LEFT ON!

by Leonard Hubris

Editor's note: Mr. Hubris is an internationally known pederast and amateur chiropodist. His works include The Holy Bobble. From 1963 to 1968 he served as photographic consultant of The New Republic. In 1969 he became sports editor of Business Weak. This year he went on welfare. He once saw a moose, and he bites his nails. He wrote this article for free.)

On Friday afternoon a group of 136 students calling themselves The Left-Handed Complement apparently decided things were becoming boring on campus and began an occupation of left field at Ersatz Field, home of the Coolie College varsity baseball team. The group, which claims to represent all of the left-handed students at Cookie College, have said they will remain camped in left field until all of their demands for equality are met. And they will paint the grass puce. Supporters have donated a sterno stove and 21 Twinkies to keep the demonstrators alive during their vigil. Just before their perfectly orchestrated takeover, Complement members "left" flyers around the campus which declared their indignation and demands. The notices read as follows:

"Whereas there has existed throughout recorded history organised, calculated, premeditated, and (yea, even) malicious discrimination against the left-handed men, women, and children of the Universe, we the Left-Handed Complement of Coldy College have had it up to here. FACT: In the third century in central Africa left-handed babies were murdered at birth. FACT: Numerous pre-frontal lobotomies were performed in Greece during the reign of Alexander the Great in an unsuccessful search (of dubious legality) for a surgical remedy to the condition. FACT: Because he was left-handed the great Leonardo da Vinci has been labeled a homosexual. So has Charlton Heston. Even today, left-handed schoolchildren are forced to write with their paper sideways so their writing will lean the way the right-handed fascisti say it should, resulting in countless bent corners. And even baseball, our great and noble country's national pastime, is designed intentionally to exclude left-handed shortstops. Not to mention scissors, Skil saws, bowling alleys, and entire golf courses. This cannot and must not go on. We will remain out in left field and stick pins in each other's elbows until all of the following demands have been met:

OUR BILL OF LEFTS

1) The words "gauche" and "sinister" will henceforth mean "graceful" and "wholesome" respectively. Webster's Dictionary will be so amended. Old editions will be buried in the Urals.

2) No one will ever be left behind or left out again. No one will say those words.

3) Leftovers will be served first on Thanksgiving and Christmas, starting today.

4) Handshakes will be given with the left hand.

5) Everyone will fire Right Guard and hire ours.

6) All fountain pens will be fixed so we can use them without a) digging a hole in our paper and b) getting ink on our hand.

7) There will be a percentage of left-handed desks at Cobly College proportionate to the number of left-handed students. They will not be at the far end of the room, but integrated with the other type.

8) The Admissions Office will determine the national proportions of left-handed people and if Cocky's student body is below the national average left-handed students will be sought out, recruited, given scholarship preference, and always talked to in a nice way even if they bite you on the leg.

9) All doorknobs on campus will be on the left of the door. On both sides.

10) Toilets will be switched to right-hand flush.

11) Everyone will write backwards on March 13, Millard Fillmore's birthday.

12) All mirrors will henceforth reverse images from top to bottom instead of from left to right.

13) No left-handed person will be permitted to fall down or cough.

14) Courses in Hebrew and Japanese will be compulsory for all right-handed people.

15) And anything else that's left.

These demands are non-negotiable and should not be used as legal tender, unless you're right-handed and therefore deserve to be impounded anyway by someone."

President Strident immediately issued a statement questioning the legitimacy of the group's claim to representation of all left-handed people on campus. He noted that he "once knew a man who was left-handed and

BATTLE OF PEA SOUP,

FOUGHT ON THE

FIFTY-TWELFTH DAY OF ROTTENSTICKS

by Tim Carey

More people regularly attend the big-time professional wrestling bouts at the Waterville Armory than listened to Janis Joplin in that same building three years ago. The crowds seem to appreciate the wrestling a lot more, too.

Wrestling is its own subculture, with its own sets of rules, regulations, social pecking orders, and its own very special breed of fan. They scream, froth at the mouth, and some, perhaps even the proverbial old lady with the hatpin, have been known to attack "bad guy" wrestlers physically. In the simple world of wrestling, everything is black and white, good and evil. The bad guys are sometimes just plain mean (killer Lowolski with his dreaded claw hold), but more often their evil is based on politics. Wrestling is filled with unreconstructed Nazis, sly Japanese, and stupid Russians. However, the conflict is virtually never on racial lines. In fact, the promoters, in the best story-book American tradition, seem to encourage minorities to rise in the wrestling hierarchy. The current men's champion, Pedro Morales, is Puerto Rican, and word has it on the circuit that the next champion will be Black.

By dint of great good luck, and a little chutpza, the Echo succeeded in obtaining an interview with the Fabulous Moolah, women's heavyweight wrestling champion since 1956. When asked how she responded to cynics who claimed that the sport was fixed, and the punches pulled (some observers claim to be able to hear the code words signalling the next stunt pass between the wrestlers as they fly past each other in the ring), Moolah replied, "I tell them to get up and try it." No one present seemed willing to contest anything said by the leopard skin clad, slightly simian looking Moolah. Moolah trains by doing over two hundred sit-ups a day, and also keeps out of nightclubs.

