The President's Page

IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT THIS IS my final year in the office of President, it might be appropriate for the several issues of the Alumnus between now and Commencement to reflect some retrospective ruminations. There have been a good many changes at Colby over what will have been nineteen years, and some of them are worthy of comment. In this issue I will say something about the physical changes, next time something about the modifications in the academic program, and in the spring a few general reminiscent observations.

In the first few years of this administration the Eustis Administration Building was completed and occupied, and soon thereafter the Charles A. Dana dormitory designed, as it was then, for women. We built a new press box (not exactly an architectural marvel) and were given the Gould Music Shell, which was erected on the edge of the campus beyond and north of the Coombs Baseball Field. The total reconditioning of Coombs Field became a project in later years, and several athletic areas here and there were landscaped and completed, notably the soccer fields in honor of Gilbert F. (Mike) Loeb. Thanks to the Class of 1940 and others, we were able to acquire the building that became, with some architectural additions and changes, the Millett Alumni House.

It was in the mid-sixties that we came to the conclusion we inevitably reached about the architecture. The red brick, colonial, eighteenth-century Georgian style that the college architect, Jens Frederick Larsen, had in mind when the new campus was designed in 1930, was growing monotonous. Stately and handsome as Georgian architecture is, there was a certain artificiality in the rigid symmetry as the buildings multiplied here on our rolling hillside. And as the twentieth century neared its two-thirds mark it grew more and more apparent to us that Colby should give some evidence of recognition of an age in which architecture had fostered so many exciting new forms. Furthermore, the expense in construction of Georgian buildings was becoming prohibitive. The first two departures were the Benjamin Thompson dormitories on the chapel hillside, and about the same time the Richard Hawley Cutting physical education complex on the northern edge of the campus. Both were, in quite different ways, eminently successful, and when the Thompson dormitories won an international award from the American Institute of Architects we were proud and gratified.

Since that time our architectural ventures have been in the contemporary vein. The wing on the Bixler Art and Music Center is dramatic and functional, a fine example of a modern addition to a classical structure.

The same architectural firm, Johnson and Hotvedt, designed the Garrison-Foster Health Center, brilliantly placed, on the advice of our landscape architectural consultant Carol Johnson, in a grove of trees between Dana and Lorimer Chapel. The treatment of the brick in the Jetté Gallery and Lenk Studio wing of the Bixler Center is similar to the treatment in the Health Center, and as one stands in the middle of the quadrangle in front of the library these two buildings appear to be bound together by a soft texture that contrasts happily and harmoniously with the classical Georgian structures that surround them.

Those two buildings paved the way for the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building, conceived by the Alonzo Harriman firm, similar in materials, quite different in design, situated in such a way that the tone of the entire quadrangle is enriched and softened. And, of course, to complete the science complex, both Keyes and Arey (once known as the Life Sciences Building) have been almost completely renovated without intrusion upon the classical lines of their Georgian design.

In all the construction we have been engaged in during the past five years, a series rather remarkable in scope for a small liberal arts college during a decade of financial stringency, two other internal renovations have produced some of the most dramatic results. The old Roberts Union is scarcely recognizable in all sorts of ways once one goes inside, and yet from the outside there is relatively little change. We now have in Roberts a fine Student Union of which everyone is proud and to which almost every student goes for one reason or another almost every day. And the renovation of the Runnals Union is likewise mostly internal. The old gymnasium has given way to the theatre, and the building in itself is now a Performing Arts Center. Yet the integrity of this building named so appropriately for Dean Ninetta Runnals is intact.

Still other changes have been made. The acquisition of the Colby-Marston Preserve in Belgrade provides a splendid laboratory for the study of our natural environment. The McPartland Music Shell makes performances of many kinds in the Wadsworth Gymnasium not only possible but vastly superior in tone to any comparable event in the days

Why Science?

by Gerard Piel, Sc.D. '60

This article has been written for the Alumnus by Gerard Piel, Sc.D. '60, one of the most gifted men of American science. Its publication coincides with the dedication of the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building and the completion, this fall, of the new Science Center.

A 1937 graduate of Harvard, Piel was science editor at Life magazine from 1939 to 1944. After two years as assistant to the president of the Henry J. Kaiser Co. and associated companies, he became president and publisher of the Scientific American in 1947, a position he still retains.

In the citation read at commencement in 1960 in conferring a doctor of science degree, President J. Seelye Bixler told Piel: "Committed to the idea that science can flourish only in a society that protects freedom of conscience and that public opinion in a free society must shape the course of science itself, you have made the Scientific American a journal through which scientists can speak to their fellow citizens and laymen in turn can ask for scientific judgment on the problems on which they seek light. Your conviction that the work of the laboratory makes a significant impact on society, and society one no less significant on the laboratory has enabled this important magazine under your inspired guidance to interpret the needs of one to the other. . . . Colby would honor you particularly for your realistic vision of what mind's control over nature may mean for the future and for your exposition of the role which science itself may play in the practice of the liberal arts."

Piel is an overseer of Harvard College and a trustee of Radcliffe College, Phillips Academy, the American Museum of Natural History, New York University, the Mayo Foundation, and the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation. He is the author of Science in the Cause of Man, 1961, and The Acceleration of History, 1972.

SCIENCE IS AS NATURAL TO A LIBERAL EDUCATION AS literature, history, the arts and the other enterprises of the humanities. The first yield from work in science is science—that is, objective knowledge. Men can share such knowledge and act on it with confidence because they can repeat the work independently at other times and places. By this same procedure—by repetition of the work—science finds immense practical consequences; an industrial process is the original experiment repeated continuously on the grand scale. The utility of science is sufficiently celebrated in our culture. This essay is concerned with science as a kind of work that men do as an end in itself.

