

DRAMATIC PRODUCTION RECEIVED ENTHUSIASTICALLY BY LARGE AUDIENCE

Students Give Fine Renditions of Difficult Parts—Miss Park and Lemoine Especially Good

Before a fair audience, members of the Colby Powder and Wig society, assisted by members of the women's division, scored a hit last Thursday evening when they presented Robert Emmet Sherwood's three-act comedy THE QUEEN'S HUSBAND. Weather conditions were bad, but nevertheless the entire floor and part of the balcony were filled.

It has been reported that the financial return measures up to anything that Powder and Wig has ever recorded. This, of course, adds to the satisfaction of the cast and the director in a worthy task well done.

Favorable comments were heard from all sides on the production and acting in the play. The setting was exceptionally difficult, but by the assistance of many good friends of the college, the stage was made not too unlike the king's private office that it was supposed to be. Every player had his part excellently in hand. Hardly a slip was made in the course of the play, and some really superb acting can be scored to many in the cast. Much of the credit for all of this goes to the director, Professor Cecil A. Rollins of the English department of the college. Colby is proud of the talent shown Thursday evening.

It is extremely difficult to pick out the star of the evening, but it would seem that the honor should go to Harold Lemoine, who took the part of the king, the Queen's husband. His part was exceedingly difficult, and his acting marvellous. Roland Young himself, who made such a hit in the original production on Broadway, could hardly have taken the part more acceptably. Lemoine is a member of the Kappa Delta Rho fraternity and is prominent in student activities.

Playing opposite Lemoine was Ruth Park as The Queen. (Note that she requires capitals). Her part was less exacting than Lemoine's in length, but no less difficult. Her natural ability, combined with her training in the part, completely won the audience. Miss Park is also a member of the senior class.

Clarence Arber in the role of a dictator-general, "Northrup," also scored a "hit" with the audience. He carried out to perfection a part which was most exacting. His humorous actions brought forth many hearty laughs. This is Arber's second year in a Powder and Wig dramatic production and he deserves much credit for the hard work spent in the perfecting of this part. He, too, is a member of the graduating class this year and of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

"All the world loves a lover," certainly was the case with the lovers in "The Queen's Husband"—Brittain Webster, (Grant) and Pauline Smith (Princess Anne). It was around these two that a good part of the plot of the play was built and they certainly did nobly together.

The scene is laid in the private office and study of King Eric VIII of the imaginary kingdom of Merland, situated just off the coast of Denmark. Queen Martha is greatly concerned because her husband has wandered off for a walk instead of assisting in her preparations for sailing. She is to leave in an hour on a trip to America to borrow money to stabilize the currency of Merland. Princess Anne, for whom her mother aided by Foreign Minister Birten (Gerald Johnson) has planned a political marriage to Prince William, (Philip Ely) heir to the throne of the neighboring empire of Greece, has fallen desperately in love with Granton, her father's secretary.

The king arrives from a visit to the penguins in the Royal Zoo to hear of his wife's displeasure, and of the plans for his daughter's disposal. He disapproves, but is ignored. Queen Martha leaves to sacrifice herself for her country by the trip to "barbarous" America. The king learns of Anne's love for Granton, but can do nothing.

A revolution seems to offer an opportunity for the lovers, but Princess Anne nobly decides to remain and face the worst with her father. The king interrupts his checker-playing to take matters into his own hands and countermands Northrup's order for the shelling of the poor people's homes by the royal fleet. He persuades the leaders of the revolution to agree to an armistice, and blocks Northrup's plans for a slaughter. So matters are denlocked again.

A week later, the Queen is back from a successful journey and ready to take command. The day of the wedding between the son of Greece and the daughter of Merland is at hand. Half an hour before the time set, the king by a fake Anarchist plot and a clever use of the revolutionist leaders, Dr. Fellman (Thornton Cow-

JUDGE CLEAVES SPEAKS ON BUSINESS

Sound Foundation
For Career

Speaking on the subject "Business as a Vocation" Judge Benjamin Cleaves of Portland addressed the men's division at the regular chapel period Friday morning. While the Judge struck the same note that has been heard several times before by the Colby undergraduates, the points brought out by the speaker contained a great deal of helpful advice for young men contemplating entering the world of finances or industry.

