

The Colby Echo

published by the students of Colby College, Waterville, Maine, since 1877

Volume XCV, Number 19

Colby College, Waterville, ME 04901

April 2, 1991

Focus on 1991-92 Student Elections

Stu-A Presidential and Vice Presidential Candidates

Photo by Matt Melander

Paul Argiro (left) and Michelle Tupesis

ARGIRO/TUPESIS

The role of the Stu-A Pres and VP is to act as liasons between students and administration while representing the students. Not only would we make sure "they" know how the students feel about particular issues but we will be put in the position of deciding what issues need the approval of the students. This will require an ability to judge student opinion.

We can do this. Not only have we been involved in student government, including Commons Council and Stu-A, but we have been involved in many other activities including I-PLAY, Colby Music, Colby Literacy, Colby Friends, Varsity Sports, Colby Publications and COOT leaders. We want to voice the opinions of the students to the administration instead of voicing the opinions of the administration to the students. We will not be puppets.—PA & MT

Photo by Matt Melander

Nancy Richards (left) and Leslie Frymier

RICHARDS/FRYMIER

Good student leaders have the ability to generate positive change. We believe that we have the experience, dedication, and leadership necessary to make a difference. We spent the past year together on President's Council, working closely on several all campus committees, as well as addressing our respective Commons issues.

While there are specific issues we feel need to be addressed within the next year, we also want to generate more student involvement on campus. Every student deserves accurate representation in the face of the administration and trustees. We want to create an efficient governance system committed to the thoughts and ideals of all students, yielding the changes you want and deserve. If elected we will truly keep Colby in the hands of the students.

Photo by Ari Druker

Jason Soules (left) and Karen Laidley

SOULES/LAIDLEY

We, Jason Soules and Karen Laidley, feel prepared to take on the responsibility of Stu-A President and V.P.. Together we have been involved in the natural progression of Student Government, with Karen as Drummond V.P. her first year and Jason serving on the Freshmen Council. Being Johnson Commons Pres. and V.P. this year has been a team effort, working closely with the administration, the student body, and other student leaders on campus issues.

As Stu-A President and V.P. we would strive to maintain and improve our working relationship with the administration. Most importantly, we would like to lead a President's Council which not only reacts to, but explores new issues. On April 5th, please vote for the proactive team to represent you.

Jason Soules / Karen Laidley for Stu-A.

Candidates bring experience to Stu-A race

Interviews By Lori Wright
EDITOR

Paul Argiro and Michelle Tupesis, candidates for Stu-A president and vice president "decided last year to go for it this year," said Argiro.

They have "known each other since COOT - we've grown up together at Colby," said Argiro, and "although we have differences we have a lot of common goals."

The Argiro/Tupesis ticket believes Colby's committee system needs to be revised so that more students are represented on committees. "Students need to have more of a voice in things that directly affect us," said Argiro.

Tupesis, who was Stu-A social chair two years ago, said that the alcohol policy and social life are two important issues which need to be addressed.

They would like to see the $28,663 funding for non-alcoholic events continue, said Argiro.

Argiro equated Colby to a corporation in which communication is the key to effectiveness. "The students have to talk to us and we have to listen to them - and then present what the students think to the administration," said Argiro. "We want to open up our office to the students."

Last year, "as a student witnessing things happen, the administration making decisions, I felt powerless," Argiro said. "Now I want to be able to make things happen, and make students feel like they can make things happen."

Referring to the fact that neither of them currently hold an elected office, Tupesis said "we have both had time to sit back and be students. You can lose sight of the general population when you're always in student government."

Between the two of them, sophomores Nancy Richards and Leslie Frymier have been members of every Colby subcommittee. They have also both participated in student government since the moment they stepped on campus.

"Between the two of us, we have a great deal of experience," said Richards. "We have worked individually in our own commons and together on Presidents' Council." Richards and Frymier are currently president of Pierce and Piper, respectively.

According to Frymier, they are not afraid to "get in there and debate," although coming to conclusions is important, too, added Richards.

All statements, which are identified by the candidates' last names in bold face type, have been written by the candidates and printed exactly as submitted.

If elected, the issues they see themselves dealing with next year include: making the advising system more efficient, devising a meal plan which accommodates everyone's needs, and restructuring JanPlan to improve the quality and selection of courses.

Richards and Frymier would like to see the committee system move quicker next year, meaning it shouldn't take two months for a proposal to get passed or rejected, according to Frymier. For example, "the WMHB proposal needs to be moved quickly - that change needs to happen this year," said Frymier.

As a ticket of sophomores, Richards believes "it is a major advantage to be sophomores. We won't have to worry about resumes, getting jobs, and 400-level courses next year."

If elected to Stu-A president and vice president, sophomores Jason Soules and Karen Laidley would like to see Presidents' Council become a more excited, pro-active group, in which new ideas are initiated. This year, they believe, Presidents' Council was simply reactive to the administration's ideas.

Laidley and Soules are currently Johnson Commons president and vice president, and Laidley defines her position as "another high." She said it is especially rewarding to discuss an issue at a small meeting and see it develop into policy. "It's great to see something pass," she said.

They mentioned the Trustees approval of $28,663 for social events as a big win and proof that Stu-A can get things done even when working against the president of the College.

If elected, this duo would like to see innovative social programming continue, while still maintaining what Soules called "Colby's traditional social life."

They also want to keep up communication between the student body and student government, and student government and the administration, according to Soules. He suggested a regular newsletter as a possible means of accomplishing this.

Soules and Laidley have worked together as a team this year and see themselves as naturally progressing into the position of Stu-A president and vice president, respectively.

"We're up on what's happening and we have a strong background of student government," said Soules.

In regards to being an all-sophomore ticket, they think it is advantageous to be juniors as Stu-A president and vice president. This way, they will have more time to do the job well, said Laidley.

The Colby Echo

Founded in 1877
LORI WRIGHT, Editor

ALISA ATTARDI, Managing Editor
ANDREA KRASKER, News Editor
PAUL ARGIRO, Sports Editor
CRAIG APPELBAUM, Features Editor
AMANDA HALLOWELL, A & E Editor
CHIP SMITH, Opinions Editor

WALKER FENTON, Layout Editor
SHARYL WHITE, Layout Editor
R.B. KIERNAT, Business Manager
TARA TAUPIER, Photography Editor
PETE CARPENTER, Ad Manager
GRETA WOOD, Production Manager

LAURA PAVLENKO, Asst. News Editor
JONATHAN WALSH, Asst. Sports Editor
KIM MERRIMAN, Layout Assistant
KENT BONHAM, Layout Assistant
SUMNER LEMON, Staff Artist
ETHAN GETTMAN, Staff Artist
KRIS OWENS, Librarian
MARK R. MUIR, Subscriptions Manager

LETTERS AND OPINIONS POLICY

The Editorial is the official opinion of the paper. The other opinions present on this page do not necessarily represent the views of The Colby Echo or its staff.

The Colby Echo encourages letters from its readers, especially those within the immediate community. They should not exceed 200 words.

Letters to the Editor should be typed. Letters to the Editor must be signed and include either an address or a phone number. For publication on Thursday, letters must be received by The Colby Echo no later than Monday evening of the same week.

The Colby Echo reserves the right to edit all submissions.

EDITORIAL

Our pick

After interviewing all the candidates and considering their submitted statements, The Colby Echo is endorsing Jason Soules and Karen Laidley for Stu-A president and vice president.

It is an encouraging sign to see four tickets running for Student Association president and vice-president. This exceptionally large number is indicative of an increasing interest in student government and the well-being of the general Colby population. While the Echo was excited to see this positive change, it is disheartening that three of the four commons' tickets are running uncontested. What an exciting election it could be if the energy in the Stu-A races was equalled in the commons elections.

