Duff Cooper Lectures Here Tomorrow Night, March 7

Former First Lord Of Admiralty Ranked With Eden And Churchill

Alfred Duff Cooper, former First Lord of the British Admiralty, will lecture here on "The Survival of Liberty," on Thursday evening, March 7, at the Waterville High School Auditorium before members of the Colby Lecture Course. He is ranked by Adolf Hitler with Anthony Eden, Winston Churchill and Harold Ickes as being among the leading British and American "agitators" and "war mongers."

Mr. Cooper resigned from the highly important Cabinet post of First Lord of the Admiralty last October because, as he announced at the time, he felt that he could not support Chamberlain's "peace at any price" settlement of the Czechoslovakian crisis with Hitler.

It mattered little to him that this dramatic protest meant relinquishing a highly important office for which he was so eminently fitted by a record of

Council Will Discuss Exams, Cheer Leaders

"Colby's system of examination," is the subject of the Student Council at present. The Council began action in this direction in response to student agitation, expressed principally through the ECHO.

In order to find the most suitable method of settling the examination problem, the Council sent questionnaires to eighteen colleges, representative or co-educational, liberal arts colleges in the smaller size groups.

Pending return of these questionnaires, designed to elicit information about the examination system in other colleges, the Council has drawn up two petitions outlining two possible approaches. The first advocates complete revision of the present system. The second presents a plan of giving examinations to seniors holding a "C" average or higher only at the option of the student.

Another matter which has drawn much criticism from the student body is being considered by the Council. This is the yearly selection of cheerleaders. It is apparent that the present system is desperately in need of revision and action toward this end will be taken by the Council.

Vocational Guidance Given By A. Morrison

A. Cressey Morrison, famous American chemist and a distinguished executive of the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, spoke very authoritatively and in a very interesting manner to a large group of Colby students, mostly seniors, on "How to Get and Keep a Job," this afternoon, March 6, in the Chapel.

Mr. Morrison came to Colby through the auspices of the Placement Bureau, of which Prof. Elmer C. Warren is the head. He is particularly famous for his discovery of the method of separating oxygen and nitrogen in a magnetic field. He was awarded the Morehead Medal for 1930.

A noted author on chemistry, he has written several books for popular reading as well as many technical treatises. Most notable among his works is his recent "Man in the Chemical World."

Mr. Morrison is a member of many boards and organizations, some of the more important of which are: National Research Council; League of Nations, World Economic Conference; Chemical Advisory Committee, U. S. Department of Commerce; American Association for the Advancement of Science; American Chemical Society; American Institute of Mining Engineers; and the American Institute of Chemists.

Miss Marjorie Edwards Gives Concert Friday

Miss Marjorie Edwards, rising young violinist, will be featured this Friday evening in the last concert of the series, sponsored by the Waterville Cooperative Concert Association and the Colby Concert Board.

Marjorie Edwards' New York debut was made in Town Hall on February 23, 1938, where she was enthusiastically greeted by audience and critics alike.

The young violinist's Waterville concert, which will be held at the Senior High School Auditorium at 8.15 P. M., is a part of her second concert tour, her first tour last year more than justifying the words of Albert Spalding: "I consider her unusually gifted. She shows qualities of heart and imagination in her playing, added to a remarkable facility."

Griggs To Lecture Sunday And Monday

Dr. Edward Howard Griggs, noted teacher and lecturer will speak to Colby and Waterville audiences three different times on March 10 and 11.

Dr. Griggs will speak on "Youth Looks at Life," in the Opera House Sunday morning at 9:30 before the Sunday Morning Men's Class.

Sunday evening Dr. Griggs will lead a mass meeting at the First Baptist Church on the subject, "The Fine Art of Living."

Monday night at 8.00 this lecturer will speak at the High School Auditorium before the patrons of the Colby Lecture Course. His topic at this appearance will be "The Crisis in Representative Government."

Colby Glee Club To Give Concert In Presque Isle

The Colby College Choir of 75 voices is to present its third concert in Presque Isle on Thursday, and its fourth in Houlton on Friday, March 7 and 8.

