

WINGY MANNONE PLAYS FOR CARNIVAL BALL

'ISLE OF CAPRI' CREATOR WILL APPEAR AT COLBY

One-Armed Trumpeter Leads Modern Band

Wingy Mannone and His Orchestra, who have just returned from a most successful coast engagement will provide the music for the Carnival Ball, Saturday evening, Feb. 11th. Wingy Mannone is a master showman and one of the finest characters in the musical field. At every engagement that Wingy Mannone and His Orchestra play, their sensational success wins for them acclaim and popularity and additional engagements. They have recently played for the Squires, a fraternity at Yale University.

Right up from New Orleans comes this sensational musician, with the original style so peculiar to the levees and deltas, where the true jazz is believed to have been created. Wingy is best known for his characteristic recording of the "Isle of Capri." In this he ignored the original theme melody so completely that he created a new swing. He has been a frequent recording artist for Victor and among his stand-outs are "I Can't Lose That Longing for You," "You Showed Me the Way," "Oh, Say, Can You Swing," "Boo-hoo," "Formal Night in Harlem" and "Sweet Loraine."

Ol' Capri himself, blowing them right off the isle with his trumpet, is an outstanding entertainer. This one-armed trumpeter leads a modern band in the best sweet and hot syn-copation that brings into mind the original Dixieland Band. A disciple of Biederbeck, Mannone swings them with the best today, and he and the boys rolled them in the aisles with their savage music at the University of Maine recently.

The third Annual Colby Winter Carnival takes a new step in bringing such a well-known band into Maine for this affair. Reservations will soon be on sale, according to Richard E. Noyes, in charge of tickets for this grand ball.

Debaters Win Over Bates In Radio Debut

On Wednesday, Jan. 18th, two representatives of the Colby debating squad, Ernest C. Marriner, Jr., and G. Allen Brown opened the Colby forensic season at Portland, where they met a Bates team over radio station WCSH. The Colby men defended the negative of the subject, Resolved: "That the United States should establish an alliance with Great Britain."

A great deal of time was spent on research and investigation concerning the questions that are inherent to the proposition. As a result a strong and masterful argument was presented by the Colby debaters. Ernest C. Marriner, Jr., emphasized the fact that an "alliance" signifies a military agreement, while G. Allen Brown proved, by documents procured from Harvard University through librarian Mr. Rush and Dr. H. C. Libby, that during the World War England had had secret alliance with Russia. With this information, it was an easy matter to prove that England can not be trusted.

The Colby men not only presented their case with good argumentation and fine logic but also with excellent oratory. Their presentation shows the fine work that is being done by Dr. Libby in his Public Speaking classes.

Plans are being formulated for a dual debate with the University of Maine in which the Colby affirmative team consisting of G. Flint Taylor, (Continued on page 4)

Language Requirement Referred To Academic Council

Long-awaited word of the results of the Student Council petition to the faculty concerning a change in the foreign language requirement for graduation has finally been received from a member of the college administration. After having heard the request in its December meeting, the faculty voted to refer the matter to the Academic Council, which body will give thorough consideration to the petition as soon as President Johnson returns from California.

The proposed change suggests a requirement alternative with the reading knowledge provision—namely, successful completion of four semester courses in one foreign language.

The Academic Council is an important division of the faculty created under Chapter VII of the by-laws of the corporation. The first section of that chapter reads: "The President and the Professors of all Departments of the College shall constitute the Academic Council, and are entrusted with matters relating to permanent policies of instruction and government, subject to the approval of the Corporation."

The Academic Council thus consists of President Johnson and those faculty members who hold the rank of full professor, Professors White, Parmenter, Chester, Ashcraft, Libby, Wheeler, Marriner, Morrow, Weber, Colgan, Runnals, Wilkinson and Eustis.

Colgan Receives Barrage Of Questions

Questions of all types were answered by Professor Colgan of the Psychology department at the Student Forum on Sunday, Jan. 22. The questions covered all the problems that both students from war to the much advertised "love and romance."

Professor Colgan in answer to the many questions that were asked him seemed to feel that a certain amount of armaments was necessary, the marking system is a necessary evil at present, the aim of a college education is learning how to get along with others and developing yourself so you can be of assistance to mankind. Love is a feeling of elation and general well-being that conquers petty matters, and marriage at an early age whenever possible is desirable.