With four choices on the Stu-A presidential/V.P. ballot, you have a lot to consider when voting on Friday. We had a lot to consider when choosing a ticket to endorse.

We believe that Soules and Laidley possess the most experience in student government, as well as the vision necessary to carry Colby through the 1991-92 school year. The top two Stu-A executives should have the ability to look into the future and make positive change. We believe Soules and Laidley stand out above the rest in this area.

Soules and Laidley said they want to be a proactive team, looking forward, and taking positive action. This is exactly what Colby needs - leaders with autonomy from the administration who are willing to step out on a limb and ruffle a few feathers when necessary. Simply relaying information to the students from the administration is unacceptable. We are confident that Soules and Laidley will not let students down.

In addition to possessing experience and a vision, Soules and Laidley are experts at reaching out to students and hearing their concerns. They both possess the friendly and receptive demeanor which is necessary to listen to the voices which constantly shout from all directions.

Soules and Laidley will both be juniors next year, which is a diversion from the usual Stu-A president and vice-president who are seniors. But we believe this has real benefits. First, if elected, they will not be bogged down with senior seminars, 400-level classes, and job searching. Second, choosing not to go abroad next year shows a real dedication to Colby. Third, since they will be on campus as seniors, these then-experienced student leaders would be able to show the ropes to their successors. In any case, we think that Soules and Laidley have the maturity and experience to handle the job.

This year, Soules and Laidley have worked effectively together as a team. Next year, we believe they can do the same.

ATTENTION

There will be a debate between the candidates for Stu-A President/Vice President Tuesday at 9:30 in Lovejoy 100.

Sandy Maisel, chair of the government department, will moderate the debate.

Stu-A Pres./V.P. Candidates

CHASE/ALFOND

Bryan Chase & Jenny Alfond

Colby belongs to the students, sometimes we forget this and become a mere part of the community, rather than being actively involved in it. Once in office, we will make Stu-A more accessible to everyone. With our backgrounds, which include activities from Recycling and COOT to Commons Pres. and Hall Staff, we are determined to attract fresh and different people, ideas, and interests into Stu-A. We want our office to include enough of the community so that it will be the center of not only social life, but cultural and intellectual life as well. Colby needs a face lift. Through our commitment to accessibility, we will listen, share, and act upon what the campus needs. We are ready to shape a more definitive role for Stu-A.

people from all ends of the campus could meet, not just where people pick up a few burgers.

To accomplish these goals and make Colby live up to its potential, Chase would encourage what he calls an "open door policy" in which students' ideas would be heard and considered. "We don't have all the answers," said Chase, "but the students do, and we need to guide them [the students]."

In addition to listening to them, Chase and Alfond want to involve more students in student government. "My role as vice president would be to tie people in and get action," said Alfond. "There's so much energy out there - it just needs to be channeled right." With her experience as head of Colby's recycling program, Alfond said she has acquired extensive experience in asking people to do things.

While Alfond has been involved in a variety of activities such as recycling and COOT, Chase has been more involved in student government and hall staff. Chase is currently Stu-A parliamentarian and an R.A. Last year, Chase was president of Johnson Commons and as a first-year student he was the governor of Johnson Hall.

Alfond and Chase would like to see Stu-A take a stand for itself. "Instead of floating around and taking what comes to us, we need to have our own agenda and our things to accomplish," said Alfond.

Stu-A would come up with an agenda, they said, by holding regular open forums at which students could air their ideas. In addition, Chase and Alfond would hold forums before the Trustees visit to Colby so that the Trustees would be made aware of students' concerns.

Also experienced

Interview by Lori Wright
EDITOR

"Every semester starts and ends really well, but there's always a dead area in the middle," according to Stu-A presidential candidate Bryan Chase '92. If elected, Chase and V.P. candidate Jenny Alfond '92 want, among other things, to unite their efforts and make Colby a more socially and culturally exciting college.

Alfond suggested all-day cultural affairs, while Chase said he would like the Spa to be a place where

Editor's Note: Because Chase's original running mate was unable to run, Chase and Alfond did not meet the Echo's deadline for the front page. They were also unable to be photographed.

Stu-A Social Chair

Warren Claytor

Photo by Matt Melander

CLAYTOR

Hello, I am Warren Claytor, a candidate for Stu-A Social Chair. I'm a Junior with experience in dealing with social functions here at Colby and other places. As Hall President of Dana last year, I planned social functions for the two-hundred person Residence Hall. This Fall I was on the Sea Semester program and organized weekend social functions, one of which included the infamous Atlantic Clarion Steel Drum Band. Let's liven up this campus! Vote Claytor for Stu-A Social Chair.

Jonathon Yormak

Photo by Ari Druker

YORMAK

I am going to be frank. I enjoy being involved on campus, and enhancing the social life. This past year I was the Lovejoy Commons Social Chair, planned some fun, new, and packed events, dealt with the administration and all the red tape, and had an excellent time doing it.

I am not going to make promises, or tell you to "read my lips", but I will devote my best effort to the job of Stu-A Social Chair. It is a position which greatly affects everyone's campus life, and I will make it better.

Stu-A Cultural Chair

FORT

Robin Fort

Photo by Tara Taupier

Colby has had some wonderful events this year, but there is still great potential for cultural activities on this campus. I see three main problems that need to be examined; student response: there are far too few students at most events; student awareness: a big problem with turnout is a lack of knowledge; and student input: Stu-A is here for the student body, the communication gap must be bridged. Colby could offer many great cultural experiences, and I want to help make them happen.

The students will vote on a referendum Friday to decide if Stu-A should get paid.

Commons President/V.P. Candidates

JOHNSON

BOLES/ DRISLANE

My Name is Jessica Drislane and I am running for Vicepresident of Johnson Commons along with Mark Boles who is running for President. Mark is a member of the class of 92.5 after spending a semester at Columbia University. He was my Coot Leader and a member of the Coot committee. He also plays Varsity Lacrosse. I am a first year student. I played rugby in the fall, am currently playing J.V. Lacrosse as well as being a Dean's list student. Together both Mark and I will represent your commons, most importantly, socially. In addition through Presidents Council we will represent students on some academic and social policy issues. We hope to work closely with students, the other commons and Stu- A to provide a strong, well rounded social atmosphere.

Photo by Tara Taupier

Jessica Drislane (left) and Mark Boles

DUPUIS/FRIEL

What is Colby all about?
It's about the eight semester rule, and dogheads. It's about tuition hikes, and watching Cheers on Thursdays. It involves the Boston Globe, Calvin and Hobbes, Silver Street Tavern, and SPA burgers. It's about finishing an English paper at 4:00 am, and sleeping til three on Sunday afternoon. It has to do with the Gulf War, and the fat ducks on Frat Row. And a Commons Council has to understand this. They have to see the humor as well as the difficulty, the maturity as well as the immaturity; they have to plan parties just as devoutly as they have to question the administration on bad policy.

Photo by Tara Taupier

Ryan Friel (left) and Keith Dupuis

So if you vote for Keith as Johnson Commons President, and Ryan as Vice-President, do it because we know what Colby is all about, and we know how to get things done.

CHAPLIN

FLINT/ LINDSTROM

Chris Flint and Jim Lindstrom would like to represent Chaplin Commons as President and Vice President. Currently Chris is the Averill Hall President and he is also involved in soccer and baseball. Jim is a member of Chorale, plays squash, and is treasurer of the Republican Club. Through Chris' involvement in the Commons system and Jim's involvement with financial matters we both have experience in the roles we hope to fill. Chris has been able to see how the process of scheduling events takes place, and this prior experience will greatly help in the upcoming school year. We want to coordinate many social and cultural events for our commons creating more options for our diverse student body. If elected we will work with all our available resources, attempting to fulfill the needs of our commons.