They will present a varied program of selections ranging from Jazz to the Classics. They are to sing Negro spirituals, selections from light opera, traditional French, Russian, and Finnish music, sacred classics as well as choral arrangements of such modern jazz compositions as "Stardust" and "Tea for Two."

In addition to these selections by the group, the male quartet, consisting of three members of the Class of '40 Quartet and Johnny Daggett of the Class of '42, several tenor and baritone solos, and piano selections by Robert Carr will be featured.

The Men's Glee Club will also offer several numbers including a song of the Scottish border called, "The Song of the Marching Men," and the popular song, "I Got Plenty of Nuttin'."

The Choir this year has reached the largest size in numbers since its organization. It is now composed of a Men's Club of 38 members and a Women's Club of 37, combined in a mixed choir of 75 voices.

Four Maine Colleges Hold Forum At Colby

Last Thursday evening at eight o'clock, in the Colby Chapel, four students representing the four Maine colleges held a forum discussion of the problem of "Unemployment."

Bryant C. Bean, '42, of the University of Maine, discussed unemployment from the point of view of Agriculture. He confined his talk to the problems of the tenant farmers in the South.

Lawrence O. Wheeler, '40, of Bates College, spoke on unemployment from the point of view of Labor. Mr. Wheeler pointed out that the Congress of Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor agree on their objectives of wanting shorter hours and increased wages, thus keeping the standard of living about level.

Donald C. Larrabee, '43, of Bowdoin College, discussed unemployment from the point of view of Industry. He criticized the United States Government for placing restrictions on private industry.

Edwin E. Lake, '40, of Colby College, spoke on unemployment from the point of view of Government. Mr. Lake criticized the present policy of the government in respect to unemployment, but he did say that their objectives were good.

Each of the speakers spoke for five minutes and all admitted that the government had to contribute to the support of the unemployed. Following the presentation of the four points of view, a general open forum discussion took place.

Dr. Norman D. Palmer, of the department of history, presided.

FORUM PROGRAM

Sunday evening, March 10, at 6:30 in the Alumni Building, the Forum will present a full-length sound motion picture entitled "The Four-Hundred Million."

This picture is a stirring account of the war in China and in particular of the mass migration of the student population of that vast country from the scene of fighting to new locations, some as much as three thousand miles away. There will be no admission charge.

Colby Professor Gets Interesting Letters From Finland, Belgium

Dr. Richard J. Lougee, of the department of geology, has received during the past week two letters, one from Belgium and the other from Finland. Both letters tell of the war conditions in their respective countries.

The letter received from Belgium was written by Dr. Macar of the geology department at the University of Liege in Belgium. Dr. Macar is now a captain in charge of one hundred men, machine guns, and tons of explosives, on the line which the Belgium people are building facing the German frontier. The world does not realize how close Belgium came from being invaded last fall. In his letter Dr. Macar wrote, "Since September our life here is somewhat upset. Hundreds of thousands of men have put on again the military dress and are

Le Cercle Francais Discusses Concert Plans

On Friday evening, March 1, the Cercle Francais held its monthly meeting at the Alumnae Building. The group discussed plans to hold a concert, and to present a play for the future meetings.

Following the business meeting, the Misses Betty Kennedy and Doris Russell presented a short drama from Shakespeare's play, Henry V. The entire group then participated in a French spelling match which ended in a draw. The five remaining members of the Dreyer team, (Klaus Dreyer, Ada Vincour, Marjorie Cate, Eleanor Stuart, and Lloyd Buzzell) will renew their intellectual battle at the next meeting with the Jewell forces (Frank Jewell, Edward Loring, Barbara Holden, Marjorie Campbell, and Cleon Hatch).

While the Misses Norma Leppanen and Florence Bonk served refreshments, some members of the club played charades while others played cards. The evening concluded with the spirited singing of French songs. The outstanding singer was Professor Strong, especially on Alouette. He was ably assisted by Professor Smith who was tickling the ivories. The success of the French Club for the year has been due largely to the efforts of these two very helpful faculty advisers.

