STU-G ELECTS

Student's Voice Party

Student's Voice Party — Gretchen Miller, Bob Crespi, Ken Robbins, Kim Kimball.

We of the Student Voice Party are Ken Robbins, Bob Crespi, Gretchen Miller, and Kim Kimball. We are running for the offices of president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the Student Government, respectively. Our basis is firm: to provide intelligent, creative, and efficient leadership for the students of Colby. With such leadership the students will be assured a government characterized by freshness and sincerity. We, the candidates of the Student Voice Ticket, believe that since the Student Government is the only official meeting ground of all the students, the faculty, and the administration — the students must be organized by a government characterized by all the qualities stated above. The Student Voice Party is campaigning to secure this government for the next administration.

The name of our party is significant. Many promises will be made, countless specifics will be debated, but we must understand that the Student Government is, in reality, the voice of the students. A student government which does not echo the voice of the student body will ignore the very essence of student government. With our label, "The Student Voice Party," we intend to remind the students unceasingly that as the student voice we will never tolerate infringement upon the interests of Colby students. With our guidance the student government can never be used as the tool of the administration. Policy decisions of the administration will be voiced by members of the administration, never through the officers of Student Government.

Autonomy Party

Camilo Marquez — President
Peter Archer — Vice-President
Margaret Briggs — Secretary
Herman (Binky) Smith — Treasurer.

The name of our party is the Autonomy Party. This name has been chosen because the candidates of the ticket feel that the students of Colby College are capable of governing themselves through a system of efficient representation. Consequently, the basis of our platform is the reform of the existing method of representation.

It became obvious during the arguments over the discrimination proposal (Nunez) that the present method of representation is unsatisfactory. We feel that in our proposal for a new method we are continuing the progress which was made in other areas.

The Autonomy Party proposes that each fraternity be represented by one vote in the Student Council, that four representatives be elected from the independent men's dorms, and that the women elect either two representatives regardless of sorority affiliation or one sorority and one

Wiswall Reviews Stu-G Action In 1961-62 Term

The past year has, we feel, been a productive one for Colby Student Government. When the Co-Active party campaigned for election last March, we made certain campaign promises; every one has since been fulfilled.

1. Student Government meetings have been thrown fully open to the public, and advertised in advance.

2. A regular weekly column has appeared in the ECHO entitled "Student Government Reports", containing announcements and minutes of each meeting.

3. A program of Co-Ed dining was devised and submitted to the college administration. It is expected that Co-Ed dining on a regular schedule will commence next fall.

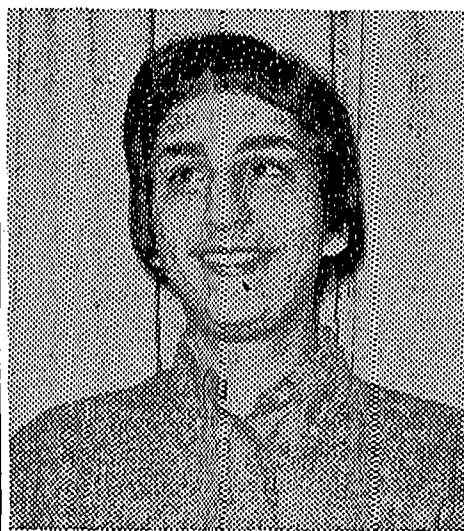

4. Through the efforts of the Co-Ed Relations Committee (now a permanent body) of Stu-G, a plan to utilize the top floor of Roberts Union as a Co-Ed lounge was drawn and submitted to the department of Buildings and Grounds. Work upon this project has already started.

5. Hearings were held upon possible changes in the representation on the Student Council, and alternative plans were submitted to the Council in accordance with the Stu-G constitution.

6. Student Government has attempted to interest both Faculty and Student Body in the possible

Independent Candidate For Secretary

Marshd Palmer

I feel that it is very important for each member of the student body to be wise in voting for Stu-G officers. The students should take into consideration whether the people for whom they are voting know the intricacies of the Student Government as a functional organization. The student body should question all candidates as to whether they have ever attended any Student Government meetings; whether they have ever taken any interest in Stu-G activities or participated in any of these activities; and whether they really feel that they know how the Student Council performs its numerous duties. I only ask that the student body be wise and vote for qualified individuals and not for a group of "blind" people.

Revisionist Party

Revisionist Party — Susan Ferries, Skip Stinson, Jerry Speers, and Bill Witherell.

The Revisionist Party bases its platform strongly upon the plank calling for a better system of representation in the Student Government. It is the belief of this Party that once the Student Government has become more representative of the student body and that once more direct contact is established between the students and their representatives, the Student Government will be more responsive to the needs and desires of the students.

Running for office in the Student Government on the Revisionist ticket are: for President, Jerry Speers; for Vice-President, Bill Witherell; for Secretary, Sue Ferries; and for Treasurer, Skip Stinson.

REPRESENTATION

The present system of representation in the Student Government has resulted in both misrepresentation and inequality. With delegates representing organizations and not the students directly, they have often been unaware of true student sentiment; seldom if ever has a representative asked the members of the organization he represents what their views of a particular issue are. Secondly, it is both illogical and undemocratic for each organization to have an equal number of representatives on the Council. There is no reason why two groups with a vast difference in membership should enjoy the same representation in Student Government.

To remedy this situation, the Revisionist Party proposes that the representatives be more directly responsible to the students; members of Student Government would no longer be elected by and represent Continued on Page Five

Pink Elephant Party Raft

We of the Pink Elephant Party are committed to the notion that Common Sense will solve all problems — and having never regularly attended Student Government meetings, we feel that we can approach our responsibilities with clear, objective, unbiased minds and make decisions which will be in the best interest of the college at large even though they may be occasionally at the expense of particular interests.

1. Maximal Use of All College Facilities

Although the expansion of college facilities is impracticable for financial reasons in many areas, there is no reason why we can't use the facilities we already have.

1. There should be furniture in all independent dormitory lounges.

2. We guarantee that Johnson Day will be observed. Among other projects, we recommend that Johnson pond should be drained and cleaned, and a sandy beach installed at one end.

3. Drains must be installed where there are big puddles.

4. While there is ice, the skating rink should be open evenings.

5. A frisbie playing field should be laid out.

6. A student-faculty committee (of Dean's List students and the executive student officers of the Colby Library Associates) should determine what books are to be stocked by the bookstore.

7. The spa should be moved into the receiving area of the Library basement to make possible the expansion of the bookstore.

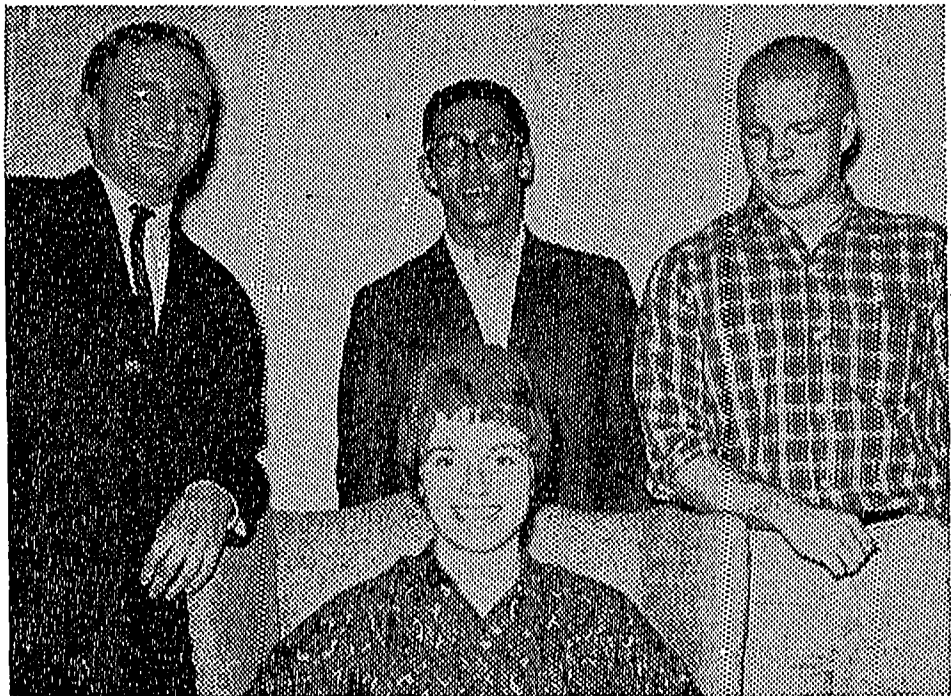

8. The Library should remain open during Class A functions.

9. The pizza man should be invited back.

10. Breakfast should be served from 7 until 10. This could be Continued on Page Four

Stu-G Elections

It may be true that there is no great dearth of candidates for Stu-G office this year. Indeed, there are more candidates running for office than have been seen in the past three years in almost any campus-wide election. But it is also true that, generally speaking, it is not a very inspiring group of candidates that are running. Almost all are inexperienced in the Colby Stu-G, and almost all have been totally inactive until this election began to roll around.

Prior inactivity does not automatically censure candidates for office. Indeed, it is not impossible to read into the behavior of these candidates a trend toward increased awareness of and interest in Stu-G on the part of an ever-widening base of Colby students. Still, one hesitates to predict. Perhaps the most that we can do is wonder what the issues are, and try to point out tendencies of which the electorate should be aware.

It is the issue of representation on which most of the controversy seems to turn. Certainly, there is agreement that the revisions proposed by the Constitutional Revision Committee do not amount to very much. Thinking has tended to point to the logical units of representation, the fraternity houses, independent dormitories, and women's dorms, as the bases about which changes will occur. Quarrelling takes place over the details of how such changes will be worked out. At last, however, it has been recognized that there is no real validity to the present representational system, and that members of fraternal organizations may have conflicts of interest with non-members. There is an opportunity for progress to be made here.

On other issues, the parties seem to be basically in agreement. Not all would wholeheartedly endorse the Pink Elephant's proposal that faculty members who spend more than two consecutive hours in the Spa be sent before Men's Judiciary — but it is hardly likely that an issue is at stake in this proposal. A basic difference between party philosophies, however, was brought out at last Monday's meeting of the candidates with Stu-G, when controversy over the role of the president emerged. Should he be dynamic, or should he coordinate the dynamism of others? Should he create or implement policy?

It seems to the Echo that what is actually being questioned here is the role played by President Wiswall, the incumbent head of Stu-G. Under Mr. Wiswall, Stu-G activity went on at a pace and with a vigor hardly likely to be matched by any of the present aspirants for the office. What needs to be watched for, however, is the danger that a candidate will slack off TOO greatly, negating the advances made this past year. Such slackening, if it occurs, will probably result not from an unwillingness to do the job required, but rather from a misconception of the duties of President that regards the post as simply administrative and no more. The ECHO would rather regard the position, as it feels Mr. Wiswall rightfully and effectively has regarded it, as a dynamic blending of implements and creation.

By voting for those candidates whom it feels will be most concerned with attempting to continue the tradition of dynamism established by Mr. Wiswall, the ECHO feels that the student body will be putting itself where it can be at least reasonably certain of obtaining good service from its officers AND it will be giving Stu-G a vote of confidence that it greatly deserves.

Move The Spa?

RUMOR VOLAT that the next building to be erected on the campus will house a bookstore, a post office, an auditorium, and a new Spa. There is no question but that Colby badly, badly needs a bookstore — preferably one that, unlike the present pseudo, stocks real books. A post office would hurt nothing, and prove a convenience to package-mailers. And an auditorium, IF large enough to seat the entire student body, faculty, and administration, taking into account any plans for expansion of the size of the student body, would be a welcome addition to the present auditoriums. But — move the Spa?

Why? Who WANTS the Spa moved?

With the removal of the bookstore, the space in the present Spa will be greatly increased. When offices are found for the still temporarily-housed history and government department, further space for the Spa will be found across the hall.

So it cannot be a question of lack of room. It is, then, that the perpetrators of the plan to move the Spa wish to keep consistent the division between the two sides of campus by eliminating the one existing informal meeting-ground for the sexes that is situated right smack in the center of campus? Well — at least a certain consistency is demonstrated, we can admit; but doesn't it seem foolish to move the Spa out of the way of at least half of its present clientele?

Where it is now located, the Spa serves as the one common stop for both men and women to and from class. Its advantage to those who study in the Library is also worth noting: were it to be relocated, it would make of a study-break a dressing-and-undressing affair requiring a hike hither and yon in the dead of winter that could only result in a longer period of time spent at the new Mecca and less time spent at work.

adoption of an Academic Honor System. Such a System is now concretely proposed, and the Student Body will vote upon it next Monday.

7. Better conditions for the administration. An integral part of the proposed Honor System involves improvement in the location of examinations.

8. Stronger participation from branch organizations has been encouraged. In this vein, a liberal policy of allowing a maximum of student expression in meetings was adopted, and a complete new judicial branch of Student Government was advocated and voted upon.

9. Policies of the previous Student Government, such as the Guest Artist Program, have been continued.

10. New policies and programs have been instituted.

a) Colby Stu-G reaffiliated with USNSA, sent delegates to the national meetings of NSA in Madison, Wisconsin last summer, and was instrumental in the formation of a Maine area of NSA's New England Region.

b) A STUDENT GOVERNMENT HANDBOOK was published, including the contents of the old COLBY GRAY BOOK, and adding over half as much new information.

c) Colby Student Government undertook consideration of the campus organization discrimination policy situation, leading to a vote upon the matter by the College Board of Trustees.

d) Student Government sought and obtained various improvements in the physical plant of the College, including relief lighting for the paths, water drainage, and a complete redecoration of the Student Council Chamber in Roberts Union.

e) Delegations of Colby Students were sent to the CCUN Nehru conference in New York and the NSA Regional conference in Boston last fall. Delegates are to be sent to a CCUN Mock General Assembly during vacation and to the "Operation Magnet" conference at Maine next month.

f) Colby Stu-G hosted a state-wide meeting of College Deans and Student Body Presidents, providing an extremely productive exchange of information and ideas.

g) In addition, the current administration of Stu-G has endeavored to operate quickly, efficiently, and economically, and as a consequence has handled a greater volume of business than ever before, while leaving the Treasury balance well ahead of a year ago.

