

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR PROF. BROWN

President Roberts, Dr. Libby
and Stanley G. Estes, '23
Address C. C. A. Meeting.

The regular Tuesday night meeting of the Colby Christian Association was given over to a memorial service for the late Professor Henry W. Brown. He always took a deep interest in the activities of the Christian association so this service was particularly appropriate.

The meeting was presided over by Joseph C. Smith, '24, vice-president of the association. Stanley G. Estes, '23, spoke a few words for the student body and told what a loss the association had suffered. He read some resolutions on behalf of the association.

Dr. Herbert C. Libby spoke for the faculty. He said that one of the outstanding qualities of Prof. Brown was that he regarded his profession as a way of approach in fashioning the standards of the young men of the college. He taught moral precepts at the same time he taught from the text-book. In a professor, it is the real man that counts, not his erudition or mental gymnastic power. Professor Brown was human, sympathetic, genuine, and fair. He assumed all kinds of social obligations and always had a burning passion for serving the students of the college. Professor Brown had sound convictions and always stood for the right. Both as a teacher and a preacher, he followed as closely as he could after Christ.

President Arthur J. Roberts spoke in behalf of the college. He mentioned Professor Brown's unswerving loyalty to Colby. He always was willing to do anything for the college, and few men have influenced more students to come to Colby. He was "an old-fashioned Christian" and was sincere and genuine in practicing his gospel. No one will ever be able to fill the gap that Professor Brown left in the college life.

DEKES HOLD JOINT BANQUET

Colby and Bowdoin Chapters
Meet with Alumni Association at Augusta.

The members of the Maine Alumni Association of Delta Kappa Epsilon and the undergraduates of the Colby and Bowdoin chapters held their annual banquet at the Augusta House, Augusta, Monday night, February 12.

The president of the association, Hon. Charles P. Barnes, Colby 1892, presided. The after dinner speakers were, Raymond Bates, Bowdoin 1923; Marlin D. Farnum, Colby 1923; and James Anderson Hawes of New York, secretary of the National Council.

All the active members were present except some who were sick and had to stay away. A great many of the alumni from both colleges were able to be there and the dining room of the Augusta House was well filled. Letters of regret at inability to attend were received from Governor Baxter, Chief Justice Cornish, and President Sills of Bowdoin.

HEALTH LEAGUE.

The Colby Health League announces the appointment of Evelyn Gilmore as manager of the Freshman basketball team to replace Dorothy Giddings who resigned on account of ill health.

After many disappointments and much hard labor, the skating rink in back of Foss Hall has been completed and actually skated upon. The ice promises to be fairly good from now on, and if the weather conditions are favorable, the girls may yet win their points for skating practices.

The Health Board is cogitating a plan whereby the point system will not have to be figured out in square roots and logs. Here's to their success!

The Pacific Coast Debating League consisting of the Universities of Oregon, Stanford, and Washington, have agreed to debate the question, "Resolved, that the Federal Government should legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines."

STINCHFIELD, '26 GETS LEGION PRIZE

Essay on "How The American Legion Can Best Serve The Nation" Awarded First Honors—Clinton Celebrates.

Roger A. Stinchfield, '26, of Clinton, has been honored by the American Legion with a medal for writing the best essay on "How the American Legion Can Best Serve the Nation." The essay was written last July and sent in to the committee. A long time passed when Stinchfield received a letter saying that his essay had been chosen as the best in the State of Maine. To the George N. Bourque Post of the American Legion fell the honor of presenting the medal which was the reward. Consequently, on Thursday afternoon, February 8, about fifteen legion men from Waterville, Mayor Leon O. Tebbetts, President Arthur J. Roberts, and several others went to Clinton to attend and take part in the presentation ceremony.

The townspeople had made great preparations for the occasion including a big supper in the town hall. An elaborate program was carried out, starting off with music by a chorus of six girls organized by Frank Besse. The speakers included A. D. Billings, Rev. E. E. Longley, Dr. F. T. Hill of Waterville, Mayor Tebbetts, and President Roberts.

President Roberts spoke about being proud to have Stinchfield as a student at Colby and went on to speak of the influence which the home may have on a young person's career. He also paid a high compliment to the American Legion.

During the evening a letter from Governor Baxter was read expressing his regrets at being unable to attend and commending Stinchfield for his fine work.