Science thus purely defined is no less consequential in the lives of men. From science has come the new self-recognition of the human species, across racial, national, cultural, and class boundaries, that is shared ever more widely, with ascending moral force, among men all over the planet. The objectification of knowledge asserts the primacy of the individual man and makes irreversibly absurd the claim of any external authority upon his perception and judgment or upon his conscience. In his “flight from wonder”—the phrase is Albert Einstein’s—man has come abroad into a universe that beggars in scale, invention, and splendor the paradises and infernos of his innocent imagination.

The choice of truth, the submission to the discipline of objective knowledge, is an ethical act. The truth is of itself a good, although it may be used for good or ill. Yet it is argued—and too often conceded—that science is value-free.

From science has come the new self-recognition of the human species . . .

To take that position is to abandon questions of value to unreason. As men comprehend that the natural locus of purpose in the universe is inside their own heads, they will learn to give these questions their best thinking. The immense utility of science compels such effort and lends pragmatic power to the golden rule.

There is urgent need to comprehend the relevance of science to questions of value. Science has subverted the traditional values of our culture and the comforts of its received absolutes, whether certified by religious or secular authorities. The resulting void is darkened by ignorance of science. Public anxiety cannot much longer be appeased by the distractions of affluence and gadgetry. Issues of value and purpose have gathering urgency in American culture. The understanding necessary to secure the ground to resolve these issues is not widely shared, even among the large minority of the citizenry that has been exposed to higher education.

A fashionable dichotomy nowadays separates “affective” and “cognitive” knowledge. This schizophrenia works its worst mischief when questions of value are at issue. It has a dishonorable origin in the truce drawn between the faculties of arts and of sciences that closed the Darwinian controversy a century ago. Science, held to be value-free, was reserved to scientists. Value was correspondingly staked out for the humanists, as lying beyond the reach of reason in the province of feeling and emotion, which it was the function of arts and letters to refine and elevate.

Such dualism too often sanctions the employment of bad means for the attainment of declared good ends. If the ugly lessons of history are rightly read, it can be seen that the means always, ultimately, comprehends ends. The evil act is the terminus of good intentions.

The pragmatic philosophy of science applied to questions of value declares that purpose must find validation in the same tests that reason applies to truth. As men's understanding grows and their technological competence increases, men's values change. "Such concepts as justice, humanity, and the full life," says the mathematician J. Bronowski, "have not remained fixed in the last hundred years, whatever churchmen and philosophers may pretend. . . . A civilization cannot hold its activities apart or put on science like a suit of clothes—a workday suit which is not good enough for Sundays."

Consider the notion of "race" and the role it has played in history. Those who held citizenship in the democracy of Athens could speak of their countrymen outside the city gates as "andropoda," that is, human-footed animals. So, wherever the minority of the powerful held the powerless majority in subjection, whether as helots, serfs, or chattel slaves—and that was everywhere in agricultural civilization—they could make of their subjects what the psychologist Erik Erikson calls a "pseudospecies." The proposition was most often sustained by distinct disparity in biological development as between masters and subjects, when it was not reinforced by color. That the disparity was due to inequity can be seen today in the contrast in height and weight between the prerevolution Russian peasantry and their postrevolution urban grandchildren. The evidence amassed by genetics, anthropology, psychology, and human biology has overwhelmingly crushed the mythology of race. Such a concept can no longer hold any standing in the value system of a civilized society or supply rationalization for social policy. On the contrary, objective knowledge affirms the value of equality before the law.

The ethic of objective knowledge sets noble aims for the conduct of the individual and for the organization of society. In the words of the biochemist Jacques Monod:

In the ethic of knowledge the single goal, the supreme value, the "sovereign good" is . . . objective knowledge itself. . . . There must be no hiding that this is a severe and constraining ethic which, though respecting man as the sustainer of knowledge, defines a value superior to man. It is a conquering ethic . . . since its core is a will to power; but power only in the realm of understanding. An ethic which will therefore teach scorn for violence and temporal domination. An ethic of personal and political liberty; for to contest, to criticize, to question constantly are not only rights therein, but a duty. A social ethic, for objective knowledge cannot be established as such elsewhere than within a community which recognizes its norms.

These are the values of the emergent world culture. It is no coincidence that they embrace the ideals of the open society: liberty, justice, and brotherhood. For it is the scientific-industrial revolution that has made possible the approach to this social order by the fortunate peoples who live in the industrial, or "developed," countries. The enormous power that applied science has placed in man's hands now makes urgent the ordering and perfecting of human society. People are acting, however, as if they are used to living with the threat of the thermonuclear apocalypse. At the same time, they are too little informed of the positive measures at their command by which they might terminate the age-old rules of want and inequity. What men need most to learn is the liberating knowledge about themselves established by the work of science.

From Tentative Beginnings to a Robust Vitality

by Dean Ernest C. Marriner '13, College Historian

This chronicle was prepared by Dean Marriner for the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building dedication program.

DURING THE SECOND QUARTER of the 19th century, when Waterville College was getting its start, instruction emphasized Latin, Greek, mathematics and moral philosophy. The newer field of science, however, was not entirely neglected. The modern designations had not come into use, but what was considered science was divided into two categories—natural philosophy and natural history. The former was devoted to physics, the latter to biology and geology. Within 20 years of its start, the college had a professorship in each category.

No one was sure where chemistry should be placed, in natural philosophy or in natural history. It was the first modern science to be named in the catalog, in 1835, when Justin Loomis was appointed professor of chemistry and natural history.

Physics was not mentioned in the catalog until 1884. Geology came in 1888, although classes in mineralogy had been taught as early as 1845. Not until nearly the 20th century did the catalog list biology, though botany and physiology had been in the curriculum before the Civil War. An instructor in biology was named in 1897, but there was no separate department until 1905. The chemistry department came in 1885 and physics in 1886. They were followed by geology in 1888.