When asked whether she used weights to keep in shape, Moolah replied, "No, I don't believe in weights... People want to see a woman up there, not a man." Moolah is married (since the age of fifteen) has one child, and is from Columbia, South Carolina (almost all of the woman wrestlers are from the South). She is an exception to the rule: a champion with an evil image. Moolah is good at maintaining her image. Shortly after this reporter finished speaking with the demurely smiling Moolah, she chased a nine-year-old autograph hunter across the floor of the armory. Later that night, she easily defeated her opponent, Jan Sheridan, but, predictable, she had to use every dirty trick in the book to do it (gouging, choking, rubbing salt in her eyes, etc.).

HOOGAN

by Gary Curtis
Waterville Maine (uapi)

It was discovered here yesterday that Charles "Chuck" Hoogan, campus political heavy, has for several weeks been harboring five "chicks" in his room. Colby Rag reporters were on hand as twenty-three riot-equipped cops, led by Hansel Gretel, raided the premises at 227 Pepper. "Hoogan knows that it's illegal to keep animals in his room," Gretel explained, as the baby chickens were efficiently maced and hauled away by B. and G. staffers. Hoogan speaking to reporters just before he himself was formally arrested, cited other reasons for the raid. "The boys in Useless are out to get me for my radical stand on the College Calendar," he maintained, "and this gives them an excuse."

There were further rumors that the chickens had appeared abused. "My only question is what Hoogan does with these chicks at night," Gretel quipped, "some of their feathers look pretty ruffled." Hoogan replied to the accusation: "I think the little fluffy things are really cute," he stated,

"but our relationship is strictly platonic."

Hoogan was then charged by Gretel with the violation of both college rule 456342, and the Barnyard Fowl section of the Maine civil code; the latter is the controversial "Anti-Chicken Law," that many experts feel is unconstitutional. As Hoogan was led away, he gave the clenched-fist salute to a large crowd of three Colby students who were milling around outside the door of Pepper. The angry, morally-concerned students responded with clenched fists and cries of "Don't fuck Chuck!" The chanting continued as Chuck and the chickens were driven away.

In other developments here, the three students who had been present at Hoogan's arrest charged Gretel with harassment because of the six parking tickets that B. and G. personnel had placed on each of their cars. The students were reported considering forming two committees; one committee to investigate means to protest Hoogan's arrest, and another committee to investigate the aforementioned committee. "This arrest sets a dangerous precedent for political repression at Colby," one of the three was reported as saying.

who went to security prison," and urged extreme unction in dealing with the radical leftists. The President then called the Bouville police to arrest the petitioners and put them in a bus, but Bouville Mayor Kiwi answered the phone and told the President to "buzz off" and go find his own police force. The President termed the Mayor's behaviour "rational" and attributed it to "Spring Fever." He then began reciting a passage from Oscar Wilde and numerous unidentified students flew with precipitation. The campus security force has as yet been unable to remember where the baseball field is. In a related item, college athletic director Don Nod expressed his support of the varsity baseball coach in his request that a new field made entirely of shredded platinum be flown in from Tierra del Fuego. "That guy is my favorite person," said Nod. Most of the other people we interviewed were either out to lunch, or expressed heated apathy, or threw rocks at the moon.

Maccramo, Fob, class Of '74, and spokeswoman for the demonstrators, told this reporter, "We've exhausted every other viable means to shake up these meatballs, and that's why this dramatically trendy and, if I may say so, plucky, action was necessary. I hope we get on TV. I withdrew from school three days ago so I have nothing to lose. Don't tell those other guys they've been expelled and disinherited until I've had an hour's head start. Left On, brother!" She then left, on her brother.

AMERICAN ISOLATIONIST AND INTERVENTIONIST POLICIES: EXPRESSIONS OF NATIONAL SITZ-IM-LEBEN

by M. Battock, W. Haley, L. Kranich, R. Levine, M. Perkins, M. Wynne

America in the 1930's underwent a substantial change in national opinion before it reached the period after World War II. Yet, although the two opinions seem to be nearly opposite, it is clear that they arose from the same source. Consistent with this notion is the idea that continuity founded on manifest destiny doesn't make one f----- bit of difference. But the emotionality of the populous of these abreactional periods is only a manifestation of the inherent qualities that have been passed down and desimated to wider and wider circles that were trying to emanate the American ideals as opposed to its norms. The grassroots of the American philosophies of isolationism and of interventionism are actually the same.

There is wide room for a specific and magnanimous divergence of philosophical and historically scientific thinking along these lines, but that never stopped anyone before this. As all roads lead to Rome, so also must all treatises concerning this topic recognize the pre-eminence of manifest destiny as a shaper in the foundry of American syations. Of course, statistical analysis of the surveys of America in the 1930's underwent a substantial change due to the progress in copulation methods, and reveals new horizons in this area. The cosmic unity of these philosophic attitudes is seen in the similarity between the Great Wall of China and the New York Tombs, one locking out and the other in.