The medal was presented by Paul Julien, commander of the George N. Bourque Post of the American Legion. It is of sterling silver, bearing on the face the statue of victory holding aloft a laurel wreath and also on the face is a perfectly cut seal of the American Legion. On the back side is inscribed the name of the winner.

Stinchfield is also making a good record at Colby and his first semester has maintained a Phi Beta Kappa rank.

FIRST OF LECTURE SERIES HELD

The first of a series of four talks conducted by Professor H. L. Newman, under the auspices of the Bible Study committee of the Y. W. C. A., was held in the assembly hall at Foss Hall, Tuesday evening. Miss Louise Steele, chairman of the committee, gave a brief explanation of the purpose of this series of discussions and introduced Professor Newman.

The general topic of the discussion is "Christian Fundamentals." The special subject for the evening was "Christian Conceptions of God." Professor Newman explained this by discussing the question: "Who is? What does He do?" There are several conceptions, the physical form, God as all there is, absolute idealism, and a personal being in the universe. The latter conception is the most common. There are three endowments in personality, intelligence, will and feelings. Through his discussion, Professor Newman showed that man recognizes a supreme, all-loving, all-powerful, all-knowing Being, Who is God. In answer to the question: What does God do? he explained that the conception of God's work was in upholding the universe.

The meeting was most interesting and there were 93 present. The new association song pamphlets were used for the first time. The songs in this pamphlet are those used at Camp Magna. Professor Newman was most enthusiastically received and the girls look forward with a great deal of pleasure to the remainder of the series of talks.

"The student must be affirmative. He must be willing to throw his personality into the scales in behalf of those causes he believes to be fine. And he must have enthusiasm. Whether they are for better congressmen or better babies, for fewer words or fewer wars, for more interesting movies or more interesting men, he must support them with all his force."—The New Student.

1923 FOOTBALL CARD MADE PUBLIC

Manager Putnam and Athletic Director Edwards Announce Schedule for Next Season—Colby Squad to Play Eight Games.

Manager Lawrence A. Putnam, '24, of Fairfield, Maine, Monday afternoon, announced the Colby football schedule for the season of 1923. The schedule was made up by Manager Putnam and Athletic Director C. Harry Edwards. It has been approved by the Colby Athletic Association and contracts with the listed gridiron enemies have been negotiated.

The Colby football season next fall will be officially opened on Sept. 29. On this date, one of the Portland fort elevens will oppose Colby, if present plans mature. Last year was the first in many that one of the two soldier aggregations did not open the season on Seaverns Field. Colby, last year, opened against Springfield Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield, Mass.

The first real game of the season, the first being recognized as purely a practice and tryout session, will come on October 6 when the Blue and Gray football warriors will invade Rhode Island to stack their pigskin guns against the Brown Bruins at Providence. Colby last year was defeated 13-0 at Brown. The year before, Brown also won by the score of 13-7, after Colby had scored first blood.

Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, the Alma Mater of Athletic Director Edwards, will be faced at Springfield on October 12. It will be the third game between these two colleges, the Bay State school having won the two previous contests.

The first State series clash will be played at Brunswick on October 20. The White and the Blue and Gray played a 6-6 tie on Seaverns Field here last fall. Maine will be entertained at Waterville in the second State series fracas on October 27. Maine defeated Colby last fall. Friday night, October 26, will be observed as Colby Night, an annual celebration and grad night.

On November 3, Boston University will play Colby on Seaverns Field here. The Bean Eaters were held to a 3-3 score in the last gridiron campaign, the Colby players appearing in their greatest strength of the season.

The final State series battle of the schedule will find Bates at Waterville opposing Colby. These state colleges fought to a 7-7 tie at Garcelon Field, Lewiston, last fall. This game will be played on November 10 or 12, according to the date set for Armistice Day, when the game will be played. The final date on the slate is November 17, when a contract is pending.

No information could be gained as to the probable opponent in the final game. It is known that Fordham, Lowell Textile and the Army are not appear on the 1923 schedule. Fordham and Lowell Textile were Colby opponents last year for the first time. The schedule as announced includes three home games, not including the opener of the season. Waterville fans will be treated to three straight Colby grid games when Maine, Boston University and Bates appear in the order named, starting October 27th and appearing on consecutive Saturdays.