He started by drawing an analogy between a building and a life. He used the comparison to show that in order to have a strong finished building the foundation must be laid firmly. And that is what the college man is doing in his four years at college, laying the foundation. He showed that a carpenter could not merely purchase the best tools available and expect to be a brilliant carpenter because he has the finest tools. "At college," said Judge Cleaves, "You must learn to use the tools. It is the use of tools more than the tools themselves that counts."

He went on to tell the men that they could not expect to get a good position immediately. It is getting harder for college graduates to secure jobs, the possibilities of getting an easy position with high pay are very scarce. The old idea of passing

RUTH WEBB CHARMS LARGE AUDIENCE WITH DELIGHTFUL PIANO RECITAL

RUTH WEBB

First Concert of Series of Three Pleases by The Variety of Program

By Robert T. Beals, '32, Reviewer.

For the second time a Colby audience has been thrilled by the delightful piano technique of Miss Ruth Webb, internationally known concert pianist, who last evening rendered an artistic program of classical selections to the pleasure of an audience of over 400 in the auditorium of the Alumnae Building. The program was made up largely from the compositions of the older masters with a liberal sprinkling from the more recent classical composers. Last evening's recital was the first of a series to be presented by the Colby Concert series committee to be given this season. It will be followed by a recital by Baldassare Ferlazzo, violinist, who will appear at Colby, February 11, and by a concert by Thomas McLaughlin, baritone, on March 11.

The great popularity achieved by Ruth Webb in her first concert in Waterville last season made a return engagement imperative. Her work received further recognition this summer while at the Conservatoire Americain at Fontainebleau, France, where she was awarded a prize in competition with musicians from every country in Europe.

Miss Webb was born in New York City of French and German parentage. Her early musical training was received in this country and directly at the close of the war she studied with Isador Philipp, professor of piano at the Conservatoire National, Paris. A pleasing success met her return to the United States. Schools and colleges found her recitals to be outstanding successes on their programs. After much success in this country she again returned to Europe where she appeared as a solo artist in the musical centers of France and Italy, where again she was received with favor. Since this time her reputation as a concert pianist has been further substantiated by engagements of such quality as with the Boston Symphony "Pops" Orchestra, under the direction of Alfredo Casella, modern Italian composer, and with several other leading composers of the modern school.

The first selection on Miss Webb's program was Schumann's "Carnaval." The number depicts a gay masquerade of merry-making. It opens with the forceful "Preamble," full of resounding chords which then breaks into a movement symbolized by Pierrot. This movement is in a much lighter vein as is that devoted to "Arlequin" immediately following it. Next was heard the soft "Valse Noble" with its strong accents in syncopated style. This merges into the "Eusebius," in a light vein, which continues through those sections devoted to Florestan, Coquette, Repique, Sphinxes, gay Papillons, Chiarina, Chopin, Estrella, Reconnaissance, and Pantalon at Colombino. The last section opens with the beautiful "Valse Allemande" which merges into the Paganini movement. Here the rhythm begins to grow more dignified until the finale, "Marche des Diables" under the leadership of the Philistines. The selection closes with a series of crashing chords. This selection runs the gamut of emotional moods and showed very clearly Miss Webb's remarkable versatility.

Her next offering was the well-known "Sonata in B flat minor," by Chopin. This famous composition is in four movements the first, an allegro appassionato, was just what its name implies. While not as fast in

NOTICE

A service of interest to college students will be held next Sunday evening at the Methodist church of the city. The program will be in the form of a two-sided discussion. Judge Max L. Pinansky of Portland, judge of the Municipal Court, who is interested in Jewish welfare work, will speak on the subject "If I were a Christian." He will be followed by Rev. Harold P. Metzner, pastor of the church, who will speak on the theme, "If I were a Jew." This is the second meeting in a series on the general theme of "Standing in Other Shoes," which aims to promote understanding among people of divergent faiths.

COACH ROUNDY TO REMAIN AT COLBY

Mr. Edward C. Roundy, popular head coach of Colby major sports, signed a contract to continue his work for one year, at a meeting of the Colby Athletic Association held Wednesday evening, January 8. The announcement was made by Professor C. Harry Edwards, head of the Physical Education department, who stated that the terms of the contract were to be withheld.

Eddie Roundy has been coach at Colby for five years, having charge of the football, baseball, and hockey teams. Under his direction Colby has given a good account of her strength in each of these sports and several exceptionally fine teams have been turned out.