Photo by Tara Taupier

Chris Flint (left) and Jim Lindstrom

LOVEJOY

HARRIS/ PLATT

Skip Harris and Ren Platt— After contemplating running for Lovejoy Council for several months we have decided that we have the enthusiasm and drive necessary to do a great job.

No photo available

As a member of the Educational Policy Committee for the past year, Skip's experience will aid him in being a good president who is sensitive to the issues and who will represent the students of Lovejoy Commons. Ren is a first year student who has worked on her dorm council and as a member of the Student's Activity Board. This experience will enable her to deal with people like Skip on a regular basis. We believe that our spirit and fresh ideas will not only make Lovejoy Commons an enjoyable place to live, but one that is amusing as well.

MARY LOW

NIEBUHR/ POHL

Dedication, creativity, leadership, and ability to work well as a team are four ways to describe Kurt Niebuhr and Sarah Pohl. As President and Vice-President, we seek to utilize these qualities to guarantee the success of Mary Low Commons-run activities next year. We have both held leadership positions in various clubs, sports, and organizations. Some of our goals for Mary Low Commons include: increased student input on commons functions, more culturally related activities, and also events in which drinkers and non-drinkers can enjoy themselves equally. With your vote, we will strive to make Mary Low Commons the place to be!!

Photo by Ari Drucker

Sarah Pohl (left) and Kurt Niebuhr

JUST DESSERTS

Will be open on Saturday April 6th for The Broadway Musical Revue
from 7 pm until 2 am

Come to

JUST DESSERTS and enjoy our line of Healthy Low Cholesterol Muffins such as OAT BRAN or ZUCCHINI NUT

(Goes great with our International Coffees)

JUST DESSERTS

MONDAY - FRIDAY
8 AM - 1 PM

The Colby Etcho

Published by the students of Colby College, Waterville, Maine, since 1877.

Volume XCV, Number 20

Colby College, Waterville, ME 04901

April 1, 1991

Colby president accused of anti-trust violations and sexual shenanigans

By Carl "sexual athleticism is difficult with my genetics" Smith
OPINIONS EDITOR

Arraigned and awaiting trial by jury is the current stance of Colby College and its bumbling, fumbling, not so very bright and generally questionable administrative leader "Rock me two times Willy Cawter." According to trusted sources, Cawter and Colby have been nabbed in an unprecedented web of deception, embezzlement, and general wrongdoing. At the forefront of Cawter's illicit activities are at least fifteen counts of antitrust violations and tuition fixing tactics.

One administrator, Joyce McMelons Maisel has come forward, in exchange for her own immunity, with critical evidence to indict Cawter and his cohorts. According to McMelons, "I've been in Cawter's office many times, then again I've been in lots of offices lots of times, in fact now that I think of it I like offices and I like being in them."

When asked to comment more directly concerning her knowledge of the antitrust violations, McMelons stated, "Every time I was in Cawter's office he was concocting a new and more inventive means of raising student tuitions." "Often these actions would be conducted while he was on the phone with presidents of other prestigious New England Colleges." I could hear him in his office with the president of Harvard on the phone fixing tuition with statements like "20,400, 23,000 whatever it takes - anyways what's a couple of thou between friends."

But, antitrust is only the tip of the mule pie. An exhaustive investigative action by a task force composed of Mark Van Vomitberg and his team of rocket scientists has uncovered more vile violations virtually vanquishing various voluptuous virgins vaulting vegetables.

According to the task force, Cawter and his wife Belinda "excuse me Willy C. are those Bugle Boys you're wearing" have embezzled countless dollars from the college to fund

photo by yo mamma

President Cawter on one of his role playing adventures - his harem looks on.

their personal fantasy and role playing adventures.

After McMelons provided a hot tip to Van Vomitberg, the task force rushed the President's house hoping to discover evidence of the Cawters' crimes. Van Vomitberg discovered Cawter wearing nothing but his "He-man Masters of the Universe outfit."

"Everything looked normal to me" said Van Vomitberg. "That is, until I spotted Belinda wearing a full length coat made out of genuine Szechuan Sealskin."

Said Van Vomitberg, "I'll tell you here and now sealskin like that costs a lot of bucks but who cares anyways - it's not in my job description and I didn't have to send the Jitney downtown."

Closer investigation of the Cawter residence has uncovered numerous extravagances funded by student dollars. Items such as a giant screen t.v. in the shape of a white mule, naugahide riding outfits, and a blow up doll of Ed Hersheysquirts, were scattered around the Cawter residence.

This evidence and McMelons' testimony should put the Cawters in custody for many years to come. Authorities have speculated that the Cawters will most likely serve their sentences on Mayflower Hill. Said one police officer, "Let them serve their time up at Colby, the way most of the country sees it. Being up there is next best thing to being in prison." □

Hamburger says "waste not want not"

By Craig Applecumb
FEATURES EDITOR

A student defecates in the Taylor study carrels. An unsuspecting female steps into a puddle of pee while walking down a hallway in Foss. A First-year in Goddard-Hodgkins urinates into his own hands, and then drinks it. What is causing this sudden outpour of public urination and defecation?

Director of Counseling Services Hamburger Patty reflected on the recent events.

"This is a joke, right? I mean, we all go to the bathroom, but that's really gross stuff you're talking about! lcky! It's kind of funny though."

photo by yo greasy granny

Patty Hamburger counsels Sarah on personal matters.

After picking herself up from the floor, Patty offered an explanation as to why a student might behave this way.

"Call me Hamburger, please," said Patty. "Well, it seems to me this type of behavior is a display of a personality-stress syndrome

Hamburger continued on page 7

Three new Jan-Plans approved

By Craig Applecumb
FEATURES EDITOR

Due to students' complaints, there will be more diverse January programs next year.

We're very excited about these new Jan-Plans," said a very pregnant Margarita Lichterfelda Thomasta, associate dean of faculty. "I think they'll fill the gap that students feel is sorely needed."

The new classes are:

Economics 231j - Jan-Plan in Colombia: Cocaine and the Drug World

Students will be housed with families who are members of the Medellin drug cartel in Medellin, Colombia. Topics include: How to evade customs officials, mass-murder techniques, how the cartels operate, how to discern quality cocaine from the cheap stuff. Students will be expected to not only return with expensive cocaine habits, but will also be expected to apply the skills they learned in starting their own cartel at Colby. Estimated cost of program will be $1,350,000 (cost includes room, board, airfare, and cocaine).

Art 355j - Erotic Art: I nography on Film

The development of pornographic films as an underrated art form. The course begins with the classic 1939 skin-flicks "The Wizard of 'Oohs' and 'Aahs'" and "Gone With My Wind," progressing up to present films like "Sleeping With All My Enemies" and "Really Good Fellas." In addition, students will partake in the filming of their own movie as well. Note: Students interested in taking this course for gym credit should consult the instructor.

Music 497j - "Like a Seminar": Madonna

Topics to include: the symbolic, metaphoric, literal, philosophical and cultural implications of Madonna's work as seen in her records and videos; why she wears her underwear in public; why she married Sean Penn; why she made "Shanghai Surprise" and "Who's That Girl?"; the thematic implications of her crotch-grabbing in public places. □

NEWS BRIEFS

Chia pet bought for Colby museum

Bill "melater" Caughter has approved a $2,000,000 advance for the purchase of a 25,000 year old chia pet he found in K-mart over break. "I just fell in love with it, I think it was sprayed with Impulse or something," Caughter said.

SPA to be turned into go-go bar

Blueprints were drawn for the renovation of the SPA, soon to be named "Furburgers." Tool Neiuwoman arranged for the renovation, claiming, "I just wanted to jazz the place up a bit. I'll find the money for it somehow - I always do." The entertainment upstairs will be provided by the topless bearded lady sisters, and downstairs will feature dead farm animals. Missed meal credit will still be available, either in food or in singles.

