

MAJOR ROGER A. GREENE TO COACH COLBY GRIDDERS

Lewiston Man Selected by Athletic Council to be Mentor for Football During Fall of 1923. Has Had Varied Athletic Career--Coached Colby's Championship Team in 1916--Formerly a Penn Star--Speaks to Candidates in Gym.

Roger A. Greene of Lewiston, known throughout New England to every football player who ever trod the tangled turf of a football gridiron and to every Pine Tree pigskin follower who followed the destinies of the Colby championship football eleven in 1916 and the near Bowdoin championship machine of 1920, Monday afternoon handed over his signed contract to Athletic Director C. Harry Edwards of Colby, his capacity to be that of football coach of the Colby eleven for the season of 1923. His contract calls for a single year's service. The terms of the contract were not announced, but it is known that the sum to be paid the new Blue Kempton, former Yale quarterback, and others were considered. The final selection fell to Greene.

After securing his promise of release from the directors of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Greene next made plans to visit Colby and see for himself just what the prospective candidates for the 1923 grid eleven looked like. He arrived on the mid-morning train from Lewiston and immediately went to the office of Athletic Director Edwards. At 11 o'clock, a meeting of the candidates was called in the gymnasium.

About thirty men reported in response to the first call. Captain-elect Arthur W. Burckel, '24, of Lawrence, and Gray mentor exceeds the highest salary ever paid a Colby football director, Coach Fuller receiving $1600 in the fall of 1915.

MAJ. ROGER A. GREENE

Greene will again turn his hand to Maine college coaching at the same institution where in 1916 he won the state's championship on the grid. Colby has not won the championship since that fall, has not even been a formidable contender since the astute Greene held the reins. The return of Greene to the Colby campus will be hailed with enthusiasm by every Blue and Gray supporter and will cause the other three Maine coaches some added thought in the planning of their 1923 football campaigns.

The selection of Greene as 1923 mentor of the Blue and Gray grid forces comes as no surprise to those who have been intimately acquainted with the Colby football situation and the efforts of the Colby Athletic Council to secure a good coach for the coming fall season.

For the past month it has been pretty generally understood that Greene was the man that Colby wanted. Financial matters held up the negotiations of the contracting. Finally the Colby authorities secured the necessary funds and a final figure was given to Greene. He announced his willingness to come for the sum stipulated providing he could secure from the directors of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce a leave of absence during the fall campaign.

This permission was not available for various reasons until recently when he was granted permission to leave his work as manager of the Textile City Chamber during the period when he wished to coach the Colby team.

Greene was not the only individual mentioned in the only discussions of the Colby Council. Joe Guyon, former Carleton Indian star and later a shining luminary on the professional American athlete, Jim Thorpe, was also considered in the winter months. Gilroy, at present coach of the Princeton Freshmen eleven, "Fido"

Mass., met the new coach for the first time. Director Edwards introduced the new mentor.

He spoke for a few minutes briefly. He outlined his plans for the coming fall season and emphasized the fact that the men must immediately begin to think of the fall if success is to be the outcome. He mentioned training rules and stated that whereas it was not necessary nor advisable to take up exact training procedure at present, that the men who were to try for places on the eleven should keep in fair physical shape during the spring and summer. He mentioned the late opening date of the Maine colleges and said that the training season in the fall was necessarily short, thus making it necessary for the men to give some thought to their condition before reporting on the ground in the fall for action.

He mentioned co-operation and declared that all would have to work for the team when he was coach. He said that he understood many to believe that fraternity politics were hurting Colby athletics and that such politics had damaged the chances of the Blue and Gray grid crew in the past few years. He declared with much emphasis that he did not believe this to be true. He added that only through close co-operation and good team spirit could any aggregation of athletes ever attain success no matter what the sport.

He said that fundamentals would be his first thought in the fall. He said that he would rather lose the first few games than to enter the season giving attention to intricate plays when individuals on the team did not even understand the fundamentals of position and team play.