The hockey team this year will remain under the direction of Bill Millett, assistant coach, who from the beginning of the season has been in charge of this sport. Coach Roundy will spend much of his time this winter in the coaching of the basketball teams in the interfraternity league. It is expected that he will again select an all-star team from the league which will represent the college in two or three outside games to be played towards the end of the season.

NOTICE

For the use of the Alumnae Building for any purpose, the date should be scheduled through the office of the Dean of Women.

After the date has been settled, arrangements should be made with Mr. Webb, janitor of the women's buildings, in regard to all details of auditorium preparation. His telephone number is 1102-J. The best times to call him are between 12 and 1:30 P. M., and 5:30 and 6:30 P. M. Mr. Webb can attend to all necessary work before and after each function, but cannot be present to attend to the ventilation of the auditorium during a performance.

A fee will be charged to cover the actual cost of service. This should be paid to the Treasurer of the College.

HIGHEST RANKING SENIORS CHOSEN FOR EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT

Will Not Be Required To Attend Classes
And May Spend Time Solely On Major Subjects

Two men and two women of the senior class at Colby college have been selected for an interesting educational experiment, according to an announcement made by President Franklin W. Johnson. Norman D. Palmer of Hineckley, Phillip S. Bither of Linneus, Margaret P. Hale of Caribou, and Lucile N. Whitecomb of Farmington, will be released from regular classes during the final semester in college, beginning February 14, 1930. They will attend only such courses as may be necessary to complete major or group requirements. The remainder of their time will be spent in independent work under the supervision of the deans and the professor in each student's major subject.

The purpose of the experiment is to test the value of giving increased freedom to superior students. Honor courses, comprehensive examinations, and reading periods are some of the devices that have been tried in American colleges in the interest of what is spoken of as "better work from better students." Few colleges, however, have extended such a degree of freedom as Colby is giving these four seniors. They will take final examinations only in such courses as they may pursue to meet their major and group requirements. They will take no comprehensive examination, nor will they be required to prepare a thesis on any research subject. They will spend the semester in any way they please, seeking advice by weekly conference with the Dean and professor in the major subject. On June 1st each of the four students will file a detailed statement showing how he has spent the semester and giving his personal opinion of the value of the experiment.

Palmer prepared for college at Good Will high school and throughout his three and a half years has been a student of superior ability. He received a freshman scholarship prize, has been a leader in the work of the Y. M. C. A., and as a junior he represented Colby at the College Economic Conference of the Maine Development Commission and at the spring conference of the department of vocation and education of the University club of Boston. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. His major subject is History.

Bither prepared for college at Ricker Classical Institute. He has shown marked proficiency in the field of foreign languages and will give his chief attention during the coming semester of academic freedom to German. During the past two years he has been one of the official tutors of the college. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Miss Hale entered Colby from Caribou high school. Throughout her time in college she has been one of the most active student leaders and is now president of the student government association of the women's division. She is a member of the Phi Mu sorority.

Miss Whitecomb prepared for college at Farmington high school. She has shown proficiency in a wide variety of subjects and has done especially creditable work in creative writing. She is a member of the Sigma

Miss Jackson Will Visit Colby Soon

Miss Florence Jackson, vocational guidance expert, will visit Colby from January 14 to January 21. Miss Jackson makes her headquarters at Wellesley, and during last year visited fifty-seven colleges. This year she will visit Bates and Maine as well as Colby.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday Miss Jackson will meet the Juniors of the women's division; and on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, the Seniors. These conferences will be personal and one-half hour in length, or in some cases, when appointments overlap they will be group conferences.

The executive body of the Student Council will appoint committees to arrange for the conferences, which will be held in the Y. W. room of the Alumnae Building.

At women's chapel on Thursday Miss Jackson will speak on "Factors that Make for Success Anywhere," and again on Saturday on "Occupations in General."

Y. W. Will Have Interesting Speakers

"But I want to be in them all!" This was the wail of nearly everybody upon first looking at the list of six "interest groups" which the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, beginning this week, plans to offer for eight weeks. Only after careful deliberation was it possible to choose one, or perhaps two, from the list.