Dumbass to wed Write

photo by Math Dumbass

I told you I had rowdy hands!!

Math Dumbass and Glory Write have decided to tie the knot after a whirlwind courtship of only two days. The two met at Chez lounge, at Tuesday's wet t-shirt contest which Dumbass was judging and Write won. "He said he loves me," she cooed, while he proclaimed, "She likes water! I'm set!" The service will be performed on the roof of the chapel this Saturday, and the reception will be catered by Poland Springs.

WMHB going off air

The FCC is revoking WMHB's broadcasting license after one of the D.J.'s said "shucks" over the air. "This type of f---ing s---t won't be tolerated," Mr. Bustya Fernothing said. "Those a---holes have been yanking our d---ks all year!!@%#&$%&*%&%. And now they're gonna pay! I'm going to stuff their heads so far up their butts they're gonna look like little brown rings!"

Safety and Security caught with pants down

Two safety and security officers were spotted making skidmarks on Mayflower Hill Drive last Saturday night when they were supposed to be patrolling the three mile loop for flashers. At first, the charges were denied, but they were videoed by a plumber who was testing out his video camera. "We just like to do a few doughnuts on slow nights," said Officer Leonon Me.

photo by Elmer Fudd

Evidence

Dean Sergio does Hollywood

photo by Vogue

Serge sports his new stud shades

Dean Sergio will blow out of Colby next month to fulfill his childhood dream of becoming an actor. "I've had enough of this place - of all that J-Board stuff, overrated soccer matches, whining failing seniors and their rich parents and this horrendous weather. I want to go where the sun, babes, and the money are," he said. As the twin brother of Dustin Hoffman ("Kramer vs. Kramer" and "Rain Man"), Sergio is ready to put his natural acting talent to use. "I mean, I've been bullshitting along here at Colby anyway. I might as well do it on stage," Sergio said. His premier movie, to be released next year is called "My life as a dog Part II."

Tour guide rams down lamp post

Rookietour guide R. B. Beernut '91, trying to perfect his backward walking skills, accidentally rammed into a 15 foot lamp post on frat row yesterday.

photo by Rabbi Snotgrappele

Dead lamp post

"He bumped it with his butt and sat down hard," said a senior at Small Town High. Beernut suffered damage to his private parts, but his tennis arm is still working. "I'm glad my arm is okay, but my honey in Hilton Head is seriously bummin'. I hope to be up real soon," said Beernut from his suite in the Health Center.

As a result of the accident, the admissions office is seriously reconsidering its policy of the mandatory backward walk. "We don't want to be responsible for impairing an individual's ability to have kids," said Tour Guide Coordinator Amo Walker '91.

Makin' Whoopie a new I-PLAY sport

photo by what's his name

Eager fornicaters

Dick Wiltmore has recently approved sex for I-PLAY competition this spring. Contestants will be judged each week on various moves, such as the "double backed beast", and the "wham, bam, thank you slam." So far only 2453 people have signed up, but Wiltmore expects more by the end of the week. The winners will get to perform their best moves in the talent show during senior week, and will also be awarded Colby "Safe Sex" t-shirts.

Elk head may be sign of frat activity

photo by B&G

Bullwinkle's Cousin

The deans office said it has reason to believe there is possible fraternity activity occurring again at Colby. During routine room inspections over Spring Break, Buildings and Grounds spotted bloody elk heads in a dorm room. "Something really stank, so I called two of my buddies and we went in to check it out," said an employee. "Sure enough, there were dead animal parts everywhere and a stuffed head on the wall. I just wrote down the room number and split."

The ultimate punishment for the two seniors who live in the room has not yet been decided, but Dean Sergio said, "this is for real now. If this is proven to be frat business - which I find an abhorred activity for anyone, anytime - there outta here, they're off for good. Seriously. But what do I really care? I'm goin' sunny Cali."

Government profs suspected of drug use

Two pipes and a bong were confiscated from the government department seminar room after secretary Spat Kicker tipped off Director of Safety and Security Mark Van Vomitberg and his men. "The boys up here have been tokin' on these things [the paraphernalia] during their departmental meetings," said Kicker. "I hope they all get busted."

photo by Spat Kicker

This is not a coffee cup

Prof. Chipoffa House denied the accusation. "Okay, maybe back in the good ole days, when I was majoring in ending the war in Vietnam - did you know that was my major? - maybe then I smoked a little weed. But the closest I come to that now is eating a little parsley to cleanse my digestive system."

In addition, several students had been complaining of excessively wordy, hungry, and red-eyed government professors teaching their classes. "Prof. Hot Rod talks so fast he's gotta be doing LSD. There's no way he's straight," said government major Steve Copier '91.

Prof. Handyman Maysell has shown no signs of red eyes or a case of the munchies, "but his butterscotch brownies did taste awfully suspicious," said Jason Cornoil '91. "I thought I was feeling foggier than usual."

The entire department, including Kicker, will undergo mandatory drug tests next week.

Colminer blows his top

photo by BLECHO

Vandalism charged to registrar's estate

Registrar Jorgé "Roloids" Colminer came to a frightful end of his life yesterday, as he spontaneously combusted in his office. Our BLECHO photographer who was on the scene just caught his toupee blasting through the ceiling (see photo). No he didn't. Ok, I lied. Actually he internalized a fart and his head popped off. "Someone had hidden his Gas-Ex" a bystander said, "we knew it would happen sometime."

Jannie Sweatthinger begs for big ones

To learn more about Jannie's begging find continued over there

NEWS BRIEFS

Continued from some previous page

Jannie begs for big ones

Dean of Students Jannie Sweatthinger, feeling like she pales in comparison to her colleague Joyce McMelons Maisel, is considering a breast implant. On her lunch hour-and-a-half, Sweatthinger goes to the art department and works on paper macheing her ideal shape and size. "I've tried a few different molds, but I'm looking for the perfect breast, so I take my molds back to the deans office to get second opinions. Tell me Thelma [Sweatthinger's secretary] is my most trusted advisor, and she liked this one (see photo).

What do you think? photo by Thelma

Goodballs still thinking

Mr. Bill Goodballs, who is the senior class commencement speaker, is still trying to determine the topic of his speech. But with the help of some friends, he has come up with a few ideas. "I don't want to talk about all the usual stuff - you know, like commitment, integrity, maturity, bla, bla, bla," he said. "I was thinking more along the lines of 10 ways to love your farm animals, or how to show your best side at a party." Goodballs is notorious for dropping his pants in large crowds, according to sources. "Chicks dig it. And it's great because she tells her friend and she tells her friend and she tells her friend, until I've hit them all. I like to go through things one house at a time." Goodballs is still considering whether he will use visual aids for the speech.

"Hot Rod" has good hands

Did that government paper cramp your hands as much as your style? Have you lost your sense of being? Has the anticipation of an Iraqi power vacuum knotted your neck? Did the five-mile loop retire you from ambulation?

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, then take your next study break at "Hot Rod's Parlor," located in the Coffeehouse.

Waiting for the hands photo by your Mutha

Colby's Young Entrepreneurs Club gave its seal of approval to Prof. Ken "Hot Rod" Rodman, the guru of global studies, to begin Mayflower Massage, Colby's first massage parlor.

Rodman said his interest in massage was first sparked while teaching in New York City. With all the people living in the city, Hot Rod has learned enough about human contact. Although he has not received any formal training, "Hot Rod" feels confident that he can "undo any knot, kink, or cramp in the human body."

His recipe is "only the essentials," he said. "A horizontal plane, incense, oil, Oriental music, and two or three strong hands."

