New Stu G Officers Are Elected

Dick Lucier

Ed Burke

Sue Chamberlain

Matty Gache

In this week's Student Government election, in which 71 per cent of the student body voted, Dick Lucier was elected president, and Ed Burke vice president. Sue Chamberlain is the new secretary and Matty Gache assumes the role of treasurer.

Dick is an English major from Newton, Massachusetts. He is an Alpha Tau Omega and has served as social chairman and treasurer. He has been a member of Student Government and Social Committee. He was president of IFC this year. Dick is a member of the "C" Club and played varsity football.

Ed is a native of Brockton, Massachusetts, majoring in Spanish. He is rushing chairman of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. Ed is a junior advisor and a representative to Student Government and IFC. Ed is president of the class of 1960 this year, also serving in this capacity his sophomore year. A member of the "C" Club, he plays football and baseball, and played basketball.

Sue is an Economics major from Groton, Massachusetts. She is a member of Student Government and Women's Judiciary Board. Sue is a cheerleader, a junior advisor and has served as a chapel usher.

Matty is co-rushing chairman of Xeta Psi fraternity and is a History-Economics major. He lives in Lodi, New Jersey. Matty is co-chairman of next year's Winter Carnival Committee. He was this year's Winter Carnival treasurer and served as treasurer of Campus Chest last year. He is a member of the Colby Community Club and plays varsity football.

The large number of voters in this election showed that students were interested in choosing those who would lead their government. It is hoped this interest in Stu G will continue.

Condon Medal Nominees Are Chosen For Top Honor

Four seniors, Barbara Hunter, Joe Grimm, Donna Tasker, and Dick Morrison have been nominated for the Condon Medal Award. This medal is awarded to that senior who has contributed in many ways to all phases of Colby life and is considered to be the outstanding citizen of the class.

Barbara Hunter is a member of the Chi Omega Sorority and has served as treasurer of that group. She has been Dorm Chairman for two years, serving on the Dorm Council and Interdorm. She has been a member of Student League for two years, and also a member of W.A.A. for three years, being president this past year. She served as secretary of the Winter Carnival Committee, worked on the Oracle for three years, being photography editor in her Junior year. She has been a representative to Student Government, served as a Junior Advisor and is treasurer of Cap and Gown this year.

Joe Grimm is president of the senior class and has served as both secretary and chairman of the men's Judiciary. He has served as secretary, treasurer and rush chairman of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He has been a chapel usher for three years, received the Lelia Forster Prize in his freshman year, served as a Junior Advisor, played baseball for four years and is presently chairman of the Senior Class Commencement Committee, and a member of Blue Key.

Donna Tasker was Chief Justice of the Women's Judiciary this year. She has sung in the Glee Club and Concert Choir for four years, and has served as librarian, business manager and vice president of the latter. She has served as secretary of Powder and Wig and has been a representative to Student Government. She served as a Junior Advisor, and has been a Sub Head for two years. She has been a member of W.A.A., served on Dorm Council for three years, and on the Interdorm board for two years. She has been a member of Student League for two years, and is presently a member of Cap and Gown.

Dick Morrison is presently serving as president of Blue Key. He has been a class president for two years, and a member of the Men's Judiciary for three years. He was a representative to Student Government for two years and has been a chapel usher. He has played varsity hockey for three years and

Dr. Bancroft From Women Study Swarthmore Heads Current Problem Physics Dept.

Dr. Dennison Bancroft, a graduate of Amherst, who received his Ph.D. at Harvard, will be the new chairman of the physics department next September. He has been teaching physics at Swarthmore for the last ten years. He has also taught at Princeton and worked for the U.S. government on a research project. At the present time, Dr. Bancroft is engaged in a research project concerning acoustics for the national science foundation.

As chairman, he will perform the administrative duties of the physics department. Primarily, however, his position will be as a professor. He will teach elementary physics, mechanics, and heat and thermodynamics.

A meeting of the entire Women's division was held on Wednesday evening for the purpose of distributing a questionnaire which had been prepared by the members of Cap and Gown. The questionnaire, which the group has been working on for five months, is an attempt to evaluate the Women's division of Colby. The primary items on the questionnaire pertain to sororities and the dormitory program and its adequacy.

Because Cap and Gown was aware of general discontent in the fall, it decided that an attempt should be made to delve into the situation and, if possible, to come up with some type of solution. In addition to the work that the girls themselves have done on the problems, they have consulted Mr. Birge of the sociology department to help them set up the questionnaire.

Cap and Gown hopes to have a report compiled before schools ends this year. Any suggestions made on the basis of the completed questionnaires will be passed on to the new Cap and Gown group.

One question pertaining to the sorority situation on campus included the following five alternatives for consideration: 1) leave the situation as it now stands with four national sororities, 2) add more national sororities, 3) the existing sororities become local, 4) more locals be added and the existing sororities go local, or 5) eliminate sororities on the Colby campus.

Stu-G Conference This Weekend

The New England Women's Student Government Association Conference is to be held at Colby on April 10, 11, and 12. Those colleges and universities participating in the conference are the Universities of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Bates College, Jackson College, Middlebury and Colby. In addition to the representatives, the deans will also be attending.