On Monday nights Dean Runnels will lead the group topic "Understanding Ourselves;" at the same time Mrs. C. H. White will be leading the topic "Music Appreciation." On Friday nights an outline of the book, "The Life of Christ," will be led by Mrs. L. H. R. Hass, "First Aid and Home Nursing," by Miss Anna Dunn, "Current Books," by Miss Boutelle, and "Social Service Work," by Marjorie MacDougall.

In offering this new proposition the Y. W. C. A. is doing its utmost to give an opportunity for the exchange of ideas with competent leaders and follow-students. The leaders of the various groups will be guided largely by the needs and desires of the members.

Norris Potter, '20, was a recent visitor at the college on his way to Bridgton, Maine, where he is to take charge of the truck squad of Bridgton Academy. In addition to being truck coach Potter will also teach English.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1930.

Bill Millett's green hockey squad pulled a big surprise last week when they invaded Bowdoin and began the season with a 3 to 0 victory. The playing was consistently good and the scoring was regular, a goal in each period, which shows to those who follow the ice game that the team has been coached to function with the steadiness of a "well-oiled machine." When the call for candidates was issued just before Christmas vacation the prospects for the season were doubtful. The material was "raw stuff" with only one or two veterans carried over from last year. But from the squad which reported the coach has produced a fine six-man combination that works unitedly.

The little upset with Bates Monday afternoon makes the league standing a triple tie. An upset for Colby early in the season of any sport has always augured well for the final outcome, just as over-success in the first games has many times spelled disaster later to come. In the Bates game Colby was reported to be an offensive power throughout the game and the goal in the final period indicates that the team was fighting to the last minute.

Interest is gradually being aroused. Colby is slowly opening her eyes to the fact that the State Series hockey league is again in progress, and that her team is at least "holding its own."

BLUFFING.

The man who attempts bluffing on final exams during the next few days—and there will be plenty of us attempting it—may be assured that he belongs to what is perhaps the greatest class of bluffers in existence.

Out of one hundred University of Cincinnati students who recently took a special examination composed of questions which had no answer, half of them bluffed 46.68 per cent or more. Some bluffed their way through 81 per cent of the examinations, which asked for fictitious word definitions, authors of unwritten books, and identification of certain alleged passages in Shakespeare.

The same examination, given to fifty-eight non-college men and women chosen at random, showed that the bluffing score of this group was only 25 per cent. This leads a well-known writer to declare that "our educational system trains to dishonesty and pretentiousness."

Perhaps he is right, but nevertheless we still defend bluffing. There is something to it that savors of a reliant, do-or-die, fighting spirit that seems commendable in youth. Students on the whole know that bluffing is wrong, yet they often resort to it because of a notion that instructors sometimes give some credit for "attempts" at answering exam questions. If they are ingenious enough in bluffing, some instructors may respect their genius enough to give it consideration. And then bluffing always

FROSH SEXTET WINS OVER CONY HIGH TEAM

Yearlings Show Good Defense With Rancourt and Thomas Starring

The Colby frosh hockey sextet came through in great style Monday afternoon at the South End hockey rink in defeating the Cony High school outfit by the decisive count of five goals to none.

The freshman crew delivered more or less of a surprise in pounding out so clean a win over a team which was fairly strong as high school teams go. In Malcolm Wilson the Colby team has discovered a boy who should be able to aid the varsity after mid-years. Playing on the left wing, the former Framingham (Mass.) High school man, crashed in three of the five tallies chalked up by the winning team. Pomerleau, last year with Coburn, was the other bright light in the scoring department, coming through with a goal in the first period and another in the final minutes of the last period.

The defense of the first year team was sound throughout the game with Rancourt being outstanding in the blocking of the Cony forward line several times. Thomas paired up well and Carroll Pooler had little work to do in the cage. What stops he did have to take care of he stopped with ease and was reliable during the entire game.

The visitors from the capital city put up a game that showed possibilities but lack of experience was a handicap to some of the boys. The Cony six had good passwork but lack of the final push in front of the cage prevented their chances of scoring on several occasions. Their best men were the two defense players, Logan and Randall. Time and again they would steal the puck as Pomerleau and Wilson made their way towards the cage.

In every period but the second the Colby boys outplayed their opponents. Three goals were chalked up in the first frame. The game was but a few minutes old when Wilson skated down the left side of the rink, cut in and slipped one in the corner, well out of Hickey's reach. The same man repeated a short while later after weaving through most of the red team and shooting the puck in from close range. No further scoring was done for five minutes but Pomerleau banged one in from directly in front of the cage for the last goal of the first session.