Separate housing for the sciences was introduced in 1872 with the erection of Coburn Hall, in which all science classes were held until the Shannon Physical Laboratory and Observatory, for physics and astronomy, was put up in 1886. In 1889 came Chemical Hall, where the first floor was devoted entirely to chemistry. In those three buildings Colby's sciences were housed until the move to Mayflower Hill. Coburn Hall had the distinction of holding the last classes of any kind on the old campus.

Before moving to the Hill, Colby's first 125 years saw several distinguished professors in science. In the 1830s the investigations of George Washington Keely into Maine minerals won national attention. Charles Hamlin, whose research extended over all the life sciences, became so well known in ornithology and botany that Louis Agassiz persuaded him to join the Harvard faculty.

William A. Rogers not only designed the Shannon Building to accommodate his own extensive research, but also developed the standard yard for the U.S. Bureau of Standards and greatly advanced scientific knowledge of the understanding of light. William S. Bayley was a geologist whose investigations were recognized by his European peers, with whom he carried on extensive correspondence.

In the years just before the move to the new campus, diligent research that earned national recognition was conducted in geology by Richard Lougee and Donaldson Koons. Colby's enviable record of encouraging students to pursue graduate work in science was the result of superior teaching by George Parmenter in chemistry and Webster Chester in biology, among others.

The first science building on Mayflower Hill was Keyes, which opened in 1950 and was followed two years later by the Life Sciences Building. This year the opening of the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building, for physics, geology and mathematics, freed the Arey Life Sciences Building for biology and Keyes for chemistry.

A marked increase in college enrollment resulted in an increase in the size of the faculty. The sciences gained specialists in every department. A broader and more meaningful curriculum was developed by the department heads—Lester Weeks and Evans Reid in chemistry, Dennison Bancroft in physics, Allan Scott and Miriam Bennett in biology, Donaldson Koons in geology, and Wilfred Combella and Lucille Zukowski in mathematics.

Colby's slowness to place women in faculty positions was especially evident in the sciences. Ninetta Runnals was appointed assistant professor of mathematics when she became dean of women in 1920. Lucille Pinette (Mrs. Walter Zukowski) joined the mathematics staff in 1943, and later became the first woman to head a Colby department. Two women who broke the male domination in biology were both named Miriam. Miriam Bartheaux was an instructor in 1948, and Miriam Bennett was named to a professorship and head of the department in 1973.

In 1835 Ezekial Holmes, an experimenting agriculturist in Winthrop, Maine, made weekly visits to the college to deliver lectures in chemistry, mineralogy and botany. Ever since then science at Colby has developed progressively, and now in 1978 it can offer breadth and depth of courses in modern buildings with superior equipment.

Now Plants, Too, Have a Home

FOR YEARS, THE BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT has had to be content to grow plants on windowsills and under light boxes, but all that has changed. The new greenhouse, which sits on an elevated bridge between the Keyes and Arey Life Sciences buildings, is, in comparison, a climate-controlled marvel.

The double-pane windows have a southwest exposure, and are angled to reflect a higher percentage of sunlight in summer than in winter. Inside, an automatic ventilation system constantly regulates the temperature. When a sensor detects excess heat, a motor is activated that opens the top row of windows. An automatic fan works in conjunction with the system, replacing the escaping hot air with cooler air. There are heating lines in the floor which, as a secondary benefit, evaporate water and increase humidity.

Three other systems are automated also. Watering hoses run to individual pots, permitting specific amounts of water to be given to each plant at specified times. There is an automatic misting system for plant cuttings that sends a fine six-second spray of water over them every six minutes, and an automatic timing system for the fluorescent growing lights. All water is temperature-controlled.

At one end of the greenhouse is a small, enclosed room that can be used to isolate plants with different requirements. Another feature is a small pool, now under construction, that will be used to grow aquatic plants. At the other end of the structure is a small environmental chamber with timer-controlled temperature and light sources used for seed germination. There is an adjoining potting room in Arey, and a passageway between Keyes and Arey is located directly behind the greenhouse.

Bruce Fowles, associate professor of biology, and David Firmage, assistant professor of biology, take care of the facility, which Firmage calls "a tremendous benefit compared to what we've had." He says it will be used by a large number of students doing coursework and independent study projects, as well as for growing specimens for lab use in several courses, and soon will be overflowing with verdurous vegetation.

Good Fortune Brings Two Copley Portraits to the Museum of Art

AS THE RESULT OF A MOST improbable chain of events, one of Harvard's oldest alumni left two portraits by John Singleton Copley to Colby's Museum of Art.

The owner of the two paintings was Arthur Drinkwater, who died in Boston on May 22, 1978 at the age of 98. He was born in Ellsworth in 1879, the son of Arthur Fuller Drinkwater, an 1840 graduate of Colby (then Waterville College). It is thought that the subjects of the two portraits were Drinkwater family ancestors.

In 1900 Drinkwater graduated from Harvard, where he earned an A.M. in 1901 and an LL.B. in 1903. After completing his studies, he joined the Boston law firm of Beumer and Foster, and during World War I was a captain in the 151st Field Artillery Brigade in France.

Following his military discharge he worked in investment banking for three years. Drinkwater then returned to law, conducting his practice at 53 State Street in Boston, his office until his death. For 76 years he served as secretary of the Harvard Class of '00, and through his 90th year Drinkwater was still playing tennis, rowing on the Charles River, figure skating and trout fishing. He summered in Seal Harbor on Mt. Desert Island.

He was unsure about where to

leave his two Copleys. Not long ago he discussed this with Barbara Neville Parker, co-author of John Singleton Copley, American Portraits, published in 1938 by the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. Her niece is Mrs. Herbert Pratt, mother of Katherine Pratt '81 (Cambridge, Mass.).

When Mrs. Pratt brought her daughter to Colby, she toured the Museum of Art and was impressed with the collection. Upon learning of Drinkwater's dilemma, Mrs. Pratt suggested that her aunt recommend Colby's Museum of Art as a home for the Copleys.

Drinkwater asked to meet a representative of the college. After a talk with museum director Hugh Gourley in February, Drinkwater changed his will, leaving the portraits to Colby. He died three months later.