None of what has been accomplished could have been done without the aid of an enlightened and co-operative Student Council. A great many important proposals, such as that concerning the upcoming appearance of a Communist speaker, have originated from the Council Floor, and have contributed immeasurably to the execution of Student Government policy.

Attention must be called to the newly elective offices of Social Chairman and NSA coordinator. Those are administrative offices in the Executive branch of Student Government and are vitally important to student activities both on and off campus. It is hoped that the addition of these offices, together with the creation of new committees of Student Government, will greatly increase the Stu-G efficiency.

The current administration of Stu-G sincerely hopes that the Student Council will assist the incoming Student Government Executives in the execution of their policies and the formulation of new ones. With this assurance we look forward to the coming elections with no small measure of relief.

Referendum On A Proposed Honor System

1. Examinations will be held, to the greatest degree possible, in small individual rooms (one class or course to a room).

2. Instructors may proctor or not, AS THEY, THEMSELVES SEE FIT.

3. Students leaving the room during the examination will not necessarily be kept under supervision by an instructor. This is left to the discretion of the individual instructor.

4. Students will sign into their blue books, at the conclusion of the examination, the following affirmation: "I have neither given nor received aid in the completion of this examination; (signed) (student's name)."

5. NO STUDENT WILL BE REQUIRED TO REPORT ANOTHER STUDENT FOR CHEATING! The students taking the examination will, however, be placed on their honor as indicated by the statement in 4.

6. If a student is suspected of cheating by an instructor, he will, after proper confrontation, be entitled to a hearing before the Supreme Student Judiciary, which will in turn make a recommendation to the appropriate Dean if discipline is indicated.

7. No disciplinary action will be taken by college authorities until the accused has had a full hearing before the S.S.J.

MOVE SPA

And pity the poor professors. Where, oh where, could a halfway decent substitute be found in which they could justify their coffees by rationalizing, "Well, after all, I'm in the Library!"

There seem to be no good reasons FOR moving the Spa out of its present central location. Contrarily, indeed, it seems that every argument leads to the conclusion that it ought to remain right where it is.

And most important, people WANT it where it is.

Just ask John.

On Sunday, March 25, the SCA will sponsor a "Hootenanny," from 3 to 5 in the Smith Lounge of Runnals Union. Led by Mr. Dunbar, Ted Furlong, Ted Okie, and Corny Roberts, 25 cents admission will be collected for financial assistance for students in sit-ins and freedom rides.

independent woman from each of the dormitories. This matter may be resolved through the existing machinery of the Woman's Student League. The present voting members of the council may seat non-voting representatives. The foregoing proposal would be subject to student referendum.

The Autonomy Party, if elected, plans to work closely with the Woman's Student League in several capacities. One issue which we feel is important is the procedure by which the Chief Justice of the Women's Judiciary Board is elected.

2. We submit that she should be elected from the Women's Judiciary Board by the Women's Judiciary Board — similar to the procedure by which the Chief Justice of Men's Judiciary is elected. We feel that this procedure is more democratic and consistent with the ideals of our party. We support the plans for the Supreme Student Judiciary in the present proposal for constitutional revision.

Another area important to us all is the social one. If elected, we will appoint a committee to cooperate with the Women's Student League to investigate the present social regulations. The Autonomy Party feels that reform is needed in this sphere.

3. We believe that the system of social forms is unsatisfactory. It seems to us that they are only valid in the case of non-fraternity functions where there may be conflicts in time and place of activities held in the Unions.

4. The present rules say that "all organizations" may hold social functions. We feel that the individuals should have this right also, thus allowing for the opportunity of spontaneous social functions.

5. We are of the opinion that more opportunities should be allowed for open houses in the dormitories.

6. And finally, we feel that the existing schedule of hours is in dire need of reform.

The Autonomy Party, if elected, shall increase the present activities of the Student Government.

7. We will continue to explore ideas for the improvement of the library.

8. We will plan for more foreign and exchange students.

9. We support the idea that the Colby student body will be represented at U.S.N.S.A. conventions.

10. We will sponsor more lectures and concerts.

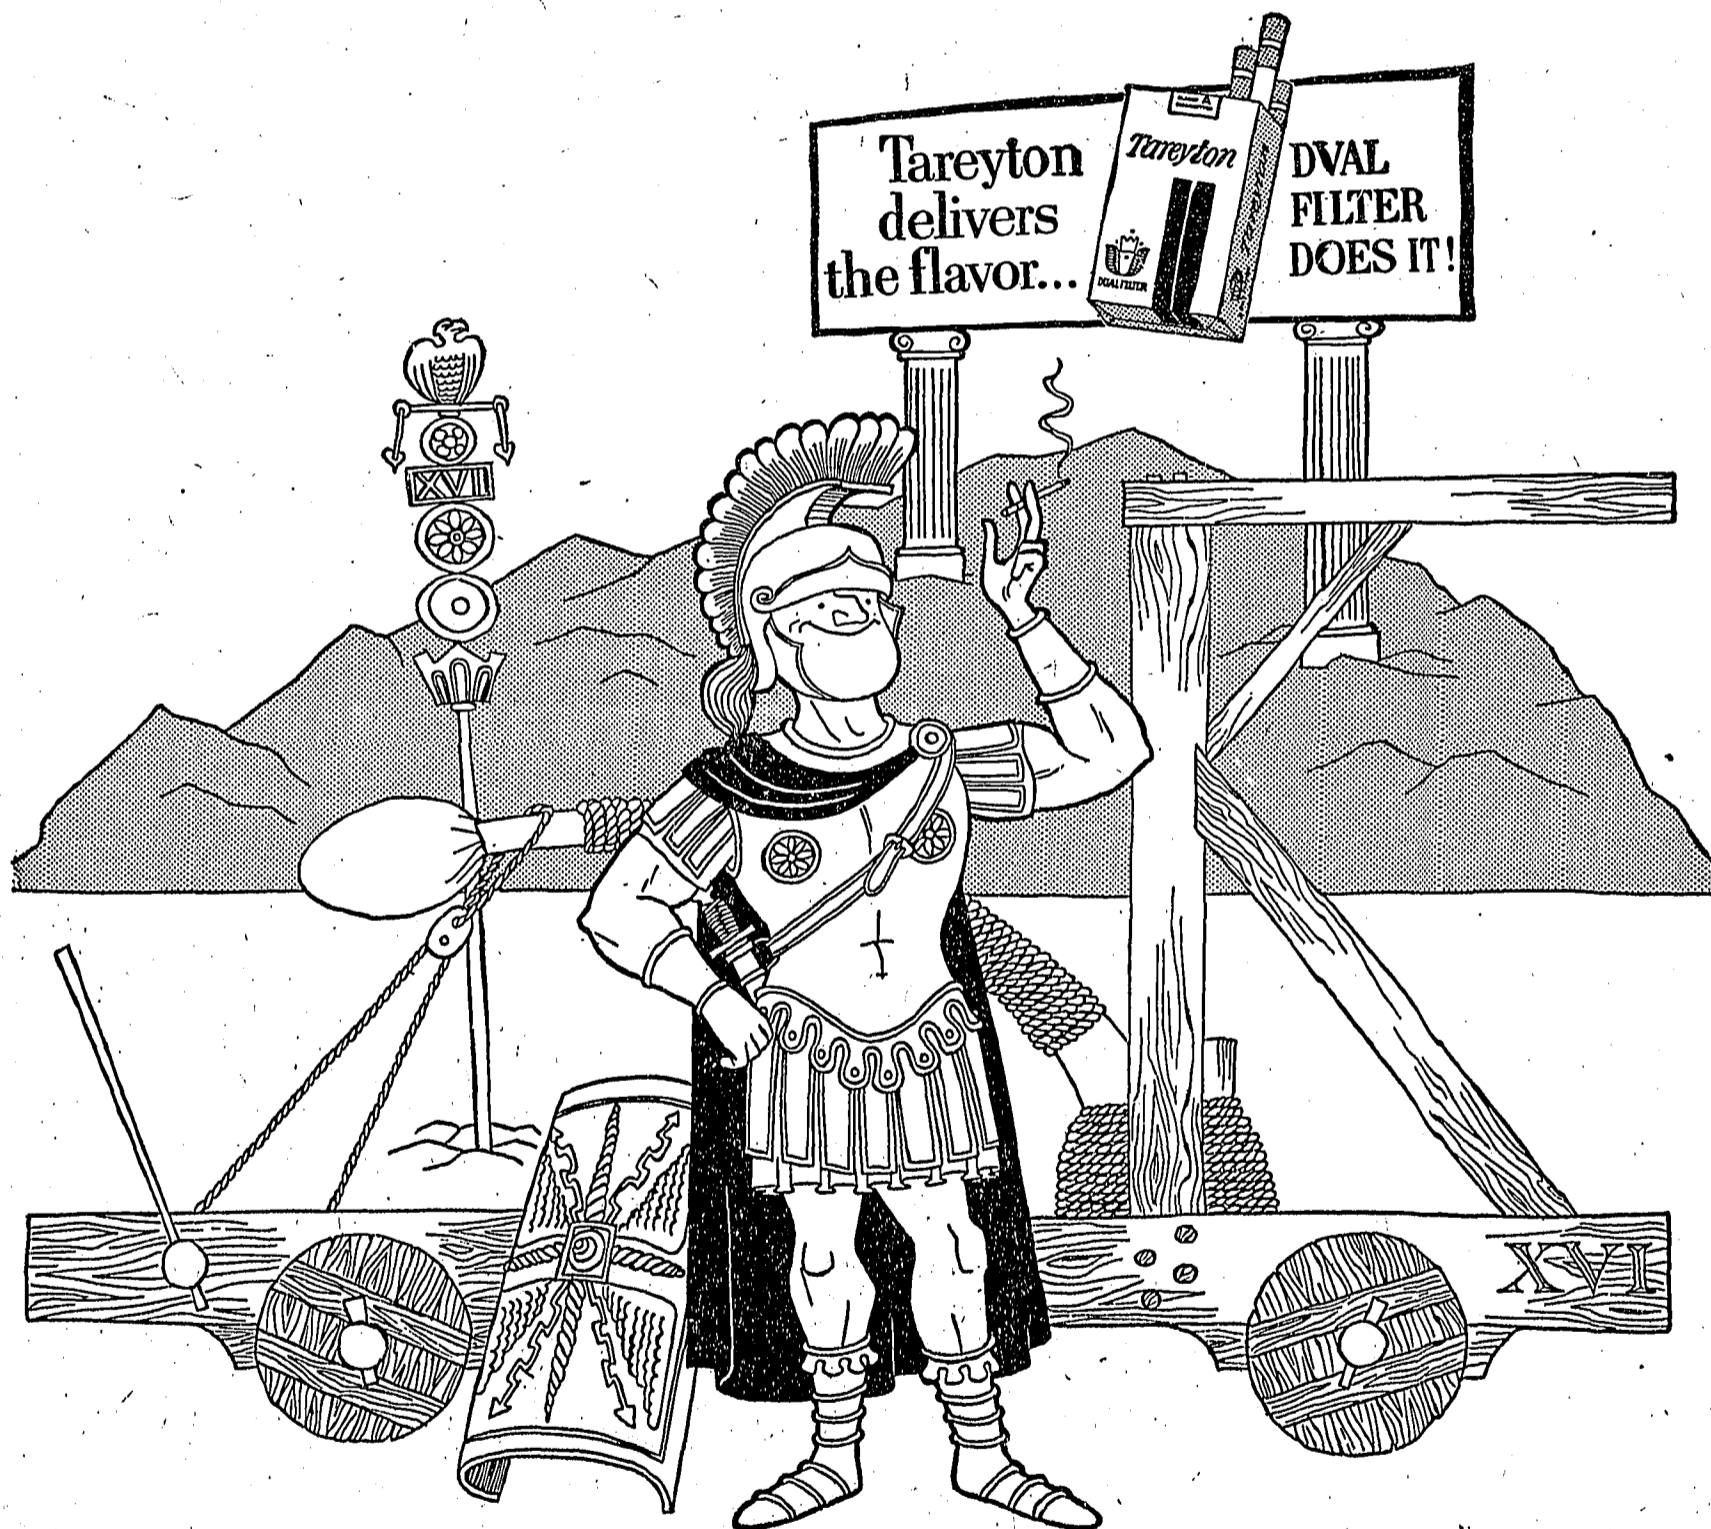

11. There will be more and better campus movies.

12. There will be more all-college social functions.

13. We will carry out the plans for co-ed dining.

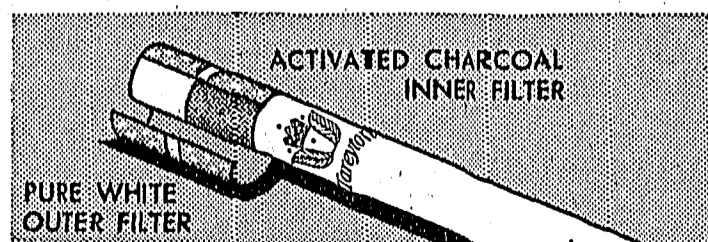

14. We will investigate some means by which the student body

11. We endorse ethical vandalism.
12. The Babson Memorial should be relocated in front of the Eustis Building where it rightfully belongs.