Traditionalists along this line have never believed in the one on one relationship, between these two seemingly irrelevant concepts, which this article will attempt to prove. On the other hand the well-known theory of military intelligence being a function of transvestitism shows the essential stupidity of all theories of military strategy. However, as we have shown in the preceeding paragraphs, there is a great chance that this great United States of America (as it sinks so very slowly into the very great Atlantic Ocean) will again arise as one of the most fantastic and unreal countries that this great world has seen, as has been referred to in the Koran, "Truth is a part of life and this is a very truthful ment"(of course only those that are not of the highest mentality and have possession of the most supreme thinking process will not see the great value of what has been written by these brilliant authors). Pardon the above transgressions: as all tentacles of the great squid must return to the ink bladder, so all formulations of the above and somewhat precocious sylism must return to the womb of that all encompassing primordial segment of manifest destiny. However, considering the Protestant Ethnic and its inevitable conflict with the norms in opposition to the American ideals which the Pack und Pobel have embraced have become the wirtschaftwunden of a disillusioned populous that is trying to work through traumatic revelations caused by such a shocking display of sinews of the American mentality. As these and other concepts are related to the rugged individualism of the early American, a level of existence still extant in Maine, and it is from these origins that the overall study of foreign policy of the period 1935 to 1950 must be instituted.

Consider the situation existant in a small upstate New York town in 1937 when Harry Sims looked at his gorgeous new bride over his Buffalo Courier-Express and said, "War sucks," compared to the same two people celebrating their 15th wedding anniversary just 15 years later, coincidentally, on which occasion Julia turned to her slightly paunchy husband and said, "We gotta go out and kill them f----- red bastards"...this is the fabric from which the cloth of American opinion was woven. Trivialities cloud the issue, what is at stake is more cogent, more pendantically absurd then we could ever have imagined, so therefore let us brace ourselves for the final encounter and, as all sloth leads to nowhere, remember that there'll be a hot, hot time in Passaic, New Jersey, when the Hindenburg land tonight. Almost at the pinnacle, the crescendo, the last flutter of the propeller, the only remaining comment before, as "Lucky Lindy", we look back on the American coast and our families and that special girl which we might never see again, is that only by leaving may we arrive, even though it may be from the New World to that which we call the old. This is the crux, for all that was new is now of age and growing old, the wall that locks out becomes one which locks in, isolationism flowers into interventionism, peace to war to peace and thence over the rainbow.

The prime male baddies of the evening were the red-masked, sinister Russians #1 and #2. One can tell Russian #1 from Russian #2 because Russian #1 has a hooked nose. They specialize in strutting, cheating, and Nikita Krushchev imitations. Their actual origins, however, are somewhat murky, as shown by this verbatim conversation with Russian #1:

Echo: "Excuse me, may I ask you a few questions? I'm a reporter from the Colby Echo."

Russian #1: "I only speak leetle bit English."

Echo: "Oh...Well, where are you from?"

Russian #1: "Czechoslovakia."

Echo: "Really, where in Czechoslovakia?"

Russian #1: "Warsaw."

Russian #2 later that evening lost to men's world champion Pedro Morales, who put up with Russian #2's shennigans with the patience of Richard M. Nixon, but finally lashed out, bouncing him off the mat a few times, and pinning him with a shoulder press. The crowd spotted every commie trick of Russian #2 before the referee did, and helpfully pointed them out to him. The price of freedom is eternal vigilance. The price of wrestling shows is $2.50.

Few of us ever realized what a hip faculty and administration Colby is blessed with till we witnessed the fifth first annual Spring-Fling last week. This year's MC was funky Mike DeSisto (John Clark had a previous engagement) but a special guest appearance by Bobby made it an evening to remember.

Although all faculty and administrators were invited, students came by invitation only but most walked because the event was held in the pit.

Harry Carroll checked invitations at the door while Ed Witham checked IDs at the bar. Mike started the night off spinning some heavy tunes including "Sugar, Sugar", "Billy and Sue", and the newest WMHB chart buster "Puppy Love".

The Spring-Fling has always been a fashionable evening and this year was no exception. John Sutherland made the scene in a smashing one-piece purple jump suit and penny loafers. Bill Wyman drew some oohs and aahs when he appeared in green leather bells, a black chiffon shirt, and his KDR-Fairfield outlet cowboy boots. His wife, Jane, was stunning in her pink hotpants and tough knee-high yellow boots.

The Fling theme was "He ain't heavy he's my brother" and Jim Gillespie fit it perfectly with blue wide-whale corduroy bells and a flesh-colored suede body shirt.

Everybody was dressed for the occasion except Sandy Maisel who must have thought he was going to a beach party on Johnson Pond. Clam diggers, sneakers, and a "Surfs Up" T-shirt didn't quite make it. Better luck next year, Sandy.

