years ago. It is doubtful if any lawmaker in Maine has ever spoken on more subjects in one session. A remarkable circumstance in that connection has been his apparent intimate knowledge of all the problems with which he wrestles.

While in his present role, Speaker Barnes must miss hearing his own voice, many others on the floor of the House miss it a great deal more, for he always commanded attention and sometimes the "fur flew," but withal, he was entertaining.

There is a good deal of wit, irony and sarcasm tucked away in the Speaker's system. At times he is given to a few philosophical inshoots. Here are a few:

"Once upon a time an individual hearing that the crow lived to be 100 years old, bought a crow to find out."

"Three years before I was born, there was a crowd singing 'Hang Jeff Davis to a Sour Apple Tree.' Just about that time you could have passed a resolve in any gathering that no individual south of the Mason and Dixon line should ever come north of it."

"Now there are some that agree that the wealth of the lining of a man's skull is commensurate with the wealth of the lining of his pocketbook. I will not subscribe to that."

"In every town meeting in Maine there is the man who rises to move to pass over the article when the matter of appropriation for schools comes up. He is the same old fellow who goes home and makes his wife drink skimmed milk in her tea."

Speaker Barnes read law with Judge Joseph W. Symonds of Portland, one of Maine's most eminent lawyers, and was admitted to the Oxford County Bar in 1900. A few years later he was county attorney of Oxford and just before that was superintendent of schools at Norway. He was assistant attorney general in 1909. His education was secured in the common schools of Houlton, Ricker Classical Institute, and Colby College. He was a member of the Maine House of Representatives in 1917 and 1919.—The Boston Globe.

POPULAR POLICE PATTERN

Of course, it is complimentary to call the policeman a "copper" because he shines as a man of metal. The dictionary says that this term is slang but in the parlance of the great American public "cop" or "copper" is a friendly everyday name for the policeman. We do not deny that some of the highbrows designate him as "officer" while some of the lawbreakers call him a "bull." But, the big, robust, healthy fellow, who escorts the school kiddies across the thoroughfare and sends them on their way with a smile is "de cop." Like all people who serve the public the policeman comes in for his share of "kidding" and jokes. Most of the humor concerning friend "copper" that is penned by the press humorists is as good-natured as the genial enforcers of the law. On the screen in hundreds of theatres "Topics of the Day" films often present "copper" comics with laughing success. You will find plenty of laughs if you walk along the "beat" of jokes "arrested" below by the COLBY ECHO.

PANHELLENIC LYCEUM COURSE

On Thursday evening, the Panhellenic delegates from the five Sororities at Colby met to discuss plans for putting on a Lyceum course in Waterville next winter. President Roberts and Dean Runnals were both in favor of having such a course of entertainments and helped greatly with their advice.

Mr. Hindus, representing Coit-Albee Lyceum Bureau of Boston, offered some excellent suggestions in selecting attractions. After careful consideration the council decided on the following plan: The course will be composed of five attractions, each attraction being the best obtainable of its kind. The most famous artist who will come to Waterville in the course is Evelyn Scotney, a star at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. Scotney alone is worth the price of a season ticket. The other attractions are as follows: The Orpheus Male quartet which won the International Grand Prize of $3,000 at Los Angeles; Dr. S. Parks Cadman, noted orator and writer; Zedler Symphonie Quintet, which played in Waterville a few years ago and which has recently returned from New Zealand; Josephine Martino, a protegee of Caruso will sing and will bring in addition to her accompanist, a Russian violinist.

This is without doubt one of the best courses Waterville has had and the Council is anticipating strong support from the townspeople as well as from the students.

Miss Clara Wightman, '22, has been appointed executive secretary of the course and she will be in charge of all communications relating to it.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

In honor of Miss Mary E. Weisel, a delightful tea was given at Foss Hall, Tuesday afternoon, March 15, by the members of the retiring Y. W. C. A. cabinet. Other guests were the members of the Advisory Board and of the cabinet-elect. Miss Weisel spoke briefly of the relations between the Y. W. C. A. and the industrial girl.