13. The Administration should submit to Student Government a monthly report of what it has just accomplished.

14. A faculty commission should be established to investigate ways of investigating students.

15. All waste must be eliminated; red tape is waste.

16. Student Government is itself a college facility, and must be better and more efficient than ever in this coming sesquicentennial year.

17. The faculty and Administration should extend their use of Student Government as a sounding board of undergraduate opinions.

18. We endorse the Colby Family Plan whereby each member of the Administration will spend one week of the college year residing in an undergraduate dormitory.

19. Student Government must always be seeking new ideas and criticisms. A faculty questionnaire should be circulated immediately.

II. Redistribution of Power

Undergraduate power is now very closely held — so closely that creativity is often stifled because commensurate recognition is available only for a few of those who might otherwise make significant positive contributions. To the Pink Elephant Party, the redistribution of power means the broadening of the base of undergraduate participation in all organizations and the determination of leadership by competition sufficiently acute as to ensure the continuing efficiency of campus leaders. (Confused?—See BLACK'S DICTIONARY)

1. We endorse campus-wide elections among the junior class for Blue Key and Cap and Gown membership.

2. We endorse student representation at faculty meetings.

3. We endorse student representation on the Board of Trustees.

most vital, but particular planks of the platform must be enumerated.

Representation appears to be the big issue during this campaign. Some advocate proportional representation, others desire organizational representation in the Student Government. These plans are mutually exclusive. When organizations such as the IFA, ECHO, etc., are represented on the council all proportions among men and women voting and fraternity, sorority, and independents are sacrificed. The Student Voice Ticket, however, believes that both forms are necessary. It is our contention that the representation under the present student government administration should be maintained until the end of their incumbency. The initial act of the new student officers, then, will be to establish a review board to analyze all the proposed representation structures. By recommendation of the Student Government the entire student body would vote on the new propositions. Hasty campaign planks on representation must be avoided. Proportional and organizational representation must be preserved. All issues such as Pan-Hel vs. representatives from each of the women's dormitories might be an improvement. To decide the more basic (dorm life or sorority life) is the issue in the case. A scrutinizing review board will act rationally without the pressures of impending elections. Representation is, indeed, a large issue. But our platform must involve other issues as well.

If elected, the Student Voice Party will support the Student's League in all attempts to liberalize the present policy on 12 o'clocks. Perhaps it's about time that the integrity of Colby women decides the number of their twelve o'clocks. Sophomore, Junior, and Senior women should have more responsibility in this area.

A very important issue, we believe, is granting access of the two library cubicles 24 hours every day to Colby students. This includes Sunday morning.

Since a reading period during first semester is now impossible, with the January Program in effect, we believe that the number of days without classes at the end of first semester be extended by one day. For instance, rather than a Saturday and Sunday, we propose that the period between classes and final exams should be at least Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Final exams should not come on the heels of classes.

A recommendation will be sent to the Women's League to present a report to the Student Government on the possibilities of more frequent coed dining.

Each year Student Government handles thousands of dollars of student money. Each student is entitled to know exactly how his money is being spent. Under our administration we will publish the source and expenditures of all Student Government funds at least once a semester on a date decided by the council. No such procedure is now instituted.

The selection of men for Men's Judiciary must be analyzed. The present selection of all Justices during the spring of their freshman year and their incumbency for the next three years must be investigated. A premature choice is binding for their years. Proposals such as likening the procedure for selection of men to serve on the Men's Judiciary will be examined.

Possibilities for alternate dates for Johnson Day will be looked into at the beginning of each year in case of inclement weather.

We believe that Sophomores should be given more freedom in choosing their January Program topics. Many sophomores were forced to participate in topics in which they had no interest. Freshman year is sufficient training for more individual study. With approval of the council we will propose this recommendation to the faculty and administration.

The entire social structure must be analyzed. We believe that more all-college functions are necessary. More informal dances in the Eustis Parking Lot are examples of activities that could revitalize Colby socially. The social calendar, especially the selection of dates for big weekends must be given more careful planning. A repetition of this year's "Winter Weekend" will not be tolerated. Also, the procedure of accomplishing social forms must be reviewed.

Our leadership will be intelligent, creative, and efficient in accomplishing each of the above. No platform can list all of the issues. With our firm basis, however, we will undertake all issues confidently.

Faculty Show Will Highlight Annual Campus Chest

The co-chairmen of this year's Campus Chest, Ruth Pringle and Arthur Pickman, have announced their plans for the forthcoming event. April 18 will inaugurate the drive with a carnival to be held in Runnel's Union. Highlighting the Campus Chest, and undoubtedly the present academic year, will be a student body immediately following Greek Sing on Friday evening, May 4. Also planned by the Committee are a Bridge Tournament and a Lucky Buck contest. Further information will be available at a later date.

How would you forecast your next few years?

Today, the young man planning his life realizes as never before that in today's world his own future is tied inevitably to America's future.
How can he serve both?

Many college graduates, both men and women, are finding a rewarding answer on the Aerospace Team — as officers in the U.S. Air Force.
Here is a career that is compelling in its challenge and opportunity. And it is a way of life that holds the unsurpassed satisfactions that come with service to country.

As a college student, how can you become an Air Force Officer?

If you have not completed Air Force ROTC, Officer Training School provides an opportunity to qualify for a variety of vitally needed jobs in the Aerospace Age. A graduate of this three-month course earns a commission as a second lieutenant. Also open to college men is the Navigator Training program.

obtain graduate degrees at Air Force expense — student organizations. This is not to say that these organizations are to be ignored — indeed, they will be welcome to send, and in fact,

urged to send non-voting members.
It is to say, rather, that a more direct responsibility to the students can be placed upon the voting members of the Council. Secondly, the numbers of representatives of the various natural divisions of the students must be in proportion in the Council to their numbers on campus. The ratio of men to women and of fraternity men to independent men in the Council must be the same as the ratio on the campus.

To gain better representation, then, the Revisionist Party proposes the following. Since the ratio of men to women on campus is approximately seven to five, the men would be granted seven representatives, and the women five. Since the ratio of fraternity men to independent men is slightly less than five to two, of the seven men's delegates, the IFC would send five, and the independent men two. Because of the different nature of the sorority system, the five women representatives would not be divided on a sorority-independent basis. Rather, each of the four dorms would send one representative, and the Women's Student League would fill the fifth position.

In this way we propose that the Student Government will become more representative and proportionally reflect the composition of the student body.

GENERAL RESPONSIVENESS

It is hoped that with the more direct contact between the student and his representative, the Student Government will hear more of the student's complaints and desires and will thus be able to act quickly and effectively upon them. General improvements — such as the replacing of the lamps on the walk to the girl's dorms, the replacing of furniture in the independent men's lounges, and the enabling of the squad fraternities to improve their lounges without too strict supervision from Buildings and Grounds—should be continually pushed for by the Council wherever the needs may arise. We feel too that the Student Government should support more positively some of the worthwhile organizations on campus.

In summation, we must say that the basis of our platform is responsible self-government. We believe that where the students are granted the right to govern themselves, they should be able to take advantage of that privilege to the fullest and fairest degree. We desire a student govin which those interests will be con-

Committee, we endorse student representation on the Financial Aid, Athletic, Educational Policy, Book of the Year, and Freshman Week Committees.

5. Both undergraduate publications, the ECHO and especially the ORACLE are in dire straits. Both must be reorganized so as to ensure their responsibility to campus and college, not to the ideologies and interests of limited circles.

Therefore,

a. Since the editorships of both the ECHO and especially the ORACLE are prestige positions, and since our football players get no salaries, all editorial salaries for ECHO and ORACLE must be eliminated immediately.

b. To ensure a greater selectivity of editors, editors should be selected either by campus-wide election or by Student Government. In this way all qualified applicants would more likely receive equal consideration.

c. Because of the academic strain involved in running the ECHO, there should be a new ECHO editor each semester. This would also pass the honour around to more people and thus broaden the tip of the undergraduate power pyramid.

d. The ECHO shall assign all rooms for next year.

6. IFC must be investigated so as to determine the respects in which its power is contrary to the best interests of the college.

7. Student advisors should be selected from the students with the highest academic averages. Like it or not, this is an academic institution, even if some of the "intellectuals" are nurd.

8. Freshmen should not be appointed to the judicial boards for three year terms.

9. The referendum procedure should be simplified so as to encourage more referendums. Student Government belongs to the students.

III. Positive Social Change

We don't want to sound philosophical, but Common Sense easily points to what's right and what's wrong. Naturally, the Pink Elephant Party is for what's right.

OUR FRATERNITY POSITION

1. We of the Pink Elephant Party believe that fraternity life at its best can be positive and rewarding—we are not opposed to the ideals of fraternity life in any way. Two of our candidates are fraternity men.

However, we are of the considered opinion that many Colby fraternities do, in many significant respects, fall short of the fraternity ideals—even of their own national fraternities.

We believe that because Student Government is committed to making a better Colby it must commit itself to the strengthening of the fraternity system by aggressively assisting IFC in making those decisions which will make fraternities the kind of organizations which are envied, respected, and sought after by all kinds of normal students. Therefore, a. Discriminatory and segregatory clauses and agreements must be eliminated in all campus organizations at once.

b. Properly understood, the Bixler Bowl should be highly coveted. No one properly understands it. The fraternity getting the fewest Bixler Bowl points should have to do something.

c. Fraternities should begin looking forward to the day when they will want to be considering 100% rushing.

d. All fraternity hazing must be approved by Student Government.

Kelley Elected 'Coach of the Year'

Ryan & Stephenson All-Americans

By Rod Gould

On June 11, when some 250 seniors walk down the steps of Miller library to receive diplomas, it is more than likely that Jack Kelley will remember the time seven years ago when he first arrived at Colby. If you had told him at that time the Colby would be a hockey power, and that in the '61-62 season he would be named Coach of the Year by the National Collegiate Hockey Coaches Association, he probably would have laughed the idea off. Yet that is exactly what happened, and at the 1962 graduation Kelley will have the unpleasant duty of watching two All-Americans pass into the Alumni ranks.

The presence of Ron Ryan and Frank Stephenson will bring to memory this year's outstanding Mule squad, for this duet played an integral role in proving that Colby is an established hockey power. Colby had never had an All-American hockey player; now it has two, but they are soon departing. So if Kelley sheds a tear or two come June, it will be excusable. Ryan and Stephenson will not be easily replaced.

Stephenson — Colby's greatest goalie and the recent All-Star goalie on the first E.C.A.C. Tournay team — has played his last hockey game. Next year at this time the All-American will be basking in the sun on Europe's beaches, furthering his education with a taste of European culture and recreation.

On campus Frank's chief activity, in addition to hockey, is dramatics. He is president of Powder and Wig, and in this area Dr. Suss will have almost as much trouble replacing him as Coach Kelley will in finding a comparable goalie.

Stephenson's goaltending speaks for itself. He notched six shut-outs, seven one-goal games, and allowed only 1.9 goals per game against American competition.

It was tough for Frank to pick a favorite game over the last three years, but he finally decided on the first BC game this season (a 2-1 overtime victory which, more than any other win, helped to establish Colby as a hockey power.) His reason for selecting this game as his favorite — simple. "I just liked it."

Colby's other All-American, Ron Ryan, hopes to further his education next year at either Harvard or Columbia. To say that Coach Kelley will miss Ryan's 104 points is indeed an understatement. The Canadian fell four short of tying Phil Latreille's NCAA record of 108 points in a single season. His greatest moment as a Colby puckster came in notching the winning goal in the 2-1 win over BC this year.

Ron plays summer league hockey in Canada, and hopes to continue next year as an amateur. He still maintains that "it's ridiculous for me to play in the pros," but his opinion isn't very widely supported. This year alone, he caged seven hat tricks. Not too bad for a guy who "doesn't have a shot."

To those that maintain that all Canadian-born hockey players at American colleges are little more than literate, Colby need do nothing but point to Ryan's record. In his junior year he made Dean's list twice, and this last semester (taking six courses) he missed the honor by one point.

Ron also is on the golf team, and is Vice-President of Student Government.

He shares Stephenson's feelings that next year's team has "the nucleus of three good lines" and should enjoy another fine season.

While we can only speculate on the outcome of the 1962-63 season, it is certain that when the first "Mule Train!" blasts from the loudspeaker, the memory of Ryan flashing by in a spray of ice, and Stephenson poised in front of the cage, will be present.

by's participation in the organization. The European Study Tour is one example of the many advantages of association. We are aware, however, that a great danger exists in organizations of this type in that its members may tend to be more concerned with its problems than with the problems on their own campuses. This must not be the case at Colby. We must make sure that the Student Government supports its own campus organizations before it turns to the support of the NSA.

MEAL TICKETS

Much money is needlessly spent each year by students who have paid for meals in the dining hall for the whole semester, but who nevertheless eat some of their meals off campus. They are actually, of course, paying for two meals. The Revisionist Party would like to see this situation alleviated. We propose a system whereby the students would buy books of meal tickets and remove one ticket at the door of the dining hall for each meal they would have. In this way, the students would pay only for the meals they would actually eat.

CO-ED DINING

The Revisionist Party feels that the social atmosphere of the College could be greatly improved by a system of co-ed dining. We have taken the interest to look into the matter rather thoroughly and have discovered a plan by which our objectives could be accomplished. The Hangout Committee could be moved to the upstairs of Robert's Union, which would be made into an attractive co-ed lounge. The present Hangout area could then be made over into a dining hall suitable for both men and women. The Party has conferred with the Vice-President of the College and has been assured that the plan could well be accepted. Not only is the plan feasible, but should we be elected, it will be put into effect.

WINTER CARNIVAL

The Revisionist Party has also taken the interest to confer with the President of the College on the subject of Winter Carnival. The President explained the reason for the shortened weekend this year and the steps to be taken to bring back the full, four day Winter Carnival with all its activities. The Party, if elected, will work to see that these steps are taken so that a much desired Colby tradition will not die.