Powder, Wig Prepare Shakesperian Drama

Back of the production of "Twelfth Night" is a busy crew of stage hands under the direction of Ned Porter, the designer of the sets, and Gordon Richardson, stage manager.

They are performing the most thankless tasks of all those contributing to a successful production. For the past few weeks, the paint crew, Roger Stebbins and Barbara Partridge have given their time washing down old scenery so that it may be used in the play.

A building crew composed of Howard Miller, Halsey Frederick, Bradford Shaw and Jack Logan are putting together new framework for the staging designed by Mr. Porter.

With rehearsals being held nearly every day it is expected that the cast will be using the stage directly after spring vacation.

According to information supplied by Dr. Carl J. Weber, secretary of the Colby Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, sixteen members of the class of 1940 were elected to this honorary society on March first. The following were thus honored: Klaus Dreyer, Berlin, Germany; Elizabeth F. Brenner, Cambridge, Mass.; Myron G. Berry, Tilton, N. H.; Mindella Silverman, Portland; Gordon B. Jones, East Longmeadow, Mass.; Patricia A. Thomas, Waterville; Lloyd W. Buzzell, Waterville; Cleon H. Hatch, Waterville; Frances Gray, Seal Cove; Ernest C. Marriner, Jr., Waterville. Robert B. Forum Hears Beaven "What Is a Christian?"

"What is it to be a Christian, anyway?" was the topic of an address delivered to a combined evening meeting of the Waterville churches and the Colby Forum Sunday evening by Dr. Albert W. Beaven, President of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School and former President of the Northern Baptist Convention, and President of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Dr. Beaven stated that there has ever been in humanity a "conviction of the presence of a greater power than man to explain the universe," and that "religion is an urge within man to reach up toward, establish contact with, and secure value from this greater power. Large blocks of people deny God today, yet they immediately turn around and set up a new leader or god with the same qualities of the God which they denied."

"Christianity to be important must exist within people," said the speaker. "In this respect Christianity is like psychiatry. Neither can aid the supplicant unless he resolves to lay aside all barriers and place complete confidence in either one. Still, psychiatry effects a temporary release from worry while Christianity is the more powerful force which man seeks to overcome (Please turn to page 4)

Vocational Training Course . . .

One of the most frequent and puzzling problems discussed by the various bull sessions during the fraternity embassy was the problem of what to do after graduation. Along with this problem usually came the question as to what the college is doing to help students select and enter a vocation. With regard to this latter question it was the general opinion of the students that the college is doing nothing to help students in selecting a vocation and very little in helping students to get jobs.

It was suggested that a course in vocational guidance could be introduced at the college to orient students in the various vocations. Such a course would include a study of the vocational fields, the abilities required to enter each one and the advantages and disadvantages of each vocation. There could be lectures by men from various fields of vocations and speakers who are specialists in how to get jobs and to hold them. At the present time parts of such a program are being introduced from time to time but there is no unification or continuance of the program. A course in vocational guidance would not necessarily be long or require too much work but it would be of great value to the students who are puzzling about what they are to do after four years at college.

It was also suggested that there should be a better personnel department to aid students in getting jobs after graduation. At the present time there are only a small percentage of students placed in positions by the college. If the interest of the alumni could be aroused in this problem, the results might be better. Colby alumni are scattered in all occupations and professions. A committee of alumni from different vocational fields would be able to both advise students about their respective fields and aid students in getting jobs. The co-operation of the college and the alumni would be of immense practical aid to students in selecting and entering a vocation after leaving college.

The Chapels Are Better . . .

The new system for men's assembly has been in progress for the last month now and every student will agree that the quality of the assembly has been improved. With such speakers as Rabbi Shubow, Dr. Beaven and Dr. Wilkinson, the assembly period is changing from a boring half hour to a period of real enjoyment and value. In the past the committees in charge of assembly have been bitterly criticized for the failure of the program. Now that the assembly has been improved the faculty committee and the student committee which have made the improvements possible should be thanked. They have shown that it could be done.

One Of The Embassy Leaders Says...