The conference begins on Friday, April 10, with registration in the afternoon, followed by a buffet supper in Roberts Union. Marcia Peterson, Barbara Hunter, and Bill Bryan, director of admissions, will address the group.

Saturday morning the first general meeting will be held. Three different phases of the main topic "Co-

Sorority and Fraternity Skit To Be Presented

The 1959 Campus Chest, bigger and better than ever, is featuring many fund-raising activities sponsored by the various organizations at Colby. Included in this year's program are a tag day (Campus Capers and Skit Night).

The tag sale, now in progress outside of the Spa, is sponsored by the Campus Chest committee. Yellow tags bearing the words "Campus Chest - 1959" are being sold in exchange for donations of any amount.

Campus Capers are sponsored by all the active organizations at Colby. Camera Club has announced that it will present "Pictures", but as yet, has given the Campus Chest committee no details about its program. Hangout will be selling refreshments on Skit Night and will give the proceeds from this and another night to Campus Chest. The Canterbury Club is planning to have a turnstile outside of the Spa and will charge 20 per person for admission. A program of slides, at which donations will be taken, has been planned by the Outing Club. Powder and Wig, ECHO and ORACLE have announced that they will support Campus Chest by presenting donations. Programs are also being planned by SCA, Cap and Gown, Blue Key, and the Women's Athletic Association.

Members of Lambda Chi waited tables in the women's dormitories on Tuesday, April 7, and members of Alpha Delta Pi served as waitresses in Roberts Union on Thursday night. On Thursday, April 16, Sigma Kappa will be waitressing in Roberts Union.

Fraternities and sororities will be competing for cups at Skit Night on Saturday, April 11, in the Women's Union. Sigma Kappa will present a skit entitled "No Saleability". Tri Delta will give "Fraternity Man", Alpha Delta Pi's skit is entitled "Collegiate Throughout the Years", and Chi Omega will present "Colby College Catalog". Lambda Chi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Pi Lambda Phi, Tau Delta Phi, and Alpha Tau Omega have not yet announced the titles of their skits. Kappa Delta Rho's skit will be a take-off on the R.O.T.C. program. Other skits to be presented are the following: Sigma Theta Psi, "Winter Carnival - 1960"; Delta Upsilon, "Peter Gunn"; Zeta Psi, "The Colby Family"; and Phi Delta Theta, "Why?"

The goal of Campus Chest is $1500 and the proceeds will go to the World University Service, the New England Home for Little Wanderers, and the Colby College Scholarship Fund.

Role of Red China In Pacific To Be 7th Gabe Lecture

The seventh lecture in the Gabrielson Lecture Series will be given on Monday, April 13, by Dr. Paul Linebarger, noted author and professor of political sciences. He will discuss as his topic, "Red China and its Role in the Pacific."

Although Dr. Linebarger was born in the United States, he attended schools in Honolulu, Shanghai, and Oberlin (Germany). Returning to the United States, Dr. Linebarger attended George Washington University, where he received his A.B. degree in 1933; American University, Washington, D.C. in 1934; University of Chicago in 1935; and Johns Hopkins University where he received his Ph.D. in 1936.

Dr. Linebarger has had a great deal of experience with the Far East and its politics, and participated as Far Eastern specialist in the formation of the Office of War Information in 1942, serving on the Operating Planning and Intelligence Board. As a professor, he has been Professor of Asiatic Politics since 1946. Dr. Linebarger has also been a visiting professor of International Relations at the University of Pennsylvania in 1954-55, and at the Australian National University in 1957.

EDITORIAL A SUGGESTION

There has been much concern evidenced due to the high number of Colby students on probation. And, certainly, we all should be concerned. There is no reason why 102 freshmen men should have to be placed on probation. These men are capable of doing the work — that is if high school records are any indication.

In any event, something should be done to assure that a similar occurrence does not take place next year. Many suggestions have been offered. We'd like to suggest one of our own: Any Freshman, male or female, placed on probation should not be permitted to participate in campus activities the following semester. Campus activities would here be defined as freshmen athletics, and any and all organized clubs which exist. The purpose of such a restriction would be to make it quite clear that these students are here to study and that they can not participate in other activities until their academic record has improved.

We realize that this might greatly effect the freshman athletic teams. But, we feel that keeping a student at Colby is considerably more important than the record compiled by any freshman team. This idea makes sense even from a purely athletic standpoint. In this way a good quarterback or star pitcher would stand a much better chance of being around the following year for varsity competition.

To some students it appears that the ECHO is in favor of de-emphasizing athletics. This is very definitely not the case. We have as proud as anyone of the fine job that Colby teams continually do against top competition. But, we do feel that the most important aspect of Colby is that of education, and that this should always be the primary concern.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I need advice bad! You see it's like this: I'm jist a pore mountain gal from Kintuckey, but kind a scared an' naive by Colby standards, an' never had nobody but my kinfolk aroun'. So when I got to Colby I figered I could meet a lot of new an' different people. But it was harder than I expect'd cause I couldn't fin' any different people an' also didn't know any boys so didn't fit into the girls' bull sessions. I decided it would be easier to meet some boys than to find some difrent people so I bought lots of tweed things to attract the fellers. First I had to get me a Colby uniform, one of them bag sweaters with matchin' knee stockin's. My desert casuals I had to throw away an' I got a pair of them sneakers to take their place. With a trench coat I figgered my uniform was complete but jist in time I remember'd my membership pin, the gold circle kind to wear on a sweater if you haven't got the fraternity kind. I was really "up for" being a Colby tweed (I had even learnt the right expressions) but somehow I was still different an' didn't feel like I belonged to the happy Colby family.