He said that he was very glad to return to Colby and that he was sure that the eleven would be successful in the fall if everyone worked the hardest to insure victories.

Roger Greene of Lewiston is probably the best known football man in the State of Maine. As coach, referee

GENERAL HERSEY ADDRESSES MEN

Former Maine Man Comes to Colby in Interests of Citizens' Training Camp.

Last Monday, April 23, at the chapel exercises, the students were addressed by Brig. Gen. Mark L. Hersey on the Citizens' Training Camp which is to be held at Camp Devens this summer. In his introduction of Gen. Hersey, President Roberts spoke of him as a native of Maine, a distinguished soldier, and a man of unusual judgment and good sense because he married a Colby girl.

Gen. Hersey spoke of the camp as a fifty-fifty proposition. Those who attend it give their time and the government pays the bills including traveling expenses both ways. The camp lasts for thirty days. It is for the good of America and the world.

He declared that the War Department would be more properly called the Peace Department. Our strength is our salvation and no country was ever kept out of war by weakness. There are peace organizations now in existence which are a bit dangerous, was his warning, there being about 70,000 people in this country who are inclined toward Bolshevism, anarchy and kindred evils. We do not get so much of it up here in Maine. He quoted the statement of Mrs. Minor, retiring president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, that there are 8000 disloyal teachers in America, and he expressed the opinion that teachers are not paid enough. In this connection he cited a case which he knew of where the teachers of a school in Brookline had invited a certain woman to address the students and she had told them that the flag was not any different from any other rag painted red, white and blue.

He spoke of the men of the War Department in the highest terms as hard working, patriotically inspired men working for the best interests of the country, urging readiness lest another war come upon us. Comparing them with the Society for the Prevention of War across the street from the War Department building, he said that the society with but a few years of experience expects to make peace by universal disarmament while the War Department men who have devoted their whole lives to the study of such problems have found that Washington's proposition that preparedness is the best way to preserve peace is true. "No democracy ever breeds militarism," he declared. He also quoted Ex-President Wilson: "Every life lost in the war was the penalty we paid for unpreparedness."

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR COLBY GRAD

Albert J. O'Neill, '16, Buried from His Home in Nashua, N. H.--American Legion Has Charge of Services.

Nashua, N. H., April 18--The funeral of Albert J. O'Neill, formerly of this city, principal of the high school at Derby, Ct., was held this morning at St. Patrick's church. An escort under the command of Lt. Albert G. Coffey was provided by James E. Coffey post, A. L., of which he was a member. High mass was celebrated by the Rev. Matthew Creamer, and the bearers were Dr. Thomas A. McCarthy and John Farrell, representing Nashua lodge of Elks; Robert J. Doyle and Leo Wrenn, representing Nashua Council, K. of C., and Leo Hallisey and David P. Stevens, representing the legion. Taps were sounded at the grave in the parish cemetery by Bugler J. L. Rihghey and the customary salute was fired by the escort.

He pointed out Switzerland as an example where every citizen is a trained soldier. This was what prevented Germany from daring to make an attack on that quarter. To be sure the Alps offer some protection, but natural barriers now offer but slight obstacles. Where one man can go a thousand can go more easily.

The camp at Devens is to have the best physical trainers in the country. The results which are accomplished surprise even the army men themselves. The mental improvement also is commensurate with the physical improvement. The associations are wholesome and the camp develops character and leadership, and furnishes patriotic inspiration. He read a letter from a man who had attended the camp and wanted to help get others to go.

"The basic idea," he said, "is that military government is subordinate to civil government." He believes that the camp will develop the soul of the country, and he is especially anxious to get college students, already picked as leaders, to get the benefits of this training.

Gen. Hersey received a fine reception and the chapel was practically filled.

COLBY WINS FIRST GAME FROM U. OF M. WITH SCORE 5-3

Waterville Men Succeed in Downing Their Old Rivals in Well-Played Contest--Game Not to Count in State Series--Odom Pitches Great Game Allowing but a Few Scattering Hits.