Lindy Caughter's Shocking Expose: All the President's Wives

By Mandy Hollowhead
A & E EDITOR

Hot off the presses, Lindy Caughter's exposing new novel, All the President's Wives, adds a dimension which should shock and confound all those who previously viewed her as the proud, supportive, loving, and only wife of the president of Corny College, a school of about 15,000 students for the hearing impaired, located in the posh, eclectic, little town of Wonderfilled, Maine.

Sharelle

When asked why she published her story rather than appearing on either The Oprah Winfrey or Phil Donahue Show, Caughter explained that she "wanted to make sure that all the kids at Corny were able to get the full story in case the shows were unable to be close-captioned."

The novel, spanning nearly 500 pages of the highest quality paper - it seems Corny has quite a large endowment - was released over spring break. Lindy wanted to make sure that it was fully distributed while her husband was away, so that no sabotage took place.

Officers from Safety and Security are guarding the Corny Bookstore, and Lonny, a well-known nightguard on campus, said "I contacted some of my buddies down at the Wonderfilled Police Department and they're keeping a close eye on President Caughter as well as on the city's (many and expansive) bookstores.

Caughter's novel was written in two short weeks. "I'm a very fast typist", she said.

The underlying reason for her rush to publish, however, is exposed in the novel itself. It seems that Caughter made the alarming discovery of her husband's secrets in the beginning of March. What follows is her story, her uncensored secret.

"I was beginning my spring cleaning and I decided to call an exterminator to come take care of the roach problem we've had. You see, Bill "Melater" plays a lot of Beer Die and the cans get stacked up in the corner of the kitchen, and well, you know how the crunchy little suckers love Black Label!

"Anyway, Bill me has a little gold filofax I gave him for our first anniversary and he keeps absolutely everything in there. I was looking under W for Wonderfilled Exterminators and I saw the heading 'WIVES' - he never was a very good speller - and I thought I'd go ahead and correct it, just erase the 's' so that it was singular, 'WIVE.'

"As I opened the section I saw the names of all these different women. Well, at first I thought they were the names of my manicurist, my fashion coordinator, my workout instructor, my masseuse, my hairdresser, my makeup consultant, etc., but when I realized none of the names were Bobbi, Brenda, Lacey, Jeanette, or Tawny, I decided to read on.

Lorna the Rocker

"Put simply, it appears that my Bill is also Wanda's Bill, Claudette's Bill, Sharelle's Bill, Mitzi's Bill and Lorna's Bill. At first all I could think was, no wonder he's so tired after those long grocery trips, but then I got really, really, really...inspired. So I sat down at my personal computer and went crazy. For six and a half days I typed. I broke 4 nails and ate nothing but Diet Pepsi and Doritos the entire time, but it was worth it.

"Bill "Melater" was away - I'm still not sure what he was doing, something about a lecture he had to give in Bermuda, but it gave me the time I needed. Now the world will know about men like him who think they can just go around marrying women like swatting flies! I don't know what the other women are going to do now that they know - I published their real names - but I hope they're not too upset 'cause they looked like nice people in the fold out posters he had in the filofax."

Wanda and Wanda

The book itself isn't that interesting. Caughter isn't a very good speller either, and no corrections were made because she paid for the publishing herself. By the way, she wanted us to mention how much she appreciated all the benefits afforded her by being the wife of the president of Corny College, not only did it give her the resources to publish her story, but she is also fortunate enough to live in wonderful Wonderfilled, for which she is "eternally grateful."

When asked whether or not she was going to leave her husband, possibly taking up a career as an author or as a typist, she said "No way! I couldn't possibly give up all the perks (mentioned above) and besides, it doesn't really bother me that he is married to all of those women any more than it would if he were just sleeping with them. Bill and I tried that sex wax stuff that the Echo staff suggested, but it did a lot more for the bottoms of my new K2s. I just thought it would be a good story and I know how boring all those textbooks get for the students; Bill "Melater's" really into all that education stuff but I think my book is more in touch with what the public wants to read."

Claudette

When asked what he had to say about the book, President Caughter said "I can't even think about it. I'm so distraught about not getting the Payson collection I can't even play Beer Die!" □

Mitzi, Itzi and Bitzi

Letters

The Colby Etcho

Founded in 1877 B.C.
LIAR ALWAYSRIGHT, Editor

ALISA ALWAYSSTARDY, Managing Editor
OFF CAMPUS KRASKER, News Editor
TOO TALL JONES, Sports Editor
CRAIG APPLECRUMB, Features Editor
MANDY HOLLOWHEAD, A & E Editor
CARL "SEXUAL ATHLETICISM IS DIFFICULT WITH MY GENETICS" SMITH, Opinions Editor

M.C. SWEATY SHARK, LayMEout Editor
SHARE-ALL OFFWHITE, Layout Editor
R.B. BEERNUT, Business Manager
TA-RA-RA TAUPIER, Photography Editor
PEETZO HORNY, Ad Manager
GRATED CHEESE WOOD, Production Manager

LORETTA PAVLENKO (GOODSZUNTHEIT), Asst. News Editor
HONEY DON'T PLAY THAT, Asst. Sports Editor
SHOOGS, Layout Assistant
CHARLOTTE'S WEBSTER, Layout Assistant
SUMMER LEMON FRESH JOY, Staff Artist
ETHAN GETME?, Staff Artist
O.K., Librarian
MAGIC MARK R., Subscriptions Manager
NATHANIEL BROWNSTAR, Heinoceros Bard

LETTERS AND OPINIONS POLICY

The Editorial is the official opinion of the paper. Of course if you believe that maybe you should have gone to Bowdoin with all the rest of the squids that go to school in Brunswick. The other opinions present on this page do not necessarily represent the views of The Colby Etcho or its staff. Most times your opinions are so poorly researched and ignorantly expressed that we laugh aloud as we read and then discard them.

The Colby Etcho encourages letters from its readers, especially those within the immediate community. They should not exceed 200 words. Therefore stop whining when you turn in a dissertation and we shred and slice it until you look like an idiot.

Letters to the Editor should not be typed. They should be implanted on the skin of the male or female of your choice with selected body paints. If we like the way they look maybe we will publish them. Letters to the Editor must be signed and include either an address or a phone number. If you are a male writer, the letter should include a revealing photograph of yourself so that we may peruse it at our pleasure.

Actually we dont give a rat's ass what you write about, because we have the last word. So piss off.

EDITORIAL

From the bowels of Roberts

All year we've been expressing our opinions. But behind closed doors, here's what we really think.

FUCK!!!!!! - Pretty much everyone

"There's such a fine line between editing and just handing it in." - John Walsh

"Ooops, this photo just got boursined!" - Walker eating cheese at 3:30 a.m.

"If I was on a college newspaper staff I would just love it!" - Chip

"For the joke issue I just don't think we should edit anything." - Alisa

"Do you think the plural for dufus is duffi?" - LEW

"I know they're going to be late, but if they're late they'll be late on time." - Paul

"This is not our god damn week!" - Walker

"Oh my God I sat on cherry pie!" - Craig

"Put your condoms where you candy is." - LEW

"Who me? The groove master." - LEW

"I can't look a guy straight in the eye who has his hands down his pants." - Alisa

"What's a slug?" - Scott

"I think I have bronchitis" - editors

"Who is he and why does he want to study demons?" - Alisa

"I wear the original Eau de Toilette, and that's not French honey!!" - Walker, commenting on his personal odor

"Maybe we should have made him Devastator of the Week." Amy Vrecland speaking about Matt Dumas after the Foss sit-in

"Then again for the male members of the Echo, it's been so long we can't even spell the word sex anymore." - Chip, presumably

"Who really cares about the Music Dept. anyways?" - Craig while searching for another department for the Tenure focus

Cobly takes Daytona by storm

By Steve Copier
LICK IT IT'S SNOT

While Saddam Hussein no longer remains an external threat, President Bush and the U.S. forces had little time to relax last week as Colby College stormed and conquered Daytona Beach, Florida. Luckily for everyone involved, the battle was brief - our intoxicated warriors quickly realized that keg-related comraderie was a much more effective weapon than our original SCUD attacks.