In the second period the boys from Augusta played their best hockey and managed to keep their opponents from scoring. Hickey had plenty of chance to show his skill in the net during this period and he had many close calls. The Lizotte brothers passed well for Cony during this period but were unable to do any scoring.

Theta Kaps Beat Dekes In Basketball

The Theta Kappa Nu basketball team defeated the Dekes to the tune of 23 to 13 in a rough and tumble contest last Saturday afternoon. Lack of practice was shown in the poor pass work of both teams with the Theta Kaps doing what little team-work was exhibited. Most of the Dekes points were the results of long shots which they tried continually throughout the game.

Given, elongated center of the winning team, was the star of the game, scoring more than half of his team's total. Cole and Noyes also played well for the winners. The defense of the Dekes, with Donovan and Bryan playing the guard positions, was strong. The inability of the losers to sink the many foul shots proved their undoing.

The score at the end of the first half was 13 to 6 in favor of the Theta

Kaps. In the second half they gradually pulled away from their opponents and the game ended with the score 23 to 13. The summary:

Kappa Dels Win From Non-Fraternity

In a rough, loosely played game, the interfraternity basketball league got under way with the Kappa Delta Rho team defeating the Non-fraternity men, 22 to 15, last Thursday afternoon. Both teams showed their lack of practice by the disorganized manner with which they worked the ball up the floor. It was the first time that the Non-frats had played together this season. Marv Glazier was the star for the losers, scoring most of their points through individual effort.

The winners had a strong defense with Stinchfield and Curtis as guards. Slocum and Stewart played the forward positions with the former scoring most of his team's points. Both teams had numerous opportunities to score via the foul route but failed to make the counts.

At the end of the half the Kappa Dels were leading 10 to 6 but the Non-frats by persistent efforts overcame the lead and were ahead 14 to 13 at the end of the third quarter. In the final period the Kappa Delt team rallied and piled up enough points to cinch the game. The summary:

Women's Dramatics Holds First Meeting

The first regular meeting of the Women's Dramatic Club was opened by the president, Muriel Farnum, '30, last Friday night in the Education room of Alumnae Building. Professor Colgan was the speaker of the evening and he gave a very interesting and idealistic talk on "Dramatics in the Secondary Schools." Speaking of formal and informal dramas he said that the informal type will be more in use in high schools but that one should have formal training to be spontaneous, and, as teachers have to be the stimulators of young people in ideals, conducts, and concepts, spontaneity is one of the essentials of good teaching. He then said that dramas have a social aim in that they give common interest and help children to find themselves. As the world is hungry for talent and gifts, it is the opportunity of the teacher to discover talent among his pupils and direct it in a profitable line.

"Self-consciousness is our greatest enemy," he said. "We are unwilling to give up our petty little egos. We dare not stand out from others but must conform to custom, and, to make matters worse, we often fear when one of our own companions shows more than mediocrity. Teachers must watch out for this heartlessness and encourage any signs of spontaneity and originality they may discover."

Professor Colgan then went on to speak of more technical matters. He said that teachers needed to know the mechanics of production such as stage-setting, properties, and lighting, for without a knowledge of these the artistic effect that must be a unit with all else subordinated to it is impossible to secure. The tableau is the point in which amateurs most often err for it is difficult for one not knowing the technical side of coaching to have everything appearing congruous to the situation.

"Teachers should read widely," said Professor Colgan, "so that the art seems worthwhile and a thing of aesthetic delight. Not only read but act and you will be more patient with others."

Speaking briefly in conclusion he said that if we want to do anything with drama we must be dramatic, must be a reader and an interpreter. "You are going to meet life in your school work," he concluded, "and you need sympathy, knowledge, and insight. You must be a rebel against mediocrity."

THE RESOLUTION.

Resolved:
This year shall find in me
The striver for integrity.
And more:
I'll meet my obligations due;
I'll take one cake instead of two;
I'll be what I have said above
And something other folk can love.
These resolutions are quite dear;
You see—I make them every year.
The spirit wills, the flesh will shrink;
Please, God, with what we have to work
Let's not pick out my major flaws
But make me finer than I was.