Colby started her baseball season right this spring with a win from Maine on Patriot's Day. Altho this was only an exhibition game and will not count in the State series, it gave the fans an opportunity to size up the two teams while in action. From the looks of the material Coach Parent exhibited Thursday Colby's chances for a winning team are of the best.

Both teams failed to display the brand of ball which will come later after more hard practice has rounded off the rough spots. The weather was cool and it takes a warm day to make a team appear at its best. There were the usual number of hits, errors and strikeouts mingled with an occasional display of classy fielding.

George Odom of Gloucester was Parent's choice for the mound in Colby's initial game. Altho a bit unsettled at first, he soon settled down and was seldom in danger. There was some fear in the Colby stands that Odom would not last thru the game. This was soon dispelled when he retired the Maine Bears with his baffling hook which he mixed up with some fast ones.

Coach Clark of Maine used three men on the hill during the game. Thompson, Perry and Repscha each pitched three innings. Jowett, Maine's best bet for the State series, was left at home. During the game four errors were chalked up against Colby, with two for Maine.

Johnnie McGowan, a first year man from Westbrook Seminary, was the individual star of the afternoon: His work at first was all that could be asked for. Several times he captured wild throws which might well have meant the game. His long hit to the fence in left field during the lucky seventh was good for the circuit but he was held to two bases by a ground rule. Odom and Lanpher scored on this clout.

Colby outhit her opponents 9 to 6, but the Maine men outplayed her in the field. The Colby infield looked rather ragged in their first game, making the four errors. Peabody, another first year man, messed up two grounders. The other misdeeds were contributed by Ratcliffe and Franson. McGowan's stellar work saved at least two additional errors. The outfield looked better altho Shanahan misjudged Lunge's fly to deep right in the first frame. At the bat, the home team collected nine hits. Franson led with three pretty bingles. Lunge handled the stick well for Maine getting two hits at the right time.

The top of the batting list figured in the scoring of both nines. Colby got away to a good lead in the first inning. Lanpher drew a pass and was advanced to second by Peabody's clean single. McGowan failed to connect but Shanahan and Franson both singled driving in two runs. Cutler walked, and Ratcliffe also drew a life but Callaghan struck out with the bases loaded.

Colby clinched the game in the lucky seventh. Odom succeeded in reaching first. Lanpher and Peabody were issued free tickets filling the bases. McGowan drove the ball to dozy left scoring Odom and Lanpher. The Colby men were held to two bases by ground rules. Shanahan was hit by Perry, Franson struck out but Peabody scored when Repscha booted Cutler's grounder to the box but threw out the Colby center fielder at first. Ratcliffe retired the side.

Maine annexed one run in the fourth and two more in the eighth. Stearns singled at the start of the eighth but was forced at second by King. Osgood drew a pass and Lunge yanked first when Peabody fumbled his grounder. Durham struck out. Foster singled, scoring King and Osgood but on the next play Franson threw out Cooney, saving the game.

The umpire, Harry Lord of Portland, an ex-big leaguer, worked efficiently on both balls and strikes, and on the bases. It is expected that in the State series games the officiating will be handled by two men.

COLBY LOSES TO PROVIDENCE

First Out-of-State Contest Played in Driving Rain.

In a rain storm, with a thirty mile an hour gale snatching fly balls from the outfielders, Colby lost to Providence college by a 7 to 6 score. Colby put up a good fight, being headed in the second, when Providence piled up three runs. The Rhode Island men added one in the third and one in the fourth. Colby scored two in the third and fourth. A wild stab for the game in the ninth netted one run, which was not enough to clinch the contest.

Three circuit clouts were registered, one of which was garnered by Peabody of Colby. Odom, on the mound for the visitors, was wild, but got good support, only three errors being marked against the Colby crew. Franson of Colby was the defensive star of the game. McGowan got three hits. Peabody also did well, playing fast all around baseball.

