

COLBY DEBATERS IN FIRST CONTEST

Win From New Hampshire at Waterville and Lose at Durham.

In the first intercollegiate debate held this year, Colby college defeated New Hampshire University Thursday evening in Memorial chapel. The chapel was packed full with an appreciative audience who took an active interest in the hotly contested arguments put up by both teams. The decision rendered by the judges gave Colby a victory by two votes to one.

The chairman of the evening was Dr. J. William Black of the Colby faculty and the board of judges consisted of the following: Arthur L. Thayer of Augusta, George G. Weeks of Fairfield and C. P. Stewart of Fairfield.

The debate was opened by Theodore R. Hodgkins who introduced the proposition which was, "Resolved, That the Occupation of the Ruhr by the French Deserve the Censure of this House." The first affirmative speaker endeavored to prove that France had gone beyond her legal right in occupying the Ruhr and that her action did not meet with the complete approval of the allies.

For the negative, David T. Hartwell claimed that Germany was intentionally delinquent in her payment of reparations and that the invasion was purely economic for financial reasons. Russell M. Squire then endeavored to prove that Germany could not pay the indemnity and that the decline of the value of money in that country through the poor manipulation of several different governments has stricken the government.

Joseph L. Walsh of the negative team claimed that France had a moral as well as a legal right to occupy the Ruhr in that France had been abused for years by the Imperial government 40 years ago. Elmer M. Taylor scored heavily for the affirmative team when he tried to prove that there was an ulterior motive behind the French invasion and that France had become so embittered against Germany that she now wanted more than the collection of the reparation debts.

He claimed that there were two motives, one to provoke Germany to war and thus crush her forever; the other to bring about a forced combine of big French business with German business. Taylor claimed that the combination of French iron and German coal was the objective.

Mark A. Neville finished the arguments in the main speech for the negative by declaring that while the military war ceased in 1918, the Germans had changed their tactics and now were playing for time to rebuild their military powers.

The rebuttal speeches were filled with fire on both sides but the Colby team struck several keynotes which the affirmative could not argue. Taylor and Squire excelled for the affirmative team in the short rebuttal speeches.

At the conclusion of the rebuttal speeches, the three judges wrote their decision on furnished blanks and handed them to the chairman in sealed envelopes without consulting the others.

The negative team debated the same proposition against the affirmative team of New Hampshire University at Durham, N. H., on the same evening. The Colby team consisted of Robert M. Waugh, Kenneth E. Shaw, and John L. Dunstan who spoke in the order named. The Colby team was defeated, the decision of the judges being two to one in favor of the affirmative. This was the last debate of the year for the New Hampshire men.

STUNT NIGHT.

Friday night is stunt night. This recalls to memory the stunt nights of years gone by, when each fraternity, under the guidance of the Y. M. C. A., has done its share in producing a production of local talent in the Colby chapel. Last year, a variety of exhibitions were in order, including Darby's lost link, the country school, and that melodious minstrel show that gave the Lambda Chi's the look of peanuts.

This year prospects are good for an entertaining program; as every fraternity as well as the Hellenians are working hard on their show. Anything may be expected on stunt night—frank, friendly, otherwise, jokes now or old, and of course those classical piano and vocal selections with

GOW AND SACKETT DOUBLE CHAMPS

Gow Loses Singles Crown to
Lord of Bowdoin—Tournament

Contests

The Colby Tennis Team again won the Doubles Championship of the State of Maine in the Intercollegiate Tournament held at Bowdoin College May 10 and 11. The Singles Championship went to Lord of Bowdoin after a terrific five set match with Captain Sackett of Colby.

In the first round, Gow and Sackett hopelessly outclassed the University of Maine team consisting of Curtis and Carter. The scores were 6-0, 6-1. The Colby second team consisting of Barnes and Smith played the first string Maine team. The Maine men got the first set 6-3 and in the second set had a score of 40-30 with the games at 5-1 in their favor. The Colby team staged a come-back, however, and point by point brought the games up to five all. From then on, it was an even game, each side winning consistently on its own serve until finally Maine broke through and took the set 13-11.

In the singles, Gow had no trouble in defeating Curtis of Maine by the scores of 6-0, 6-0. Captain Sackett defeated Purington of Bates in straight sets, although many of the points were won only after long rallies, and many games went to deuce again and again. The scores: 6-2, 7-5.