Little Girl with Grapes was painted about 1765. The young girl is wearing a pearl-gray dress, with a pink scarf draped from her shoulders. There are flowers in her hair and she holds a bunch of white grapes in her skirt. Grape leaves are painted in the upper left-hand corner.

Gentleman in a Brown Suit was painted about 1763. His suit has large gilt buttons, his wig is gray, and a landscape with a birch tree is in the background.

Little Girl with Grapes, oil on canvas, 27¼" x 23".

Copley, born in Boston in 1738, was one of the most sought after portrait painters in New England until he left the colonies in 1774. As the Revolution approached, he found it increasingly difficult to remain politically neutral, and he went to England. After traveling in Italy, Copley returned to London in 1775 where he pursued a highly successful career. He died there in 1815.

This bequest brings the number of portraits by the famous artist in the museum's collection to four. Earlier this year, the Vaughan Family of Maine presented the college with a study of Benjamin Hallowell that was painted by Copley between 1765 and 1768. A portrait of Mrs. Metcalf Bowler has been on permanent loan from Mr. and Mrs. Ellerton Jetté for many years.

The Search for a President

A TASK THAT HAS NOT BEEN carried out at Colby in almost 20 years is underway—that of finding a new president. The procedures involved were explained to the faculty and staff in September by Robert Anthony '38, L.H.D. '63, chairman of the Presidential Search Committee.

He said the first step taken by the board of trustees was the appointment of committee members by the chairman of the board. They include seven trustees, two faculty members, one student and the chairman of the Alumni Council.

"Although there can be only two faculty members on the committee," said Anthony, "we want to bring the faculty and indeed other people on campus more into the picture, so we have devised a mechanism called the Campus Advisory Committee for this purpose. . . . It is composed of seven faculty members, two students and two members of the administration.

"The search committee has agreed on a tentative set of procedures. We have advertised in the New York Times, the Chronicle of Higher Education, and Black Scholar, and we have sent requests for suggestions to the American Council on Education and to an organization called HER, which is particularly interested in suggesting women candidates. We are conducting a fairly wide investigation in addition to these formal advertisements." The closing date for application was October 1, and approximately 130 were received.

The committee is in the process of winnowing down that group to a list of semi-finalists. According to Anthony, "This will be a difficult and time-consuming job, but at the end of it we hope to have a list of about 12 to 15 people. . . . We plan to submit this list to the Campus Advisory Committee for their comments . . . and consider suggested additions if they have them.

"We shall then begin a rather intensive, fact-finding operation in which we probably will employ professional help. On the basis of that information we will try to get the list down to about four finalists. The names of finalists will be submitted to the Campus Advisory Committee also, and we will ask for their comments. On the basis of interviews conducted on the campus with these finalists, the committee hopes to make a recommendation to the board.

"We are not committed to make a single recommendation. . . . Unless there is substantial consensus in favor of one person we have pretty much decided that we will submit two names. We hope that won't be necessary. The board of course makes the final decision."

News of the College

New Board Chairman

Robert N. Anthony, a 1938 graduate who has been associated with the college for several decades, was elected chairman of the Colby board of trustees at the annual fall meeting held during Homecoming Weekend. He succeeds Albert C. Palmer, who has served in that capacity since 1970.

The new chairman, a resident of Boston, Mass., and of Waterville Valley, N.H., is the Ross Graham Walker Professor of Management Controls at the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration. He has been a member of the board since 1959, and received an honorary L.H.D. from the college in 1963.

Early this year, Anthony was appointed chairman of the Colby Presidential Search Committee which is seeking a successor to President Robert E. L. Strider, who will retire at the conclusion of the current academic year.

Palmer, who also serves on the search committee, is a native of Fairfield. He resides in Stoneham, Mass., and is a 1930 Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Colby. The college conferred an LL.D. degree upon Palmer in 1972. He is former vice-president for administration and planning of the New England Telephone Company. Palmer was first elected to the Colby board in 1960.

Here and Abroad, Continuing Research

Six professors are taking sabbatical leaves during this academic year. The following three plan to be gone for the full year.

R. Mark Benbow, professor of English, is continuing research on Elizabethan London at the Institute for Historical Research, University of London. He also plans to participate in a seminar on Elizabethan England.

Sandy Maisel, assistant professor of government, is undertaking two projects. The first is an in-depth analysis of how members of the House of Representatives use the various resources available to them to perform the legislative aspects of their jobs. He also plans a study of congressional primaries.

Robert McArthur, associate professor of philosophy, is at Indiana University working on the problems of fate and fatalism.

On leave for the second semester only are professors Reuman, Curran and Weissberg.

Eileen Curran, English, plans to work on the Wellesley Index to Victorian Periodicals, vol. 4. She will spend three or four months in England, where she can use manuscript collections difficult to find in the United States.

Robert Reuman, philosophy, will continue research that was partially completed during his 1971-72 sabbatical. It deals with the relation between people's values and the conditions and institutions in which their lives are imbedded.

Guenter Weissberg, government, will conduct a study of international terrorism, including a review and analysis of its historical and legal aspects and ramifications. His work will be carried out at the School of International Affairs and the Law School at Columbia University.

In Honor of One Who Died for World Peace, a Munificent Bequest

The college has received a bequest of almost $235,000 from the late George Perry '14, a man of dry wit and intense loyalty to Colby. His will established the James Perry Class of 1911 Fellowship, named in honor of his brother, James Perry '11, who was killed by Turkish brigands in 1920.

James, a Y.M.C.A. secretary, traveled to Turkey to extend the work of that organization. He and another secretary, while en route to Aintab to begin a Y.M.C.A., were mistaken for French troops of occupation and killed by Turkish irregulars.

The fellowship is to be used for the education of students who can make practical contributions to world peace, "it being my wish that any student who benefits therefrom should understand that my brother gave his life for world peace."