We hope that this Platform has given the students of Colby an accurate representation of the views and programs of the Revisionist Party. The four members of the Party — Jerry Speers, Bill Witherell, Sue Ferries, and Skip Stinson — would welcome any questions concerning the Platform. We hope you will find yourself identified with this program and will give us your vote on March 26th.

TOP BANQUETEER

Providing the public with luxuries they don't usually get at home has been the pleasure of Claudius Charles Philippe for the past 30 years.

No item is too grandiose, none too picayune to escape the perceptive eye of "Philippe" — whether he is directing the service of presidents, premiers, or queens, the satisfaction of guests at a $100-per-plate banquet, or merely the whim of a man who wants a good strong cup of coffee the first thing in the morning.

Following thirty years as top banqueteer of the famed Waldorf-Astoria, Philippe now faces his greatest challenge — the direction of all departments of the world's tallest hotel, the 50-story Americana of New York, opening in September. As managing director of The Americana, he will have plenty of elbow room in which to establish his own ideas of gracious hosting.

Claude Philippe joined the Waldorf-Astoria in 1931, just five days after it first opened its doors on Park Avenue to a depression-struck public. He had seen the Waldorf climb out of hard times to a pinnacle of prosperity, a feat in which his services played no small role. At the Americana, he will be creating a new "luxury hotel" conception. Working with the dean of hotel architects, Morris Lapidus, Philippe has incorporated many of his own ideas into the hotel's functional arrangements — based on his rare knowledge of catering to the varied whims of guests from every walk of life. He will bring this unique background and understanding to bear in the selection of a skilled staff and the most modern equipment.

9. Student Government might sponsor a campus-wide open house each fall with "no locked doors" and opportunities for climbing in the library tower. This would make possible faculty as well as student snooping.

10. The Vacation Cut Fine should be eliminated as a first step toward a possible honours program.

11. We are opposed to an academic honours program.

12. Students Government should have a representative to the Food Services to participate in menu planning. Additional desserts should be available at cost, or in substitution for other units of the meal offered.

LESSON 5 - The importance of head control

We are told that bird watchers, who always take notes while they watch, are able to keep one eye on the bird and one eye on the notebook. Eye dexterity of this type is also a great asset to the girl watcher. It enables him to watch two girls at the same time, even when the girls are sitting on opposite sides of a classroom. The beginner, who must watch the girls one at a time in a situation of this type, must learn to restrict his movements to the eyeballs. The girl watcher never moves his head. Undue head-turning, particularly if it is accompanied by shouts or whistles, is the sign of the amateur. (If you want something to shout about, try a Pall Mall!)

Friedrich Discusses NATO's Prospects

by Camilo Marquez

Waterville, April 10 — Carl J. Friedrich, Harvard professor and president-elect of the American Political Science Association, gave a comprehensive and lucid lecture on "Prospects for the Atlantic Community" today in what was originally intended to be the concluding lecture of this year's Gabrielson series.

Prof. Friedrich prefaced his talk by saying that he approached his task with some reluctance, because he is "skeptical about predictions in human affairs." In spite of his doubts, the lecture proved to be greatly informative.

Mr. Friedrich began by doubting the existence of an Atlantic Community. He said that instead there are really three political communities, the United States, England and the Commonwealth, and the European Community. Among them there is a "community of interests," but they do not share a "community of values and beliefs."

Mr. Friedrich continued by explaining the prospects for the further development of the interests which the three communities share. The interests are threefold: military, economic and political. The common military interest was provoked by the post-World War II expansion activities of the U.S.S.R. The second joint interest is a result of the loss of the European colonial empires after the two world wars. The realignment of power which the wars produced is responsible for the common political interests of the three communities.

The United States, a dormant power, became more active in international affairs after the First World War. In the course of World War II and in the light of Soviet consolidation, it was realized that the time of Europe's domination of the world has passed. This fact created a basis for a community of interests in Europe, as well as one between the U.S. and Britain. Mr. Friedrich said that these military, economic and political interests are permanent and likely to grow, as the present world power structure is unlikely to change.

Mr. Friedrich next approached the situation from a broader viewpoint. He believes the "emerging world order" moves in a different direction from what the names of the leading world organizations, the now-defunct League of Nations and the United Nations, have implied. The future world order will be based on "culturalism" rather than nation-

Gary Britten Miles, senior from Needham, Mass., has been awarded a Danforth Graduate Fellowship, it was announced last week. Mr. Miles is one of 97 college seniors throughout the country who has been awarded such a fellowship.

The award provides Mr. Miles with four years of study in any American graduate school. Annual stipends of $1500 are made in addition to tuition and fees.

Mr. Miles expects to continue his education at the Harvard University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. At present a major in Classics-English, he will study Classical Literature at Harvard, with particular concentration in Greek. His present plans include study in Athens, Greece.

As a Danforth Fellow, Mr. Miles will supplement his graduate school work by attending three annual conferences on teaching, held in Wisconsin, in which leading scholars will take part through lectures, seminars, and informal conferences.

Mr. Miles is a member of Blue Key. He has served on Student Government, and was awarded the Foster Classics Prize at the end of his junior year. He is also a winner of the Sigma Theta Psi Trophy, awarded to the student with the highest cumulative average in the men's division at the end of his sophomore year. He is former editor of the Colby Echo.

Polly French

Polly French, a Chi Omega from Laconia, N. H. majoring in French was elected to the presidency of the Women's Student League Board. Elected as Vice President of the League was Doris Kearns, a Tri-Delt government major from Rockville Center, N.Y. Assisting them on the Board will be the treasurer, Judy Milner, a Sigma Kappa from Cynwood, Pa., the recording secretary, Diane Emerson, a Sigma Kappa from Lexington, Mass., the corresponding secretary, Donna Cobb, a Chi Omega from Bridgton, Me., the editor of the handbook, Joan McGhee from Brookline, N.H., and the members at large, Sue Lockhart, Connie Lederman, Diane Mattison, and Pam Harris.

The Women's Student League, according to the Student Government Handbook, "is responsible for establishing a minimum of rules for successful group living, and also for maintaining a maximum of individual and group responsibility. By placing a great amount of responsibility in the hands of each girl, it is the purpose of the League to contribute to the development, of mature attitudes."

The telegrammed request followed the appearance of Under-Secretary of State G. Monnon Williams at Atlanta's Biltmore Hotel. Williams spoke on an integrated panel about Africa, but when three Spellman College student — two Negroes and one white — tried to get service at the hotel's snack bar, they were refused.

Waterville, April 9 — Sources close to Student Government President-elect John Wesley Miller, III indicated the surprise victor of the Stu-G election held last March 26 — prior to Spring Vacation — was preparing to accept office despite his campaign statement that he would refuse in the event the full Pink Elephant slate were not elected. This statement was made at the March 18 meeting of Stu-G.

The Pink Elephant candidate for Vice-President, Robert J. Gula, was defeated in his run for office by Peter Archer, candidate of the Autonomy Party.

The Pink Elephants did not run candidates for the positions of Secretary or Treasurer. Elected to these posts were Marsha Palmer, running independently, and Ralph Kimball, candidate for Treasurer of the Student's Voice Party.

GULA ASKED TO COMMENT

Asked to comment on Mr. Miller's plans to accept the Stu-G presidency, Mr. Gula indicated that he had released Mr. Miller from the details of his statement. He added, "The concern seems to center upon an agreement that Wesley and I were supposed to have had, the nature of which required that neither of us were to take office if the other one was not elected. A formal agreement such as this was never made nor was a formal statement ever released. The raft, which contained our only formal statement of policy, did not mention the subject. The one occasion on which this subject was mentioned was the initial introductory speech, but like everything else that happened that night, it was not to be taken seriously. Both Wesley and I realized the responsibility which had been placed upon us and neither of us ever doubted that he would serve if elected. He would not have run if he did not intend to accept the office."

Mr. Miller emerged victorious in an election that drew almost 60% of the college to the poll. One of the closest elections in recent memory, it yielded Mr. Miller a plurality of less than 25 votes over runner-up Kenneth Robbins. Mr. Gula placed second in a field of four.

Reaction to the election's results was almost uniformly one of almost no regard for orthodoxy other than that required to parody it, and it was felt that much of his support came from voters attracted more by the Pink Elephants' unique approach than by their raft.

It was generally agreed that Mr. Miller's intent was to satirize conventional government election procedures, as well as the present manner in which Stu-G itself is operated.

MILLER'S PLATFORM

Mr. Miller contended, however, that beneath each proposal in his party's raft lay a "hard core of tough-minded reason." He granted that he certainly did not expect to make a reality of all his proposals, but he went on to submit that despite their seeming unattainability, they do provide goals toward which any progress at all, however slight, would be worthwhile.

As an example, Mr. Miller pointed to the Pink Elephant proposal which said, "In view of the precedent set in the case of the Commencement Committee, we endorse student representation on the Financial Aid, Athletic, Educational Policy, Book of the Year, and Freshman Week Committees."

Although such a proposal seems on its surface to be absurd, Mr. Miller said, if any progress were to be made in the direction of such student representation on faculty committees, the faculty as well as the student body would benefit by the exchange of ideas and information.

The Election

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

The results of the Stu-G elections held just before vacation have created quite a stir. No one expected Mr. Miller to win, it seems, and now that he has won no one knows quite what to expect from him. In large measure, this state is Mr. Miller's own fault: his raft demonstrated more than adequately an ability to be critical of existing faults and inconsistencies in the College's operation, but it did not really offer a concrete program for dealing with those faults. It is very specific in regard to minute details, yet seems to lack an overall program for reconstruction of the superstructure. Also, much of his party's raft seems designed to do no more than set up norms toward which it hoped the College will move over a long period of time. What movement the College will endure during the coming ten months of Mr. Miller's presidency remains uncertain. It is to be hoped that Mr. Miller can be not only critical but practical: in other words, that he can accept the structure he has been handed and work within it until he can effectively alter it to suit — if it will — his determination of College needs and the determinations of the students he serves.

Criticism alone will not run a student government. Hard work and carefully planned programs of action will. If Mr. Miller so chooses, he can — perhaps — not only continue the direction Stu-G took under Mr. Wiswall's presidency but he can also give it new momentum in directions only an unusual mind can conceive. Mr. Miller very definitely has such a mind; it is now up to him to demonstrate that he can use it with energy and conviction.

SECOND THOUGHTS

The Echo cannot, of course, suggest such new directions — these it expects from Mr. Miller. It can, however, suggest that work be continued in areas where it has already begun, and there are some specific points in mind on which Mr. Miller seems to need prodding.

First of all, although Mr. Miller's plan for greatly increasing the number of student referendums is not without a good deal of merit, it should be borne in mind that such referendums might not be as necessary as they now seem were the representation system to be as thoroughly revised as the three other presidential candidates insisted it be. The Echo has agreed from the start of the campaign that organizational representation is not accomplishing its intended objectives. A realization that the women's dormitories and the fraternity houses are the basic social units of the campus, and a representation system built up from such a realization, would, it seems to us, be a tremendous step forward in increasing the effectiveness of Stu-G.

Second, Mr. Miller states, "Student government support for sending representatives to expensive student conventions should be curtailed." The Echo could not more completely disagree. It seems that if responsible representatives are sent to such conventions, instructed as explicitly as possible to record events and new ideas for the purpose of giving them the widest possible circulation — through the Echo, by word of mouth, and at Stu-G meetings — nothing but good can result. The campus's location is not ideal, from the point of view of coming into constant contact with new ideas and intellectual ferment. Also, coming face to face with students from other colleges and seeing at close hand how they and their colleges work can only lessen the provinciality which too often characterizes Colby thinking.

There are other areas in which Mr. Miller may require criticism from time to time. But it is important to remember — as many people have not been remembering — that Mr. Miller has still to take office. There is no reason to face his inauguration with pessimism; indeed, there are many reasons to expect quite a bit from his administration. Certainly, a finely organized instrument will be made of Stu-G, and advances in new areas can be expected. The only question that arise stem from a lack of certainty over policies to be carried out in areas already entered by the Wiswall administration; and these areas of doubt are areas in which there is every reason to hope that Mr. Miller will become, if he is not already, cognizant of the need for action.

Letter to Editor

You can be certain that federal aid to schools will result in federal control, despite protestations and provisions included in proposed legislation righteously asserting that the federal government could in no way usurp the authority of the States and localities and exercise of control over education.

Federal aid, to any degree, cannot exist without federal control. As a matter of fact, there should not be federal aid without federal control, it being the responsibility of the federal government to so supervise and control its allocations that waste and misuse is kept at a minimum.

If you doubt that the federal aid to education bills now before Congress would mean eventual federal control of education, read the booklet published in 1961 by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, titled, "A Federal Education Agency for the Future." Carefully analyze what the Office of Education is planning for tomorrow's schools. Note how the report repeatedly stresses the necessity for federal action in formulation of educational policies, how it recommends review of teacher preparation, curriculums and textbooks. Note particularly how the report states that we must implement internal education projects in the United States, indicating future closer relationships with UNESCO, ministries of education abroad and others.

The quietly circulated publication of the U.S. Office of Education, produced and printed at the expense of the taxpayer, will show you that there has been no basic change in the plans of the professional political educationists who see the educational system as a means of remaking our society to fit their ideas of what is right and proper. It should emphatically and completely put at rest any doubts that the wheels are turning fast in the direction of federal control over education.

The Commissioner of Education concluded a foreword to the report in this booklet by saying that the full evaluation and adoption of recommendations will require a period of review and that he anticipated that "much of this activity will take place through normal administrative processes within the Office and the Department." This means that the report will be largely implemented on the administrative level without congressional action and approval.