Most wasted no time in getting out on the dance floor and when Mike threw on "Simon Says" Lucy Zukowski and Earl Junghans stole the show with their boogaloo. But they lost the spotlight when Liz Pestana and George Maier got into the funky chicken.

Sally Chester caught Fred Gillum sneaking into the stacks and before he knew it they were monkey-ing to "Last Train to Clarksville".

Sally, who made it in her "I Luv Bobby" sweater, was just one of a number of students who were lucky enough to be invited. The social committee had somewhat arbitrarily decided on a 15 to 1 faculty/student ratio for the party.

I think Ken Eisen was kind of awed by the whole

The Kinney Group, a conglomerate that took over Atlantic, Elektra and Warner-Reprise Records in the 1970's, today announced acquisition of the last independent label in North America---Foonman Records, a bootleg label which was operating out of a cellar in Bayonne, N. J.

When asked how the Kinney Group had accomplished such an incredible feat in such a short time, a spokesman said: "We made them an offer they couldn't refuse."

You all remember the group Chicago and their voter registration drive in 1971-72. Well, they've relocated and consequently have changed their name. Now based in 'Saskatoon'. Saskatchewan, the 62 piece group has just released a 52 record set that was recorded live at their recently constructed palace over the past four years. Also included in the subtle gold lamé package that you can use as a storefront, is a complete listing of the FBI's ten most wanted men, a full list of Sheraton Hotels world-wide, all campaign contributions by every candidate who ever ran for anything, a complete 16 track studio kit for anyone so inclined, and a neon sign.

Notes from the underground:

Rolling Stone Magazine, the oldest rock rag in the U.S., has now officially become the largest selling paper-magazine in the country. This is most impressive considering new laws forcing it to be sold under the counter.

Co-editor of Rolling Stone and the oldest living hippie, Ralph J. Gleason, says that Rolling Stone is selling best now among Madison Avenue financiers and government officials, while there has been a marked decline in sales among those under 30.

situation while Swift Tarbell hung on every note and considered taking the whole affair to Stu-J. The only awkward moment of the evening for the ever groovy Steve Rappaport was when he asked Paul Sacks to dance. Steve Self got the Fagawi punch mixed up with the lemonade and tried to get a game of ball hockey going with Priscilla Doel and Doris Downing.

A number of campus heavies didn't make the scene. Tom Economos was in Roberts making brownies, Chris Pinkham was worrying about his graduation speech, and Si Nahra was trying to think of something to run in place of this article.

As the time for Bobby's appearance neared, a picket line of about 200 Dana girls led by Dave Stratman formed in front of Miller library. They carried signs protesting the exploitation of Bobby's body without their being present. Meanwhile in back of the library John Winkin headed a group of Woodman boys in protest against the sexist practices of the faculty social committee for not inviting Racquel Welch.

On the north side of the library all the dogs on campus massed for a protest but their demands were unclear. A spokesman for the group bit this reporter.

Luckily, Bobby snuck into the library through the backdoor of the Spa disguised as a campus cop. Once in the Spa he rapped for a while with John

The Federal Communications Commission has tightened up its censorship rules once more. and Pete over a Colby eight and a molotov cocktail. Bobby was promised a job as a sammy man when he got tired of singing.

Back in the pit the Fagawi punch was taking its toll. Paul Jenson called an emergency meeting of EPC under the lion and Ronnie Williams released the entire budget to the plaque commemorating Colby's Civil War dead.

Earl Smith tried to maintain some semblance of order but he was struck down by Irv Suss' boom-erang amendment which never really came back to him. It bounced off the wall and hit Tom Mor-rione who was telling Frank Parker about the time Ricky Nelson came to Colby and how this kind of thing can be explained in terms of prime secondary groups which can't tell the difference between a norm, a taboo, and a lot of baloney.

People started getting on Mike when he played "Yummy, Yummy, Yummy I Got Love in my Tummy" for the third time. They were getting tired of rating that tune and doing Stridex commercials. At last it was time.

Suddenly there he was like a knight in shining armour that had fallen in a mud puddle. He stood at the top of the pit steps in a silver and brown pantsuit, black motorcycle boots, shades, and a "Draft Beer" button. Bobby was here!

He shouted something to the screaming crowd which was immediately translated by Pete Westervelt. I missed it but it was something about freely translated. Bobby picked up the mike and burst into "Never Tell Your Mother She's Out of Tune". This brought the crowd to its feet as many remembered the hit off his first album.

He followed with his other hits "My First Night Without You", "Southern Man", "I Would Have Loved You Even If You Didn't Like Six Minute Eggs", "Duke of Earl", "Why Man Won't You Listen". After this last song came the shout "Right on, Elvis." But Don Koons straightened Dave Bridgman out in short order.

Bobby took a Spa break and Carl Nelson attended to Charlie Bassett, Bob Kany, and John Mizner who all found the performance a little too heavy.