In memory of his mother, Mary Bell Ladd Sherman Perry, he left his collection of books, pamphlets and pictures concerning Abraham Lincoln and Edna St. Vincent Millay, and a newspaper from the 1770s describing the Boston Massacre. Perry also designated $1,000 for a James Perry Memorial.

Perry was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and served as a bombardier during World War I, flying many missions over German lines. He then joined the Y.M.C.A. Foreign Field Service and worked in the Near East with his brother until James's death.

In the early 1920s Perry worked as an assistant to Thomas Edison at his New Jersey laboratory. Perry later became a store manager of the W.T. Grant Co., retiring to Camden in 1947. The lifelong bachelor was an avid conservationist and ornithologist, and was known as a Lincoln scholar. He died April 17, 1976.

Predicting the Future

How many elementary school teachers will be needed in New England 25 years from now? How will future population age structures affect the cost of our Social Security System? Students enrolled this spring in a course called Economic Demography will be able to analyze such questions with the aid of DEMO-GRAPHICS, a computer-assisted instructional program in population issues.

Colby is one of the first colleges in the country to participate in the project, which was developed by the Population Dynamics Group at the University of Illinois. The programs are distributed free under a grant from the National Science Foundation. However, the programs were originally written for large computers, and modifications were necessary before they could be used at Colby.

obtained a grant from the Mellon Foundation and began the necessary modifications last spring. Their techniques were so successful that the Population Dynamics Group now distributes them as guidelines to other institutions using DEMO-GRAPHICS on small computers.

Prof. Dooley, who is responsible for bringing DEMO-GRAPHICS to Colby, said the main purpose is to teach students the basic techniques of demographic analysis and their application to specific problems. In addition, he said, the program can be adapted to nonacademic uses as well. The admissions office could project the growth rate of 18-year-olds in various locations, for example, to determine where the college should concentrate its recruiting efforts in the years ahead.

For years there were three separate science libraries—one for chemistry, physics and mathematics, one for geology and another for biology. The new science library is a consolidation of all three, and represents a major improvement. The collection is located on two floors of the Keyes Building and is staffed, for the first time, by a professional librarian.

Distinguished Guests

The Seeley G. Mudd Science Building, housing the departments of geology, mathematics, and physics, was dedicated with an impressive program on October 13. Eugene P. Wigner, professor-emeritus of physics, Princeton University, and Nobel Laureate, 1963, (right) delivered the address. To the right of President Strider are Luther Anderson and Carl M. Franklin, trustees of the Seeley G. Mudd Fund. Dr. Franklin made the formal presentation of the building which was accepted on behalf of Colby by Albert C. Palmer, board chairman. Photo by Lynn Mosher.

Old Friends

Dr. and Mrs. J. Seelye Bixler, chatting with Professor Lucille Zukowski, were among those returning to share in the dedication proceedings. In addition to the new building, the Bixlers had the opportunity to inspect (in the background) the Arey Life Sciences Building, left, and the Keyes Chemistry Building, right. Both, constructed during Dr. Bixler's administration, have been extensively renovated.

Remembered Friends

The Mayflower Hill campus has benefited from the generosity of many alumni and other friends, and countless individuals have been honored with rooms and other memorials.

With pride and gratitude, Colby has recorded the named rooms and areas of the Science Center made possible by special gifts to the Science Program. Each is designated by a plaque. Memorials and rooms given in tribute to living alumni are indicated by the use of the complete names. Plaques also perpetuate memorials established at the time of the construction of the Keyes and Arey buildings.

Memorials in the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building include The Howard Safford Lee Room, given by his family; The Lobby, given by the Class of 1951; The Seismic Recorder, given by the New York Alumni Association; The William Shirley Bayley—Ambrose Benton Warren Memorial, given by Elmer C. Warren; The Thomas Christopher Bove Laboratory, given by his family and fellow Colby students; The Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity Room, given by the alumni brothers; The Frank Simonds Carpenter Laboratory, given by Doris Carpenter; The Dignam Room, given by members of the family who attended Colby.

Also, The Carole Yarchin Marcus Laboratory, given by her family; The Dr. and Mrs. Harry Emerson Fosdick Room, given by Patricia Downs Berger, M.D., A.B. 1962, Robert L. Berger, M.D., Elinor Downs, M.D., Dorothy Fosdick, L.H.D. 1954; The Sills Laboratory, given by Nathaniel L. Sills 1929, Ruth Fife Sills and Arthur S. Sills 1965; The Colonel Richard Cutts Shannon Laboratory; The Mary Stafford Arey Center for Mathematical Sciences; The Philip William Hussey Room, given by his family; and The Colonel James

Edward Davidson, Jr. Classroom.

In the Keyes Building are The Ralph Francis Prescott Advanced Organic Chemistry Laboratory, given by his wife Faye Glasure Prescott; The Mary Corona Machemer Laboratory, given by her husband Paul Ewers Machemer; The Sage Seminar Room, given in tribute to Robert Sage 1949 by his family and many friends; and The Casco Bank & Trust Company Seminar Room.

A Herbarium, located on the second floor of the David Kenneth Arey Life Sciences Building, is a gift of the Greene family, Ray B. Greene, Jr. 1947.

Alumni Trustee Nominations

At its annual homecoming weekend meeting, the Alumni Council nominated Robert Sage '49, Susan Fairchild Bean '57 and Richard Schmaltz '62 for reelection to the board of trustees. They were first elected by the council in winter 1976, although Sage was named to fill the unexpired term of another trustee in 1974.

Sage is president and owner of the Fenway Motor Hotels. He lives in Newton, Mass. Mrs. Bean, of Glastonbury, Conn., is a housewife and former assistant to the psychologist at the Newington Hospital for Crippled Children. Schmaltz is an investment consultant with Morgan Stanley and Company. He lives in Darien, Conn.