Exciting Action In Bowdoin-Colby Hockey Duel

Bowdoin's State Champions were whitewashed at Brunswick Saturday by Colby by a score of 3 to 0. The Sunday Telegram sharpshooter caught two fast action shots of the two teams in battling. Top: Kenny of Colby has just taken a slice at the puck and sent it flying directly to the Polar Bear cage. Drew just managed to veer the rubber off its course when a score seemed certain. McLaughlin of Bowdoin made an attempt to stop Kenny from shooting but is sprawling on the ice when he fell in the attempt. The Colby icebird in sitting position on the frozen surface is Delaware. Thayer is the Bowdoin player with the usual white cape while W. Tufts is the Colby hockeyite watching the action from afar.

Bottom: Bowdoin scored a goal to its own way of thinking but Referee Pat French ruled otherwise. Ward of Bowdoin has passed to McLaughlin who sent the disc into the lacings by Dyer. Bowdoin was offside and the goal failed to count. Delaware is directly in back of McLaughlin who is on one knee. The Colbyite in back of Ward is Kenny with W. Tufts in front of Draper the Colby icebird watching the duel from center ice.

WHITE MULES WIN OVER POLAR BEARS

Upset Championship Hopes of Bowdoin Team by 3 to 0 Score

In the first State Championship hockey match that they have played this season, the Colby icebirds whitewashed the Bowdoin Bears 3 to 0 last Saturday at Brunswick. In two of the three periods the fast White Mule outfit was markedly superior to their opponents and only once during the game could the Polar Bears start a sustained attack.

Colby looked very good considering this was their first start of the season and the White Mules give promise of being much more in the running for the state title. The Blue and Gray presented a well-balanced forward line whose passing and teamwork was far superior to that of the White forwards. The latter had difficulty in working the puck down the ice and when they did get down they had few opportunities to get set for shots except in the second period when almost the entire Bowdoin team peppered Dyer, the Colby goalie, for several minutes. It was due to the fine work of the latter that the White was kept from scoring.

The White Mules got their first score about half way through the first period when Kenney took a pass from Lovett to drive down the ice and ease the rubber into the cage.

The White sextette showed more aggressiveness in the second period than at any other time during the game, continually peppering the Colby goal and only the great work of Dyer prevented a score.

Ward actually pushed the puck into the cage at one time but the goal was disallowed as he was offside.

Near the end of the second period Colby worked the rubber down the ice and Kenney, who played an outstanding game all afternoon, scored unassisted.

In the last period, Bowdoin in one last effort to pull the game from the fire, threw all its strength up in the only to have Lovett get free and score easily on Drew who was sucked out of position by the stellar Colby wing.

Colby's great offense was given a battle by the White defense, Thayer and Stone. The former did fine work for the Polar Bears.

The entire Colby team gave a creditable performance. W. Tufts, Kenney, Lovett and Dyer were the outstanding players. Dyer, the goalie, showed especially well, making several seemingly impossible stops in the second period when the rubber was in his vicinity a good part of the time.

The summary:

Colby (3) (0) Bowdoin

Delaware, cc, Rose

BATES TAKES SERIES TILT FROM COLBY

tempo as might be supposed, it flows along smoothly alternating from loud to soft passages. The second movement, or scherzo, is in a faster tempo. The sprightly introduction precedes a slower, melodious theme which as it progresses, rises to an agitated climax and then resumes its former calmness in a soft ending. The third movement is the popular "Marche Funebre," which is too well known to need any further comment. The closing movement is the presto, a very rapid selection, aptly characterized as "the storm which raves above the graves." The movement consisted almost solely of rapid arpeggios.

Chopin's "Sonata" was probably the best-known of any of the selections, except the last played by Miss Webb. It was rendered in her usual pleasing style and was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the program.

Miss Webb next rendered Chopin's "Scherzo in C sharp minor." This number was made up of a theme which was repeated with variations.

The third group of the program opened with the "Etude de Concert, No. 1, in double notes," by Philipp. This was a short selection but the sparkling and vivacious rendition of Miss Webb made it a delightful addition to the program. The second number in this group was "Siclianna" by Alfredo Casella, conductor of the Boston Symphony "Pops" Orchestra. The theme was played in single notes with the right hand supported by a lilting accompaniment with the left hand.