I started lokin' for advice. First I tried to fin' the gal who called herself my helpful junior adivsor, but she was very busy playing bridge. Next I though I'd fin' my home-mammy, but fortunately I foun' out jist in time that no one consults her, especially about social problems. I thought that I would ask the chaplain what to do, but I was told that no tweed goes to church! As a last resort I decided to go to Student Government, but none of the freshmen knew what it was an' none of the upperclassmen seemed to know or care who it was.

Since everyone reads the ECHO, I'm hopin' someone who is already in the Colby rut can offer some experienced advice.

Hopefully yours,
Conny Formity

Weekend Comment

by Don Mordecai

Orwell's Collected Essays make fascinating reading, but I cannot help feeling a little bit sorry for him when I read "Such, Such Were the Joys . . ." the first essay in the collection. His early school career, while broadening, certainly was not exactly what Blake had in mind when he wrote the line which Orwell uses for his title. "Such, such were the joys," he says, "When we all, boys and girls/In our youth time were seen/On the Echoing Green." Orwell's education lacked something. He was plagued by various rules and fears, but it also seems as though he never felt himself very much a part of his school. There was in his mind perhaps the feeling of being caught in a machine from which there could be no escape. This roundabout approach is all simply to point up the very opposite situation at Colby. Last weekend may not have been absolutely normal, but on the other hand it was not conspicuously abnormal.

On Saturday evening last I bumped down to the Opera House and enjoyed a surprisingly polished performance of a show which, though I have seen it before, still glitters and radiates a warmth and vitality which I notice in very few other stage productions. It is not just the catch tunes and rib tickling fun of "The Boy Friend" that pleases, but there is also a sort of rapport established through the show which joins actors and audience in a warm belly laugh, not so much at the 20's as with that age. There isn't much behind the glitter, to be certain, but, like some of the poetry of Ben Jonson, you simply immerse yourself in the show, and that is its own reward.

Sunday evening at the Bixler's was music of a different sort, and no less entertaining, albeit long-haired, Messrs Re and Morel with Mrs. Reuman played a form of music, two trios, which though "serious" still create the same feelings of warmth and rapport as "The Boy Friend". It is chamber music and depends on the three musicians' understanding not only of the printed music but also of the attitudes of their fellows. Each player must sense, as it were, the movements of the others, since there is no conductor. After the first two trios Ted Casher substituted himself and his clarinet for Mrs. Reuman - who then took Ted's place as page-turner for Mr. Re and the group played a delightful suite. But the clincher of the evening took place after the regular program had finished and, unhappily, after many of the guests had left. A young lady visitor was particularly struck by the last movement of the suite and felt that she would like to improvise a dance.

Nominations?

We do not know who is in charge of conducting the nominations for the Condon Medal, but we feel that a few suggestions are in order.

On the women's side of the campus many of us were unaware that nominations were taking place outside the spa that particular evening. In past years publicity about this event has been inadequate, but this year it was especially so. Moreover, since most classes are no longer held in the library, publicity for it is even more necessary. This being the case, if people did not happen to be in the library, they did not know that voting was taking place.

To be sure, there was a sign that declared the elections, but this was insignificant and competing with IKON and BOYFRIEND advertisements. The Condon Medal is much too important an award to be so lightly and, therefore, so inadequately handled.

Murray Debate Won By Wallace-Dorman Side

by Louise Robb

Dorothy Dorman and Frank Wallace have emerged the winning team from the Murray Prize Debate, held Monday evening, April 6, in Lovejoy Auditorium. The best speaker was judged to be Frank Wallace.

The topic of the debate was the resolution: "That Colby College should refuse to participate in the National Defense Education Act unless or until the disclaimer affidavit clause (Title X, Sec. 1001 (f) has been repealed by Congress." The disclaimer affidavit clause referred to under Title X, Sec. 1001 (f) states that: "No part of any funds appropriated or otherwise made available for expenditure under authority of this Act shall be used to make payments or loans to any individual unless such individual (1) has executed and filed with the Commissioner an affidavit that he does not believe in, and is not a member of and does not support any organization that believes in or teaches, the overthrow of the United States Government by force or violence or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods . . ."

The first affirmative speaker, Miss Dorman, presented a brief history of the Act, pointing out that the bill in its original form was devoid of the disclaimer affidavit, and that this addition was the work of Sen. Charles Munt in the closing days of the Congressional session of 1958. The faculty of Colby, when consulted on the matter, recommended that the strongest actions be taken against the affidavit, but accepted the Act in itself. The College, however, reserves the right to "reconsider" its stand if Congress does not repeal the affidavit clause.