Article VIII, section two of the Alumni Association Constitution provides that other alumni may be nominated by petitions signed by one percent or more of the alumni body and filed with the executive secretary before February 1. If there are no nominations by petition, the council will declare election of the three nominees at its winter (1979) meeting.

exciting football game, the Colby women take the doubles championship in the Maine collegiate tournament, and the soccer team defeat regionally ranked MIT and achieve a 9-2-1 season.

Homecoming Weekend 1978 had all the ingredients of success. An exceptional number of alumni, some of whom traveled from as far as Arizona and Colorado, had the opportunity to see for the first time new additions to the Mayflower Hill campus, including the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building. The 74th annual Colby Night Banquet honored Edward H. Turner, L.H.D. '73, vice-president for development who has retired, and Trustee Robert Sage '49, recipient of the 1978 "C" Club Man-of-the-Year Award.

Announced was the creation, at the initiative of Trustee Mrs. Frederic E. Camp, of the Edward H. Turner Fund, the income of which will be credited in his name to the annual alumni fund. Sage, who was chairman of the drive that raised over $4.5 million for improved science facilities, was chosen for the "C" Club honor for his helping student-athletes become interested in the college. A fine New England fall weekend also saw an

New Tenants in Millett Alumni House

The special programs staff has moved, on a trial basis, into three rooms on the second floor of Millett Alumni House. The executive committee of the Alumni Council voted to approve the change, which is subject to review each year by the committee and the college.

The arrangement is an attempt to solve the problem of space for administrative offices. Frank Stephenson '62, director of alumni relations and annual giving, said the move should be advantageous to both the college and the alumni house. Normal operating expenses for the building are paid out of earnings from the Millett Alumni House endowment. Now that special programs has moved in, the college will assume the maintenance costs, allowing the endowment fund to grow.

Faculty and Staff—New Members

The following list includes only full-time appointments.

TAYLOR LECTURER IN CLASSICS
Christopher Dadian. (Brandeis Univ., B.A. 1972; Johns Hopkins Univ., M.A. 1975.) He has been a part-time instructor at Johns Hopkins, where he is completing his doctoral thesis. Dadian has a command of the classical languages and literatures, including Sanskrit, of Indo-European linguistics, and of Greek and Roman history.

ZISKIND LECTURER IN EAST ASIAN STUDIES (ART)

Germaine Fuller. (Reed College, B.A. 1967, Univ. of Oregon, M.A. 1971.) A Ph.D. candidate at the Univ. of Chicago, she taught last year at Occidental College. Her specialty is Ming painting, and her main interest is the relationship between literature and painting.

LECTURERS

April Crosby, philosophy, semester I. (Colorado College, B.A. 1969; Vanderbilt Univ., Ph.D. 1974.) She has held fellowships from Vanderbilt and N.D.E.A. and has taught at Vanderbilt, Colorado College, Tennessee Univ., Colorado Women's College and Chapman College's Alaska Program. Ms. Crosby's research has been concentrated in the field of ethics and existentialism.

Fredric Hopengarten, administrative science, semester I. (Colby, B.A. 1967; Boston College Law School, J.D. 1970; Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, M.B.A. 1972.) After earning his law degree he served as assistant to the director of the National Consumer Law Center in Boston, and was also employed by the Federal Trade Commission during the summer of 1971. Following graduation from Harvard, Hopengarten worked as a management consultant for Harbridge House, Inc., serving clients from both industry and government. He has had several articles published in law journals.

Cemal Yalinpala, economics, semester II. (Colby, B.A. 1971; McGill Univ., M.A. 1973.) Born in Turkey, he now has permanent residency status in Canada, where he is completing his doctoral dissertation. Since 1974 Yalinpala has taught full-time at Vanier College in Montreal, and will be on leave from that institution while teaching courses in macroeconomics at Colby.

INSTRUCTORS

Kenneth Hamilton, mathematics. (St. Peter's College, B.S. 1971; Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, M.S. 1973.) A Ph.D. candidate at R.P.I., his thesis examines problems in underwater acoustics. Following a short stint in the Army Chemical Corps, Hamilton taught at R.P.I. and, last year, at Russell Sage College.

Peter Koons, geology, semester I. (Dartmouth College, B.A. 1974; Otago Univ., New Zealand, M.Sc. 1978.) He worked for two summers as a research assistant at the Museum of Northern Arizona Research in Flagstaff, and taught courses in optical crystallography and mineralogy and advanced igneous petrology while in the graduate program at Otago Univ. Koons has also served as a geologist with the New Zealand Geological Survey.

Michele LaRusch, philosophy. (California State Univ., Northridge, B.A. 1971; Univ. of California, Los Angeles, M.A. 1973, C.Phil. 1976.) The title of Ms. LaRusch's Ph.D. dissertation is Induction, Inductive Logic, and a Theory of Knowledge. She has two bachelor degrees, one in philosophy and one in mathematics. Her master's degree is in philosophy. Her teaching has been on a part-time basis at U.C.L.A. and various campuses of the California state university system. In 1976 she received the Distinguished Teaching Award at U.C.L.A.

ADJUNCT INSTRUCTORS

Richard Bell, Jr., physical education and athletics. (Univ. of Delaware, B.S. 1973.) He has been enrolled in the graduate program in American history at the Univ. of Delaware, where he was a graduate assistant in the athletic program (football and track).

Robert Ewell, physical education and athletics. (Colby, B.A. 1971.) He returns to Colby as lacrosse coach, women's varsity hockey coach and assistant coach in football. Ewell has coached several sports at the high school level in Maine and New Hampshire.

ASSISTANT PROFESSORS

Roger Bowen, government. (Wabash College, B.A. 1969; Univ. of Michigan, M.A. 1970; Univ. of British Columbia, Ph.D. 1977.) After receiving his master's degree in Japanese politics, he spent a year in intensive Japanese language study in Tokyo before beginning work on a doctorate in Japanese politics. Bowen has taught at Saint Mary's Univ. in Halifax, and is now working on a political biography of Dr. E. H. Norman, a Canadian Japanologist.