As a result of the first round, the Bates teams were entirely eliminated while one doubles team from Maine was still in the running. The play was handicapped by the very cold temperature, and a strong, tricky wind.

In the semi-finals, Tolman and Cushman of Bowdoin defeated Davenport and Smith of Maine, 6-4, 6-2. Gow and Sackett defeated Lord and Bishop of Bowdoin in straight sets: 8-6, 6-2. The match called forth some of the finest tennis of the tournament, both sides making many brilliant shots and showing almost perfect court-generalship. Gow's cannon-ball service and Sackett's accurate placements, however, were a bit too much for the Bowdoin men. This match really amounted to the championship, since the winners had only to meet the Bowdoin second team in the finals.

In the singles, Captain Sackett defeated Captain Bishop of Bowdoin by the score of 6-0, 6-0. Sackett's game was at its best and the Bowdoin captain was helpless against the sizzling variety of strokes, chops, smashes, and placements that came off the Colby man's racket.

The first upset of the meet occurred when Lord of Bowdoin defeated Gow in the semi-finals. The Colby champ was obviously way off form and played very different from his usual manner. For some reason he did not seem able to storm the net according to his customary tactics, and had to be content with a back court game that was not strong enough to stop the clever Bowdoin player.

The finals of the doubles tournament resulted in an easy win for the Colby team, although the gallery got a thrill when the Bowdoin men took the first set 6-2. The Colby team settled down then and won the next to the tune of 6-0, and the other two 6-4, and 6-2.

The singles finals was a battle royal between Captain Sackett and Lord of Bowdoin. It was nip and tuck all the way and the issue was in doubt until the very last point. Both men played the same style of game, chop strokes and sharp placements, so that many points were long and furiously contested. It was largely a question of stamina since Lord had already played four sets that day, and Sackett had played eight. The scores of the five sets were: 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 7-0, 6-4.

BOWDOIN CLEANS UP TRACK MEET

Tootell Breaks Hammer Record—Hardy, Bowdoin
Hurdler, Makes Highest Individual Score.

Bowdoin, following the advanced dope, swept through the 27th annual Maine Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet at Orono last Saturday to a decisive win. The Black and White athletes scored exactly the same number of points as her three competitors combined. The final score of the meet, Bowdoin 63, Maine 37, Bates 33, Colby 3, was a surprise in one respect. The Bates team was figured for second place but with the advantage of their home grounds the Maine athletes took an easy second.

The Colby team was only able to place in three of the events, the quarter mile, and shotput. The 440 yard dash was expected to be classic event of the meet with Foran of Colby, Mason of Bowdoin, Archibald of Bates, and Lawrence of Maine toeing the mark. True to form these four runners fought out the battle. In the slot and mud each man gave his all. Not until the worsted was reached was the contest decided. The judge declared Don Mason the winner. It was a very close decision as Archibald was practically nose and nose with the Bowdoin runner. Capt. Foran was less than a yard behind these two and managed to nose out Lawrence at the tape. The mean weather handicapped the runners so that the time of 53.1-5 seconds means nothing so far as track records are concerned. Given a clean smooth track with atmospheric conditions correct Nemo Foran would have forced Mason to lower the State record for the event.

Malcolm Hardy, the Bowdoin hurdler was the individual star of the day. He won both high and the low hurdles in convincing fashion. On a wet and muddy track, his performances were almost remarkable. The Bowdoin fence climber was not headed and toyed with his fields over both the low and high barrier events. Shaw, the only Colby entry for this event, placed easily in his trial heat in the morning over the low timbers. He was very unfortunate in the finals. As he was topping the last hurdle he slipped in the mud, striking the timber, and failed to place. He was in second position at the time of the accident.

The two-mile event had several sterling entries, among whom were Payne and Warren, members of the cross-country team last fall. McGinley, captain of the Bates track team, took first place as had been predicted. It was thought that Payne would push him to the limit but the Colby runner had to be content with third position, McKee of Maine taking second place. It was a gruelling grind as the mud-splashed jerseys of the contestants showed.

The only event in which a Colby man placed was in putting the 16-pound shot. Tootell, winner of this event last year, yielded first place to Jackson of Maine. Bob Schenck surprised the rest of the field by a lousy heave which won him a third. The other Colby weight men failed to qualify in the morning trials.