You can, therefore, expect that much of the attempt to create federal control of education will take place quietly, without public notice.

If the attempt succeeds you will someday find federal inspectors in your schools and on your campuses. You will find teachers afraid to speak against the official approved administration policy. You will find writers of textbooks forced to write only what is approved by high government officials sitting in judgment in Washington.

If such aid is extended to the parochial school system, you could find a banning of clerical robes and of reference to religion in the classroom. If such aid is not extended to public schools, it can mean the gradual extinction of parochial education.

Under the cry of "emergency," the Department already has its foot in the door with the National Defense Education Act of 1958, which was born of the sputnik panic as a measure to provide TEMPORARY programs for needy students of science and engineering.

A host of federal aid to education bills is before the House Education Committee, of which I am a member. They cover a range of topics: federal aid to the handicapped, federal aid to the blind, federal aid to scholarship and construction, and federal aid to elementary and secondary schools. Some of them would put the Federal Government into the PIER-MANENT business of teacher training at all levels of education, both public and private. That inevitably must result in specifications, stand-

Tempus Fugit

We are all quite aware of the fact that, although a definite distinction is made between academic and social twelve o'clocks in the rule books, this distinction is relatively non-existent in the student's mind. When the individual's quota of social twelve o'clocks has run out, the natural things to do it to take full advantage of the opportunities offered by an academic twelve — whether it be to pour over a text in the cubicles or to pour down three darks at Onie's. This is outright negation of the responsibility entrusted to the student by our "half-way" honor system, yet very few consider it as such. We do not mean to imply that a restriction based on sound and necessary reasons is being consciously ignored by the students; this is not so. However, when they can find no point to the rule, it becomes quite easy to reinterpret it with very few guilt feelings. This is, in fact, what has happened with the dual set-up of twelve o'clock permissions. We must admit that we share the feelings of those students who feel that the number of twelve o'clock should be unlimited and no distinction made between their academic and social uses. It is obvious that the majority of women students feel this way, for they have taken it upon themselves, out of necessity, to interpret the distinction as granting a lack of limitation on twelves. It is easy to understand why restrictions are desirable for freshmen during their first semester of confusion and reorganization but we fail to see the purpose of weekly ten-thirty restriction after the first semester. Unlimited twelve o'clock permissions for all women students, except first semester freshmen, would encourage a greater sense of responsibility and consequently maturity, as successfully as the ten-thirty restrictions have encouraged adversity to "Community Paternalism" and a dishonest manipulation of the present rules.

AND ABOUT THE LIBE—

We should like to suggest to the Administration, for the sake of those who do find later hours and Saturday nights ideal for studying, that something be done to improve study conditions in the library. After successfully equipping three new rooms for studying in addition to the previous two, at nine forty-five every night lights go off in three of these rooms and their facilities are denied the students. Unfortunately, the two new rooms of cubicles are not sufficient to accommodate the number of students who find it impossible to accomplish any serious work in the dormitories after ten o'clock. The close quarters and the fact that smoking is forbidden does not enhance the attraction of the cubicles. Is there no way that the main reading room and the third floor study room can be kept open at least until twelve o'clock on week nights? The fact that the essential parts of the library are tightly closed to students at one o'clock Saturday afternoon, not to open again until two o'clock Sunday afternoon, seems to be a definite insult to those members of the student body who actually consider studying on Saturday night. It is neither reasonable nor fair to expect the dormitories and fraternity houses to be conducive to studying during this time but is hardly seems unreasonable to ask that the library afford the opportunity for academic endeavor to those who wish it.

ardized courses and controls. This is "federal control" with a vengeance.

The previously mentioned report, "A Federal Education of the Future," has some startling items about our education future. In the report is revealed a proposal to create a "U.S. Education Agency" of three new Bureaus, one of which would be "International Education." The report talks of "implementing international projects in the United States" and goes on to say: "The next decade will bring closer and multiple relationships with ministries of education abroad and international organizations such as UNESCO, the OAS, the International Bureau of Education, and others — as problems in education are attacked bilaterally and multi-laterally on a worldwide basis."

Do you want international controls and conventions directing, by agreement, American education methods and curriculums?

For example, the United States faces the threat of takeover by United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) of its entire school system for purposes of socialization. This will be made possible by UNESCO's proposed new treaty, known as the Convention Against Discrimination in Education. The UNESCO resolution was passed in Paris in December, 1961, and is now in the State Department awaiting submission to the Senate for ratification. It is important to remember here that a treaty ratified by the Senate becomes "the supreme law of the land" (says the Constitution) and "supersedes all other laws" (says the Supreme Court).

This proposed treaty, or resolution, could deliver the entire American educational system into UNESCO international control.

It could automatically remove ed-parochial school in the United States.

It could automatically remove education from under "domestic" law and control.

It encompasses every phase and facet of education, including philosophy of subject matter taught your children.

A prominent religious leader in California, deeply interested in education, is reported as asserting that the proposed new treaty or resolution "would substantially eliminate all local control of public education at state or local level," that "it would place the direction and regulation of all American education under federal control — control by the United States Department of Education and the National Education Association," and that "the resolution would override this federal control; make it subsidiary to UNESCO as a world court and final international arbiter of education."

This is an effort to make you aware of the threat to your schools. It is indeed a Socialist frontier.

If you do not desire federal control in the field of education, then you do not desire federal aid to education. If you are opposed to international control, then you are opposed to federal aid to education.

Nonconformers Cuts Through 'Mass Trivia'

by E. Norman Duker

THE NONCONFORMERS, ed. by David Evanier and Stanley Silverzweig. Ballantine Books, N.Y., 1961.

Auden called our time the "Age of Anxiety." The editors of THE NONCONFORMERS would probably call it, among other things, the Age of Mass Trivia. In their small anthology, co-editors David Evanier and Stanley Silverzweig present a collection of 31 articles and essays which attempts to cut through the "Mass of trivia which is being published by the American Press" in order to "enable young people to find out exactly what is going on in the world today." Many of the writers who contribute articles to the book are, or have been, associated with The Nation. They represent a wide cross section of relatively unknown writers, both American and European, whose voices have yet to be heard by a wide audience. There are exceptions, of course, with contributions by Martin Luther King, Arthur Miller, and other nationally known figures.

The book is divided into four sections, "The American Scene," "The Crisis in Europe," "Culture: The Frightened Fifties," and "Peace and War." Within these broad topical ranges, the editors attempted to select articles which had contemporary significance.

In "The American Scene," seven of the articles deal with controversial political and social themes, such as integration, racial minorities and slums, the presidential race, and pacifist movements.

A good example of what the editors try to do is illustrated by Julian Mayfield's article for Commentary, "The Challenge to Negro Leadership," which deals with the growing phenomenon of armed negroes in the South resisting attempts by White pressure groups to intimidate them. The article is concerned with an armed clash between Negroes and Klu Klux Klanners in Monroe, North Carolina—an incident which never made the newspapers of the nation.

The article in "Crisis in Europe" deal with Germany, Algeria, the Congo, and the Portuguese Empire. Recent events invalidate some of the material in them, but the implicit and explicit predictions which many of the writers make have been borne out by historical events. The articles on Germany approach the subject from the point of view of the Second World War and National Socialism. Articles on Anne Frank, Adolph Hitler, and Auschwitz seem to indicate that the writers are protesting, or at least warning against American's quick forgiveness of a nation, which, in surrendering its soul to Adolph Hitler, was responsible for the horrors which were per-

Senior Scholars Program Outlined

Members of the class of 1963 should now be considering the possibility of participation in the Senior Scholars Program next year. The program's objective is to further an atmosphere of student scholarship in the college as a whole, and especially to provide a stimulus to an outlet for creative scholarship on the part of the selected group of students chosen to participate.

No minimum academic standing is specifically designated; however, in general a student should have a B average, preferably better. Exceptions are considered. Selection of students is based upon their academic record, letters of recommendation from faculty members with whom courses have been taken, a personal interview, and to some degree on the type of project undertaken.

A student has to decide upon a topic and find a faculty member who will serve as a tutor before he makes a formal application. Application forms are available from Mr. Miller, Committee secretary, in the Bixler Center, Room 113, and must be completed and returned to Mr. Miller before 5:00 P.M. April 20, 1962.

Senior Scholars work is taken in lieu of two or three regular year courses and is given credit accordingly. Candidates may elect to devote the month of January to the Senior Scholars Program. The names of the successful candidates for 1962-1963 will be announced at the Recognition Assembly in May this year.

Senior Scholars present interim reports to their tutors and in the spring concentrate their efforts on a Final Report. This Final Report is evaluated by the Tutor and two additional readers. It is then submitted to the Committee, and eventually is placed in the Library. Candidates who wish to see the sort of work done by previous Senior Scholars may consult the Final Report on file in the Library. Successful completion of the Senior Scholars Program is cited at Commencement in the Commencement Program as a distinctive form of honors not related to the other academic honors.

Interested students may obtain additional information about this program from members of the Senior

Trinity Tripod Satirizes Recent Y.A.F. Rally

(The Trinity Tripod, March 9, 1962 — by George F. Will) — New York, March 7 — Madison Square Garden, home of basketball scandals and the fifty cent beer, this week is home of the National Antique Show. Tonight, bedecked with bunting and balloons, it was the rallying point of 18,000 cadres of conservatism — the Young Americans for Freedom, Inc.

Strong men wept and old ladies sighed as Strom Thurmond, champion of South Carolina and the military, said, "Give me Liberty or Give me death." Then he sat down smiling.

A few blocks uptown, in the drab and smokefilled confines of St. Nickolas Arena, another rally was taking place, a protest against the goings on at the Garden.

MOTHERHOOD

A young and painfully earnest high schooler asked James Wechsler, editor of the New York Post and organizer of this rally, some words of Cold War inspiration.

"I'm for Motherhood and information," said Wechsler and he stalked away smoking.

At the Garden, the problem was speakers who didn't come. Moise Tshombe couldn't get a visa, John Wayne was sick, Herbert Hoover didn't want to leave Palm Beach.

SIGH

But the guiding light of the right, Barry Goldwater, was there and he said we should win the cold war and strong men wept and old ladies sighed.

At St. Nick's the problem was speakers who, though jubilantly welcomed, were unscheduled. Hubert Humphrey, Senate Majority whip, came after a last minute call from Wechsler.

Shelley Winters stalked through the smoke, wearing furs, to tell the 4,000 listeners and a battery of microphones that, although she is no expert, she is an "Emotional Democrat" and liked the 4,000.

OFFICE SEEKER

The Rev. R.L.T. Smith, the first Negro to run for office in Mississippi, capped the evening by asking for help in the southern civil liberties battle.

The Garden rally was the result of much planning and publicity which began last fall.

The St. Nick's rally was the result of James Wechsler's anger. This was not really anger dating from last fall's YAF rally plans. He got angry 30 years ago and has never simmered down. He launched plans for this rally two weeks ago, with the help of the campus Americans for Democratic action and other student groups.

DOWN WITH THE POST

Murray Kempton, whose column on the rally appears in today's Tripod was at the Garden to hear his paper, the Post, get some of the loudest boos of the evening.

He was the target of one little old lady's ire for walking about while the assembled multitudes prayed against appeasement and for the God (who), in the words of Henry Luce, sat in Oregon when he made America.

THE HEROS ARRIVE

Senators Tower and Goldwater were clearly the stars of the show, partly out of YAF conviction, partly because they showed up. (They came to town," said Humphrey, "riding the same assinities.")

Because the program was running an hour late, the spontaneous demonstrations for Goldwater were cut from a scheduled 20 to under ten

Colby Represented At Mock U.N. Assembly

by Lew Krinsky

The Student Government and the International Relations Club of Colby College recently sponsored a delegation to the 35th annual Mid-Atlantic Model General Assembly of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations. The delegates were Stephen Garment, Bayside, New York; William Pye, Jr., West Hartford, Conn.; Marjorie Walton, Moorestown, N.J.; and Lewis Krinsky, Houston, Texas. They represented Norway on the various committees which were set up to deal with specific problems that have confronted or are presently confronting the United Nations.

The weekend of March 23-25, commenced with briefing by member nations to the delegates. The Colby delegation was briefed by the Norwegian Permanent Mission to the United Nations. Friday evening, the entire assembly met at the United Nations Building. There they heard an address of welcome by Dr. Harold W. Stokes, President of Queens College, and the keynote address by Dr. Frank Porter Graham, Special Representative for India and Pakistan. The chairman read messages of welcome from Harlan Cleveland, Assistant Secretary of State, and U Thant, Acting Secretary General of the UN. This was followed by the first committee meetings at Model General Assembly headquarters in the Hotel Commodore.

Six committees were set up to deal with UN problems:

- I. Political: Disarmament:
 1. Machinery for negotiation;
 2. The sequence of disarmament measures, control and inspection;
 3. Arms systems.
- II. Economic and Financial: Technical assistance programs to the underdeveloped areas.
- III. Special Political Committee: The question of Angola.
- IV. Trusteeship: The question of Southwest Africa.
- V. Administration and Budget: The reorganization of the Secretariat — the Troika.
- VI Legal:
 1. Antarctica Treaty;
 2. Diplomatic Immunities.

92 members of the UN were represented at the conference by colleges from the middle Atlantic, eastern, and New England states. The general procedure observed was: 1) the reading of a resolution, and 2) general discussion, with each nation having an opportunity to voice itself. Strict attention to the rules of procedure was given by the delegates, the committee chairmen, and the legal advisors. It was interesting to note that caucuses were frequently held by members of Western nations, Western blocs, and Soviet blocs. Responses and arguments were very much in line with the thinking of individual member nations of the UN.