But after a greek egg and a ring ding this long haired idol of millions returned to do "C'est Moi" which Jean Bundy really dug. Belting out a few other new songs Bobby closed with probably his biggest hit of all. "Albert, Albert, Albert Do You

The famous secret "Endless Festival" in Marin County, Calif. of 1970 has begun anew. Backed by members of the Jefferson Airplane and the Rolling Stones, the festival is planned to be continuous and will provide full-time jobs for those interested, free music from noon to midnight every day, and food and shelter for all. Promoters say that money is no problem, but due to the new noise pollution law that has set the noise limit at 4 decibels, it has become increasingly difficult to find a suitable site.

Playboy Magazine has announced its annual All-Star Jazz and Pop Band. For the 20th year in a row Paul McCartney has been selected best bassist, despite the fact he gave up music six years ago for farming.

Experimental sound technicians who five years ago gave you octasonic sound equipment, have something new in the works---direct musical relay. This idea, first conceived back in 1971 in Waterville, Maine, has been developed to the point of adequacy. Simply, wires are connected to the proper sense areas of the body slightly below the skin level and a rubber disc is implanted in the skin near the wrist. Whenever a person wants music, he or she merely plugs in and gets direct musical relay to the body and mind. This technique by-passes the ears to prevent damage and also eliminates the cost of speakers, amplifiers, etc. The only drawback thus far has been to find a mean standard that human beings will be able to tolerate.

Long playing stereo records, which gave way to 8 track cartridges and cassettes, which gave way to video cassettes, are making a comeback. The plan is to minimize costs to the consumer and maximize sound quality reproduction.

The Firesign Theatre, a bunch of four west coast crazies, have created an audio-visual satire on Atlantic Records' "Environments" Series. This three record set characterizes and portrays the nature of the current Environmental Crisis. Included in the package is a short segment on the recent nuclear skirmish in Kansas; an hour sequence of tidal waves in the now fully-polluted Pacific Ocean; and 6200 silkscreen posters of the sky in various stages of decomposition.

Sky Falling?

The following is an excerpt from a report by atmospheric specialists of the Air-Breathless of America:

"All evidence seems to point to the fact that the sky is falling. Measurements of the altitude of the mean density of the atmosphere indicate a total drop of 6 kilometers in the past fifteen months. Moreover the rate at which this is occurring seems to be increasing. Most scientists here are at a loss in attempting to explain the phenomenon although some suggest that it may be due to the increased porosity of the earth's crust. At the present rate of fall, the sky will hit the ground in 15 to 20 years. In the mean time several airlines have requested that the Federal Aeronautics Administration drastically lower the mean permissible flight pattern altitude."

Conspiracy

In a press conference last Monday Ralph Nader's Special Task Force charged that the Federal Government is responsible for those mysterious events going on in Oak Ridge, New Mexico. The Atomic Energy Commission has detonated several underground 1 megaton bombs in the past decade in that area. It seems now that huge air compressors are being set up by Army specialists at the entrances to the huge dome shaped underground caverns created by those blasts. In addition Nader charges huge portable air liquification units are now operating within the blast caverns. It is Nader's contention that the government intends to secure substantial quantities of air within the domes. He called attention to the fact that the total capacity of all the blast domes combined is roughly equivalent to 6.5×10^{16} cubic miles (or the entire atmosphere of the earth to an altitude of eight miles).

Interviews

Sometime between January and June, just about every member of the Senior class undergoes an acute attack of the "Oh-Jesus-I'm-a-gonna-graduate's." On June fourth, in an event resembling birth shock, the members of the class of 1972 will have to find Something To Do. The ideal solution is, of course, not to graduate at all, an option favored by an increasing number of Colby students this year, who, either through an inability to pass the language requirement, a bad first semester, or incorrect addition as to how many credit hours they had to go, will rejoin the Colby community next year.

But most Seniors will either be going on to some kind of graduate school (the next best thing to crawling back into the womb), or will search for a job, usually not because they like what they will be doing, but rather as a means of living (which, as opposed to dying, has been chosen by at least 52% of Colby students, according to a recent survey). Either way, the applicant will almost surely have to endure ("experience" is definitely not the word for it) an interview, so that his future school/employer may see that he/she is witty, a good conversationalist, a spiffy dresser, and not a junkie.

Interviews, whether at Colby or anywhere else, are invariably held in "interview rooms," which are about seven feet long, six feet wide, and fifteen feet high, apparently designed for the maximum Gestapo

A government spokesman yesterday denied what he described as "those irresponsible unpatriotic allegations" and refused to make any further comments. Meanwhile the Department of Defense has slapped a security lid on the entire area and has cordoned off the area of 74 square miles in New Mexico surrounding Oak Ridge claiming that Army Engineers are turning the caverns into underground amusement parks.

Just how much ass one chooses to kiss (or, how far up the boot to lick) is up to the individual and his conscience. Here, I will only attempt to set forth a few of the more crucial points concerning interviews, and some ways of approaching these crisis points.