Ernest Marriner, '40, posed the questions to Professor Colgan. There was a large crowd present to hear one of their favorite professors speak.

Dean Runnals Presides In Prayer Service

Dean Minetta M. Runnals presided over the chapel services on Wednesday, Jan. 18. There was no formal speaker, but instead a prayer service, Miss Runnals led the prayers, and read passages from scripture. The keynote of the service was contained in those words which Miss Runnals quoted: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." The choir sang several hymns beautifully the students joining them on a few.

New Eligibility Rules Announced By Dean

Last week Dean Ernest C. Marriner announced a group of new college regulations concerning eligibility, adopted January 11, 1939, by the faculty, to become effective next semester. The changes are to be found in Sections 3 (b), 4 and 7 (a).

The complete text of the new eligibility rules, which replace those found under Article VII in the Gray Book, are as follows:

A student shall be ineligible to represent the College in any public way if

1. He is a special student.
2. He is carrying less than 15 semester hours.
3. He has at the beginning of any semester total deficiencies of more than six semester hours. Ineligibility declared at the close of the first semester shall take effect one month after the registration day of the second semester.

(a) A student whose ineligibility is caused by one or more marks of (Continued on page 4)

Rev. Brush Will Speak To Library Associates

The mid-winter meeting of the Colby Library Associates will be held in the Alumnae Building on Friday, Feb. 3rd, at 7:30 P. M. Rev. John W. Brush will give a "strictly personal" account of his own library. After his address on "My Books" there will be an informal hour of sociability.

The program committee has a number of proposed topics for future meetings. Included among them are: "Some Interesting 18th Century Book" by Dr. C. L. Carlson. "Recent Studies and Discoveries of Greek Manuscripts" by Dr. S. L. Finch.

CARNIVAL QUEEN

Have you decided whom you wish for the 1939 Carnival Queen? A few co-ed names should be in the mind of every student, and they probably should include those of Frances Stobie, Polly Pratt, Priscilla Jones, and Margie Towle. These co-eds have been outstanding socially during their four years at Colby, and many feel that anyone of these would be a good choice.

Campus sentiment is definitely in favor of a Senior queen, feeling that underclass women will have further opportunity to attain this honor. Also, it has become almost a tradition in the short life of carnivals at Colby to have a co-ed that is leaving college, and is enjoying her last Colby Carnival. The last two carnival queens, Janet Hollis and Louise Weeks, left Colby the years of their respective reigns.

Who the queen is will be kept a secret until she is unveiled at the Barn Dance, Friday evening, Feb. 10. Even the queen herself and her five attendants will not know who is to ascend the throne until a few minutes before the Barn Dance begins. One of the most interesting parts of the carnival program is the announcement and the unveiling of the queen Friday evening; one of the most colorful parts, the crowning of the queen, Saturday evening, by Lewis O. Barrows, Governor of the State of Maine.

SKATING PARTY ONE OF GALA EVENTS

Colby Christian Organizations Merge

At last, after more than two years of procrastination, the Colby Christian organizations, including the two Y's, the Forum and the Boardman society, have agreed on the terms of a merger and have formally accepted a constitution of consolidation, dissolving their own separate entities and combining under the name Student Christian Association of Colby College.

Henceforth there will be no Y. M. no Y. W., and Forum will no longer be an independent organization. The whole idea is an attempt to correlate and coordinate all the student Christian activities under one head, to avoid the unbelievable duplication which results under our present system of five cabinets, and to lead the way to other college mergers and perhaps finally to a national Y. M.-Y. W. merger.

Colby's Merger Second in Maine

Colby is the second college in Maine to combine men's and women's religious work under one body, Bates having accomplished this step three years ago, and we are among the first five in New England. The fact that there are very few colleges in the country (Continued on page 4)

Chi Epsilon Mu Hears About Hormones

The meeting of Chi Epsilon Mu, honorary chemical society, last Thursday evening was called to order by President John D. Powers, '39. Besides a large number of students, Professors Warren, Parmenter, Odiorne, and Ray were present. After a short business meeting, the speaker of the evening, Professor Lester F. Weeks, spoke on hormones and the glands of the body.