Many resolutions appeared before the various committees. The Economic and Financial Committee agreed that the UN should play a more active role in hastening self-sustaining economics in underdeveloped nations. The Administration and Budget organ voted to maintain the position of the Secretary-General as now established, electing the S-G every five years. Furthermore, the Secretary-General may appoint under-secretary-generals who will serve in advisory capacities. "The members of the Secretariat shall be elected with regard to their competence and dedication to the principles of the UN, with consideration taken from each of the following geographical areas: Africa, Asia, North America, Latin America, Western Europe, Eastern Europe, and the Middle East."

With regard to the UN and the Antarctica Treaty, the Legal Committee called upon member states of the UN "to assert their support of the positive values of the Antarctica Treaty and praise the attitudes it has engendered." It suggested that "the signatory powers of the Antarctica Treaty reaffirm their welcomed spirit of the treaty." In addition, it urged the member states of the UN "to continue in their pursuit of peace and justice in the world, and to encourage the efforts of states as they take appropriate measures to achieve this end."

Strider Suggests Ways To Give Life Meaning

On Sunday, March 25, President Strider spoke in Given Auditorium in the opening lecture of the "Last Lecture Series," sponsored by the Women's Student League. Dr. Strider began by mentioning that he thought the title of the series was "ghoulish," and that he hoped it would not be his last opportunity to speak. In fact, one of the privations of being a college president was the lack of opportunity to address the students often enough in classrooms and lecture halls.

Strider continued by mentioning that college presidents are often a "dreary lot" and a "suspect bunch," and he hoped that this lecture series would not be affected by that.

Dr. Strider asked a rhetorical question, which he quickly asserted some "wiseguy usually answers." What is it that most of us are looking for in life? Marriage and a family, economic security, and some kind of distinction in our work were his answers. These, however, are all superficial. On a higher level, we must be concerned with a guarantee of freedom of action and belief. We also wonder what the implications of being human are. We should have an awareness of love, and we should commit ourselves to something, perhaps religious, or political, or both.

Strider believes that he is "singularly fortunate" in his satisfaction with his family, his work, and what he described as the "gentle poverty" of the teaching profession. On the higher levels, he has a conviction that freedom is important. He believes in taking part in political activity, and was a volunteer for Stevenson. He called himself the first liberal Democrat ever to serve as the president of Colby. He thinks that the disclaimer affidavit is wrong, and urges federal aid to education with no strings attached. His religious commitment is Episcopalian. Strider urged his audience to see the visiting theologian Molloy, the man who influenced him and turned him toward a deep new understanding of his faith.

Rare Opportunity Offered By Summer Program

A unique summer experience for college students, 18 to 23, is offered by the 17th annual Encampment for Citizenship — a six-week "workshop in democracy" — to be held in New York, California and Puerto Rico from 1 July to 11 August, 1962.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Honorary Chairman of the Encampment for Citizenship, has described the program as "one of the best ways that I have seen to bring before young people in a vital and interesting way the dynamics of democracy."

Conducted on the campuses of the University of California in Berkeley, the Fieldston School in New York City, and at Camp Tortuguero in Puerto Rico, the Encampment provides an opportunity for students to live, study and play with alert young people from around the world, as well as from all sections of the United States — representing diverse racial, religious, ethnic and economic backgrounds.

Major areas of study include government, civil right and civil liberties, international affairs, economics and practical techniques for civic and community action. Field trips to government, labor, management, farm, industry and community organizations located in New York, San Francisco, and San Juan supplement the lectures, workshops and discussion groups. A varied recreation program makes use of the rich cultural and recreational resources of these areas, and daily on-campus activities include all summer sports, folk and square dances, community sings, etc. A growing number of colleges and universities grant academic credit for attendance at the encampment or for special projects undertaken during the session.

The New York Encampment can accommodate 100 students. Units in California and Puerto Rico accommodate 80 each. The fee for tuition, room and board is $350. Some financial assistance is available to stu-

Loebs Announces Housing Plans For Graduation

Professor Loebs, chairman of the Commencement Committee, announced before vacation that seniors will be receiving the official "housing reservation" form for Commencement weekend, June 8-11. He expressed the hope that all seniors planning to have their parents, relatives, and friends staying on campus for one, two, or three nights during Commencement weekend would arrange to get such information during the spring recess, and then file their applications for housing reservation with him upon returning to the campus. All College dormitories are turned over to the Commencement Committee for the housing of visitors from Friday, June 8 through Monday, June 11. Seniors will be given preference of rooms according to the time applications are filed with Mr. Loebs.

The Senior Class Commencement Committee, under the chairmanship of President Peter Duggan, is well underway with class plans for the Commencement weekend, which will include the senior class lobster-bake picnic, the reception Friday evening at the Elmwood hotel, commencement invitations, caps and gowns, and many other phases of Commencement which the senior committee is responsible for. Seniors wishing information about Commencement can contact Professor Loebs or any member of the senior class committee. Full information will be distributed to the Seniors shortly after their return to the campus following spring recess.

Information and applications may be obtained by writing to ENCAMPMENT FOR CITIZENSHIP, 2 West 64th Street, New York 23, N.Y., or 2209 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco, California.

minutes apiece. He bounced onto the platform to the bouncing beat of the Battle Hymn of the Republic. This may have been necessitated by the fact that the band had run through its entire Sousa repertoire, but southern YAF's still squirmed.

Outside the Garden, 340 cops, mounted and otherwise, fought to keep pickets and anti-picket pickets from settling the Cold War with their fists. By 7:45 p.m. you could only approach the Garden after proving to a cordon of cops that you had a YAF ticket.

WAR, ANYBODY?

By the time the rally began the sidewalks were covered with leaflets, some of which were distributed by the American Party. These said "WE WANT WAR" and "WE DEMAND AN IMMEDIATE DECLARATION OF WAR AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION."

Both the Garden and St. Nick's were picketed by one group which thought both rallies were soft on Communism. This group wanted to hear something from General Walker.

The closest the YAF rally came to hearing a program of action was the speech by L. Brent (McCarthy and his Critics) Bozell, and an editor of the National Review.

NEW ORDERS

He said these orders should be given by the government:

"To the Joint Chiefs of Staff: Prepare for an immediate landing in Havana."

"To the Commander in Berlin: tear down the wall."

"To the chief of our mission in the Congo: Change sides."

"To the chief of the CIA: You are to encourage liberation movements in every nation of the world under Communist rule."

HUMPHREY'S WORDS

At St. Nick's Hubert Humphrey suggested that the forces of progressive democracy put the Radical Right in perspective and not let it distract liberals from "the unfinished business of the Twentieth Century."

Humphrey stressed that the slogans of the radicals of the left and right were much the same, citing as an example the fact that Khrushchev and Goldwater both want to get the U.S. out of the U.N. and the U.N. out of the U.S.

"These fellows," he said, "are all sleeping in the same bed fighting over the same covers on a cold winter night and I suggest we let them freeze."

WECHSLER EXPLAINS

Wechsler, who chaired the rally, stressed the same theme. In his Post column today he explained why the St. Nick's rally was necessary:

"There are those who say it would have been wiser to ignore this rightist rally. I disagree, not because I believe that Mr. Goldwater and his legions are about to seize the country, but because they are creating a fog that clouds all rational discussions of great issues. If the world were persuaded that they were the Voice of America, we might be in deep trouble."

Messages of support for the St. Nick's rally were received from Mayor Wagner, Governor Edmund "Pat" Brown of California, and Senator Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.).

Wechsler, before reading the Senator's telegram, said ominously, "I have a message of support from a Senator McCarthy."

Everyone laughed. A good time was had by all.

Down on Eighth Avenue the PAF affair was letting out. Nobody laughed. It had been a hard evening talking up "immutable right and principles" and "inalienable rights." And always private property. But, still, a good time was had by all.

Ringling Brothers circus opens in the Garden, April 4.

Saturday-April 14 — the intercollegiate Band Festival will be held on the Colby College Campus at 8:00 p.m. in the Runnals Union Auditorium. Tickets will be available in the Spa or at the door for 50c.

From the participating Colleges, Universities and Conservatories will be band members of Bowdoin, Colby, Farmington State Teachers College, Northern Conservatory, Thomas Junior College, University of Maine and Washington State Teachers College.

Brandeis Editorial

(The Brandeis Justice — March 6) — We are greatly saddened and disheartened — though not surprised — at the decision of the United States government to resume atmospheric nuclear testing. Like the Soviet resumption of tests last fall, this action is an incalculable blow to peace; it can only serve to increase world tensions, heighten the deadly spiral of the arms race, and kill and deform thousands of innocent people throughout the world. It brings us one step closer to the day when our civilization shall perish at the hands of its leaders, and with it all the strivings, dreams, and aspirations of innumerable human beings. All the pious hypocrisy of President Kennedy's speech to the nation will not change these facts one bit.

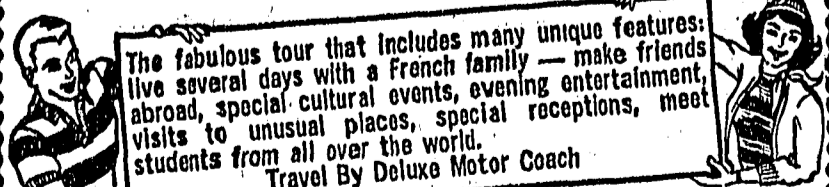

But it is not our purpose here to engage in a sustained polemic against the bomb tests, for we believe that their evil nature is apparent to all rational individuals. Only those caught up in the insane logic of the Cold War can believe that "the prospects for peace may actually be strengthened by this decision" (J. F. Kennedy, reminiscent of N. S. Khrushchev). Rather, we wish to outline possible things we at Brandeis can do to make our voices heard before they are silenced forever. There should be two main dimensions to our activity: education and action. Taking the latter first, we believe that all of us at Brandeis have a responsibility to help in building a nationwide peace movement worthy of the name; and the best way to do this, it seems to us, is to cooperate in TURN TOWARD PEACE and in demonstrations like the Washington Project. It may seem discouraging when over 6,000 students gather in Washington and the government nevertheless resumes atmospheric tests, but at least a confrontation was made — and it should not be forgotten that there are many other issues to be joined with the Administration, such as civil "defense," strengthening the United Nations, disengagement in central Europe, etc.

Colby Debaters Whip BC and MIT

Colby's debate team scored victories over Boston College and M.I.T. in a recent tournament at Tufts University.

Debating the National topic, RESOLVED THAT LABOR ORGANIZATIONS SHOULD BE UNDER THE JURISDICTION OF ANTI-TRUST LEGISLATION, Colby sent two four-men teams to Medford. Steve Schoeman and Stu Rakoff defeated M.I.T. with a strong affirmative argument which stressed that labor unions were, in fact, corporations and should thus be subjected to Anti-Trust laws.

The negative team of Bob Baggs and Rod Gould toppled B.C. by demonstrating the complicity and general uselessness of anti-trust legislation.

Colby's other team consisted of Bill Neil and Dick Larshan for the affirmative, and James Quirk and Al Smith for the negative. The Debate Club's next tournament is at Harvard, April 14.

"Lampoon" Lists Worst Movies

(The Harvard Crimson — March 30) — "King of Kings" and Natalie Wood shared dominant positions in the Lampoon list of "Movie Worst for 1961." In a tie with "Parrish" for first place in the "ten worst pictures" category, "King of Kings" was also awarded the "Greatest Setback to Christianity Since 'The Robe'" Trophy.

Its scene of "Salome's Dance" occasioned the presentation of the "Great Ceremonial Hot Dog" given for the worst scenes of the cinema season. The designation "worst all-around performance by a cast in toto" was awarded jointly to "King of Kings" and "The Last Sunset."

Miss Wood was commended "for so gallantly persisting in her career despite a total inability to act." The award for the worst duos of the year found her listed with: 1. Warren Beatty; 2. Richard Beymer (who won mention in his own right for his performance in "West Side Story"); and 3. Anyone.

Birch Society Sponsors Essays; Library Awards

An essay contest for the American undergraduate has been announced by the John Birch Society. The subject will be a book review of Rosalie Gordon's NINE MEN AGAINST AMERICA. The prizes are as follows: first prize, $1,000; second prize, $500; third prize, $300; fourth prize, $200; five more prizes, each $100. Any undergraduate enrolled in any American college during the spring term of 1962 is eligible.

Winners will be announced by the John Birch Society, and the prizes awarded, in September, 1962. Submission of a manuscript by any contestant will constitute acceptance of all terms and conditions of this contest.

Colby College will participate in the Amy Loveman National Award to be given to a senior student having an outstanding personal library, according to the chairman of the committee to select a local nominee. The national award winner will receive one thousand dollars.

The Amy Loveman National Award was established by the Women's National Book Association in cooperation with The Book-of-the-Month Club and the SATURDAY REVIEW to honor the memory of a woman who was Associate Editor of the SATURDAY REVIEW, a Book-of-the-Month Club Judge, a member of the Women's National Book Association and winner of its Constance Lindsay Skinner Award.

Nominees for the national award must present an annotated list of a minimum of thirty-five books now in their personal libraries. In addition, the nominees will be asked to indicate his avocations, why he started his library, his ideal of a complete home library and the next ten books he plans to add to his collection. The national contest will be judged on the basis of intelligent interest, scope and imagination shown in creating the collection, and knowledge of the books revealed in the annotations. Collections of any type are eligible. Representatives of the three sponsoring organizations, a nationally known book collector, author, or critic, and a college or university librarian will constitute the national judging committee.

Girl Watcher's Guide

Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes

Girl watchers are honorable men

LESSON 6- Who may watch

Any male is eligible to become a girl watcher. There is no age limit, although most girl watchers are over ten and under one hundred and four. There are no height or weight requirements, although taller men enjoy an obvious advantage at crowded parties. The only strict requirement is one of character. The girl watcher is a man of honor. Since he can't possibly take notes, as the bird watcher does, we must rely on his word. Therefore, when an experienced girl watcher tells you he saw nine beautiful girls while on his way to class, he saw nine beautiful girls. And when he tells you his Pall Mall is the cigarette of the century, believe him. It is.