On Thursday evening, Miss Weisel addressed the members of both cabinets, emphasizing the importance of an adequate restatement of Christian fundamentals. It was a great privilege to hear her, for her charming expression and splendid thoughts lent inspiration and incentive to the Y. W. C. A. work that Colby is trying to uphold.

Besides the open meetings at which Miss Weisel spoke there were private conferences with the new cabinet members to advise and strengthen them in the beginning of their new work.

Miss Weisel prepared the girls for meeting Miss Oolooah Burner, who will be at Colby on April 22, 23, and 24. To have Miss Burner at Colby, is another great privilege for the Colby Y. W. C. A.

Last Monday afternoon President Grace R. Foster entertained at a Chinese tea the members of her cabinet and Dean Nettie Runnals. Miss Foster received dressed in a Chinese gentleman's robe and Dean Runnals wore a Chinese scholar's gown, and the other guests were dressed as Chinese ladies. The affair was thoroly delightful and novel. Chinese charades were enjoyed. At the dinner hour, these Chinese ladies entered the dining room, chose a table by themselves, and demonstrated to the American students the use of the Chinese chop sticks.

Tuesday evening, March 15, Miss Dorothy Mitchell presided at Y. W. C. A. meeting. Miss Mary Weisel was the speaker, and the object of the meeting was to arouse enthusiasm for the Y. W. C. A. conference to be held at Camp Marque in June. It is expected that many Colby representatives will attend.

Last Monday evening the annual business meeting of Colby Y. W. C. A. was held as the regular meeting. The form was that of an open cabinet meeting, each member reading at this time the annual report for her committee.

President Grace Foster led a brief devotional meeting at the beginning; "The Manhood of the Master" is the book from which the cabinet has been studying this year, and from this Miss Foster led. Following devotionals, Miss Foster gave a general report of the purpose of the year's work. The following cabinet members gave these reports: Membership committee, Hazel Dyer; Finance committee, Kathleen Goodhue; Bible study, Irene Gushoe; Religious meetings, Alice Clark; World Fellowship, Daphne Fish; Publicity committee, Geraldine Baker; Social committee, Miriam Hardy; Community service, Elva Tooker; Conference committee, Dorothy Mitchell; Music committee, Alice Dyer; Undergraduate Field representative, Julia Hoyt; and Student Volunteer representative, Edith Harvey.

These reports summarized very well the splendid work that the Colby Y. W. C. A. has accomplished, and all Colby students are appreciative of the work of this excellent cabinet.

Installation of Y. W. C. A. officers for 1921-1922 will be held April 11.

The meeting of the Literary Society, Thursday evening was devoted to the study of James Whitcomb Riley. Gladys Briggs gave some charming readings from his poems and Naomi Maher read a sketch of his life. A delightful solo was given by Dorothy Knapp.

YOU HAVE WRITTEN POEMS!

Do you care to have them revised or constructively criticised by successful authors? If you do, then send us your manuscript (stories, articles or poems). We will criticise, and place them should they prove to be acceptable for publication.

There is no actual charge for our services. If, however, you have not previously enrolled with the advisory department of this association, we request that you enclose the initial fee of two dollars, which we must ask of each new contributor. There is no additional expense, no future obligation.

It must be realized that we can only be of aid to those of serious intent. If you do mean to strive for literary success, we can help you in many ways. Our services are yours until we have actually succeeded in marketing at least one of your manuscripts. Send something to-day!

Please enclose return postage with your communications.

STORE with the WHITE FRONT

: BOYS :

This is the College Store

NEVER in the history of over 30 years in business has this store recorded so many sales of Clothing to the College Boys as it has this past year.

We would like to say that this store is today selling mdse. at 30 to 50% under price of four months ago. We are buying clothing every day and selling it over our counters at a considerable saving to those who buy. High prices have gone, and this is one store, regardless of what we paid, dropped our prices when the market dropped.