In his talk Professor Weeks told how hormones act in the body to speed up or retard growth. Using lantern slides, he illustrated the position of ductless glands in the human body and described experiments in which hormones were injected into mice. He said that hormones could be synthesized in the laboratory and that the synthetic products may soon have invaluable use in connecting human physical abnormalities. As an example of this, Mr. Weeks showed how a certain hormone will produce roots on a plant on whatever part of the plant the hormone is placed.

After the lecture, Dr. Joseph M. Odiorne of the Biology department and Professor Weeks participated in a short discussion. The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments.

Transfer Contrasts Colby With Antioch

Donald E. Brown, a transfer from Antioch College gave the ECHO reporter some very interesting comments on the difference between Antioch and Colby. Antioch college, in Yellow Springs, O., is distinguished by its cooperative plan by which a student may alternate work and study at six week intervals. The following is the substance of the interview with Mr. Brown:

"I highly approve of the cooperative plan of education. It gives very necessary practical experience in ad- (Continued on page 3)

Ice Artists Urged To Best Efforts

Snow Sculpturing and the Skating Party will open the Colby Winter Carnival, Friday afternoon, February 10. These two features will have more to offer this year; for it will be the second year of snow sculpturing at Colby, while the skating party will be a novelty social event for both the men and women of the college.

The January 16 edition of Life is timely for the ice artists of Colby. In this issue, there are several photographs of ice statuary, creations of Russian and Swiss sculptors. Also, Dartmouth is mentioned. Quote: "Among the best ice sculptors in the United States are Dartmouth students. Each year, fraternities and dormitories compete to make the best ice statues for the Winter Carnival. For some of the larger statues wooden outlines are made. Snow is put on the forms, then carved and frozen."

The artists of the several houses of Colby will find suggestions for projects in these pictures as well as an incentive. If Dartmouth can produce sculptors from the collegiate ranks, why can't Colby? Certainly, on reviewing the past year's work of the fraternities and the women's dorms, it seems that Colby has the ability to produce statues equal to those cut at Dartmouth. The sculpturing will be judged Saturday noon.

It has been emphasized that the Skating Party at the Foss Hall rink, scheduled for Friday afternoon, is for both the men and women of the student body. The skaters will have a chance to glide to the tempo of the best popular bands, for recordings of all the well-known maestros will be played. The general skating will only be interrupted for the introduction of the figure skaters of the women's division. (Continued on page 4)

Oak Grove Teacher To Talk On Palestine

Miss Alice Jones of the Oak Grove school will tell of her experiences in Palestine at the Boardman Society meeting on February 7 at 7:30. Miss Jones was for many years a teacher in Palestine, and has first hand knowledge of the life, customs, and political conditions of that little country which has made such great contributions to world religion. Miss Jones will also demonstrate native costumes which she brought back from Palestine.

Hoopsters Beat Northeastern

Tired Huskies No Match For Mules

Piling up a 14 point lead before a tired Northeastern quintet could get a score, Colby's court Mules swamped the Boston team, 51-31, last Saturday night in the field house. The Mules played their best game of the season, passing well and shooting fairly accurately. Al Rimosukas and Bill Burrill were the big guns for Colby, scoring 37 points between them.

In the first eight minutes of play, tight defensive tactics by the Mules held the visitors scoreless. Checkmates, playing at forward for the Boston team, finally opened his team's scoring on a foul goal. During these (Continued on page 3)

Cultural Duty . . .

'Tis said that opportunity knocks but once. But our college seems to belie that proverb. When a man like Norman Thomas speaks not once, but five times, within the short space of two days in a small community like Waterville so far from what the city-dwellers think is civilization, and when all of these meetings are open to students, Colby should leap to the opportunity. And perhaps Colby did. But two thirds of the student body passed up every single one of those meetings. Two thirds of the student body doesn't buy one of Prof. Libby's lecture tickets. More than half the students know nothing more about our Concert Series than that it exists.