Reasons Why Provision Is Threatening

Miss Dorman then enumerated four reasons why the disclaimer affidavit provision is "Threatening". She pointed out first its danger to the individual — the idea that one might "unwittingly perjure" oneself by participating in activities of a Communist front organization which one did not realize was on the Attorney General's list. To support her view that the average student does not know which organizations are "listed", she showed that out of a poll taken of 210 students, only one could correctly name the six out of ten organizations now listed as "subversive" by the Attorney General. This was also true of a similar poll taken at Winslow High School, in which 84.9% of the seniors questioned said that they would, if necessary, sign the affidavit. The penalties for perjury, in the case of the National Education Act disclaimer, are $10,000 fine and/or five years in prison.

Her second point was that the disclaimer affidavit is detrimental to individual freedom, for under it one can be persecuted for one's beliefs. She claimed, as a third point, that the affidavit provision would aggravate the "suspicion and distrust" which Congress already seems to feel toward the American academic community. She foresaw a day when students would hesitate to discuss politics either privately or in class, when the student who refused to sign the affidavit might be "suspect". The fourth point was what she termed the "guise of innocuousness under which the Act masquerades," and the fact that 34% of the Colby students polled saw nothing wrong with the Act at all.

The college itself, said Miss Dorman, must take responsibility for not participating in the Act until the disclaimer affidavit is repealed by Congress, and must not rely on the fast-changing student body to make its policies.

Negative Side Speaks

Mr. George Welch, the first speaker of the negative, admitted that the disclaimer affidavit was both "unnecessary and undesirable". He indicated, however, that the oath was not sufficient reason to refuse the whole Act, which, in itself, is thoroughly sound. Citing the National Defense Education Act as a major contribution of government to higher education, he maintained that the disclaimer affidavit "cannot alter the inherently good parts of the Act", any more than a white border can alter the color of a green blackboard.

Referring to Emmanuel Kant, Mr. Welch then raised the question: "Can we legislate for ourselves the right not to accept the Act?" Colby's refusal to accept the National Education Act would discourage Congress from passing other aid-to-education laws, or introducing bills to repeal the affidavit, he said. There already exist the legal means to remedy this distasteful provision, he continued, for Senators Kennedy (Mass.) and Clark (Pa.) have recently introduced a bill to that effect.

Continuing in the same vein, he asked: Does the faculty or administration of a college have the right to legislate morality for its students? The disclaimer affidavit in question is admittedly "narrow"; however, we must allow students to make their own decisions. A college would be just as narrow itself not to allow the student to take advantage of the financial aid if he sees fit, was his view.

The second speaker for the affirmative, Mr. Wallace, agreed with the negative that the National Education Act itself is both "sound in principle and basically good". However, he said, as far as the disclaimer affidavit not changing the merit of the act is concerned, I prefer to use the analogy of one rotten apple spoiling a whole barrel of apples rather than that of the white frame around the green board.

"Campus Chest" Drives Offer Some Suggestions

by Jackie Nunez

It's Campus Chest time at Colby, and elsewhere Campus Chests have been held or are scheduled for the immediate future.

In comparison to other schools, Colby's goal of $1500 is not spectacular, to say the least. Bowdoin, our neighbors to the South, raised $2500 for ten charities during their March 13, 14, 15 weekend. Hobart, about one half the size of Colby set their goal at $700, but expected to go well over the top. Union College, also small, raised $900, with $8,800 being raised at Dartmouth, $3000 being raised by the University of North Carolina, $3,500 being raised at Bucknell, $1,600 at Russell Sage, and $6,000 at Trinity.

Colby students might wonder what charities other schools support. The above-mentioned schools were unanimous in support of World University Service, Bucknell giving all its funds to this organization. Scholarship funds were also popular, most often going to overseas colleges such as the University of Rangoon, Athens College, and Abadan University. Other charities benefited were Saved the Children Sclerosis Society, United Negro College Fund, Care, American Friends Service Committee, Heart Association, Cancer Society, Schools for mentally retarded and crippled children, and the Foster Parents Plan.

Why is Colby, with its tradition for Christian service, not as successful as many other schools in Campus Chest efforts? For one thing, your exchange editor noted that the more successful campaigns had a much greater amount of skillful publicity, especially in the school paper. This publicity was on an explanatory nature, and included pictures to attract attention and portray more adequately the needs. Thus, students did not as easily escape reminders. Speakers from WUS, which are easily obtained, were another way of raising interest if the Committee had properly publicized their visits. The Student Governments in many schools, rather than merely picking the Committee Chairmen, gave much more concrete aid and interest to the campaign, and held evaluative sessions in their own group to pass on to future chairmen. Personal appeal, such as the adoption of a foreign child, is an element, as well as the appeal of "student helping student" (if this aspect is properly emphasized).

Where some of these methods were used, a different spirit seemed to permeate the campus. For example, at Hobart, "The IFC showed its enthusiasm for the charity drive by rejecting unanimously a proposal to give prizes to the fraternity and solicitor raising the most money. They felt that the drive is for such a worthy cause that no artificial stimulus will be needed to promote giving."