The fruit of the intimate conversations held in connection with the Colby Student Embassy will in part be known now, but will come to fuller expression as time goes on. Doubtless some new insights have been gained and many individual lives affected. But it is not only the students who have been on the receiving end. I for one have been enlightened, stimulated in my thinking, made younger, and my confidence in my fellow men renewed because of the privilege I have had in living for three days with some of the present generation of college students. I thank them and the committee in charge for their friendly hospitality and congratulate them on their excellent preparation and carrying through what is no longer an experiment but a successful enterprise.

Anti-War Education Needed . . .

Dear Editor:

Last Tuesday Professor Wilkinson in his chapel speech pointed out that Washington and the colonists fought for British ideals. In these days, he said, Britain is indirectly fighting for American ideals.

I enjoy and admire Professor Wilkinson's analysis and interpretation of European affairs but I think his implications in the present crisis are confusing. By the emphasis which Professor Wilkinson places upon America's kinship with Great Britain, by his allusions to a common democratic brotherhood, one could jump to conclusions and believe that he is advocating an American military intervention in the present European war. But of course this cannot be so. Tradition gives to our academicians a higher degree of reasoning power than it does to our politicians, and the majority of politicians today even shun the prospect of military intervention. We don't want war, and we don't want any of that sugar-coated, high-sounding, glamorous phraseology which once enticed America into Europe's seasonal blood bath.

To headline Germany's Jew-baiting and aggression, and backpage England's Palestinian perfidy and Indian hypocrisy seems to be the ostrich-like policy of our myopic internationalists. They would have us march off to mud and blood and death to bolster up a system which enslaves three hundred and fifty million people, a system which is not like that of these United States.

This week we will have a sample of perfumed British propaganda. Duff Cooper will give us the cultured works on Anglo-Saxondom, brotherhood, freedom, and our common interests. He will tell us Britain does not want our Military aid, laud our neutral stand, comment upon the wisdom of the cash-and-carry system, and subtly paint a noble Britain bravely and uncomplainingly fighting our battle.

At the present time, America's greatest need is for men of the calibre and common sense of General Smedley E. Butler's type. We need strong and determined leaders who are Americans first and visionaries second. We are giving to Britain and France far more assistance at the present time than they ever gave to Ethiopia, China, or Czecho-Slovakia. Let us not forget that we are helping to fight a nation which has been beaten, and which was kicked and trampled upon when she was down and out. Only by remembering this will we be able to maintain the semblance of neutrality which we profess today.

Finally, I believe it is the duty of our teachers and leaders to foster an anti-war spirit in the nation. Men in important positions of leadership who believe that the United States should enter the war would help the nation better by using their enthusiasm to find ways and means of transporting themselves across the Atlantic. Over there perhaps the Siegfried cement and cold steel philosophy would cool their burning ardor.

Rimosukas, Connecticut Star, Leads Mules To Tie For Championship

Finishing their season with a record of eight wins and seven losses, Colby's basketball team tied with Maine for the state series crown in the past season. An early season road trip to the Boston area accounted for four defeats, as the Mules started slow. The remainder of the season saw the Waterville quintet step to eight wins in eleven games as increased smoothness of play came with more competition.

Leading the Mules in their scoring was lanky Al Rimosukas, the Windsor, Conn., star, who took scoring honors in Maine state play and was ranked sixth among Eastern point-getters for the past season. Rimosukas was constantly a Colby threat on the offensive. As the season developed, other players came through with high scoring games, which combined with tight Mule guarding, to register victories. Ray Flynn, Cliff Came, Gil Peters, and Vic Malins all had their nights with a sharp eye on the basket. Then in the closing games of the season, two freshman stars, John Lomac and Jenny Lee, brought additional scoring power.

The athletic department recently announced that the following varsity letters had been awarded for the past season: Co-Captain Clyde Hatch, '40, Co-Captain Warren Pearl, '40, Albert Rimosukas, '41, Gilbert Peters, '41, Oren Shiro, '42, Clifford Came, '42, Raymond Flynn, '42; Victor Malins, '40, and Manager Leon Tobin, '40.