Colby is supposed to be a liberal arts college, with the emphasis on the word "arts," we are apt to suggest. Colby does offer a wide variety of cultural opportunities to its students. And it can do no more than offer those opportunities. Colby students should consider it a duty as well as a privilege to partake of these opportunities. You are going out with an Arts degree. You have a much better chance than most students of small liberal arts colleges to make that arts mean something. Colby believes that its students will be infinitely better off if they graduate with some sort of a cultural background than if they are mere Phi Betes or mere jitterbugs. As Colby rapidly expands her offerings to us, we gradually take them up. All change is oh, so slow!

Bugaboo . . .

This is the time of year when through fraternity house and dormitory, through rooming house and the various girls' halls, you hear the wail of the student confronted by mid-years. It is as if a dragon were let loose upon the campus. Certainly nothing less terrible could create so much trepidation in the hearts of those faced by the monster "Exams."

Fortunately this is a mental dragon. It is probably a good deal less to be feared than the lamentations would lead one to believe. The actual suffering incurred from taking an examination is usually much less keen than that received from worrying about taking it.

If the unfortunate who gather grey hairs before they enter the examination period would consider the general idea of mid-years in a more sane light their troubles would be diminished. Beginning the examination with a bad case of the jitters handicaps any clear thinking they might ever have been capable of doing. After all, isn't this supposed to be a cheek-up on what work you have done previous to the "great test?" As a Colby professor once said, "A student who has received creditable marks up till the end of the course need never worry about the last examination."

Strangely enough, it is the higher ranking student who often wails loudest. And also strangely, it is the higher ranking student who usually does the better job of preparing for the test. Thus, in one way, the dragon serves a purpose, if only to inspire unwarranted desperation.

More preparation beforehand, and less trembling in the shoes, would probably send the dragon packing back to his lair.

Support the Carnival . . .

This, the third Colby Winter Carnival, promises to be the best in the history of the state of Maine snow events. With the sports committee bringing us teams from the other colleges, with the dance committee bringing us Wingy Mannone, with the college athletic department offering some outstanding intercollegiate contests, the ECHO congratulates the planners of the Carnival. Already the Carnival is an assured success. With 100% student support it can be one of the outstanding social events in Colby history. Let's all get behind the Carnival committee and support our fastest growing activity—the Winter Carnival.

TODAY'S HISTORY

By SPENCER WINSOR

After a week's rumors of a German cabinet shake up, Hitler's move came, but in an unexpected quarter. Neither the news-scandalized Joseph Goebbels, head of propaganda, nor the aged Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, were removed, but rather Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichbank, whose "spurious brilliance" at the juggling of Nazi funds has been to the wonderment of world financiers.

Schacht Proposes Help For Jews

Last Thursday Dr. Schacht was reported to have proposed that Germany put aside funds to negotiate an international loan to aid Jewish emigration instead of following out the present policy of threatening the world with the extermination of the German Jews unless sympathetic countries quickly extend a loan to Germany in the form of favorable trade exchange balances in foreign countries. This was probably too much of a concession to the democracies for Hitler to swallow, but this was only one of the reasons for Herr Schacht's downfall. Hitler wants, as he wrote the new head of the Reichbank, "a German bank of issue unconditionally subject to the sovereignty of the state. . . and this is exactly what the independent and conservative Schacht was not."

Italy Courts Yugoslavia

The Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, went to Yugoslavia last week in an effort to recreate the Italian trade markets there which were lost when sanctions were applied against Italy during the recent Italian-Ethiopian campaign. In addition to this motive, foreign correspondents believe, Ciano will try to patch up the ill feeling between Hungary and Yugoslavia in order to draw Yugoslavia away from the Little Entente (Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Rumania) especially from Rumania which Italians believe is too much under French influence.

Independent Rumania Breaks with Berlin

Whether it was French influence or the Hitler idea for a "Greater Ukraine," which, incidentally, would reduce Rumanian territory to the extent of 15,000 square miles, is not known; however, the Rumanian government recalled its ambassador to Berlin and made no mention that he would return.

Attlee Demands Early Session

As Spanish rebel leader Francisco Franco's "Chamberlain" push continued to move forward, and famine faced the Loyalists, Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor Opposition in the British Parliament wrote to the Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain requesting the immediate summoning of Parliament "because of the gravity of the situation in Spain."