Irene Cannon-Geary, modern languages, semester I. (Clark Univ., B.A. 1971; Brown University, M.A. 1974, Ph.D. 1978.) She spent 1971-72 at the Univ. of Heidelberg on a Fulbright Scholarship, and in 1976-77 did research for her dissertation at the Univ. of Munich on a German Academic Exchange Service Fellowship. She has taught at Wheaton College and Brown University.

Arthur Greenspan, modern languages. (Columbia Univ., B.A. 1966; Indiana Univ., M.A. 1968, Ph.D. 1976.) While in the doctoral program at Indiana Univ., Greenspan was awarded a Hays-Fulbright Scholarship and spent the 1968-69 academic year in Paris. He also received a University Teaching Award at Indiana in 1970. Since 1974 he has taught French at all levels at Rutgers.

Natalie Harris, English. (Indiana Univ., B.A. 1970, Ph.D. 1977.) She was president of the English Graduate Students Association at Indiana Univ., where she received the William Riley Parker Prize for distinguished teaching. Her dissertation surveys Pound's activities as a critic and relates that criticism to literary modernism. Her husband is Peter Harris, assistant professor of English.

Barbara Kassel, art. (Slade School of Fine Art, University College, London, Diploma in Fine Art, 1976; Yale Univ., M.F.A. 1978.) After attending the Univ. of California she lived in London for four years. She has been a teaching assistant and gallery assistant at Yale and has had exhibitions of her paintings at the Slade School and at Yale.

G. Calvin Mackenzie, government. (Bowdoin College, B.A. 1967; Tufts Univ., M.A. 1969; Harvard Univ., Ph.D. 1975.) Mackenzie holds a new position in public policy. A Viet Nam veteran, his doctoral research concerned the selection and confirmation of federal political executives. At George Washington Univ., he taught public policy analysis and served as a consultant to the Commission on the Operation of the Senate and Commission on Administrative Review of the House.

Frank Miller, modern languages. (Florida State Univ., B.A. 1962; Indiana Univ., M.A. 1965, Ph.D. 1976.) Miller has worked for the U.S. State Department interpreting the Russian language, and he has taught at Middlebury's summer language school, at the Univ. of South Carolina and at Bryn Mawr College. He is writing a text, A Handbook of Russian Verbal Government, for intermediate Russian language students.

Richard Moss, history. (Michigan State Univ., B.A. 1966, M.A. 1968, Ph.D. 1974.) He has taught most recently at the Univ. of Wisconsin at Parkside. His dissertation concerned The American Response to the French Revolution, 1789-1801. He has written on the meaning of Jacksonian democracy and, as a side interest, on the social history of Tiger Stadium in his native Detroit, Mich.

Thomas Newton, chemistry. (Hobart College, B.S. 1965; Bucknell Univ., M.S. 1968; Univ. of Delaware, Ph.D. 1973.) He did post-doctoral research in the field of synthetic organic chemistry at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute until 1976, and he also taught there. Newton then went to Williams College as an assistant professor.

John Reynolds, modern languages. (Tufts Univ., B.A. 1964; Tufts in Tübingen, M.A. 1967; Univ. of Virginia, Ph.D. 1970.) Reynolds is an authority on Christian F. Gellert, a writer of pre-classical Germany. He is carrying out research in East Germany this semester under a Ford Foundation Grant, and will join the faculty in February. He has held post-doctoral appointments at several German universities, and has completed for publication a three-volume edition of Gellert's letters.

Annette Shaw, modern languages. (Queens College, B.A. 1968; City Univ. of New York, Ph.D. 1978.) Her dissertation is a feminist perspective of Baudelaire's androgynous vision. She has taught at Yeshiva Univ., at Queens College, and in the New York public schools. Born in Cairo, she is fluent in Spanish and French and has traveled abroad extensively. She is teaching French.

Chung So, modern languages. (International Christian Univ., Tokyo, B.A. 1972; Princeton Univ., M.A. 1975.) Born in China, he attended secondary school in Hong Kong and college in Japan. He has been teaching Japanese, Chinese and linguistics at the Univ. of Oklahoma since 1976, and is a Ph.D. candidate at Princeton.

Gail Walker, mathematics. (Wells College, B.A. 1970; Indiana Univ., Ph.D. 1975.) From 1975 on she was an assistant professor of mathematics at Smith College. While at Indiana Univ. she was an associate instructor, and was awarded the Outstanding Associate Instructor Award for 1970-71.

Edward Yeterian, psychology. (Trinity College, B.S. 1970; Univ. of Connecticut, M.A. 1974, Ph.D. 1975.) A post-doctoral fellow at the Harvard Univ. Medical School from 1975 to 1978, he has devoted much of his research to the neural basis of sensory interaction, the way the brain makes sense out of its many inputs. He has taught at Trinity and was an instructor in neuro-anatomy at the Harvard Medical School this past year.

ADJUNCT ASSISTANT PROFESSORS

Thomas Kopp, physical education and athletics. (Univ. of Connecticut, B.S. 1962, M.A. 1966.) He was a member of the Dartmouth College coaching staff from 1971 to 1978. He also coached at the Univ. of Connecticut for five years, and has played professional baseball and semi-professional football. He is assistant football and baseball coach.

James Wescott, physical education and athletics. (Plymouth State College, B.Ed. 1965; Indiana Univ., M.S. 1966.) Wescott is the head track and field and cross-country coach for both men and women. He comes to Colby from North Carolina State Univ., where he was head coach of track and field.

ADMINISTRATION/STAFF

Jonathan Allen, director of computer services. (Case Western Reserve Univ., B.A. 1972.) For the past several years, Allen has been a programmer/analyst at Bowdoin College. He began his work with computers in the Air Force, then went on to the Computer Environments Institute of Honeywell's Information Services Division, and the General Computer Corporation.