The Kelleymen's Finest Season - In Retrospect

by Bruce Lytle

The Alford Arena is quiet. A few weeks ago, 2000 spectators cheered as Jack Kelley's Hockey Mules carved another chapter into its history with close victories over teams such as RPI, Boston College, and Providence. Colby beat other teams like Dartmouth, New Hampshire, Boston University, Northeastern, Williams, Bowdoin, and Norwich by big scores. Wait a minute! Alford Arena is lighting up. The 1961-62 season will flash before our eyes.

November 10, Jack Kelley looks upon his squad with concern. Newcomers must fill in at key positions.

Having lost their first two games to the University of New Brunswick, the Mules take on Dartmouth on December 2. Expecting a tight contest, 2300 spectators see the Mules flash to an 11-0 victory. Ryan gets four goals and five assists for nine points. Ryan, Dave Sveden, and Elwyn Duchrow combine for eight goals and fourteen assists for 22 points.

Three nights later, Colby faces its first strong NCAA opponent as the Friars of Providence invade Alford Arena. Providence ties the game at 3-3 with 20 seconds to go. Though the sudden death overtime fails to produce a Mule victory, we upon the hill have a notion that the Mules will be hard to beat. We see Frank Stevenson shine in the nets, and we feel that the Colby defense will be tough to crack.

Colby continues to roll by picking up victories over Hamilton College and Laval University. On January 3, the Mules invade Boston to face BU. Victory is ours, 4-2. Ryan, Sveden, Jack Mechem, and Ned Platner get the goals. There is indication that Colby will have the depth to undertake Boston College.

Bowdoin College falls to the Mules, 2-0. January 13 is the big contest against Boston College. The Mules are good enough to defeat a hard-skating opponent in overtime, 2-1. Ryan scores the winning goal, but the victory belongs to the whole team. Jay French and Mike and Pete Archer play their best games of the season. Stephenson excels in the cage. Bob McBride comes of age. Colby is being looked upon as an Eastern Hockey power.

Northeastern falls, 7-0. Amherst falters 14-1 in a game which sees Ryan take the national scoring lead. Norwich loses to the high-flying Mules, 8-4; so does Merrimack, 6-1. Jack Kelley now is talking ECAC tournament.

A revamped Boston University sextet comes to Colby January 27. A victory is a "must" for the BU forces. They lose 4-0. Colby is in high gear as it travels to Providence to take on the Friars. While winning 8-5, the Mules show that their defense had better tighten up for RPI. The Engineers pose the greatest threat to Colby's unbeaten streak, which has now reached 15 games. A Mules victory will mean that Colby has arrived as a "Hockey power". A loss could mean that Colby, though good, lacks the ability to tangle with the big-name hockey schools.

The Mules defeat Rensselaer, 6-3. Our depth is a great factor in the victory. Northeastern, New Hampshire, Williams, and Bowdoin fall in successive games. Only Boston College stands between Colby and an undefeated NCAA season.

The Mules meet defeat at the hands of the Eagles. The score is 6-5. A nineteen game unbeaten streak is shattered. We at Colby now begin to realize that good as the Mules are, they are not invincible.

The recent ECAC tournament is history to Colby fans. We finished, as seeded, in the fourth position. Yet, the defeats in the tournament brought no shame. Rather, they brought disappointment, yet a great sense of pride. The Mules' hustle was something to behold, even in the waning moments of the season.

The lights are now dim on the 1961-62 season. Yet, the last flickers of light shine enough for us to glimpse at the accomplishments of those who helped to lift the Mules into a position among Eastern Hockey powers. Captain Ron Ryan led the nation in scoring with 104 points. Don Young led the nation's defensemen in scoring. Frank Stephenson will long be remembered for his stellar performances when the Mule offense could not click. Murray Daley will be remembered as the quiet man for the Blue and Gray. Overshadowed by some of the more colorful players on the squad, Murray was always in the right position to block a shot or intercept a pass.

These players are among those who have brought Colby into a position of eminence in the hockey world. Their departure will be sorely felt.

As we walk out of Alford Arena for the last time this season, we think about the Mules' coach, Jack Kelley. Coming to Colby seven years ago when Alford Arena wasn't completed, Jack met with ten hockey players on Johnson Pond to start practice for the season. Kelley's job was to improve the condition of hockey at Colby. He has done this to a far greater extent than was expected of him. The hustle, drive, and pride that he has instilled in his squad can only make us more aware of his contributions. An indication of the job done by Kelley can be seen not only in the selection of Ryan and Stephenson to this year's All-American team, but also in Jack's selection as Coach of the Year. We can only hope that Jack Kelley will have as much success in the future. If he does, a large part will be because of the tradition established by this year's team.

Frosh Basketball Squad Completes Winning Season

February 28 marked the final game of the season for the Baby Mule cagers. The hoopsters wound up their season with an impressive 13-3 record.

When asked about the team, Coach John Winkin said that it was good and showed a good deal of varsity potential. Winkin added that along with Bob Byrne, who could lend valuable scoring aid to next year's team, Jim Champlin, John Stevens, Jeff Griffith, and Charley Bok are all varsity candidates. In addition, Ken Reed, John Decker, and Matt Riddell also show promise for future varsity duties.

The most impressive game that the frosh played this year came at the expense of the University of Maine yearlings, whom they defeated by an 80-67 score.

Baseball Team Wins Two Games On Southern Trip

by Bruce Hertz

During Spring vacation the Mule baseball club took potluck to Southern competition and came back to Mayflower Hill with nothing more than a sour taste in the mouth. The team returned with a two won and six lost record. The Mules beat Wake Forest, and Fort Lee and lost two games to Fort Lee, one to Wake Forest, Camp LeJeune, Duke and Guilford. Rain spoiled two other scheduled games with LeJeune and Hampden-Sydney College.

On March 31, the Mules met the Army at Fort Lee in a three game series. The men of the South cut Colby down in the first game 4-3 with pitchers Jam Bridgeman and Tink Wagner giving up eight hits. Although the Mules had nine singles, the opposition had two extra-base hits that broke the Mule's back. Wagner was the loser. In a double-header the next day the Blue and Gray split the decisions with the military. Colby crushed Fort Lee in the first game 21-7 and lost the late game 4-1. The Mule stickmen swatted 18 hits, including doubles by Leighton and Carey. Tony Ferruci took the decision with assistance from Mulcahy and Lippincott. The trio allowed only six hits among them. In the second game Mule hitting collapsed and pitching sputtered and heaved under the weight of the Army bombardment. Losing pitcher Lippincott and reliever Tony Sarrica gave up nine hits and four runs. The White Mules gathered five hits, including a double by Bruce Waldman.

In Greensboro, North Carolina on April 3, Colby lost to Guilford College, 4-3. Colby had nine hits, but failed to capitalize, whereas Guilford had only seven hits, but forged ahead on two extra base raps. Ken Stone started for the Mules and Cal Pingree was the loser in relief.

In a double-header at Wake Forest, Colby again split the decision. Colby took the first game 4-1 and lost the second in a squeaker 6-5. The Blue and Gray batted eight hits one of them a double by catcher Mike Knox. Jim Bridgeman went the distance and won the decision, giving up only seven hits. In the second game, after a strong rally in the sixth on the virtue of Waldman's double and two triples. Bill Leighton, Bob Glennon, and Dick Bonalewicz also got singles. Wagner, Lippincott, and Mulcahy failed to hold the opposition down, allowing eight hits. Mulcahy was the loser.

The Blue Devils of Duke greeted the Mules with a 10-2 defeat in a game that was marked by four Colby errors and 13 Duke base hits, of which five were for extra bases. Colby could garner only six hits in support of loser Tony Ferruci. Camp LeJeune dealt Colby a loss in the last game of the Southern series, 4-0. Sarrica and Lippincott pitched this tilt, but again lacked support from Colby bats.

The main points that stopped the Blue and Gray were an excess of errors (almost two a game) and a lack of hits (eight hits a game with less than one extra base hit a game). Colby will play its opener against Williams today on the home field.

MULE KICKS

by Morg McGinley

John Simpson is the man you meet twice a week in your anchor section. There, much to your dismay, he is a demanding man — a Spartan, a hard, tough task-master. Ruthless and unrelenting, he demands and gets all manner of grueling exercises from flabby, puffing, straining Colby men. And, as if this injury were not enough, there is the addition of insult. Just when you are feeling proud of yourself for whisking through push-ups, the booming voice of the man at the front of the class tells you that his wife could herself do twice the number of exercises you have just completed. Humility is now complete.

That is why it seemed strange, yet very enjoyable, to sit in a comfortable chair, listening to the head coach speak of his plans for Colby football. I asked a few initial questions, then settled back to relax and let my host carry the bulk of the conversation.

Optimism was the keynote of the interview. Simpson had just returned from the initial spring workout, and he expressed the opinion that Colby has great football potential. He was pleased with the turnout of boys (43) and he said that he hoped future years would bring increasing numbers to the gridiron. He was quick to add that though he felt that steady improvements in football could be made, these should never be made at the expense of academics. "The type of boy we will be looking for," said Simpson, "is the boy who is first of all a good student, and above and beyond that, a good football player. I respect Colby's rigid academic requirements, and I believe that we can successfully compete with Ivy-League schools for boys who are at once scholars and athletes. The point of which we have to convince them is the value of life at a small school."

Talk now turned to the specifics of the game itself, and Simpson said that the basic offense would not change, although backfield coach Ken Weinbel has several innovations in mind to lend that much more zip to the attack. He stated that he plans to continue to use the "Drive" or "Belly" series. This series is based on the fullback's hits into the interior of the line. The quarterback rides into the line with the fullback, and finally gives him the ball, or fakes it to him and instead, gives it to one of the halfbacks. While many of the Mules' plays are run off a wing-T formation (one of the halfbacks is a flanker), Simpson indicated that Colby would use a straight T, split the ends, use a double wing-T, and any other twists which might help to upset the defense as much as possible.

In regard to the strong passing game that Colby has had in the past, Simpson was emphatic that this forte would continue. His words were, "When you have an All-New England end like Bruce Waldman, you're not anxious to change your passing game."

This year's schedule will be the same as the 1961 list of opponents, except that the University of New Hampshire will replace the University of Bridgeport. In scheduling UNH, a Yankee Conference member, the Mules will again be playing a much larger school. This fact didn't faze Simpson, who seemed confident that his charges will be able to take such opponents in stride. He pointed out that he will have a strong nucleus with which to work in the persons of Bing Beeson, Binky Smith, Dave Cox, Dick Bonalewicz, Charlie Carey, Bruce Waldman, Ken Palmer, Skip Thayer, Bob Drewes, Norm Dukes, Bill Olson, and Al Graceffa.

In regard to spring practice, Simpson stated that the boys are able to receive personal attention, and to work on developing individual abilities and correcting weaknesses. The advantage of spring ball is that there are no games to prepare for. Emphasis can be put on teaching fundamental blocking, tackling, and ball handling. In contrast, fall practices always present the problem of preparing for a game, so that coaches cannot afford the time to work with individuals. When autumn leaves are falling, the stress is rather on teamwork and the blending of eleven individuals into a smoothly-functioning unit. This year spring practice is being held from April 9 to April 20. Simpson said that daily drills last somewhat under two hours per session, and that boys may be excused from practice on days before hour tests or due-dates for papers. Thus, he felt, these practices are not too taxing academically.

Thaxter Tops In Free Throws

Captain Dave Thaxter of Colby's state championship basketball team was one of the nation's leaders in free-throw percentage in the season recently ended, according to final statistics released Monday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

The Freeport Senior had an .826% which placed him 24th in the U.S., and first in New England among small college players. In 26 games Thaxter scored 142 foul shots in 172 attempts.

N.A.C.B. Elects Lee Williams To Vice-Presidency

Lee Williams coach of Colby's Maine State Basketball Champions, was recently named First Vice-President of the 700 member National Association of Basketball Coaches of the United States.

The N.A.C.B. is composed of coaches from virtually every hoop-playing college in the country. It is instrumental in the formation of new rules and is the unifying body of college basketball coaches.

Prior to his election, Williams served on the eleven-man Board of Directors for nine years, edited the Association's publication, The Bulletin, for three years, was chairman of the Officials Committee, and a member of the Tournament and Review Committees.

He is also a member of the United States Olympic Committee, the body which names America's participants in the Pan American and Olympic games.

Coach Williams has done pretty well in Waterville too; he's collected 11 basketball championships in his 16 years here.

Colby Announces New Grid Coach, Weinbel, Named

Colby's new assistant coach in football is Kenneth T. Weinbel, formerly head coach at Sayville, New York High School. Weinbel will be Head Coach John Simpson's chief aide, and more specifically, will serve as backfield coach. He will, in addition, take over the varsity and freshman track program which Simpson has handled since 1958.

Regarding Weinbel's appointment Coach Simpson said: "He was the man whom we most sought after. I am extremely pleased that he has accepted the position. He has a sound background, and I am convinced that his personality and style are well-fitted to make a real contribution to Colby football."

Weinbel received his bachelor's degree from the State Teachers College at East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, and his master's degree from Hofstra College, Hempstead, N.Y. He was a varsity letterman in football and track at Stroudsburg and at the University of Pittsburgh.

Following release from military service, he was head football and baseball coach at James Blair High School in Williamsburg, Virginia. He resigned in 1956 to accept a year's appointment as assistant football coach at Malverne (N.Y.) High School.

During his coaching career he has produced four championship teams. In 1961 he was named all-league coach and was selected by the LONG ISLAND PRESS as coach-of-the-year.