Campus opinion in general commends the athletic authorities in the formation of the 1923 schedule. The complete schedule follows:

Sept. 29—Pending.
Oct. 6—Brown at Providence, R. I.
Oct. 12—Springfield at Springfield, Mass.
Oct. 20—Bowdoin at Brunswick.
Oct. 27—Maine at Waterville.
Nov. 3—Boston University at Waterville.
Nov. 10-12—Bates at Waterville.
Nov. 17—Pending.

MUSICAL CLUBS GET UNDER WAY

First Concert Given at Vassalboro—Extended Trip Began Tuesday with First Concert at Winthrop.

The Colby Musical Clubs are now in full swing. The trip which is usually made at the beginning of the Christmas vacation had to be abandoned but the clubs have now become thoroughly re-organized and are making up for lost time.

On Tuesday, February 6, a short trip was taken to Vassalboro, where the first concert of the season was given. The concert went off smoothly and an excellent program was much enjoyed by all who attended.

On last Tuesday, the clubs started on their first extended trip. The first concert was given Tuesday night at Winthrop. There was a good crowd in attendance who heard a very well rendered program.

The clubs continued on to Portland, Wednesday morning, where a concert will be held in Frye Hall. This concert is under the auspices of the Portland Alumnae Building Fund of the Women's Division. A dance is also planned after the concert for which several picked members of the orchestra will furnish the music. The program at Portland will include some clever and original pieces. Much of the solo work is being especially well done.

COLBY HOCKEY TEAM LOSES TO UNIVERSITY OF MAINE 3-2

Waterville Puck Chasers Defeated at U. of M. Carnival—Size of Rink and Condition of Ice Unfavorable to Good Playing.

The Colby puck chasers met defeat at the Maine Carnival hockey game Friday afternoon. This game was the feature of the second day's sports at the carnival. The weather was ideal for the ice game and there were a large number of spectators present to witness the battle. And battle it was! The referee, a Maine man who was ineligible to participate, failed to observe any of the ordinary rules regarding fouls.

The score of the game as announced at the end was 3-2 in favor of the Maine Bears. While this may be the official score the actual count was a tie game, 3-3. The U. of M. students themselves admit that the Maine goal referee won the game rather than the hockey team. Colby scored once in addition to the two allowed goals, but the Maine goal inspector would not call the goal. The Maine scores were all unquestionable, although one was a very difficult one, shooting in from a side angle.

The ice on the Maine rink was rather poor along one side and hampered both teams in the use of the side-boards. The Colby team was also handicapped by the size of the rink. Neither the width nor the length was according to standard and as a result the wing men were unable to display their usual brand of hockey. Baxter, the Maine goal guardian, was busy during the entire game and warded off a large number of drives from the Colby forwards. During the first two periods the puck hovered about the Maine net for the greater part of the time. Capt. Berry of Colby was not resting all of the time however and turned in a very creditable piece of work for the afternoon.

Blair, the head referee of the game, is a good football player. Maine's first goal was the result of a technical foul by a Colby player. Vale, the Colby center, struck the puck while lying on the ice, a Maine man gained the puck, following this foul by Vale and scored. The referee permitted the goal to count contrary to the rules of the game.

But Blair was doing his best and should not be censured. It was the Maine goal referee who failed to show the true sportsman's spirit. In the third period Vale intercepted a pass in front of the Maine goal. He shot the rubber with such force that it went completely thru the net. It was a legitimate goal but the Maine man failed to call it. Why he refused to sanction the goal can only be surmised.

At the close of the first period Colby led by one goal. The second period ended with a tie score, Maine counting twice and Colby once. The last goal came with Vale off the ice when Stone slipped a hot one past the Colby goalie. For Colby, Vale excelled in the forward line and McKay on the defense. The Maine stars were Stone, the left wing, and the goal tender, Baxter.

The summary:
Maine (3)
Stone, lw ..... rw, Ratcliffe
Stearns, c ..... c Vale
Stover, r ..... lw, McGowan
McKay, ld ..... rd, McKay
Elliott, rd ..... ld, Huhn

Goals made by, Stone, Stover 2, Vale, Huhn. Substitutions: Coakley for McKay, Young for Berry, Berry for Young. Referee, Blair, U. of M. Timer, Norris, U. of M. Scorer, Austin, U. of M. Referees at goal, Colby, Barnes; Maine, Cary. Time of periods, three 12-minute.