The score:

Colby 000 220 101-6 9 3

Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

A meeting of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet was held on Tuesday night, at 7 o'clock in the association room. The chief business for discussion was the plans for the retreat to Snow Pond on Saturday and Sunday. The cabinet is to go there to plan its work for the coming year, and indications point to a pleasant and profitable retreat. Conference are to be held in charge of the various leaders of the Colby Association's work.

At 7:30 the regular meeting took the form of a discussion of prospects for a better year in charge of Prof. Newman.

SLANG AS SHE IS SLUNG.

Slang is like garlic—a little goes a long way. When used with discretion it aids a certain pungency to what is otherwise flat and insipid, but in abundance it smells to heaven.

Perhaps the most legitimate slang is in the give and take of campus conversation. There is a lilt and happy-go-lucky spirit among college youths that takes a peculiar pleasure in coining droll similes to replace the staid language of their elders. Some undergraduate genius may decide that a certain expression is trite, so he works out some exaggerated metaphor to take its place. If it has that indefinable quality of contagiousness, another slang phrase has been launched on its riotous career. Other people hear it and use it. Then they begin to find weird synonyms to use in its place and the game is on. Soon all connection with the original meaning has been lost and the phrase is batted to and fro promiscuously. Herein is the great danger of slang: used vaguely and all-inclusively, it becomes the worst possible enemy of clear thinking and precise expression.

Let us trace the synthesis of a typical bit of to-day's slang. For some unknown reason a rabbit's foot came to be a symbol of good luck. From "rabbit's foot" it is an easy jump to "cat's ankle," and thence step by step until we find ourselves with "bee's knees," "snail's eyebrows," or "snake's hips." But, by this time, we have completely lost sight of our starting point and "hen's bicuspids" indicates only an indefinitely high quality of anything from potatoes to poetry. Thus, from an innocent piece of superstition we have developed a vicious inducement to sloppy English.

Slang may be picturesque, expressive, and even convey delicate shades of meaning. But, in the great majority of cases, it is used to excess and produces only a strong impression of muddled intellect and cheap sophistication.

WE CANNOT LIVE THIS LIFE ALONE.

No matter how much we endeavor to live to ourselves alone, it is an impossibility. All that one has is the result of labor on the part of others, often sacrifice. All the enjoyments, all the opportunities of the present time come directly or indirectly from the efforts of others. Perhaps one thinks that he can withdraw from the crowd and live his life entirely independent of everyone else, but he cannot. The clothes which one wears, the food which one eats are the results of labor of multitudes whom he has never seen. The college student may think that he can go through college and get all that the college has to offer and never give anything in return, thinking that when he has paid his term bill that he has paid his obligation to the college. This idea is, of course, false. There are very few colleges in this land that were not founded by the sacrifice of men with a vision, men who were willing to give with never a hope of a return in any sense of the word. They were willing to give of their money and of their lives because of a vision which they had of an educated people. Because of that vision and because of that willingness to sacrifice the college students today have the advantages which they enjoy. It is the height of foolishness for the college man to say that he owes no man anything. He owes a debt to those who sacrificed so much in the past that can never be paid, except by a life of service.

THE Y. M. C. A.

The Colby Y. M. C. A. needs and is worthy of the support of every man in college. It is an organization made up of the best of the student body. Here we find no weak-spined, thin-blooded individuals, but red-blooded men who are willing to come out for what is best in life, men who have convictions and who have the courage to stand by them. At present the work of the Y. M. C. A. is being carried on by a comparatively small group of men, but these men have not given up in despair because the rest of the student body seems uninterested, rather they are working all the harder because of it. What is needed now more than anything else is the realization on the part of the whole student body of the importance of the work of the organization. It is now beginning a big program for a successful year under a new cabinet, and every man who is not afraid to come out for what is best in life will get behind the Colby Y and boost.

FOLKS' MINDS WILL TRAVEL.