Would Discard Non-Intervention

Mr. Attlee's chief concern was that it was, in his opinion, "inimical to the honor and interests of this country" to refuse the wherewithal for the loyalists to defend themselves; especially in face of the fact that Italy and Germany were openly aiding the rebels.

Chamberlain Defends Non-Intervention

Mr. Chamberlain's reply was to the effect that His Majesty's Government were watching events in Spain and felt at present that the alternative to non-intervention would lead to "grave" results; the Prime Minister refused to summon Parliament before its normal opening.

THIS COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New Year's may be the favorite time for resolutions, but the college student makes his for the beginning of the second semester. Already vague reports drift in that so and so is going to settle down to work after exams and we begin to think of doing the things next semester which we had intended to this half year.

One second semester resolution for the faculty might not be amiss. Conflict of hour exams on certain dates has reached the point where it is a problem. Yet there is a simple little rule which, if observed, would obviate most difficulties. Instructors and professors supposedly register dates of hour exams on the calendar in the Dean's office. If a student relied on that schedule to find his exam dates, he might be present at one in five. If exams were registered before class announcement, our fates might be less determined by a professor's whim. If a man sees other exams in related subjects scheduled on the day he wants one, he has commonsense enough to pick another date.

Harvardman Gordon M. Riggs claims he isn't the Hercules of collegeland—but he proved he at least had a Herculean sense of humor when he made that statement. "In case you haven't heard about Gordon M., you'll lift your eyebrows a notch or two when you learn that he can twist an iron rod into the shape of a pretzel barehanded. Listen to him:

"Of course I do knot up an iron bar now and then and I have lifted four men weighing more than 600 pounds, but I don't think I'm much stronger than the average college student. I put my fist through that wall over there, but the plaster must have been kind of soft."

Yes, just like that, he wins our plaster pusher gonfalon! University of Chicago word-technicians have been working for a long time now on a new American-English dictionary, and they've come across a couple of facts that may be of interest to you. For instance:

They've found that use of the word "co-ed" was first made in 1893, and first got recognition in the old "Independent" in 1907 in this sentence: "The fellows in a body may laugh at the co-eds yet they rarely fail to open or close a door for them." Maybe that is meant as a bit of a left-handed etiquette lesson for us, too.

And the "college widow" is given recognition with this definition: "A 'college widow' is the unfortunate young woman who, having been the pet of several college generations without making a single permanent capture, at last finds herself deserted of admirers, and with faded charms, falls out of sight and memory."

Frosh Basketeers

Smother Bridgton

In one of the best exhibitions of freshman basketball on the floor of the Colby Field House this year, the boys of '42, swamped Bridgton Academy by a score of 37 to 18, Saturday evening, Jan. 21. Kilbourne, and Came were outstanding for Colby in the Frosh victory, while Dernarica was the star for Bridgton.

During the first two periods, the teams appeared to be evenly matched; and the first half ended with the frosh leading by only one point. At the intermission, the score was 12-11.

The second half opened slowly with only a few baskets being tossed by each quintet. However, the "Mullites" gathered momentum in the last period. Supported by Shiro and Powers, Came and Kilbourne scored repeatedly, piling up a comfortable lead for Colby. Bridgton was powerless before the deluge, and the game ended with score 37-18.

Relay Squads To Take Part In B. A. A. Games

Coach Perkins Uses Two Mile Team For First Time

Colby's mile and two mile relay teams will go to Boston to participate in the Boston Athletic Association games to be held in the Boston Gardens, Saturday, February 11. Besides the importance of the races themselves the relays serve to get the key men into shape for future meets and to give them experience in high grade competition.

Coach Norman C. Perkins sees a possibility of a fair relay team from among the following candidates, if they are all eligible: Jay Cochrane, Don Gardner, Don Gilfoy, Dwight Sargent, Mac Stevens, Tom Elder, John Gilmore, Jim Foster, and Gordon Merrill. The training of the men and getting them into shape are not the greatest problems of a coach; Gardner, Gilfoy, and Merrill are, at present, ineligible, and may be unable to regain their eligibility. Elder, Gilmore, and Foster, while showing possibilities, and all inexperienced and experience counts heavily in relay racing. Sargent and Stevens are veterans of former years, but Sargent has an infected tooth which may prevent him from doing his best, and although Stevens is running better than ever this year, he finds the 440 too short for his best performance.