Dress: Dress sets the tone for the entire interview, and there are certain key levels of acceptability: Tie for men, dress for women. If the firm has anything whatsoever to do with New York City, a Technicians at the Pepsi-Cola Center for Pollution Research claim to have developed a completely edible beverage container. They claim that this edible can will provide 22.5% of the minimum daily adult requirements for protein as established by the National Bureau of Foods. It is reportedly made of chocolate flavored plastic.

Oil

Atlantic-Richfield Corporation has announced the discovery of a new major source of oil... the ocean surface! Atlantic-Richfield estimates that there is enough oil (over a billion barrels) on the ocean surface to supply the energy needs of the U.S. until the year 2000. The corporation proposes that an expensive network of floating pipelines and collector units be constructed over U.S. territorial waters. The company states that the pipeline can serve as dining units at public beaches as well. In addition the oil lobby in Washington introduced late yesterday a bill that the twelve mile limit which the U.S. now claims be extended to 400 miles! Key legislators indicate that the chances for passage of the bill appear good.

Litter

Moving forward in his national pollution control program President Nixon this week signed into law the National Anti-littering Act. This bill attempts to control litter at its source by making the act of littering a federal criminal offense with a fine of up to $1000. In signing the bill, President Nixon stated that "the cooperation of every American is urged in stopping this insidious threat to the environment." The "get tough" policy of the Administration led to a White House demonstration by hordes of pro-litter demonstrators who protested what one demonstrator called "this travesty against our inherent right to litter protected by freedom of speech in the first Amendment of the Constitution."

Finally.... the President's Commission on Social Reality revealed that "things are getting better and better every day!"

three piece suit with boutonniere is suggested. Many applicants prefer to tailor their dress to the area they are applying for (work-boots for Vermont, cravats for California). A certain studied sloppiness, such as leaving one button unbuttoned on your button-down collar, may lend a little dignity to your show, proving that you can rise above the occasion, or, alternatively, that you dress like that all the time.

The Handshake: Since this is the first body contact, the firm, well-coordinated handshake is a must. A weak grip may mean a stretch of work at Tony's Deli. Two hours a day squeezing one of those wrist exercisers may help this condition. Many applicants prefer to enter lunging. If completed, this maneuver puts the interviewer off-guard and leaves further openings. However, the interviewee may miscalculate and, lunging for the hand, miss and hit his opponent in the solar plexus. If this occurs, two options are open: ¹explain it as a muscular spasm, caused by a rare inherited disease, thus eliciting sympathy in the form of "hire the handicapped." ²Assume a hail-fellow-well-met attitude, and murmur a few secret society code words into the interviewer's ear, thus making him think that you had assumed that he was a fellow Elk, Mason, Moose, or Odd Fellow. Since in all probability he isn't a Moose, the interviewer will feel left out and inferior, giving you the advantage.

Nervous Habits: Almost always during the course of a high-pressure interview ("Do you pick your feet in Poughkeepsie?"), the interviewee will find himself reacting to the pressure by twitching, rolling his/her eyes, rocking back and forth in the chair, or twiddling his thumbs. When this occurs, don't panic. Once again, victory can be snatched from the jaws of your own incompetence, through several courses of action. Keep on twitching or twiddling, showing the interviewer that you're neurotic and proud of it (Fight sanism! Smash lobotomies!). ²Stop, thus demonstrating self control and respect. ³Many twitchers prefer a compromise course. In the case of thumb twiddling, this would involve a slow decrease in RPM, with frequent direction changes, thus evincing guts, respect, self control, and quite a bit of manual dexterity.

My homecoming from the People's Republic of China was made especially happy by your very kind message. Surely the desire for peace is a cause to unite all mankind, and it is my profound wish that this journey will help to bring us closer to a world where men shall hope together, work together, and live in peace together. With my best wishes to you always,

Richard Nixon

Dear Mr. Nixon,

I greatly admired your recent performance in "The China Affair". Your abilities as director, producer and actor have never before been coordinated at such a high pinnacle. We can only hope that a performance such as this one will not be the last, as the fine art of political entertainment has seemed to lose much of its sense of extravagance in the recent past which you have so nicely revived. I predict that you have completely sewed up the title of "Performer of the Decade" which award, as we all know, is voted upon in November, 1972.

Congratulations once again.

Admiringly yours,
Sarah Rosenberg

wanted

Wanted: A capable upperclassman or graduate student to act as a social director of summer activities at a resort. The term of the position will run from June through the first of September. An ability to meet the public well and enjoy working with people is essential not only in dealing with tourists, but in setting up social tours to sites of interest in the area. The applicant should be a good organizer and coordinator to set up and implement a complete social program for resort guests. Skill at a variety of sports is essential plus an adequate knowledge of tennis and sailing to give lessons. An interest and knowledge in the area of arts and crafts is essential in order to help initiate a complete program which is being organized in this area. The applicant must have a willingness and freedom from other responsibilities to work long hours and to work under and along with several different personalities. Salary is open. For application and interview write or call General Manager, Squaw Mountain at Moosehead, Greenville, Maine 04441.