When the Joneses, who live next door to you, returned from abroad in 1918, Mrs. Jones—if you let her—talked about "the Louver" and "Westminster Abbey" and the remarkable pension she found in Rome. Mrs. Jones is just back from her first post-war visit to Europe. And now, when she speaks to you or the Friday Club or to the reporter for the "Bugle," it is all about the Ruhr invasion and what her chambermaid said about employment in England, and the condition of the children in Germany. This time everyone listens to her. Lord Robert Cecil visits us. In 1918 an Englishman of his standing might or might not have been a guest at a formal routine banquet of the Pilgrim Society, say. As it is, the dinner to Lord Cecil overflowed the biggest banquet hall in New York, and his speech, broadcast by radio, was heard by at least half a million people. The agents for foreign journals of opinion, both French and English, report doubled and trebled American circulations.

Will not the National Civic Federation or some other body of 100 per cent petitioning patriots force attention from the President and Congress to this dangerous attitude of mind? We cannot keep our bodies isolated while our thoughts are abroad. If we continue this distracting interest in matters on which we would better remain ignorant, the Lord knows how we may in the end entangle ourselves. A thorough quarantine against European thought in all its hideous, distorted, and disturbing forms is probably the only effective method. Metternich once enforced such an intellectual embargo in Austria. All news entering the country was censored; all Austrians wishing to travel; all foreigners wishing to enter, had to prove that their opinions were right. And Metternich made it go for thirty years. Probably thirty years will be long enough in this case. That will carry us to the next general war, after which it will not matter whether we are isolated or not. Nothing matters to the dead.—Colliers.

It has been said time and again that when one has once put his hand to the plow he must not turn back. That is all very well if one has decided beforehand that his course of action is right. Otherwise if one discovers after he has started that he is going wrong and then refuses to go back and start in the right direction he is the greatest of all cowards. One track minds are not popular these days.

Opportunity comes to every man. The reason that it is not recognized is that it usually comes in the disguise of hard work.

With baseball, track, tennis, glee club trip, and debating coming along where is one to find time for classes?

In trying to beat the other fellow a man usually succeeds in beating himself.

What do they mean "Senior Wrangler"?

YOU may not have met one of those dear old boys,—Oxonian stuff, what, what?—but our idea of a senior wrangler is a '23 man trying to work up a lather with the wrong kind of shaving cream.

There's no "wrangling" necessary to get a lather with Williams' Shaving Cream. Squeeze out a spendthrift's dab or a tightwad's dab—it's all the same. Either way you get a big, efficient lather that softens the beard right down to the base of every hair.

And best of all, this big Williams' lather has a decidedly beneficial effect on your skin. No complexion soap could do more for you than Williams' does every time you shave. Get a tube of Williams' today and begin giving your face this helpful care.

The Colby baseball team left on the invasion of Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut on the 10.10 train Monday night. They arrived in Boston Tuesday and proceeded directly to Providence, R. I., where they played Providence college in the afternoon. Wednesday afternoon they will tackle the Brown Bears at Andrews field. Thursday will be a day of rest as a result of Rhode Island State having cancelled the game scheduled for Kingston. The team will probably work out on the Brown diamond for a short while in the afternoon. On Friday they will go to Storrs, Conn., where they will play Connecticut Aggies. They will then return to Lowell, Mass., where they will cross bats with Lowell Textile on Saturday.

Coach Parent announced the line-up would be as follows: Captain Johnny Lanpher will be behind the bat. Johnny is a veteran of three years and is regarded as one of the best catchers in the state. He will do much to steady the pitchers and is a hard worker. Jack McGowan, former Westbrook Sem star will guard the initial sack and if he continues the stride which he hit in the Colby-Maine clash last Thursday he will need no assistance. At the keystone sack Peabody from Houlton will be seen in action. Although a trifle erratic in his fielding in his first start, he has shown some good stuff and is a free and easy hitter. corner Ratcliffe will do his work. In his debut he was a little off color but since then he has shown a decided improvement and should be a valuable man to the Blue and Gray team. At shortstop Babe Fransen can be depended on to carry out his assignments in first class shape and at the present time he is hitting at a merry clip. Tom Callaghan will patrol the left garden. Tom is a reliable fielder but at present is a little weak with the willow. In the centerfield berth Brad Cutler will take charge of affairs. The yearling looked good in the opening clash. In the right pasture Coburn Danny Shanahan will be the guardian. Danny is a neat fielder and can be depended upon to come through with a hit when it is needed. Wilson and Royal will be the utility men. Odom who turned in such a good game against Maine will pitch the opener, although Porter may draw the assignment. Other pitchers are Howard and Ekholm.