Harley Bubar, one of Colby's best quarter-milers last year, is not out for track this year and his absence may cause the loss of a few precious seconds in the relay races.

For the first time, Coach Perkins is planning to take a two mile relay team to the games. Jim Chase, Charles Card, Mac Stevens, Phil Charbonneau, and Joe Beeh are candidates for positions on the team. Card, Stevens, and Chase are capable of doing fair 880's, and the other place will go to the best performer.

Colby Icebirds Find Northeastern Too Strong

Colby lost its fifth straight hockey contest to a rejuvenated Northeastern cluster here last Saturday 4 to 1. The only victory the Mules have been able to garner this year was at the expense of this same Northeastern team. Byrne Brilliant

Led by Byrne, one of the cleverest stick-handlers to play here this year, the Huskies connected four times to gain sweet revenge on the Millettmen.

The game which was by far the most interesting to date was a see-saw affair with the Colby defense turning in a great game as they broke up the Husky attack for two periods.

Chipman scored first when, after eleven minutes of fast play, he rang the bell on a pass from Byrne, and Northeastern was leading 1 to 0 as the period ended.

Wheelock-to-Bolduc Scores

Four minutes had elapsed in the second canto when Byrne tallied on a Ganoag pass. After nine minutes more of play, Bolduc and Wheelock finally broke through the Husky defense to team up on a play which allowed Bolduc to dent the netting with the marker that temporarily put the Mules back in the running.

The fast play, however, finally took its toll on the battered Colby cluster, and the enemy, paced by the omnipresent Byrne, made two more goals before the gun barked finis to an interesting encounter.

dition to theoretical knowledge."

"Antioch has no intercollegiate sports. The reason for this is obvious; the cooperative plan breaks up the student body to such an extent that only intramural sports are possible. I do not like this as it deprives us of the great American sport, football.

"There are no fraternities at Antioch, dormitories take their place on the campus. I have not yet decided which system I prefer.

"They have no Freshman hazing at Antioch. I disapprove of this as I enjoy hazing very much. (Mr. Brown has received his share of hazing at Zeta initiations this fall.)—Ed.

"The country in Ohio is flatter'n a pancake. I prefer the New England hills. Neither do I like their damp weather. Winters are much milder but also much wetter.

"The amount of studies and the quality of professors of the two schools is about even. There is a good bunch of fellows at Antioch but the fellows at Colby are just as good. However, the girls at Colby are much better looking on the whole.

"The people of Ohio are more friendly. Maine people are known as friendly but that is only in comparison with Massachusetts people. The cold winters here seem to congeal their friendliness.

"An item of interest to the boys is the fact that out in the middle west thumbing is much easier and quicker than it is in New England."

MULE-KICKS

By RALPH DELANO

The high spot of the season for the college relay teams comes Saturday, Feb. 11, when the Boston Athletic Association is host to college outfits all over New England. Colby will enter, as she has in previous years, and we wish her luck and good running!

Hockey Talk

Every year the fans of the ice sport in Colby watch eagerly for the new faces that will appear on the hockey squad after mid-years when the freshmen are eligible for varsity play. Among the up-and-coming flourishes of the stick this year among the yearlings is Bud Johnson of Brockton, Mass. He was an All-Eastern Massachusetts selection last year and he should add no little to the Mule team. Doodie Reid was captain of his high school team in Watertown. There's another good bet. Arthur Beach was a star goalie at Watertown last year. Ed Loring played good hockey for Framingham, Mass. Walter Woodward is the last of my list of prospects. He skated for Hebron's championship team last year.

A Sad Tale

This is the story of the substitute that missed getting in the game by the cuff of his pants. It happened to a Colby man in the Colby-Northeastern basketball game. As the encounter neared the half, Coach Roundy's eye roamed the bench, then he called Joe Benchwarmer into action. After receiving his instructions, the sub snatched off his jersey. With one eye on the clock that was circling away the minutes of the time that he would be in the game, he started to slide out of his pants. But the cuff caught on the heel of his shoe. Desperately he jerked at the stubborn cloth while the clock ticked away the seconds. He sat down on the bench and with frantic fingers tried to pry it off. He was still tugging when the timer's signal ended the half. He sat back in disgust with the pants hanging around his ankles. However, he got his chance later, in the final half.

first minutes. Burrill and Rimosukas were combining with Vic Malins to thread the nets for 14 counters. Colby's margin at halftime was 26-14.