THE KNOCKERS.

There seem to be a few men around the campus who are never satisfied with conditions as they find them. They find fault with the campus, with the faculty, with the city, and with their fellow students. If they get a high mark in a course it is because they are exceptionally bright, if they fail in a course the professor is down on them. These men go about bewailing the great misfortune that thrust them in the midst of such uncontinual knocking which some indulge in certainly cannot be sick of hearing their voices.

What does it really get a man to be forever complaining? To be sure constructive criticism is always welcome, but this continual knocking which some indulge in certainly cannot be given such a dignified name. If men would only realize that to be complaining all of the time does not prove to one's associates that he is above the remainder of humanity in power and intellect, but merely goes to show that the one who does the complaining is out of tune with his surroundings. O, there are always things in any place which are sure to be different than some may want them, but the way to get about this is to go about changing conditions without blowing a trumpet before one continually, or else ignore the disagreeable features entirely. If half the energy which is used in complaining were used in righting the things which are complained about the seat of complaint would be removed, and one's fellow-students would be spared the agony of having to listen to a lot of cheap talk.

So when one is tempted to complain and find fault with conditions as he finds them, no matter where he is, he first should endeavor to ascertain whether it is he or the surroundings which are out of tune, and then if he is decided that it is the surroundings to go quietly about to remedy the trouble or else get out. For there is no room anywhere, much less in this college, for the man who can see no good in anything. So swing in line and BOOST COLBY, and make the greatest little college in this world still greater.

It is not too early to begin to think of finals.

Little question for today: How did you hit the mid-years?

Even a freshman is known by his doings. Watch your step.

There is always hope for the man who will admit that there are some things which he does not know.

The second semester is now under way and it will be just what we are willing to make it. Success to those who seek it rightly, failure to those who do not.

President Roberts' chapel talks are always good but those who missed his talk on the Coue treatment applied to the moral life missed one of the best talks of the year.

Colds and gripe are prevalent now. The hospitals are full and the doctors have more than they can do. It is necessary for everybody to do all they can to escape it. Remember, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Maine has been afflicted this year with an epidemic of gripe and winter carnivals. It is hoped that the epidemic of gripe is about over, and it seems that the winter carnivals will culminate in the great Maine State Carnival that is to be held at Augusta.

Men are four: He who knows and knows he knows, he is wise. Follow him. He who knows and knows not he knows, he is asleep. Awaken him. He who knows not and knows he knows not, he is a child. Teach him. He who knows not and knows not he knows not. He is a fool, shun him.—Arabian Proverb.

Once more, now that mid-years are over, the time has come to settle down and do some real work. Those who think that they can get through this college without a little work will do so—in short order. Even though some of the results of the examinations were not up to expectation that is no reason why anyone should not try to do his best this semester. Everyone is starting with a clean slate. Why not keep it clean?

This week marks the birthday of one of the world's greatest men and the hero of all Americans—Abraham Lincoln. His life is an inspiration for all those who are acquainted with it. His perseverance and determination to do the right thing at all times has been an inspiration to all. Very few, however, know that one of Lincoln's sons is still living at the advanced age of eighty-one and who has many of the attributes of the former president. In another column an account of this son's life is given and it should prove very interesting to know just what the son of the greatest American has done during his life.

STUDY OF CLASSICS WANES AT PRINCETON.

The study of classics at Princeton University is on the decline, figures given out by the registrar November 28 show. In 1921 there were 780 men in the university taking either Greek or Latin. At present, although the enrollment has increased, the number of men studying the ancient languages has decreased to 659.

On the other hand, in 1921 the number of men taking either chemistry, physics, biology or geology was 1912, while at present the science department has 1842 students, an increase of 180 men in one year. The increase of students of the romantic languages this year was marked. From 1249 students in 1921 the number this term is 1459, an advance of 210 men. In the mathematics department an increase of 130 students has been recorded.—N. Y. Herald.

TO THE FOREFRONT*P. D. T. Defeats Non-Frats*-A. T. O. Defeats Z. P.-*D. U. Defeats Dekes--Al-*pha-Lambda Chi Game*Postponed.