MAJ. ROGER A. GREENE TO COACH GRIDDERS

and general all around critic, he is known to nearly every Maine college football follower.

Mr. Greene graduated from Marietta Academy at Marietta, Ohio. In his preparatory school days, he showed the athletic ability which was to later win him athletic prominence among the larger colleges of the eastern and middle Atlantic divisions. After graduating from Marietta Academy, he matriculated at Marietta College. At that college, he played three years of varsity football and three years of varsity baseball.

After graduating from Marietta, the college recently coached on the gridiron by "Greasy" Neal and the one and the same school which nearly defeated Boston College two years ago, Greene entered the University of Pennsylvania Law School. He immediately made a place for himself on the Freshmen football eleven. Later he served for two years as an outstanding star on the Penn varsity team. He was also a member of the swimming and wrestling teams of the Quaker institution.

While at Marietta, Greene was a classmate and close companion of Richard "Dick" Hobiltzel, Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox first baseman. Since taking part as a coach in Maine pigskin doings, "Hobbie" often came to Maine to assist his former classmate in developing Pine Tree machines. At Penn, from which school he graduated in 1912, Greene was under the tutelage of the late famous Mike Murphy, the greatest athletic trainer of all time. He also played under the direction of Andy Smith, internationally known football mentor, now coach of the University of California Golden Bears. The Golden Bears have consistently defeated eastern invaders for the past decade and are considered the strongest grid machine in the United States. Under two such great teachers, Greene developed into an intercollegiate star and also laid the foundation for a brilliant career as coach and critic.

Greene first made his debut as a Maine college coach in the year 1913 when he took over the reins of the Bates College eleven. He remained with the Garnet until 1915. He gave Colby her last Maine state football championship in 1916 when he groomed his players for the successful drive for the state honors for that year. At Colby he developed such stars as Eddie Cawley and Heath who received All-Maine selection. Other stalwart players on that team were Deasey, Stinson, Perry, Joyce, and Coolidge. The only setback of the season came at the hands of the Crimson of Harvard which defeated the Blue and Gray by the score of 10 to 0. No Maine college has been able to hold the Cambridge eleven to such a low score since that time. Bates was walloped 27 to 7, Bowdoin 14 to 7, and Maine was held scoreless that year. Colby also won that year from New York University, then a more formidable aggregation than at the present time.

In 1920, Greene assumed the coaching position at Bowdoin. Though failing to win that championship Greene's team finished second. So well did he work in the building of new players that the next fall, with Ostergren at the helm, the White annexed the championship. No attempt has been made to cut off praise from Freddie Ostergren, but even that coach's most loyal friends have been forced to admit that Greene prepared the material with which Ostergren mounted the ladder to success. The evident lack of power in the 1922 Bowdoin eleven has made this feeling more pronounced than ever.

Since relinquishing his position as coach at Bowdoin, Greene has been in much demand as an official. He has been busy every fall afternoon for the past two years and is a member of the Central Board of Football Officials.

All of Greene's fighting has not been on the gridiron and on the coaches' bench. He served in the World War with an excellent record. He was commissioned to organize the Lewiston Company of the Ballantine Maine Heavies at the outbreak of the war. He went overseas and came back a major.

For the past year Mr. Greene has been manager and secretary of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce. During the past winter, he also served as treasurer of the Maine Winter Sports Committee.

With the announcement that Roger A. Greene of Lewiston is to coach the Colby football eleven of 1923, interest in the strength of the squad which will report to the new mentor is awakened.