Once our position was secured, however, a secondary goal rose to the forefront and proved even more entertaining and newsworthy than our initial victory - paying for our battle expenses. Since the costs of success were high, all of us involved were willing to do anything necessary to recover our losses and enable a return trip to Colby.

Fortunately, the opportunities for cash prizes were vast and allowed everyone to do quite well (except for the visiting members of the baseball team who quickly discovered they were better off playing ball in Central Florida than striking out in Daytona). While I could never recount all of the individual heroics that were so prevalent in Daytona, there are several courageous efforts that simply cannot go unnoticed.

Jody Cocks '91, overturned Florida in his pursuit for cash by winning the "hottest bod in America" contest (through the deceptive use of oil and mirrors) and a hefty $2,000 for the return trip. His initial victory proved even more rewarding in the long run, however, as it greatly enhanced his gigolo fees and undoubtedly made him the happiest returning soldier.

Seniors Nate Carp, Tom Doorknob, Kevin Withmore, and Chris Layme also proved ingenious in acquiring return funding. As a team, they entered the "chug a basketball full o' Rum" contest (which entails vigorously sucking a rum-inflated basketball dry through its inflating needle - obviously not a simple task). After gulping their way to a fast start, however, Doorknob dribbled on the floor which caused Carp to slip onto an already seated Layme and seemingly ruined their chances for victory. Amazingly, though, some late-arriving spectators who believed the performance was a comedy act showered our heroes with money.

Just as our conquerors were jubilantly leaving, however, Withmore - whose preceding performance had been flawless - booted on and destroyed his portion of the profits. Understandably, all of us feared for his survival, but the enterprising and undaunted Wit was not to be left behind - he quickly resorted to stomach flexing in crowded bunkers to earn his trip home.

The last group of warriors whose heroics I'll mention are especially deserving of praise, for it was late in the week when they finally found a method for return, and they stopped at nothing to ensure victory. Seniors Mac Henry and Greg Jaycobson; and Juniors Eric Johnyson and Kevo Smith were resolute in their determination to win the four belly-flop contests that were scheduled at pools along the beach on the last day of our forces' stay. In fact, the fear of failure was greater than their fear of bodily damage. Just as each pool's contest was about to end, our brave heroes ejected from their F-16's on a passby and plunged 20,000 feet to their respective pools below.

Understandably, each of our contestants won their return fare - even though Johnyson was the only participant to actually land in a pool (which turned out to be the wrong one). Fear not, however, as Jaycobson's ankle cushioned Withmore's and Henry's fall enough to avert severe damage (Jaycobson himself was lucky enough to land on one of his earlier conquests).

As you can see, our aforementioned heroes and the many other Colby participants were not only successful in securing a place in Daytona for future Colby combatants, but they were also all able to return home safely.

As for myself (the only soldier to be left behind), I will briefly explain my absence. After trying all week to return via gigolo fees, I finally decided to enter the "ride a wave from Daytona to Miami" contest, which I was confident I could win. Just as I had the Miami skyline in sight, however, I struck a Cuban rowboat and was hurled from my 300 mile journey. Oh well, life down here isn't so bad. Like it or not,q

DUE TO HORMONAL IMBALANCE AND LACK OF SLEEP, THIS NEWSPAPER'S FEATURED "STRIPPER" CLAIMS NO RESPONSIBILITY FOR LACK OF HUMOR, IRONY, WIT, etc.

HEY, IS THAT SUPPOSED TO BE JAMES WEBB?
WHAT CAN BE MORE POIGNANT & EXPRESSIVE THAN FOR A POET TO SUBMIT A BLANK SHEET OF PAPER?

- ### Top ten
- Top Ten Seilers Meals
 - 10. you know, the green stuff with the cheese sauce
 - 9. those right before Christmas break
 - 8. cereal
 - 7. WHOP
 - 6. the one with taste
 - 5. the one without onions or green peppers
 - 4. picnics by the pond
 - 3. Sunday specials
 - 2. missed
 - 1. the crunchy rice

OFF THE HILL

BOWDOIN

Here's something that is going to make all you Bowdoin rejects green with envy - Bowdoin has once again decided to re-evaluate its grading system. All students must receive an A or a B. When asked why the sudden change, the president claimed, "Hey, if they are smart enough to come here they don't need to study! Obviously these were the high school study geek nerds and I now feel it is my responsibility to teach them how to really party!" There is rumor that Scott "King of the Drunks" Osbeer will be asked to teach a seminar entitled "Catching a Buzz: How to piece together your evening The Day After."

BATES

Who really cares!!! They are probably once again trying to find yet another stupid statistic that says they are better than Colby.

WILLIAMS

The administration has finally thrown in the towel. After 50 some odd years of trying to combat underground fraternities they have finally decided to not only acknowledge their existence, but it is rumored that the president of Etta Pye, the school's largest underground fraternity, will be named as the college's new president. When asked to comment, current President Ms. Lemon Marange, stated from her bulldozer, "Remember Colby, we were your model."

ANNA MARIA

Who are they? Where did they come from? Why are they in the ECACs? And who is Anna Maria anyway - Julie Andrews long lost cousin from the Sound of Music? At least we do know that Jeremiah Beerdie Earth goes there and they just adopted the dolphin as their mascot.

C'mon, let's all groove it

By Dan Rayethon
Groovy Q's Block

VANILLA ICE-TO THE EXTREME

Vanilla Ice has taken the world by storm with his startling Aryan features and his NAZI dance steps. However these are minor blackheads on the face of a man who has given us the Grammy winning album "To the Extreme." As expressed through his lyrics, the Iceman is a liberated man. He is sensitive, sincere, romantic, poetic, politically and grammatically correct, and most importantly, willing to try new positions.

In "Stop That Train" Ice shares his first sexual experience with his listeners. "I thought she was an angel/and soft as a cream puff/until I seen her come out with the whip and handcuffs." It is at this point that Ice bravely reveals to us that he has never procreated. Once in position he confessed "I didn't know what to do"

In "Ice is Workin It" the Iceman confesses his attraction to gerbils. He often finds himself wooing them using such sultry lines as "See/I wanna get loose with you/is that alright?/...oh you feel so good."

"Dancin," not to be confused with McHammer (the Irish rapper), Tiny Tim or KC and the Sunshine band, is yet another liberated song by the Iceman. In this overture he promotes naked dirty dancing. By dirt he actually implies mud. "All the people on the left/shake your thing/and everybody on the right /do the same thing/nor the people in the middle try to enhance it/and make it grow like a Chia Pet."

Erotica expert Jen Hartello notes the striking similarity in lyrical style to the writing of Anais Nin, author of Henry and June. "Do me/pursue me, let me tell you how to make love on an inner tube, lets do it/cuz you know what I want/be on the look out in your vicinity/I'm robbin' virgins of their virginity" are a taste of some of the moisture-inducing lines that Ice pours forth to his helpless little victims.

Ice remakes the Zamfir's international hit "Ice Ice Baby." He chose to remake the song because "(he) felt that its qualities really embody my ideology like a good wine," he stated in a recent "Good Housekeeping" interview.

In this track he describes his music as "killing your brain like a poisonous mushroom." Here he is referring to the existential quality of his lyrics which he admits will not be comprehended by the masses. "My music is not Marxist!" he was quoted as saying.

INXS

INXS (pronounced "inks") has made the tragic mistake of producing an album which cannot be matched in the future. "X" is appropriately named since the whole album was conceived under the influence of the stimulant "X." As a result, they have demonstrated that they are more than capable of countless varieties of musical styles and tempos.