This number was followed by "Polka" by Rachmaninoff. The name of this composition does not seem to fit the tempo as it consisted of a melodious and tuneful theme, more in the style of a love song. It furnished a contrast to the preceding numbers and showed again Miss Webb's remarkable ability to adapt herself to the mood of the composition.

The next selection, Liszt's "Etude in F minor," consisted of arpeggios, continually rambling from one end of the keyboard to the other, showed the technique of the artist at the fullest. The concluding selection was Liszt's well known "La Campanella." More or less of a descriptive nature, this number represents the gay tinkling of numerous bells.

Miss Webb very kindly obliged her appreciative audience with an encore by playing Chopin's famous "Minute Waltz." She left the stage amid loud applause which continued for several minutes and brought her back repeatedly for acknowledgment.

chapel are better than those in the Alumnae Building. The ticket sale for the recital has been exceptionally good and all indications are that the chapel will be well filled.

The reading of "Caponsacchi" will be the fourth appearance of Professor Thompson at Colby. He gave two readings last year "Cyrano de Bergerac," early in the season, followed later on with "Disraeli." This fall he appeared before the men's division at one of the regular chapel periods and gave a reading of "The Vision of Sir Launfal." He has always been received at Colby with large and enthusiastic audiences and those who have heard him are looking ahead with interest to his presentation tomorrow evening.

The faculty committee which has the recital in charge wishes to make it possible for every student in the college to attend, and with this in mind has charged only a nominal fee for student tickets. It is confidently expected by the committee that more than 500 students will avail themselves of the opportunity offered.

Professor Thompson gave recitals at Good Will and at Oak Grove Seminary on Friday and Saturday of last week. On Friday he will leave Boston for a three-month's speaking tour through the South and West.

JUDGE CLEAVES.

business positions from father and son or from uncle to nephew is becoming obsolete. It is usually found, indeed, that the man who gets a job on a "drag" is better off at first than the man who has to work up for ten years after graduating from college; but he is not the man who will have the advantage of being acquainted with all the steps in the manufacture of the product. The man who has stepped into his position will be the worse off for not having been made to work in overalls.

"Competition," said the speaker, "keeps a man on his mental toes. In talking with several executives," he continued, "I have found that many of them prefer in their employ men who have been out of college for five or six years, men who have tried their hands at different jobs and have failed in them. In failing they have learned a lot of things and are more valuable because of this experience."

Judge Cleaves then strayed from the point slightly in order to relate something of the history of business in this country for the last ten years. The large number of those who seek employment makes the situation in many cases such that there is "a 100 per cent crew on an 80 per cent job."

He then spoke of the great opportunities in the comparatively new field of foreign trade. He advised the men to consider this field since it was not too crowded and the possibilities are unlimited in the amount of business that can be done with South America, Central America, and the Far East. "The days of the traveling salesman, who used to make trips to his customers three or four times a year, slap them on the back, and tell them a new story, is gone," declared the Judge.

WOMEN'S CHAPEL.

Thursday, Jan. 16, Miss Jackson will speak on the subject, "Factors that make for success anywhere."

Saturday, Jan. 18, Miss Jackson's subject will be "Occupations in General."

MEN'S CHAPEL.

The chapel program for the men's division for the next week, as was announced by Professor Herbert L. Newman, chapel officer, is as follows:

Friday, January 17. A musical program under the direction of Professor Everett F. Strong.

Monday, January 20, President Franklin W. Johnson will speak.

Wednesday, January 22, Rev. Mr. E. C. Horrick, president of Newton Theological Institute, will speak.

DRAMATIC PRODUCTION.

ing) and Laker (Millan Egert), effects a change in the government. Then, while the Queen parades to the cathedral, and the cavalry waits for the bridal party, King Eric acts as bishop, audience, and principals at a private wedding, by his authority as head of the state and church joining Princess Anne and Granton in marriage, and shipping them off to Panama on a slow steamer that had been commandeered to take Granton alone into exile. Then the king turns to his heavy task of explaining, with the remark, "I shall go to the cathedral—but I shall return, shortly."

The members of the cast who have been spoken of previously had the heaviest parts, and deserve favorable mention. But all, from top to bottom, were worthy of praise. Cowing, Johnson, Egert, and Ely were thoroughly satisfactory in difficult parts, and parts vital to the play as a whole. The stage assistants, also, had their share, and an important share in a dramatic success of which the college is proud.