By winning this meet Bowdoin College obtained permanent possession of the cup offered by the Maine Intercollegiate Track Association to the college winning the majority of these meets in a cycle of 10 years. Owing to the fact that the War cancelled two of the meets, only eight years of actual competition are figured. Bowdoin has now won five times and is therefore awarded the trophy.

The summaries:

CUSACK WINS LYFORD PRIZE

Repeats Victory of Last Year in Colby Prize Speaking Contest.

For the second time in two years William C. Cusack of Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, Mass., won the first prize in the Lyford prize speaking contest held at Colby college. He delivered "The Cross of Gold," by Bryan, in the 14th annual contest and was very effective. In a voice that was admirably suited to the type of selection, he lived the part and brought the message of the address home to the audience. Second prize went to Edward Bergan of Worcester, Mass., Classical high school. He gave "War and the Empire's Honor," by Lloyd George. Third prize went to Francis Shaw. The title of his selection was "The Real Labor Problem," by Butler. Fourth prize was won by Carleton Spencer of Sullivan high school, Berwick, Me. "Americanism," by Harding, was his choice.

During the afternoon the speakers were divided into groups and the preliminary contests were held in the various halls on the campus. As a result of the preliminary contests nineteen speakers were chosen for the final contest.

The speakers in the finals and their selections are as follows: "Each Brought His Gift," by Lane, Frederick H. Young; "War Message to Congress," by Wilson, Earl I. Brown; "The Centennial Oration," by Ingalls, Ralph H. DeOrsay; "Americanism," by Harding, Carleton Spencer; "The Teacher, The Hope of America," by Eels, Scott Babcock; "The Stricken South," by Grady, Alvanus Bennett; "Democratic Ideals in International Relations," by Colby, Maurice E. Graves; "The Cross of Gold," by Bryan, William Cusack; "The Strenuous Life," by Roosevelt, David P. Hoxie; "A Fight for the City," by Jerome Leon Potashinski; "War and the Empire's Honor," by Lloyd George, Edward Bergan; "The Star Spangled Banner," by Watterson, James Ashworth; "The Dreamers," by Bryan, Fred T. Googins; "America, A Beacon of Peace," by D'Annunzio, Ralph Haskell; "A League for Peace," by Wilson, Elmer Campbell; "Farewell Address," by Woolsey, Randolph Engstrom; "Ward's Trial for Murder," Anon; Henry Lynch; "The New South," by Grady, Grey Curtis; "The Real Labor Problem," by Butler, Francis Shaw.

The judges were Dr. J. William Black, chairman, Professor Webster Chester, Professor Euclid Helie and Dr. Herbert C. Libby. President Arthur J. Roberts was the presiding officer.

COLBY WINS HARD FOUGHT BASEBALL BATTLE WITH BATES

Odom Goes Entire Stretch and Holds Bates
to Four Hits—Fransen's Homer a Feature.

Colby defeated Bates in the second game of the State series on Wednesday, May 9, at Seaverns field. It was a fast played, air-tight exhibition of baseball and in spite of the errorless playing of the Bates team, Colby ended on the long end of a 2 to 1 score. The weather was not of the best and this may account for the three misplays of Parent's charges. By winning this game Colby takes the lead in the baseball standing of the Maine colleges and the prospects are good for remaining there.

To George Odom goes the credit for Colby's win. He worked hard all of the time, allowing only four safe hits and three of these were of the scratch variety. Daker and Dimlick singled in the fourth. In the seventh Cogan laid a pretty bunt along the third base line which Royal might have fielded had he been playing in for an easy one. Karkos sent up a high fly to left field in the eighth. Both Fransen and Wilson made a try for it but failed to gather in the elusive pill.

Fransen had a great day at short-stop as well as with the stick. This lumber Lynn had was all over the field making sensational stops and throwing out his men at first. He made one slip-up out of 10 chances, and that was a red hot grounder to deep short. His home run in the fourth with Shanahan on base gave Colby her two runs that won the game. The ball sailed over second and rolled nearly to Coburn Hall before Kenelly finally picked it up. Callaghan, first baseman in the absence of McGowan, made several fine stops of difficult throws and had 15 putouts to his credit with but a single error. Out of two trips to the plate he knocked out a pretty single. Shanahan must also be given credit. He connected with two hits, one just previous to Fransen's circuit clout. He made three difficult catches in the right garden and cut off one Bates runner at the plate.