As for the actual components of Campus Chest Drives elsewhere, let us return to Bowdoin. One-act plays are presented and judged for awards. A glee club concert, a jazz concert, a booth carnival, a faculty-student game, and a movie were other features. Each fraternity competes for the Per Capita Award, going to the house which takes in the most money from the sale of weekend tickets and drawing tickets, house auctions, and receipts from the booth. Many schools, for example Dartmouth and Russell Sage, merely solicit, but with great

7 Professors Will Go On Sabbaticals

After a professor has served on the faculty for six years, he is given the opportunity to spend one or two semesters on a research project of his own choice. Next year, members of our departments will take advantage of this opportunity. In the department of English, Mrs. Comparetti will devote two semesters to a study of Milton and the seventeenth century. Dr. Sutherland will spend at least one semester on his book about eighteenth century satire. Two professors of modern language are planning sabbaticals. Mr. Schmidt will be carrying on research at another university. During the second semester, Mr. Kellenberger is planning to continue his investigations of an eighteenth century French periodical. Further research will be done in the field of history and government by Mr. Bernheider and Dr. Raymond. Mr. Bernheider will spend the full year in Italy. Dr. Raymond will take his leave for the second semester. Finally, Mr. Gillespie, of the psychology department is taking part in a year-long project at Harvard.

Although they deprive us of a portion of our teaching staff, these sabbaticals are very beneficial to both the students and the faculty. The professors gain a chance to make further investigations of fields of interest and the students have a richer learning experience.

to it. She did a fantastic and beautiful job, catching what all of us who were present thought to be the exact spirit of the piece. And this on the spur of the moment.

Monday evening, on the other hand wasn't musical at all, but was still entertaining and enlightening. The Murray Prize debate had as its subject this year the question of whether or not Colby should accept the National Defense Education Act's proffered money - with strings attached, as you remember.

Although at the present time the question is largely academic, and the debate probably changed nobody's mind, it was still quite interesting to watch and listen as the two opposing teams (Mike Welch and Frank Wiswall saying we should participate and Dee Dorman and Frank Wallace saying, naturally, the opposite) matched wit and invective as they tried to convince the judges that their side had right (whatever that may be) and that therefore they should win the debate - and the prize money. Frank Wallace and Miss Dorman won - Frank for the second year - and Frank also won the prize for the best speaker. But the debate was by no means one sided, and I would say that the audience, which was pretty good sized, was the real winner.

These three events were in just three days. Granted that our social calendar is chock full (and this doesn't even take the Academy Award show into consideration); yet if it is full of events like the above, we can't really complain.

Gagnon Scholarship Is To Be Offered By Alpha Delta Pi

Alpha Delta Pi sorority has made a scholarship available to any deserving Colby woman for the first time this year. The exact amount of the scholarship is as yet undetermined, however, it will be approximately $100.

The sorority has named the scholarship after an alumna, Josephine Bodurtha Gagnon. Mrs. Gagnon was an active Colby Alumna and she was awarded a Colby brick for her interest and work in the college's behalf.

Any Colby woman can apply for the scholarship. Applications can be obtained from Betsy Harper in 237 Woodman. Completed applications must be in by April 15. The recipient of the scholarship will be announced at the May Recognition Assembly.

European Summer Jobs Are Open To Students

Looking for a new and different summer job? Something interesting and educational? The American-European Student Foundation offers American college students the opportunity to secure a summer job in a European country. This program, which was put into action for the first time last summer, was considered very successful by the students participating and the European governments are fully in favor of continuing the program.

The students who went abroad actually took part in the daily lives of the people of these countries. By living with the Europeans and learning their customs, the American student is learning a valuable cultural lesson from Europe. In addition to the benefits of traveling to Europe, the student will receive his room and board and wages. The wages are scaled according to the wage scales in the individual countries.

Job openings include working in the forests of Germany, on construction work in Portugal, on farms in Germany, Switzerland, and Denmark, in a kibbutz in Israel, and on road construction in Norway.

There are also positions in child care work for women, and various forms of forestry, construction, hotel and farm work are available. Other countries where positions have been made open to Americans are Switzerland, Scandinavia, England, France, Italy, Spain, and Holland. In most cases, the European employers have made special requests for American students to fill their vacant positions and are, therefore, anxious to make the students' jobs interesting and their stays enjoyable.

The American-European Student Foundation is a non-profit organization the purpose of which is to provide students with varied and interesting summer work, in addition to helping to promote better understanding of people in Europe. They feel that there is no better way to increase understanding between our country and those countries than to have actual person-to-person contact with Europeans. Their program has been expanded this year to allow more students to take advantage of this opportunity.

Lecture Review

by Dan Hodges

Henry Stuart Hughes, Professor of History at Harvard, asked himself three questions to frame his Gabrielson Lecture of March 31. He implicitly answered those questions in the course of his historically-developed analysis of "The Communist Parties in Western Europe". Since the communist parties in most Western European countries are inconsequential, he examined only those in France and Italy.

His first question asked why those two countries happened to have the only significant communist parties. Analyzing the nature of the early socialist movement gave the answer. France and Italy never developed strong socialist parties primarily because of the peasant mentality of their working classes. Consequently the workers did not have a strong sense of their class affiliation. No disciplined socialist party was present to inhibit communist growth when communism arose as an alternative to socialism. Several factors aided communist growth. It got a big boost in the thirties because the French and Italian Popular Front governments opposing fascism were quite respectable. The respectability of communism took a beating, however, when Russia allied itself with fascism in the Hit-

January Comps To Be Instituted For Good of Students

The Faculty Board of Colby has recently approved the recommendation that a third set of comprehensives be given in January. This would be for the benefit of January graduates and those who in September need one more semester's work on their major, or those who fail in September and want only a four instead of a nine months lapse between exams.