THE SPORT SCENE

by Mike Szostak

Now that sunshine and warmer temperatures have firmly entrenched themselves in the wildlands of central Maine, let us pause in our pursuit of academic excellence and examine the progress of spring sports at Colby.

A changing attitude in the athletic interests of Colby students has prevailed in the last two weeks. No longer are baseball, track, tennis, golf, and lacrosse the most popular spring pastimes on Mayflower Hill. No, my friends, a recent survey taken among the sportswriters of the ECHO has confirmed that Colby's Number One sport for the Spring of '72 is Frisbee. That's right.. Frisbee!

Every afternoon and early evening Frisbees fly through the air with the greatest of ease in the Quad, on Dana lawn, between Woodman and Coburn, and on fraternity row. All you need to play Frisbee is another person and a Frisbee. If you cannot find another person to test your new hot pink Frisbee, we would suggest that you use a boomerang.

For those of you who would like to participate in this great game but do not have the proper equipment, Frisbees come in four sizes. There is the Mini-Frisbee which is fine for practicing indoors. Then there is the regular Frisbee which is the old standby. The Olympic Frisbee is for those who are fashion conscious - it has a racing stripe - or are traveling to Munich this summer. The Super Frisbee is the Kingfisher of the Frisbee world.

The difference between the Mini and Super models is about 10 inches and $2.50. And don't ever forget...if it's not by Wham-O, it's not a Frisbee.

Our survey showed the second most popular sport to be sunbathing. This activity is also called "catching rays." Very little in the way of equipment is needed to play this game. A bottle of Coppertone or Johnson's Baby Oil. Sunglasses to protect your eyes from the rays and to allow you to stare at that girl without her knowing. And, oh yes, the sun.

The popularity of this sport can easily be discerned by walking in front of Miller Library on a sunny day.

Softball has enjoyed a resurgence at Colby this spring. Expansion has reduced the quality of many teams, but it has also added many stars to the game. Attendance at IFL games has soared. Why? Because Commissioner Mike Minuitti had the foresight to permit the Butler Bombers to play and to allow members of the fairer sex to play for other teams.

Bicycling has risen from the depths of nowhere to become one of Colby's more challenging and expensive sports. Cycling has been popular in Europe for years, but the sport has caught fire only recently in this country. Perhaps students returning from Junior Year Abroad are responsible for the increased interest. If this is so, then we must give due credit to Colby's program at Caen.

The owner of a ten speed racer is held in high regard these days. Even if he doesn't know how to use it. The five-speed touring bike is second in popularity followed by the traditional three speed which ranks a poor third. If you own a no-speed bike, you might as well own no bike at all.

Grassing has slipped to fifth place in this spring's survey. We feel that the rise in Frisbee and bicycling is responsible for this tragic turn of events. Grassing is by far one of the least expensive and most rewarding sports of all time. All you need to play this game is a willing playmate, a plot of grass, and perhaps a bottle of wine and a blanket. Fair weather is also advisable. Rain will usually bog things down.

Recent studies conducted by the Rockefeller Foundation have shown that Astro turf is a suitable substitute for real grass, but they caution the grasser against the use of Poly turf or Tartan surface. Poly turf gets too hot and potentially harmful plunges to the surface may result. Continuous movement on a Tartan surface may result in friction burns.

Last on our list this spring is kite flying. The poor response to the kite flying event during Earth Week is testimony to its lack of popularity.

You may question the absence of traditional sports on our spring survey. We feel that those Spartan-like athletes involved with ordinary athletic endeavors are missing out on life. Think about it.

Wouldn't the members of the tennis team like to return a floating Frisbee rather than a savage overhand? Wouldn't the track team like to catch a few rays rather than try to catch UMaine? Wouldn't Winkin's Warriors rather watch Butler Bomber Barb Gregory's curves rather than Maine's Mike Jones' fast-ball? Wouldn't they rather listen to the murmured obscenities along the sidelines of a Butler game than the shouted curses rising from the end of the bench in the Maine game? Wouldn't the golfers like to putter along Great Pond on their ten speed racers than triple bogey the Par 3 15th? And wouldn't the lacrosse players rather be grassing than gasping?

Only Colby's die-hard athlete can honestly answer these questions, and the ECHO sports staff will ask them....someday..

There are a few crucial steps in the great grind to grab grad-school gratuities:

1. Application
2. Picture
3. Interview
4. Essay
5. First Impression Letter
6. Birth
7. Outside Influence
8. Financial Aid
9. Adoption By WASP Family
10. Application Fees
11. Transcript
12. Recommendations or Detractions (as the case may be)
13. Selection of Courses While an Undergraduate
14. Distribution of Extracurricular Activities, and
15. *Exhibition of Dramatic Concern for the Liberal Notions of American Democracy.