Captain Lanpher was leading his men like a veteran. It was his hard work behind the plate that helped to steady Odom. Cutler was called in from center field to cover the key-stone sack and from his exhibition will probably be kept there the rest of the season.

Both Price and Odom got away to a good start, pitching to only three men each in the first inning. In the second with two men gone it looked as though Colby might score. Wilson drew a pass and went to third on a wild pitch. Callaghan walked and on the next pitch started to steal second. Karkos threw toward second but Dimlick cut off the throw and nailed Wilson at the plate.

The single Bates tally came in the fifth. Price drew a pass from Odom. Cogan hit to Cutler who fumbled the ball and Price went to third. The Bates pitcher scored on Jordan's sacrifice fly to Fagerstrom.

COLBY HANDS DEFEAT TO THE MASS. AGGIES

Numerous Errors Due to Weather and Wet Grounds.

The Colby baseball team had little difficulty in taking their game with the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, Mass., last Tuesday. The final score was 10 to 6 with Parent's charges on the long end. Owing to the cold weather and wet grounds, errors were plentiful. Odom was hit harder than the two Aggie pitchers but proved effective in the pinches. The Colby men were able to bunch their hits in the first and fourth innings.

THE TRACK MEET.

The Maine Intercollegiate Track Meet is over and Colby comes out of the scrimmage in fourth place with only three points to her credit. It is of no use to speak of "ifs" and "buts" and "perhaps." Excuses may ease one's mind, but they do not help much in the final score of a track meet. Besides, the outside world cannot read these excuses, between the lines on the sporting pages. They can but say that Colby has again failed to show up well in the State Meet and wonder what is the matter with the men at Colby. They cannot be blamed, either. There are men at Colby who could be just as good as the men at Bates, Bowdoin, or U. of M., if they had the nerve to stay out and train.

The trouble seems to be that nobody thinks of the Track Meet until it is time to take the train the day before the event. The coach cannot be blamed entirely. Colby has just as good a track coach as can be found anywhere, but he cannot make a winning team out of a few green men in a week or two. Mike is a worker, but he cannot perform miracles. If he is given half a chance he will build a team for Colby that will run away with the Meet next year.

It is not too early to begin to think of next year's Meet. If the men at Colby want to keep on competing in these Meets then they will come out now—TODAY—and show that they mean business. Coach Ryan will give all that he has to give, and will meet the men more than half way. The question is: Have the men of Colby enough spirit and enough sportsmanship to come the rest of the way?

BATES AND DEBATES.

Our esteemed rivals, Bowdoin and Bates, recently had a debate. Although rather an insipid affair in itself, rather an entertaining controversy arose in connection with it.

A few days before the momentous event, a rally was held in the Bates chapel to arouse enthusiasm for the coming battle. It seems that the president addressed the students, and, according to the Boston Transcript, made several indiscreet innuendoes against Bowdoin methods. Among these was the accusation that the Bowdoin faculty was materially assisting the debaters. This was a heinous crime and an outrage against the ethical code of debating. He pointed out that this was the first time the two colleges had debated against each other, and hoped that it would be the last. Several other delicate remarks concluded the talk.

Now as a matter of cold fact, the Bowdoin faculty did not generally know about the coming debate, much less devote their energies to preparing material for it. And what is still more amusing, we happened to have been previously informed by a Bates student that sometimes the very speeches of the Bates debaters were written by obliging professors. Some people are very careless in their glass houses.

We hope that the report of Pres. Gray's speech was exaggerated. The Bates men that we have seen have apologized for it. Pres. Gray afterwards explained that he was only joking. So let us all laugh.

Of course, Bates, self-acknowledged champion of the world, won the debate. The end justified the means. And, by the way, why is it that she has never consented to debate with Colby since we defeated her in 1917?

OUT-OF-WORK BENEFITS.

The question of trade union out-of-work benefits has been one of the problems attacked by the Committee on Unemployment and Business Cycles in the report prepared at their instance by the National Bureau of Economic Research and issued by Secretary Hoover, as result of the President's Conference on Unemployment.

Dr. John B. Andrews gives some of the experiences of American trade unions with out-of-work benefits, and he points out some of the administrative obstacles involved in this form of relief.