According to Dean Strider the faculty of Colby has only approved more work for themselves, for now the members have a third set of comprehensives to make up and correct in the midst of the school year. The arrangements for the January comprehensives will be for the exclusive benefit of the Colby student.

Pat Walker Heads '59 Pan-Hell Group

The Pan-Hellenic Association held its annual election last Tuesday, April 7. The following girls were elected to an office: President, Pat Walker; vice-president, Diane Scrafton; secretary, Ellie Choquette; corresponding secretary, Nancy Conen; treasurer, Carolyn Webster; scholarship chairman, Charlotte Clifton; social chairman, Amy Eisentrager.

During the year, the Pan-Hellenic Association's main function is to conduct sorority rushing and to plan inter-sorority functions such as sports playdays and dances. Two girls are chosen to represent each sorority from both the junior and senior classes, and to serve as members of the association for two years. The Pan-Hellenic Board is anticipating a profitable year for 1959.

Colby Students Spend Vacation Down South

by Jocelyn Keil

Spring Vacation was marked by a mass exodus of Colby students in all directions. The majority as usual headed for "Home Sweet Home." Other lucky people headed for the vacation favorites Bermuda and Florida, and the ski areas of Mt. Snow and Stowe, Vermont.

On the girls' side of campus, Nancy Schneider started the move to Florida. Karen Graf and Willie deKadt joined her later in the week to help soak up some of the Florida sun. Among others heading south were Chickie Davidson and Bebe Clark who acquired their tans in the Fort Lauderdale region. Cathy Troy went to Baltimore, Maryland, while Hopie Hutchins flew to Cuba. The plane was met by a number of Castro's men who conducted an intensive search of all the passengers for concealed weapons, et cetera. (An interesting note: All of Castro's men had mustaches, beards, and long hair, which many of them wore in pony tails or page boys).

Ten Colby girls flew down for a wonderful week in Bermuda. The lucky girls were Diane Scrafton, Cyndy Knott, Carla Possinger, Judy Miller, Jan Clark, Anne Lehman, Carol Trigg, Sandy Nolet, Jan Dukeshire, and Judy Allen. Comments on the trip ranged from "Fantabulous", "A Blast", "A fantastic dream", "It was a different world completely", and "It's one of the greatest college experiences for young people".

One of the most exciting events of the week was when a "College Day at the Beach" Queen was selected. On Monday, March 23, our own Carol Trigg was chosen from eight finalists nominated by the different men's colleges represented to be runner-up for the title. She was presented a bouquet of flowers by the judges of the Beauty Contest at College headquarters - the Elbow Beach Surf Club. The winners of the contest were then photographed for the Bermuda Weekly.

Other activities during the College Day at the Beach consisted of swimming events and intercollegiate volleyball games, after which the world-famous Talbot Brothers and the Yale Whiffenpoofs serenaded the entire group. The Elbow Beach Surf Club Pavilion was the scene of much of this activity, and the Bermuda Weekly calls it the "biggest beach party" of the year.

In between specially planned activities, the girls rode all over the island on motor bikes which they rented for the week. Minor casualties were reported, but the breathtaking scenery more than compensated for the bruises, it seems. For a touch of the familiar, the girls could hear the Colby Eight sing in the Belmont Manor.

The College Week Cruise was held on Wednesday. The "Chauncey M. Depew" took the students from Hamilton to St. George. Buses transported them to historic Fort St. Catherine where the Esso Steel band and native Gombey dancers performed with customary skill and gusto.

SENIOR SERVICE

Continuing a tradition which was established when the College first moved to Mayflower Hill, the annual Senior Class Service will be held on April 19 at 11:00 a.m. in the Chapel. The service will be conducted by Patricia Black, Katherine Kies, Skip Tulette and Gary Hagerman. The Chaplain will give the sermon.

Colby Has Changed Number of Points Needed for Honors

Dean of the Faculty, Robert E. L. Strider has announced that Colby has changed the point requirements for graduation with honors. This change was necessitated since the marking system has been changed from a numerical average to a letter average. The standard of academic excellence required for honors has changed slightly. Systems of other colleges were studied; Colby honor standards are comparable.

The revised point requirements are as follows: Summa Cum Laude - 155 points (equal to 35 A's, 5 B's, or the equivalent) and honors on comprehensive; Magna Cum Laude - 145 points (equal to 25 A's, 15 B's, or the equivalent) and honors on comprehensives; Cum Laude can be achieved by either of two ways: 1) 135 points (15 A's, 25 B's honors or not on comprehensives), 2) 130 points with honors on comprehensives.

Distinction in the major is an honor bestowed on a deserving student by the vote of his department. Requirements for this honor are: a 3.25 average or better in the student's major subject, and honors in comprehensives.

Course Needed By 2 Science Majors

Five faculty members and thirty-two students are enrolled in a computer course now offered at Colby. The course, "Programming and Use of Computers" is required of all juniors and seniors in the mathematics and physics departments. Upon completion of the course the students will go to the computational center at MIT to use the 704 computer. The course is being taught by Mr. Howard Edelson of the MIT Computational Center.