Mules Tennis Boss Laments Paucity Of Seasoned Vets

Tennis Coach Mike Loebs faces the 1962 season with a scarcity of experienced performers. Only two lettermen returned from last year's team; they are Captain Elliott Wooscher and Junior Pete French. The squad, however, may be bolstered by the addition of two veterans who did not play last year, Doug Johnston and Dave Hunt. This tends to offset Loebs' grief at the loss of five lettermen from the '61 campaign.

Colby's season opens against a very strong MIT squad on April 19. Other opponents will be Lowell Tech, Babson Institute, Bates, Maine, Bowdoin, Tufts, and the University of New Hampshire. Coach Loebs picks MIT to have the most outstanding squad the Mules will face. With six lettermen returning at Bowdoin, the Polar Bears should be the favorite in Maine State Series competition.

The varsity has been working both outdoors on the hard tennis courts, and in the Alford Arena. Coach Loebs said that the success to be achieved will depend on the speed with which the sophomores and newcomers can adjust to varsity tennis competition.

Among the candidates for the team are Bob Marr, Phil Allison, Jim Crawford, Lloyd DuBois, Ed Griepkerl, Jack Lockwood, Jack Meham, Ben Phillips and Terry Rogers.

Colby Names All-Opponent Hoop Team

The universities of Rhode Island and Rochester dominate all-opponent selections which have been made by Colby College's basketball team. The White Mules named Rochester's six foot guard, Mike Berger, as "the most outstanding player" faced during the 26 game season. The Brooklyn, N.Y., senior, who netted 30 points against Colby in an 88-86 overtime win, also placed on the All-East Small College basketball team of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Berger and Dartmouth's Steve Spahn, are the guards on Colby's all-opponent quintet. At forwards are Captain Tom "Skip" Chapelle of Maine, and Charlie Lee of Rhode Island. St. Anslem's Tony Greer copped the center spot.

The tallest men faced by Colby were assigned to the second team: Jim Sweet, 6'7", of Rochester, and Gary Koenig, 6'6", of Rhode Island, at forwards; Fred Sayles, 6'5", of Amherst, and Dave Ricerto, 6'2", of Rhode Island, as guards.

The English Department announces the dates for prizes in public speaking and debate. BIRCH SOCIETY announced a contest which will be open to members of the senior class. A book prize — the titles to be chosen by the winner of the award — is annually given to the senior who has, during his or her four years in college, assembled the best collection of books.

Each senior who wishes to enter his collection of books in the contest should notify the librarian to that effect. Before the beginning of the spring recess, the senior should place in the hands of the librarian a typed list of his books, arranging them by authors, alphabetically, with place and date of publication. No title should be placed on the list unless the book is physically present in the student's possession at the college. The typed list should be accompanied by a brief paragraph stating the purpose and reasons for collecting the books owned.

Announcement of the winner will be made at a meeting of the Colby Library Associates and, whenever it is feasible to do so, the winning collection of books will be placed on exhibition in the Miller Library. The prize, awarded in the form of books chosen by the winner, will be presented at Recognition Assembly in May. The number of books will be governed, of course, by their price; the size of the prize is determined partly by the endowment given by the Class of 1941. For further information, apply to John R. McKenna, Secretary, Colby Library Associates.

Don't ever dare to take your college as a matter of course — because, like democracy and freedom, many people you'll never know anything about have broken their hearts to get it for you.

Carny, Tourney, Sing, Faculty Show Highlight CC Drive

With the return of spring comes Campus Chest, the annual drive to earn money through school activities in order to enable deprived, minority, and needy people to have opportunity for an education. This year's $1200 goal will be fulfilled not only through the efforts of a hard-working committee, but also by the cooperation of the students and faculty, who we hope will contribute $1.00 apiece through participation in some of the following numerous entertainments.

Already begun is the Lucky Buck contest, in which everyone who gives $1.00 has a chance at winning one of the two $5.00 prizes offered. The money is being collected by Cindy Fisher in the girls' dorms, Bud Fields in the mens' dorms, and Dusty Rhodes in the fraternities between Tuesday, April 10th, and Friday, the thirteenth.

Those numerous Spa bridge addicts will be interested in hearing that another Bridge tournament is being offered this year. For only a quarter, partners may register with Jane Melanson to play competitively against both faculty and students for the prizes.

The various organizations on campus are now preparing their booths for the Campus Carnival coming this Wednesday, April eighteenth, at Runnals Union from 7:30 to 10:00. The games food, and fun promise to be even better than last year, promise co-chairmen Jo-Ann Winze and Jess Marchese. This could be because an enticing plaque, offered to the most financially successful and most original idea, has remarkably stimulated the enthusiasm and originality of all of the participants.

The announcement of this and other awards will be made following Greek Sing, at the fabulous Faculty Show. More will be said about this unique display of hidden staff talent in later articles. Meanwhile, everyone has all of the other activities enabling both fun and opportunity to participate in for furthering the education of students.

The money collected will be distributed in three areas. Six hundred dollars is to be given to the World University Service, a nationwide organization which distributes donated funds among universities and colleges all over the world so that they can buy text books and supply funds for buildings. The United Negro Scholarship Service and Fund will receive three hundred dollars to aid in its financial awards to needy young students who otherwise would be unable to attend college. The remaining three hundred dollars will go to the Bixler Scholarship. This was established by the Colby Parents' association in 1960. Its aim is to give financial aid to students who have done well academically cannot remain in college because of insufficient funds.

All of these donations are established so that students are able to aid other, less fortunate students. We here at Colby can help by giving what we are able to Campus Chest, and making the $1200 goal a reality.

Happy Spring

So you're all coming to Dogpatch—well, you've picked the right time of year. April 21 is the biggest day we have 'round here, specially for all you unmarried folks. Reason it's so big is on account of becuz it's Sadie Hawkins Day.

In case some of you don't know about Sadie Hawkins and her party, here's the scoop. The event was begun by one Hekyebiah Hawkins. (He was the first Mayor of Dogpatch.) His daughter, Sadie, was 'bout the homeliest gal around. So he figured the only way he could get rid of her would be by givin' a party, so he throwed the biggest ball Dogpatch ever seed. At the ball was held a foot race where the unmarried men were chased by the unmarried women. Whatever man was caught by one of these women by law he had to marry her, and couldn't say nothing. This was such a popular event that it's been goin' on here ever since. Every year regular.

Reckon this is a purty day for all the women folk of these here parts — but don't you men think its not one fer you too — cuz it is! You are the ones what always have "foot the bills" but not this time. The women who you was trapped by's gotta handle the money department all day from sunrise to sunset. She must meet all fiscal obligations. You men just tell her what you want and she can't say nothin! Chance like this doesn't come too often.

Of course the most important event of the day will be the all college Sadie Hawkins spaghetti dinner and dance. This is goin' to be held at the Runnals Union of Dogpatch. The supper will be from 6 til 7:30, and the square dance commences at 8. And this whole stupendous evenin' for the mere price of $2.00 per couple. Course each gal will make her man a corsage, and once he is trapped in the building, Marrin' Sam Bill Bryan will be on hand with legal marrin' licenses and genuine brass weddin' rings.

The members of Delta Delta Delta will sponsor this whole affair and all proceeds that they get go toward a competitive scholarship which they give to worthy women students in the spring.

All you women folk take notice of this — your one chance to catch that special man in Dogpatch, and you gents — you can throw away your money bags because you 'won't need 'em Sadie Hawkins Day.

FRIEDRICH DISCUSSES

alism. Cultural communities are developing and solidifying throughout the world: India, China, Africa, Latin America, England and the Commonwealth, Europe, the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. These communities are moving in the direction of federal organization, "providing for unity in diversity."

However, the communities of the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. do not have the same type of cultural basis as the other areas. They rest on a "creedal" or convictional basis. Mr. Friedrich demonstrated this by pointing out that one could become an American or Soviet citizen, but he could not become an Indian or Chinese. The U.S. and the U.S.S.R.

have an "ecclesiastical" basis, while the other communities have a familial one, Mr. Friedrich said.

Because of their ecclesiastical bases, the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. are characterized by a "universalist thrust" of their convictions. One attempts to prepare the world for democracy and the other attempts to prepare the world for communism. The fact that neither the U.S. nor the U.S.S.R. can surrender its creedal basis, implies an "inbuilt conflict situation."

The one leverage principle which exists in the situation is the common commitment of both creeds to universal peace. Competition between the communities may be carried on by means other than warfare.

Mr. Friedrich continued by noting that the present close relations between France and Germany illustrate the culturalism which he had been discussing. The two countries have been always culturally complementary, "sharing a passion for the cultural elements of life." About them converge the cultures of Italy, the Low Countries, Scandinavia, Greece, and Spain. Among all these countries, there has been a strong sense of cultural community which is now becoming politically significant.

Mr. Friedrich went on to say that the function of NATO is to bind the three complexes together in order to cope with the U.S.S.R., her satellites, and—possibly—China. A unified central military alliance is essential, due to the rapid development and complexity of weapons technology. Because the enemy is centrally controlled, it is necessary to have a common weapons strategy in the Atlantic community. These facts point to the probability of NATO overcoming its less important problems which now appear as "cracks in the wall."

Mr. Friedrich feels that NATO's strength will grow and French Prime Minister de Gaulle does not represent a real threat to its solidity. He said that de Gaulle is really an extraordinary EUROPEAN man, in spite of his desire for the restoration of "la grandeur de la Grande Nation." De Gaulle identifies himself with France, but at the same time recognizes the "complexes" of the other nations and the importance of Europe and unification. He wants the vital stake of continental Europe to be recognized, militarily and organizationally in the NATO structure. Mr. Friedrich feels that significant transformations in these directions, now that France is relatively free of entanglements in Algeria, will be forthcoming.

M. Friedrich concluded by saying that there is a problem in NATO organization in that it is made of democratic nations. Due to the fact that the internal political developments of any member nation may change direction, there is a continuing threat to the consistence and persistence of the alliance. It is partly this reason that Mr. Friedrich was reluctant to make his predictions on the "Prospects for the Atlantic Community."

Gabe Lecturer Hopeful For True Atlantic Union

On Thursday, March 20, Clarence K. Streit, author of UNION NOW, and president of the International Movement for Atlantic Union, spoke at Colby College. Streit declared that his purpose was to transform the present Atlantic Alliance into a true Atlantic Union. The Union would begin in a process similar to the way the thirteen states formed a federal government. Streit would make the citizen sovereign, by uniting people and dividing the power of the government. Each state of his proposed union would have some sovereignty. Such a Union, Streit maintained, could form the nucleus of an eventual world government.

Streit was hopeful that an Atlantic Union could be established. Similar unions were formed in United States history in 1789, and also in Canada and Switzerland. In other words, there is a great amount of tested experience to go by. In addition, great progress in the cause of Atlantic Union has been made. NATO and the United Nations are examples where American participation has been the result of a growing realization that "Our oceans are not vast enough to protect us any longer." Finally, an Atlantic Convention has been held, and a commission has been formed to draw up a contract within two years for an Atlantic Union.

tion otherwise unattainable by each.

Mr. Gula noted, in support, that the faculty was unaware, in many cases, that the College's dormitory facilities were closed during Spring Vacation, thus making it impossible for a student to remain on campus in order to work more closely to his teachers and the Miller Library. Student representation on the appropriate faculty committee would have insured the faculty's awareness of this legitimate student complaint.

DISCUSSES PLAN FOR FUTURE

It was indicated that among Mr. Miller's first major enterprizes upon assuming office April 23 would be an attempt to revitalize the religious life of the campus.

Mr. Miller has long been disturbed by the lack of a viable religion in evidence anywhere about the College. No specific details were as yet available, but Mr. Miller noted that the decisions as to which, if any, of the planks of the Pink Elephant raft — or any other party platform — should be considered by Student Government will have to be the decision of the new Executive Board and Student Council, or of interested students.

In other election results, Robert I. Wise was elected Social Chairman of the College. An approximate 3-2 margin in favor was received by the proposed Honor System, which has now to receive faculty and administration approval before going into effect. The January Plan received overwhelming student support in a vote taken to assess, on its most general level, student reaction to the first January experiment. Due to irregularities in the election for NSA coordinator, the results were invalidated and another election will be held at the same time elections are held for class officers. Stu-G has requested that interested juniors get their petitions in as soon as possible.

If protest is to be effective, however, those who participate must be well-informed; furthermore, new people must be attracted to the peace movement. A good educational program is necessary in order to achieve these objectives, and here we would endorse study groups and training sessions such as those about to be conducted by the Brandeis Peace Group. We also believe that more participation by the faculty is necessary — some teachers called off classes on February 16 and a few went to Washington; but this, praise worthy as it is, is not enough. We therefore call upon all faculty members who share our concern to make their opinions known.

Perhaps all efforts to prevent war will meet with the same failure as Sisyphus' attempts to roll his rock up the mountain . . . yet, as Camus said, "At each of those moments when he leaves the heights and gradually sinks toward the lairs of the gods, he is superior to his fate. He is stronger than the rock."

Flemish Tapestry Gift To Colby

An important 16th century Flemish tapestry has been given to the Colby College art collection by Eugene Bernat of Milton, Mass., in memory of his father, Emil Bernat. It has been placed in the foyer of the Bixler Art and Music Center. Made in the early 1500's in Flanders, the tapestry is an allegory on blind justice. Historians believe that it was woven to be hung in a town hall to remind the magistrates of their duties. Blind Justice is depicted as a woman, blind-folded on a wheel, pouring money from a purse while figures from all walks of life look on. The 11 x 16 foot tapestry is but one of several gifts, including the Bernat collection of Chinese pottery, made to Colby by the Massachusetts benefactor. He is a member of the advisory council of the Friends of Art at Colby.