He shows that the difficulty of collecting a fund from workers alone by premiums high enough to pay adequate cash benefits is one of the gravest problems met with in such an effort.

In addition, the complications involved because the benefits are but an incidental feature of trade union activities sometimes lead unions to vary their policies concerning the funds in accordance with matters not definitely connected with the unemployment reserves as such.

Nevertheless, Dr. Andrews points out that the organization of such systems of benefits is the earliest and perhaps the only example in America of prolonged social effort to plan systematically in advance to mitigate the effects of cyclical unemployment.

One can usually tell a man's character by the kind of friends he chooses.

The debating team has started the season off well and they deserve the praise of the entire student body. Here are a group of men who are willing to work without honor, without any grandstand to cheer them on for the greater part of the year. Then when the time comes they come forward and do their best for Colby. Show your appreciation for them.

Let's go after the baseball championship!

Little question for Seniors: What are you going to do next year?

The man who is looking for trouble usually does not have to look far nor to wait long. Exams are in sight.

What is the matter with reviving the old tug o' war between the Sophomores and the Freshmen this year?

A dead fish will float down stream, but it takes a strong, live one to go against a swift current. Are you just following the crowd?

Do not let up on the studies just because the calendar says that Spring should be here. The only way to be sure of passing those finals is to keep plugging. It is better to be safe than sorry, and besides we have all summer to play in.

It was a great privilege to hear Professor Palmer last week. It is seldom that men of such calibre come here to speak. Those who missed hearing him, missed the opportunity of a life-time. Many thanks are due Kappa Phi Kappa and Professor Savides for influencing him to come here.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

Y. M. C. A. meetings from now on will begin at 7 o'clock. Tuesday night in the Association rooms, the D. U.'s held forth and Floyd McIntire, their representative, gave a worthwhile message. He said in part: "By their fruits ye shall know them." As Colby was made known in years gone by through work of Lovejoy, Shannon, and Boardman, so Colby shall be judged now by our deeds. There is opportunity for everything in college. If man desires to satisfy lust, he may find a way in college. Also if man desires a chance to do good and be of service, likewise he may do it here. There are many of those of the latter type who but need guidance in their efforts against temptation and in their search for purpose, and leadership, and efficiency." In closing, he said that the Y. A PORTRAIT OF

SIR ISAAC NEWTON

James II is Dead—
NEWTON Lives

It has always been known that free bodies fall. The earth has a strange attraction. How far does it extend? No one knew before Newton, sitting in his garden, one day in 1665, began to speculate.

"Why should not the attraction of gravitation reach as far as the moon?" he asked himself. "And if so, perhaps she is retained in her orbit thereby." He began the calculation, but overwhelmed by the stupendous result that he foresaw, he had to beg a friend to complete it.

In Newton's Principia were laid down his famous laws of motion—the basis of all modern engineering. The universe was proved to be a huge mechanism, the parts of which are held together in accordance with the great law of gravitation.

James II was reigning when the Principia appeared in 1687. He is remembered for the Bloody Assizes of Jeffreys, for his complete disregard of constitutional liberties, for his secret compacts with Louis XIV and the huge bribes that he took from that monarch, and for the revolution that cost him his crown; Newton is remembered because he created a new world of thought, because he enabled scientists and engineers who came after him to grapple more effectively with the forces of nature.

When, for instance, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company determine the stresses set up in a steam turbine by the enormous centrifugal forces generated as the rotor spins, they practically apply Newton's laws in reaching conclusions that are of the utmost value to the designing engineer.

BUBBLES OF GOLD.
"Bubbles of Gold" is rather an appropriate title of the little book of verses by Arthur Crow Inman. Bubbles the poems are—light, airy, fragile, iridescent, lasting but a moment. Each delights for its short life, and is gone. They are all woven about the immortal lovers: Harlequin, Florio, and Columbine. Their romantic figures sit, laugh, sigh, love, dance and play hide-and-seek through the pages. They balance with delight on each frail thread of the web of witchery, sometimes in the pale glamour of the moon, some true lyric quality. However, they times in the ruddy glow of the sun, should be taken sparingly, like bonbons, for they are so sweet that many till their short day is over. The author's conception of the immortal lovers is exquisite. They mortal lovers are exquisitely intangible, not solid, real, but as spun thin and fairylike, and the verses sugar is sometimes delectable, so are themselves are winged things of the these "Bubbles of Gold."