"Hear That Sound" is a perfect example of their lyrical and musical variety. "Hear that sound/there's a voice to be found/making changes go round/hear that sound/hear that sound/hear that sound/there's a voice to be found/making changes go round/hear that sound/hear that sound/hear that sound/hear that sound/there's a voice to be found/making changes go round/hear that sound."

"Bitter Tears," a song written last Friday kicking off the first day of Passover, discusses the meaning of the salt water at the Seder table. The song deals with lead singer Michael Hutchence's inability to accept his Jewish heritage.

"Push away your bitter tears/push away your bitter tears/push away your bitter tears/push away your bitter tears/push away your bitter tears/that's what they call doing no wrong/that's what they call doing no wrong/push away your bitter tears/push away your bitter tears/push away your bitter tears."

"Disappear" is a track in which the Australian band surprisingly claims to have absolutely no talent at all. It "disappeared." The song deals with the cathartic emotions felt during this realization. They feel so free nothing seems to matter.

Continued on page 6

Vote
for the Talking
Moose

He knows how to speak
his mind.

Write in candidate for Stu-A President

Fatal attraction

By O.C.K.
NEWS EDITOR

An illicit love affair between President of the College Bill Caughter and college guide author Lisa Burnbook is a possible reason for the negative review Colby received in Burnbook's book The Preppy Guide to Colleges.

The affair came to light when several love letters from Burnbook to Caughter were unearthed in the attic of the Caughters' home during spring cleaning. They were found in a trunk by Ima Cleaner, housekeeper to the president.

"I hadn't read anything like these since "Penthouse Letters," said Cleaner.

Caughter first met Burnbook when he attended a trustee meeting in New York two years ago. The two spent the night together at Caughter's hotel, reportedly collaborating on a glowing review of Colby for Burnbook's book, as well as developing a curriculum for a hands-on sexual education course to be introduced as part of the new first-year colloquia.

The affair was renewed a few months later when Burnbook traveled to Colby under the pretense of researching her book.

At the end of the torrid weekend Caughter broke off the affair. Over the next several months Burnbook wrote repeatedly to Caughter, demanding that he renew relations with her and divorce his wife Lydia. The letters included threats on Lydia's life, as well as suggestions that if Caughter did not respond to her demands, Burnbook would "see to it that no self-respecting politically correct prepster ever attends your depraved school."

In Burnbook's final letter she issued an ultimatum, stating that unless Caughter satisfied her, she would trash the school in her new book. The Preppy Guide to Colleges went to print soon after, with the unfavorable review of Colby.

Photo by Carmen Gettit

Burnbook eyeing Caughter

The original manuscript and the chapter which was finally published in the book are considerably different, according to Cut N. Paste, Burnbook's publisher. The chapter submitted by Burnbook was too explicit to be printed and had to be heavily edited.

"It dealt more with Caughter's short comings as a lover than with Colby as as school," said Paste.

Both Burnbook and Caughter declined to comment on the affair. □

Now, no one has to "try sobriety"

By Bottoms Up
ASST. NEWS EDITOR

According to a trustees report released last week, Colby's entire endowment is invested in breweries.

"The trustees decided to invest in breweries because they feel the College must invest in something that everyone believes in," said Bill "Melater" Caughter, president. "Here at Colby, we all believe in beer."

Anheuser Busch and Coors are the two breweries holding the majority of the endowment at this time.

"I was happy the trustees decided to go with Busch," said Jannie Nightsinger, dean of students. "Aside from the rough, cheap taste, I especially enjoy Busch's wide variety of serving containers. Long neck bottles are perfect for my intimate EPC meetings, while kegs seem to work well for my larger mid-week student center parties."

Caughter is disappointed that the bulk of the funds is invested with Busch and Coors. "I hope the trustees take a closer look at Rolling Rock," he said. "I know I've always liked the Rock best."

Caughter also suggested cornering the market on dice as a more diverse investing option. "I think there is a lot of potential for Beer-die to catch on nationally. We have alumni representatives in every state teaching their friends and neighbors the art of this sport. By cornering the market in dice, we could profit on a trend we introduced," said Caughter. □

Senior year scrapped

By Craig Applecrumb
FEATURES EDITOR

Due to lack of both funds and enthusiasm, the officers of the class of '92 have decided to cancel their senior year, scheduled to begin next fall.

"Obviously people don't want a senior year or they would have helped us raise more money," said one class officer. "I'm disgusted by the show of support we've gotten. Nobody even bought any of our Arbor Day-Celebration T-shirts. At this rate we're going to have to cancel the ping-pong tournament scheduled for next week. We don't even have any money to pay for the paddles we ordered, and where else are we going to get 200 paddles by next week? Tell me, where? We had to special order them and everything. I could just cry. And the balls have already been shipped. What are we going to do with two-hundred stupid ping-pong balls now? This is pathetic. Just pathetic."

As of now, the junior class will not graduate until sufficient funds can be found to scrape together some sort of senior year. □

MacMoose takes Stu-A presidency

By Alisa Alwaystardy
MANAGING EDITOR

By a seven to one margin, Colby students elected a write-in candidate, the Talking Moose, for Stu-A president. The Moose's overwhelming victory is being attributed to his candor and quick decision making.

Lawn Crawlee, this year's Stu-A president, said, "The Moose is so bitchen. He just says whatever is on his mind and then acts on it. I never knew you could do that."

The Moose first appeared at Colby on a computer in the Echo office. "He just popped up on my screen one day and started talking," said Glory Write, editor of the Echo. The Moose has been a hit ever since.

The Moose said, "The secret of success is sincerity - learn to fake that and you've got it made."

In a press conference following the elections, the Moose criticized his predecessors. "They love to do nothing and rest afterwards." However, he does feel that Colby could be worse. "An idle mind is worth two in the bush," he said.

There are concerns that the Moose will run into conflicts with Tool Newman, Director of Student Activities and Paul's rejected twin. The Moose responded, "I know Tool is hurt that he never made it in show business, but my philosophy about Tool is, don't try to teach him to sing. It wastes time and annoys the staff."

Students expect the Moose to deal with the same alcohol crap that every other Stu-A president has dealt with in the last three years. The Moose, in reference to Dean of Students Jannie Sweatthinger's alcohol policy changes this year, said, "Nobody expects a Spanish Inquisition."

As PCism increases on campus, the Moose will most likely be caught in the struggle between liberal and conservative students. For now, the Moose has decided to take a progressive approach to PCism on campus, encouraging all students to change their thinking. "Keep your mind open but check your fly," he said.

The Moose's stunning victory came as a surprise to many. "I really thought the students would vote for an enrolled student this year, but I guess they've been disheartened," said Tool.

The Moose also supports the current baby boom within the administration. "A hen tomorrow is better than an egg today," he said. □

"No one expected a Spanish Inquisition"

Yes! it's Wabbit season, no, it's Duck season!!

By Heather Boothe
STAFF WRITER

President Caughter, in a memo he sent to students and local town newspapers, announced that an all-campus duck-hunting season will officially begin at Colby this Sunday at 3 pm. for the first time in the College's history.

Caughter wrote that he and the deans thought that opening the campus to duck hunting would solve many of the campus' current problems.

First, it would improve relations with the town. He made a point to also send a letter to the Morning Sentinel to be perfectly clear that the town people are also invited to take those rifles down off the racks in their trucks and shoot those ducks. This, he claims, is just part of the ongoing effort to improve the schools relationship with Waterville.

"My gun's just been sitting up there on my rack all winter," said John La Croix of Waterville. "I thought I was going to have to wait 'til fall to use it on those birds."

Secondly, Caughter points out that this free activity will give students who are under 21, and therefore unable to drink alcohol, something to do. He points out that this is a healthy and fun alternative to any weekend doghead, and hopes the opening day party will become a tradition among Colby students for years to come.