Northeastern Never Threatens

Coming back in the second half, the visitors kept even with the Colby scoring threat in better fashion than they had in the first stanza. However, they didn't seem to have the stuff to drag themselves up closer to the flying Mules.

Northeastern looked tired and worn-out after their encounters on the previous nights with Bates and Maine. Maine was victorious, while Bates lost by several baskets.

Lowell Tex Here Feb. 4

For Northeastern, Toucey and Gleason were the outstanding players who contributed the major part of what little scoring punch the Bostonians had.

The next home game for the quintet will be on February 4 with Lowell Textile, which has already taken the measure of the Mules.

New Eligibility Rules

"E" at the end of a semester may regain eligibility at the following mid-semester if at that time he has no major warning in any subject.

(b) A student with more than six hours of deficiency may regain eligibility after one semester provided he secures at least 36 quality points in that one semester.

4. He is a freshman who at the beginning of the second semester has total deficiencies of more than five semester hours.

5. He has more than two major warnings at mid-semester, in which case he shall be ineligible for the remainder of the semester.

6. He has been dropped from and later readmitted to college, or has been permanently demoted to a lower class, in either of which cases he cannot regain eligibility until the expiration of a calendar year, which must include one semester's work in college subsequent to the date of suspension or demotion, in which semester the student must have obtained at least twelve semester hours of credit.

7. He is a transfer student accepted into advanced standing from another four-year college, for he is thus affected by the so-called "one year rule" making him ineligible for one year after admission into Colby College.

(a) A transfer student who has completed a terminal course at another institution of higher education, for work in which Colby College grants transfer credit, shall be eligible on the same basis as students of the same class standing, who began their college work at Colby.

(b) A transfer student accepted into freshman standing from any sort of higher institution is eligible for freshman competition only during his entire year at Colby.

8. He is on probation, in which case the ineligibility shall be co-extensive with the length of probation.

Colby Christian

to have made this "radical" change is shown by questionnaires which the Merger committee sent to 175 American colleges and universities. Only a handful of the replies to these requests indicated a combined organization. Colby leads again.

There was a tremendous amount of work involved in preparing the constitution, as indicated by the fact that the Merger committee began its job last November, and attained success only last week, when the last of our five cabinets approved the venture for next year. The committee, appointed from the present top group, the council on the Student Christian Movement, was composed of Ernest C. Marriner, Jr., chairman, Fletcher Eaton, Donald Thompson, Misses Donna deRochemont and Beth Pendleton, adviser, Conrad Swift and Professor Herbert L. Newman, the second adviser.

Elections for This Year

The students first working knowledge of this change in the Colby Christian organizations will come just before Easter vacation when they will vote, not for separate slates of Y. M., Y. W., and Forum officers, but for one slate of officers for the single cabinet. To get around the obvious difficulty of having a man elected president every year, the constitution provides that a woman must be president two out of every six years.

Copies of the new constitution are on hand at the religion office and may be had for the asking.

Debaters Win

Dwight Sargent, and Howard Miller will go to Maine, while our negative team consisting of Harry Cohen, Joseph J. Chernauskas, and Spencer Winsor will meet the Maine affirmative here. The subject to be debated is: Resolved, "That the United States should cease to use public funds for the purpose stimulating business." The contest will probably take place immediately after mid-years.

The women's division is also active, for plans are being made for Misses Carrie Burdwood and Barbara Skehan to represent Colby in a debate with Boston University.

Skating Party

vision and the Waterville Skating Club. Those who have seen the colorful numbers of the city troupe before, know the type of entertainment to be given. The skaters of the women's division are still a good deal of an unknown quantity; but according to reports, a few of the women have been rapidly developing into first class skaters. The committee in charge of this event will serve refreshments at the rink.

In the past, it has been true that the surest way to a man's heart is through his stomach. This still holds true, so the men of the college will ably support the women's delegation to this social event.