First, however, we recommend self-reflection. Reassess your position and goals, then ask yourself that all important question, "Why am I doing this to myself?" If you haven't asked yourself this question before go ahead and apply. But if you have thought of this question you must try some others first, "Did you ever beat your sister at Go To The Head of the Class?" Also ask, "What is she doing now?"

Having established that you are grad-school material, quickly call your financial advisor or your parents and try to raise the necessary capital for your enterprise. Of course in an election year it is advisable to join the "vital progressive center" in order to be able to refine your wit and speech in the Hubert Humphrey Honorific School for Humble Orators Himitating the Humility of Jesus and Socrates. (Christ!)

But back to the pressing issues at hand. Now that you have the money and the wit it's time to decide the type of grad-school training you desire. Divide your quality points by your grade point average, add your senior year room draw number, subtract the difference between your parent's ages and divide by the latest Nixon percentage in the Gallup Poll. (April, 1972 - 46%; this last fluctuating figure provides a common denominator and yields flexibility in these changing times.)

If your number is between 1 and 10, file for unemployment; 10 to 20, should consider ROTC as a viable alternative to enrollment in institutions of higher, higher education; 20 to 80 should seasonally adjust these figures and apply accordingly; 80 to 90, should consider employment in the Nature Theater in Oklahoma; 90 to 100, the future of the nation rests on your shoulders; 100 and above, apply as short order cooks in the Spa, drive a truck, or work with the Educational Testing Service; if you are 1 or below, accept our condolences and remember Millard Fillmore..

Finally and in sum, Colby's preparation for grad-school is considered by many (freshmen) unsurpassed. Grad-schools however, see it, to coin a phrase, as a horse of a different hue (phonetically -"phew") (not to be confused with a city in North Vietnam formerly in South Vietnam). In general, though grad schools concede that above average Colby students may excel in their higher, higher educational endeavors, they feel it incumbent upon themselves to warn students that the economy of the country cannot support an overload of the unfortunate accidents of planned parenthood. (Truely we are the unwanted generation.)

Once rejected the applicant is left with a number of substantive alternatives. Perhaps the most moral, conventional, and socially acceptable of these is outside influence or as it is vulgarly called, pulling strings. In rare cases the President of the United States may be of some help. However, in view of recent Presidential-Court tensions avoid his help when applying to law school. The Vice-President will be most helpful if he refuses to recommend you. Other federal, state, and local officials may provide assistance but the most effective (and most often overlooked) way in the door is marriage to the Dean's daughter. Some may feel this is slightly too permanent a price to pay, but these critics overlook annulment, separation, and divorce possibilities which are viable post graduate alternatives to extended marriage. At that time, undoubtedly, alimony payments will not be serious additional burdens to one's educational loans.

Of course we have been unable to touch all fifteen points. Unfortunately, the modern media are too limited in time, space, and foresight to give an article of this import the consideration and merit which it deserves. Remember in the immortal words of Harry Carroll, "Colby is everyone's first choice once over lightly."

Love Me?" brought tears to the eyes of many and some could no longer contain themselves, standing on tables screaming, "Bobby, Bobby, Bobby we love you!!!"

And suddenly almost as quickly as it began, it was over. Bobby was off to the airport but they knew he would be back. How could this school stay sane without Spring-Fling?

As the delirious fans drifted out of the pit I overheard Bridgman say, "Can't we move the next Spring Fling back to Lovejoy 100?"

Colin MacKay leaned over to Gus Todrank and said, "Somebody straighten that boy out."

Can someone please explain something to me and my compatriots who also seem to miss the logic behind Buildings and Grounds policies. Now we all know that we are privileged individuals to be attending this academic institution and even more privileged to have a vehicle to help us escape this fine academic institution. I can somehow rationalize the $10.00 registration fee at the commencement of the academic year. But why must we pay the penalty of parking tickets for parking in front of your dorm while you unload your car or various other conveniences of your automobile? Those, however, who do not attend Colby College escape the penalty imposed upon them in the same form and manner. the white mark of illegitimacy on the windshield. Why then must we be punished repeatedly and what is the point of giving tickets to visitors who have no place to park and won't pay the fine anyhow. Oh, the absurdity of it all.

GRASS USERS!!!!

From all of us who are grass lovers to all of you who are grass users: we urge you to be more economical and thoughtful about its use. This is the time of year when grass is at its formidable stages and needs T.L.C. We all appreciate good grass. So, PLEASE . . . when sitting, sit lightly: when walking on it, walk frugally.

Oh, the absurdity of it all. The latest from the Dean of Students office brings news to all those who wish to escape the mundane? living of dormitory life. Only forty-eight women have filed completed applications to live off campus for the 1972-73 academic year. Less than 100 men have filed applications and the Dean of Students office admit that they NEED people to live off campus. Women's housing next year is particularly cramped. So ladies, if it's co-ed housing that keeps you on campus for next year why not take your co-ed housing downtown. For everyone's information board is going up $50 next year. Scare you? We hope so.