Colby Eight Entertains During Spring Vacation

Kneeling: E. Tomey, K. Arnett, D. Freedman, manager, J. Whitman, B. Brown. Standing: W. Shackford, D. Poland, T. Nickerson, R. Marier, P. Henderson, D. Riis.

The Colby Eight spent spring vacation in Bermuda for the third consecutive year and continued to live up to the name that it had already established. The Belmont Manor Hotel provided accommodations for the group in turn for singing performances at the hotel. From March 24 to 30 the Eight sang during the cocktail hours and at band intermissions each evening. Besides these contractual engagements, the group was asked to sing at the United State Navy Base, the Inverurie

Hotel, the Atlantic Beach Club and the Executive Staff Club. The latter engagement proved most successful with at least two encores every night the Eight sang there. They provided the chief entertainment at many of the beach parties at Horsehoe, Elbow and the Bermuda beaches.

The weather was quite good and during the day the members of the group separated and went their various ways. Some tried the golf courses, others Elbow Beach, others the Bermuda roads and still others were busy effecting transactions in Hamilton.

Many of the attachments made in Bermuda this year have already proved lasting and should stand the group in good stead during its proposed trips in the future.

All women students interested are urged to apply for the 1959 local Delta Delta Delta Scholarship award which this year offers $100 to the winning applicant. Those desiring applications should contact Cynthia Spaniak, 12 Louise Coburn Hall. Application must be in by April 20, and the recipient will be announced at the annual Recognition Assembly in May.

Baseball Team Returns From Southern Swing

Although posting an unimpressive 2-5-1 record on its annual southern tour, Coach John Winkin's state championship baseball squad got what it wanted most - good weather and a chance to play outdoors.

The Mule nine, after having trained exclusively indoors, journeyed to the warm southland where they played eight games in nine days, all against top-notch competition. Included were such powers as Delaware, Randolph-Macon, Dartmouth, Duke, Wake Forest, Elon and George Washington. All of these teams had the advantage of having practices four or five weeks outdoors, and that make a lot of difference. Also, this trip is more of a spring training for the team with each player getting a chance to show what he has and the pitchers being used interchangeably. Nevertheless, it became obvious that the Mules still are a long way from peak condition and they will have to show considerable improvement if they are to match last years' superlative won and lost record.

Coach John Winkin was quick to point out that, although he was far from disappointed with his team's performance, he did notice some definite weak spots. The defense, although adequate, did not play up to expectations. There were far too many errors, and a couple of simple run-down plays were messed up. The same goes for the hitting. "You can't argue with a team that scores four or more runs every game," stated Wink, "and yet, we did not hit as well in the clutch as I expected and we also left a lot of men on base." These two things are a necessity; for the Mules, although they will get the occasional long ball, are definitely not a power team. They hit only four home runs during the trip and among the regulars only captain Lee Oberparleiter (.310) and first sacker Ed Burke (.333) batted over .300.

The pitching was better than expected with John Roberts, Roy Berberian and Tony Ruvó all turning in some fine performances. Winkin was also pleased with sophomore lefthander, Dave Long. Charlie Leuthke and Oberparleiter also hurled and these two will be used primarily in relief.

Sophomores Dave Seddon and Cal Pingree and senior Dick Hunt came in for special praise from Winkin. Seddon, a catcher, improved with every game and threw out ten out of eleven opposing players attempting to steal. Pingree was described as "a real fine ballplayer and a good all-around man who can play both infield and outfield." Hunt, a reserve infielder and number one pinch hitter is the clutch player on the squad. Down south, whenever the situation was toughest, Hunt was called upon and he invariably came through. Another reserve who can expect to see plenty of duty is Don Burgess, an outfielder-catcher.

After tying Delaware 6-6, in a practice game, the Mules suffered their first defeat at the hands of Randolph-Macon. The southerners jumped off to a four run lead in the first inning and went on to notch a 6-4 victory.

John Winkin, varsity baseball coach, recently returned with his team from their Southern trip of eight games. Although the record of games won and lost was not overly impressive, the team gained valuable experience. Saturday, April 18, the team will open at home against Boston College, to test their newly gathered experience.

The Winkinmen next dubbed Dartmouth, 16-5, in another practice game with three of the markers coming on Pete Cavari's three run homer and then, in turn, were soundly whipped by a very good Wake-Forest team, 14 - 5. In the Duke game, although the Mule nine succumbed, 5 - 4, Ray Berberian pitched a sparkling seven innings.

Elon captured two games from the visiting New Englanders by scores of 12-10 and 9-6. In the first contest, the winners garnered three markers in the very first inning and were never headed. Offensively, Colby was led by Roden, Leuthke and Seddon. The second tilt saw Elon collecting only two hits but capitalizing on five Mule errors as they rallied from a 5-0 deficit with six runs in the sixth inning and three more in the eighth. Zash collected three hits for the losers followed closely by Roden and Pingree with two apiece.

After being rained out at Richmond, Colby showed some fine offensive power as the Mules routed George Washington, 11-5. Ace right-hander, John Roberts scattered ten hits and veteran third sacker Lloyd Cohen supplied the power by belting two four baggers.

The third and final question pointed to prospects for the future. To explain this, Professor Hughes compared the present party to a huge whale stranded on a beach. It may still have life in it, but it is dying, and although its floundering may be an unpleasant affair, its demise is certain.