The interfraternity basketball schedule was resumed Tuesday, after midyears, when the Phi Delt defeated the Non-Fraternity team. The last year's pennant winners were not running true to form and the final result was 36-19. Possibly the strain of midyears had not fully disappeared. However, the Phi Delt still have a clean slate and their chances for first place again this year look very good.

The game was somewhat broken up by fouls and Captain Burke, of the winners, garnered ten points from the free throw line. In addition to that Captain "Johnny" counted four times from the floor, giving him the high score of 18 for the afternoon. The Non-Fraternity line-up was somewhat altered. Chafetz, formerly the center, and Sadowski played well at guard and warded off many attempted scores.

The line-up:

riods.

The game scheduled between the Alphas and the Lambda Chis was postponed because of the untimely death of Ralph S. Robinson.

The games on Wednesday were both hotly contested and were in doubt throughout. The first game, between A. T. O. and Z. P., was perhaps the closest of the season thus far. At no time were the teams more than two baskets apart. The first half found the Zetes leading with the low score of 6 to 5.

As a result of such a close score there were several fouls called, but neither team was able to produce a man with a sure eye. Had one of the men been able to count them up like Capt. "Johnny" Burke of the Phi Delt aggregation, the score would not have been quite so close.

The Zetes were unfortunate in the last half. Schenck was forced to retire from the game due to a dislocated shoulder. He had been a literal tower of strength and his loss was felt very keenly. Following

Schenck's withdrawal the A. T. O.s

jumped into the lead and maintained

it until the final whistle.

The second Wednesday game was more loosely played and as a result the scoring was heavier. This contest found the D. U.s and Dekes struggling for supremacy. In the first part of the game the Dekes had a slight advantage. In the second division the D. U.s presented a changed line-up with "Daddy" Royal in a forward position. "Daddy" had been indisposed prior to the game but he could not be kept from the fray. His presence added the necessary impetus to reverse the advantage. The final outcome found the "Heraus mit 'em" is the war cry of German students toward drinking bouts according to Dr. Walter Nernst, Rector of the University of Berlin, who spoke recently at the German Congress for the Propagation of Prohibition among Young People. Dr. Nernst is reported to have said that there is today among students in Germany a decided swing away from former drinking customs, that students do not use intoxicants to the extent commonly ascribed to them, and that scholars have become the best allies of the fight against alcohol.

FEW KNOW OF LINCOLN'S SON

Robert Todd Lincoln, the son of the Emancipator, still lives. Some say he is the last survivor in the male line of the family from which Abraham Lincoln sprang. He and his two daughters and three granddaughters are the only living descendants of the great American. Of all the cases of son and great father this probably the most singular.

In Washington, where he now lives, Robert Todd Lincoln, now approaching his eighty-first year, is seen frequently driving through the parks or poring over old manuscripts and rare books in the library of congress. But it is doubtful if more than a hundred residents of Washington know him by sight. His name rarely appears in the newspapers, never in connection with public or social activities. The old Georgetown mansion where he and his family make their home, is one of the most picturesque in the national capital; it was built in the eighteenth century by a wealthy Scotch shipmaster. The Lincolns live in dignified elegance. But a society editress of long experience in Washington was unable to supply the names of the daughters and granddaughters. Another did not even call that the Lincolns now make their home in Washington.

When tentative plans were being outlined some time ago for the dedication of the great Lincoln Memorial, the supreme national tribute to Abraham Lincoln, it was suggested that special provision be made for the attendance of Robert Todd Lincoln and his family.

"Accept my appreciation for the thought," he stated when the suggestion was conveyed to him, "but under no circumstances must you carry it out. We of course shall attend, but only on a par with the general public. We prefer that no notice whatever be taken of us."

Thus it would seem that Robert Todd Lincoln will maintain to the end the modesty of attitude toward his father's name that has characterized his long life. There isn't of record a single utterance ever penned or spoken publicly by him on the subject of Abraham Lincoln. He has never been "interviewed" on the subject—or many other subjects. For long he has been regarded as the most inaccessible of prominent men; for aside from his name Robert Todd Lincoln has played a conspicuous part in the Nation's life.