It seems particularly fitting at this time to pay tribute to members of the Colby indoor track forces. Although Colby cinder fortunes have been at a low ebb for a number of years, Cy Perkins always comes through with at least one or two individuals who continually receive the plaudits of faithful track followers and luminaries.

Needless to say I am referring to Johnnie "Seabiscuit" Daggett, not to mention the recently surprising exploits of Gil Peters, a high jumper deluxe.

It looks as though the blue and gray has another ace up his sleeve. Gil Peters of basketball fame has taken a fling at high jumping and believe me he is good—and I mean real good!

somewhere in Belgium."

The second letter was written by Dr. Esa Hyyppa of Helsinki, Finland, who received an honorary degree from Colby College last June. Dr. Hyyppa's letter was mailed on Christmas day.

During one of the first air raids Dr. Hyyppa was in his office in Helsinki. He fled to a bombproof shelter and five minutes later his office was destroyed by a bomb. At the present, Dr. Hyyppa is fighting the Russians on the northern front and his wife is an air raid warden on top of an apartment house. He said that the Finns cannot thank the Americans enough for their aid. While in Maine, he collected over four thousand samples of minerals, which he sent to Sweden for the duration of the war.

Dr. Hyyppa stated in his letter, "As you perhaps have learned in your papers, we have fought with great success and caused the enemy very heavy losses. The Finnish nation is completely united and will fight to the very last, even in the case that she should be left alone. We trust on the victory of our side."

Two days before the war broke out Dr. and Mrs. Hyyppa sent a silver spoon to Dr. and Mrs. Lougee's infant son.

brilliant leadership in Parliament and of service as War Minister, and that in making it, he was jeopardizing his political career. He had, as he himself expressed it, "retained something which is to me of great value—I can still walk around the world with my head erect."

That Alfred Duff Cooper's resignation as the First Lord of the Admiralty did not terminate his leadership of that steadily increasing group of liberal-minded Englishmen who feel that Hitler must be stopped and that the mailed fist—that is, force—is the only language Der Fuehrer understands is perfectly evidenced by the fact that his name heads the list singled out for attack by Hitler in recent speeches. He is regarded throughout the British Empire as one of England's most brilliant "younger statesmen."

From the moment Alfred Duff Cooper made his first speech in the British House of Commons in 1924, the political prophets have been busy with his name. His fiery eloquence, caustic wit, and extraordinary mastery of his subject have heaped praise upon him from all parts of the Empire. Stanley Baldwin gave him a secretarial post in the War Office in 1928 and in 1935 he was made Minister of War. His appointment as First Lord of the Admiralty followed in 1937.

Despite heavy official duties and leadership in every important international crisis in which Britain has been involved in the past decade, this young statesman has found time to write three books, "Talleyrand," "Haig," and "House of Lords or Senate."

He is married to the former Lady Diana Manners, glamorous and beautiful daughter of the Duke of Rutland, who, after starring in British film productions, came to America to play the role of "The Madonna" in Max Reinhardt's production of "The Miracle." Educated at Eton and at Oxford, he served in the crack Grenadier Guards during the World War and won the coveted D. S. O. for his services.

the influences of an evil force twisting and turning all of us from good."

Dr. Beaven continued, "Christianity is the bringing of man's relations with his fellows into Christ-like formulas. Proof of his acceptance of Christianity is evidenced by his actions. It's a way of life and a direction in which to travel, keeping a balance between getting from God and giving to others."

ciety at the time of the chapter's annual banquet, to be held this year on April sixteenth.

Election to this society, universally regarded as one of the highest honors obtainable by an undergraduate, is made on the basis of scholarly achievement, intellectual curiosity, breadth of cultural interest, and the acquisition of a sound and liberal education. The large number elected from the class of 1940 indicates that in the eyes of the Phi Beta Kappa Society this class ranks unusually high in scholarly interest and achievement. As a matter of fact the class of 1940 has placed more members in the honorary society than any other class since 1926. This number has been

The meeting of the local chapter on April sixteenth will be addressed by Dr. James L. Tryon of Medford, Mass.