Professor Hughes is a lecturer whom Colby could profitably ask to return. He speaks clearly and deliberately in precise, but understandable English. He is relaxed in his comprehensive grasp of his subject, and his effort cannot be unfavorably compared to the inimitable Dr. Walter Kaufmann.

Boston Artist Will Speak On April 19

Colby's Canterbury and Roger Williams Clubs are jointly sponsoring a meeting to be held on Sunday, April 19 at 3 p.m. in the Women's Union. The featured speaker is Allar Rohan Crite, a Boston artist. Crite will show and discuss some of his religious art and will read from some of his original meditations.

Crite has studied at the Children's Art Center in Boston and at the school of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. He has written and illustrated several books. Mr. Crite has been featured as a lecturer in schools, colleges, seminaries and conferences. His religious art has been widely exhibited and may be found in many art collections and churches.

The affidavit itself is sufficient reason to fight the Act.

Continuing Miss Dorman's argument, he accused the disclaimer provision of being contrary to the spirit of American judicial procedure, on the grounds that it assumes the student to be guilty of disloyalty until he proves himself otherwise. We are fighting Communism by the very principles which we detest in Communism, he said.

No one can tell exactly what the effect of the National Education Act will be, he continued — how the terms of the affidavit may be interpreted in the future, or which organizations may be added to the Attorney General's list.

Arguing the case that the student who enters Colby has the right to take advantage of the National Education Act if he desires, Wallace pointed out that Colby is a private, selective institution, and that the entering student must be prepared to comply with its rules. Besides, the person under twenty-one years of age is not permitted to sign binding legal documents, he said.

Comparing Colby to a small boy who won't co-operate with either of two groups of playmates, he accused the College of lack of conviction and of two-facedness, and urged it to reject its present policy of professing high ideals while selling them down the line "for 3300 pieces of silver."

The second negative speaker, Mr. Wiswall, began his argument by reading the preamble to the National Defense Education Act (Sec 101), which acknowledges the need of the nation for the highest skills of its young people, and states the purpose of the Act to find the best students and correct existing imbalances in financial aid. The preamble emphasizes that control of education must remain in the hands of the states and local authorities.

This preamble, said Wiswall, clearly indicates that it is Congress' intention not to hamper, but to enhance education, not to trap young people, but to aid them. The disclaimer affidavit amounts to the same thing as a pledge of allegiance to the flag, he said.

Colby's refusal to accept the Act, besides not allowing students over twenty-one to sign the affidavit for financial aid themselves, would go even further by not allowing the parents of a student under twenty-one to sign for him when they feel that the aid would be desirable.

Wiswall made another point: the Act is the first in a series of possible future federal aids to education. To refuse this one would be to give Congress 'a slap in the face', and to discourage future legislation along these lines. If Congress is suspicious of the American academic community — and we don't deny this — then it is a challenge to us to prove that we are loyal, he said.

KING HENRY VI, PART III, ACT V, SC. III

Wiswall lauded the Colby faculty for taking "the realistic stand", that is, for having warned the students by its disapproval, but allowing them freedom of choice, while still working for the removal of the clause.

The affirmative has cried "Wolf!", he said. We of the negative object that the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations has not been attached to the disclaimer affidavit; however, the very vagueness of the affidavit's wording will protect the student. In reading the punishment clause, he stressed the fact that the student must be proved to have "knowingly and willfully" supported overthrow of the government.

In the rebuttal, both sides agreed that the National Education Act is basically good, but that the affidavit is undesirable. The argument thus resolved itself to the question: Can Colby work more effectively for the repeal of the affidavit by accepting the National Education Act (at least temporarily) or by rejecting it? According to Mr. Wallace, the question hinges on four issues: a) the issue of Colby's character and integrity, b) the rights of the student, c) the degree of danger inherent in the affidavit, and d) the best method of working for repeal of the affidavit clause.

The negative contended that the best policy for Colby would be to work with other colleges for repeal of the disclaimer affidavit rather than to fight the whole law. They hold that the act itself is basically good, and that if and when the disclaimer is removed, it will be "a milestone" in government aid to education. Meanwhile, Colby should retain the Act in order that students who need federal aid may apply for it.

The affirmative insisted that the negative had minimized the dangers of the Act, and that it is the College which must take the stand, not the transitory students. They asserted that future Congressional bills for aid to education would be less and not more liberal as a result of Colby and other colleges' acquiescence to the 1958 Act. They also stated that Colby's influence in the fight would be twice as effective if it would back up its words with a definite rejection.

It is interesting to note that no one in this debate took the stand that the disclaimer affidavit was at all desirable, or defended the right of the federal government to make such a stipulation. This narrowing of the issue caused a number of trivialities to gain an inappropriate magnitude. The debate attracted more discussion on this issue.

The judges were Albert L. Bernier, Mayor of Waterville; Lester T. Jolovitz, Attorney at Law; and Robert A. Marden, Kennebec County Attorney.

Take a word—ambition, for example. With it, you can make fake desire to succeed (shambition), acting aspirations (hambition), the desire to study (crambition) or the urge to win at bridge (slambition). That's Thinklish—and it's that easy! We're paying $25 for the Thinklish words judged best—your check is itching to go! Send your words to Lucky Strike, Box 67A, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Enclose your name, address, university and class.