Of course it is too early to prognosticate what strength will accrue to the local college in the annual fall preparatory school lottery. Though several preparatory school stars are headed in the general direction of Colby, it is in no way certain that they will reach their at-present intended destination.

Inasmuch as little is known of the possible strength of the Freshman class of the fall, insofar as football power is concerned, it brings back the squad of last fall as the only possible means of determining the strength of next year's eleven.

Several of last year's regulars will not be available under the Greene regime. Tom Callahan, end; ex-Captain "Hoof" Brown, guard; Werno, quarterback; Frudo, guard; Lanpher, quarterback; and Levee, quarterback; have either left Colby or will graduate in June. Greene will have to produce a new quarterback. Those remaining from last year's squad are McPherson and Sadowsky, both freshmen who saw service on the second team.

In the backfield, Greene will have Bill Millett, veteran fullback, and McBry and Tarpey, halfbacks. In the line the veterans will be Bon Soule, end; Moynihan, captain-elect Burekel and Goodrich, tackles; Hascal, Bartlett and Wentworth, guards; Huhn, Wilson and Chafetz, centers.

No announcement has yet been made of the exact opening date of the Colby fall training season but it is probable that the men will be called out about September 10. The final game on the Colby schedule is as yet undecided upon. The authorities are considering several teams and will soon announce the final trip and game.

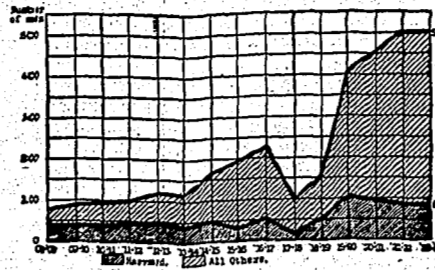

Through an error the following names were left out of the Honor Roll:

William M. Ford, '20, nine hours.
William J. McDonald, '25, fifteen hours. (Second semester 1921-22).

HARVARD Graduate School of Business

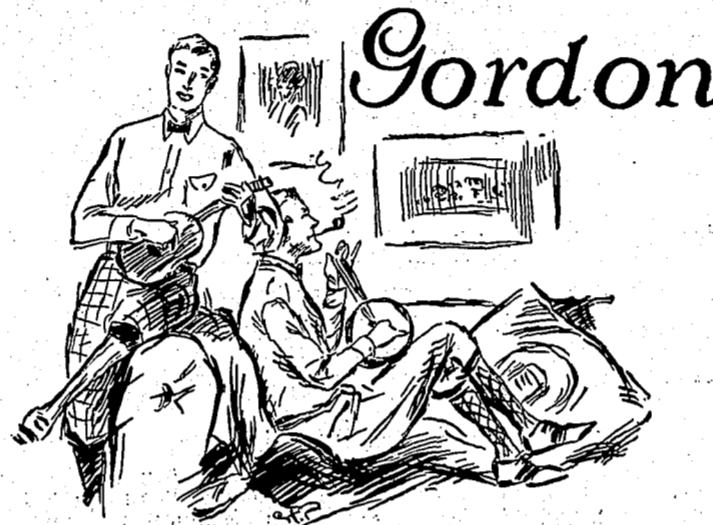

A two-year course in business, open to college graduates, leading to the degree of Master in Business Administration

Points of interest regarding the Harvard Business School:

1. The above graph shows the growth in enrollment and the large number of students coming from institutions other than Harvard. During the present year 158 colleges are represented.
2. The case method is used. Actual problems obtained from business are used as the basis of instruction. A staff of investigators is constantly at work gathering problems.
3. Business is regarded and studied as a profession.
4. What the students in the School think of the training which they receive is indicated by the high percentage of eligible first year men who return to complete the course—84 per cent. the present year.
5. The training in the School materially shortens the apprentice period in business. A prominent business man recently said: "On the basis of our experience with your graduates, I estimate that you are saving them five years net. Six months after they come to us, your men are as well fitted to assume responsibility and to make decisions as the typical college man at thirty." The enrollment is limited in first year courses.