"Colby students complain because we don't let them drink, but then we don't give them an alternative," said Janice Slackzinger, dean of students, after reading the president's memo. "Here's just that alternative they have been looking for."

Thirdly, this resolves the problem of ducks staying on campus during the winter. Since all the ducks will be shot, there will be no problems of overfed ducks neglecting to go south for the winter.

"We will be free from the endless Echo articles about wandering campus ducks," Caughter added with a grin.

So get out your water pistol or rifle of choice. The new season kicks off with a reception and hunt to follow on Sunday at the warming hut at Johnson Pond. □

Photo by that Silly Wabbit

Caughter gets a head start on the duck hunting season. He got a little wet, but he got the duck.

Hamburger Helper

continued from McDonalds page 1

most often found in people suffering from poor self-image and self-worth who would feel a need to expel what they feel is harmful or wasteful to their well-beings, doing so in public so as to prove to everyone else that they are trying desperately to exorcise this harm and waste from their bodies. Either that, or the person is just a total sicko who needs help bad. But don't send them to me. I wouldn't want to shake their hand or anything. Is this off the record?"

As a counselor, Patty said she has never encountered anything like this before at Colby.

"Unless you count that poor girl back in 1987 who got drunk off her rocker one night and passed out in a toilet bowl full of pee. But I like to think of that as an isolated incident. That was kind of funny though. Can you imagine that? It must have been so embarrassing. I felt awful for the girl who was on the toilet at the time. I still wonder how Sarah got her head in there. Oops, did I just say her name? We're confidential service you know. The Pubertie's would kill me if they knew I was giving out their daughter's name. Oops! Did I just do it again?"

Patty said urinating in public is not confined to just one sex.

"Call me Hamburger, please," she said. "Women and men are both capable of it, I guess. Isn't that gross? You'd really have to be one sick puppy to do that. But don't send them to me. I wouldn't want them to pee on my new rug. Isn't it nice?"

Where can these people find help at Colby?

"I don't know, but they better find it soon," said Patty. "I suppose we could start a self-help group. We could call it Urinators Anonymous. Or Defecators Anonymous. I'm sorry, I don't mean to laugh at you. I'm just in rare form today. Oops - better make that medium-rare form! Get it!"

Patty did say she would refer clients to a specialist downtown if necessary.

"Anything to get them as far away from me as possible," she said. "This is some sick stuff we're talking about. No shit."

How should a student approach a friend whom they believe suffers from this problem?

"I would wear gloves myself," said Patty. "And I would keep a distance. Would you like a drink?"

Patty did feel that this problem would run its course at some point.

"People just can't keep doing this kind of thing," she said. "It's not natural. It's sick and disgusting. I get the jeeves just thinking about it. Do you have a girlfriend? You'd be perfect for my sister Peppermint. She's a real character. I mean, literally." □

Music

continued from page 4

"And the world seems to disappear/all the problems/all the fears/and the world seems to disappear/disappear/disappear/disappear/disappear/disappear/disappear." Again, they dazzle their listeners with their creative choice in word variation.

"Who Pays the Price?" is a song about the dilemma of who should pick up the tab on dates. Hutchence tells of an unfortunate experience when he suggested she pay. Evidently the crowd at the restaurant didn't agree with him.

He says, "People are shoving/pushing you into the ground/and you cry in the daylight/it's like a war/who pays the price." Hutchence hopes that by sharing his experience, he can save others the trouble of meeting a similar fate.

ENIGMA-MCMXC a.D.

There is one obvious reason why this album has raped the pop charts in Canada, Europe, and the U.S. As indicated on the album's sleeve, it is an album to "nastify" (from the noun "to do the nasty") to.

"The pleasure of satisfying a savage instinct/undomesticated by the ego/is incomparably more intense than the one of satisfying a tamed instinct/The reason is becoming the enemy that prevents us from a lot of possibilities of pleasure." This quote was taken from a recent Phyllis Schlafley speech in which she endorsed the band's efforts in designing an album to fornicate to.

"The Voice of Enigma," the album's first track is intended to be used as foreplay music. Enigma Guru Curly M.C. states in a recent Echo interview, that "this song was especially designed for Americans who have expressed their impatience with foreplay." (The song is less than 2 minutes.) "Sadness," the next track, expresses Curly's sorrow at seeing so many American women go unsatisfied. He hopes that his music will open new sexual channels for American partners. Curly hopes that by the time "Sadness" kicks in, the partners should be "doin' the do" like Scooby.

The album is intended to serve as 40:12 seconds of pleasure. If used correctly, it is possible to pontificate (performing the act in the back seat of a Pontiac) three times during the course of the album. There are spots in the music where cigarette smoking is appropriate. MCMXC is a perfect treat for someone like Vanilla Ice who is unexperienced in the act of sexing. Like a spirit the music possesses you, enabling you to explore sexual states unknown to William F. Buckley himself.

The beginning of the album is tame in nature. However, it progressively gets more and more risqué as "Knocking on Forbidden Doors" indicates. No Jim Morrison explanations are needed. □

ATTENTION LADIES:

For an opinion, mean cuisine, or old-fashioned Southern charm
CALL
1-800-HOT-CAKE

FOR SALE:

The Minnow

A 1976 bi-centennial edition of the Honda Accord

- IT RUNS
- 4 Seats
- Brakes
- A right hand blinker
- Bumper stickers

Please the Minnow needs a home-
Won't you help it?
Call 872-FISH

Don't Recycle this ECHO

What could have been: the tragedy of spanky fallic

By Homey "don't play that" Walsh and Paul "Too Tall" Argiro
Asst. Sports Editor and Sports Editor

Forget Bo Jackson, Spanky Fallic '91 could have established a new standard for the athlete, had it not been for a COOT accident his freshman year. Here's how Fallic remembers it, with a little help from his friends:

"I was a young stud starring in three sports at Boston Latin, and had many Division I recruiters knocking down my door. But I chose Colby purely for academic and publicity reasons.

"You see," Fallic says, setting you up like the fisherman recounting the first Great White he reeled in, "The babes surrounding me in high school were enough. I mean forget my studies, I didn't want the hassle of all the Division I chicks.

"The babes would have distracted me from my athletic pursuits. I figured I could have been a big fish in the D-I pond, but I opted to be a sperm whale in Johnson Pond," he says.

But Spank, what sport made the Fallic legend grow the most?

"Dude, I'd have to say glamour. He was a hard working, superior athlete who could've played D-I baseball, soccer and hockey, and yes, he even excelled in bowling thanks to his oversized balls.

It was nicotine addiction that caused Spank to wrestle with "an overgrown" bear while on COOT.

"This bear had the unmitigated gall to take my last tin of Skoal M i n t . Naturally, I had to challenge him."

Spank remembers the bear to be "roughly 7'4" and 620 lbs., a Notre Dame offensive line recruit.

"He was really big, but the bear looked young and I

photo by Cyrus Zambonie IV

Teammates congratulate Spanksta

hockey [pause as he changes "lippers"]. Most were amazed by my small frame but how I handled my big stick in the crease."

But Spank wasn't all

SPORTZ

THE COLBY BELCHO

Catching Pablo in a pensive moment, we can see his shorts "Flintstones go surfing" retailing at $4.97 with three Flintstone Vitamin proofs of purchase.

The Shark's trou "Santa plays golf" is available from Yves Saint Laurent on Rodeo Drive. Prices only available on request.

Oops! cover yourself Shark! And show us those neat Chuck Taylors by Converse! Those are sold for $12.72 a piece, and distributed through K-Mart and other fine footwear stores.

We see Sweaty frolicking in his "action wear" saran wrap g-string made by Jordache, retailing for $65.

Sale of the week! Pablo's wet t-shirt was fashioned by Armani, retailing at $72.50.

1
9
9
1
S
W i m
S u i t
i
S
S
U
E