He was born in Springfield, Ill., in 1843, and graduated from Harvard in 1864. He left the Harvard law school to enter the army, regarding which step there survives one of his father's most characteristic letters. It was written to General Grant in January, 1865, and is as follows:

"Please read and answer this letter just as though I was not President, but only a friend. My son, now in his twenty-second year, having graduated at Harvard, wishes to see something of the war before it ends. I do not wish to put him in the ranks, nor yet to give him a commission, to which those who have served long are better entitled and better qualified to hold. Could he, without embarrassment to you or detriment to the service, go into your military family with some nominal rank. I, and not the public, furnishing his necessary means? If not, say so without hesitation, because I am as anxious and as deeply interested that you shall not be incumbered as you can be yourself."

Grant promptly made the boy a member of his staff with the rank of captain. He accompanied the general to Washington on that memorable April 14, following, and thus was present at his father's death the next morning. He is only one of the two living persons who witnessed that sad event; it is said that he has never again put foot in the old dwelling across from Ford's theater where it occurred. Incidentally, he was present also at the death of President Garfield.

The young man was showered with opportunities for capitalizing his name. He spurned all of them. He settled in Chicago, buried himself in the study of the law, and began to practice in 1867, turning down all temptations to enter politics.

In his early days he took occasional but always a quiet part in national politics. His first and among his few political speeches was for Blaine in 1876. He supported the third term movement for Grant in 1880, and Garfield, who was elected, offered him the post of secretary of war. He took it and was the only one of Garfield's cabinet members who was retained by Arthur.

In 1884 a movement was started to make Robert Todd Lincoln the Republican candidate for President. He blocked it on the plea that his loyalty belonged to President Arthur, who wanted the nomination. Later, over his protest, he was appointed minister to Great Britain by President Harrison. That was his last public service in office. Following it he became special counsel for the Pullman Company, and later succeeded George M. Pullman as president. He is now very wealthy.

Some say that it was Henry Waterson's lecture on "Abraham Lincoln" which caused Robert Lincoln to carry his resolve to avoid any seeming to take advantage of his father's name to the point of an almost inexplicable avoidance of all public demonstrations of whatever nature having to do with his renowned father.

He went to hear Waterson at the first delivery of the lecture, about 1880, in Chicago. It is said that he didn't like the emphasis put by Waterson on Lincoln's lowly origin, which he took as something of an undeserved reflection upon the family strains that entered into his father's and his own making. He couldn't contradict the tendency on the part of most speakers and many writers to exaggerate facts about the Lincoln and Hanks families, for his act would have been misconstrued. So, it is said, he decided to avoid being placed in a position of seeming to give approval to anything any fervid orator might say about them.

A few years ago he modified his rule of self-imposed silence to the extent of protesting against the Barnard statue, which it was intended to set up in London. He made no noisy protest, merely going to the late Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador at Washington, and stating that he hoped the statue—which he contends does not properly present his father—should not receive the approval of dedication by the British government. His protest led to the substitution in London of a replica of St. Gaudens' noble conception. Barnard's statue has since been set up in Manchester.

Frequently he has written to some artist, writer or orator, to express his personal appreciation for some tribute to his father. But though some "Lives of Abraham Lincoln" contain statements which he disputes, he has never entered into any controversy as to the facts of his father's life and career. It is said that he does not at all like Lord Charnworth's biography, which has had much to do with shaping the European conception of his father. So far as known he has never seen or expressed himself on Drinkwater's play, which is taken largely from the Charnworth biography.

It has been supposed that the only one of Lincoln's three children to reach maturity—the second, "Willie," died while a child in the White House and the youngest, "Tad," the father's favorite, died on reaching manhood—would probably leave for posthumous publication the valuable memoir which he alone could write. But personal friends of Robert Lincoln say they have no reason to believe that he has prepared or will prepare such a memoir.

But it is known that he has collected much material having to do with his father's life and career. Many years ago when he was asked to give the Lincoln dwelling at Springfield to the state of Illinois he hesitated because of his fear that it would be taken as a play for political favor. But when the legislature requested the gift he promptly decided the old family home to the state, which now preserves it—Aaron Hardy Ulm in Leslie's Weekly.

NOT so many years ago (when some of us ourselves were undergraduates) the college student was a hoodlum. Today he is as conservative as can be—but with definite expression of his individuality none the less. Witness, John Ward Shoes. They are made to meet the tastes of college men; dignified, but carrying a note of real distinction.