Joan Alway, interviewer, admissions office. (Colby, B.A. 1971.) She spent 18 months after graduation as a child care worker in Alaska, and has since been involved with several social service agencies in the Waterville area. Most recently, she was administrative assistant at the Hinckley Home-School-Farm.

Mario Cardenas, staff assistant. (Colby, B.A. 1976.) An English major, he has held a variety of jobs during the past two years, and intends to pursue graduate study in literature.

Susan Westerberg Cole, science librarian. (Knox College, B.A. 1973; Univ. of Illinois, M.S. 1974.) From 1975 to 1977 she was monographs cataloger and head of catalog maintenance at the Univ. of Illinois. Since then she has been research assistant to the director of the library at Colby. She is married to F. Russell Cole, assistant professor of biology.

William Conner, technical director, performing arts program. (State Univ. College of New York, Potsdam, B.A. 1974.) A master's degree candidate at the Yale School of Drama, he is a specialist in theater lighting. He has worked in the Theater at Monmouth, and at the Bates, Yale and Wesleyan theaters.

The contents and display cases from the Webster Chester Museum are now viewed daily by hundreds of students. The contents of the museum, which was located on the fourth floor of the Arey Life Sciences Building, now adorn the hallways of that building. Two of the cases are also located, as shown above, in the elevated walkway between the Keyes Science Building and the Seeley G. Mudd Science Building, where a selection of the geology department's marvelous mineral collection is on exhibit. The museum was established in the early 1950s with a gift from Leslie Arey '12.

Patricia Hickson, director of career planning. (Colby, B.A. 1973; Central Michigan Univ., M.A. 1976.) After graduation, she was a European representative for Colby before becoming assistant registrar at the Georgetown Univ. Law Center. From 1974 on she was associated with the Graduate School, U.S. Department of Agriculture, moving from program assistant to head of Evening Programs and the Institute for Lifetime Learning.

Cindy Canoll Joseph, assistant dean of admissions. (Colby, B.A. 1973; Brigham Young Univ., M.A. 1977.) At Brigham Young, where she studied theater, she earned the Academic Achievement Award and was a graduate teaching and research assistant. She worked in the Colby admissions office from 1973 to 1975, and was assistant dean of admissions last year at Bates.

Nick Kaan, Jr., personnel officer. (Woodbury Univ., B.B.A. 1952.) Beginning in 1960 he worked in Wyoming, first as city clerk and city manager of Lusk, Wyo., then as assistant director and later director of personnel at the Univ. of Wyoming. At Colby he is responsible for hiring, fringe benefits and employee relations of the support staff.

Christopher Noonan, director of Roberts Union, (Colby, B.A. 1978.) The 1978 Condon Medal recipient, he has taken a one-year appointment as an administrative intern in the dean of students office. Noonan, whose duties include the day-to-day operation of the new student center, was a student representative to the board of trustees last year.

Sherman Rosser, Jr., assistant to the dean of admissions. (Univ of New Hampshire, B.S. 1975; Antioch-New England, M.Ed. 1977.) After serving an internship with VISTA in Worcester, Mass., he was employed by the Manpower Services Administration as a program assistant for CET A. In 1977 he was named an Outstanding Young Man of America by the Jaycees of America.

Jane Schwartz, health associate, health services department. (Boston Univ. School of Visual Arts, B.F.A. 1970.) She began her career in health services in 1972 by working as a crisis intervention counselor. In 1978 she completed the physician's assistant program at Northeastern Univ. She is assisting Dr. Clarence Dore and Carl Nelson, director of health services, but her primary concerns are women's health and health education in general.

Considering All the Pluses and Minuses

Effective next fall, the computation of student grade point averages will be more precise. The faculty has approved a grading system that gives real value to plus and minus grades.

Currently, an A is worth 4.0 points, a B is worth 3.0, a C is worth 2.0 and a D is worth 1.0. Pluses and minuses do not count, so, for example, a B+, a B and a B- all have the same value in the computation of grade point average—3.0. Under the new system, a B will still be worth 3.0 points, but a B+ will become a 3.3 and a B- a 2.7, etc.

Admissions: On the Road Again

This fall the admissions office staff has been spreading the word across the country—about Colby. In cooperation with six other New England colleges and universities, team visits were made to Cleveland,

Happy Event

A memorable occasion took place September 21 in Jaffrey, N.H., when Dr. and Mrs. J. Seelye Bixler celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. They had a marvelous family reunion, with all their daughters, sons-in-law and grandchildren present. Best wishes go to the Bixlers from all the men and women of Colby.

Ohio, Detroit, Mich., Lake Forest, Ill., Dallas-Ft. Worth and Houston, Tex., St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., and Pittsburgh, Pa. During those sessions, admissions officers met with literally hundreds of students, parents and secondary school counselors.

In addition, staff members participated in 14 college fairs throughout New England, and called on a number of individual schools in New England, New York, New Jersey and the Washington, D.C. area.

A Midtown Club Opens to New York Alumni

Members of the New York Alumni Association can now use, for a $50 annual fee, the facilities of the Brown University Club at 3 West 51st St. in Manhattan. The Brown Club contains a lounge, reception room and bar, and members have the full use of all facilities in the building. These include a dining room, several lounges, overnight accommodations, and rooms for meetings or private parties.

In addition, the Brown Club has reciprocal arrangements with several other Manhattan clubs—the Williams Club, the Lawyers Club, the Excelsior Club, Town Squash and the Apple Platform Tennis Club. For further information, contact Robert Anthony, treasurer of the New York Colby Alumni Association, at 500 East 85th St., New York, N.Y. 10028.

Projects to Unite the Past and Present

For its 50th reunion, the Class of '29 is planning two projects that will delight great numbers of alumni and strengthen the ties between the old and new campuses. The old College Gate will be installed on Mayflower Hill, and the setting of the Paul Revere bell will be totally refurbished.

The wrought iron gate, which led to College Avenue from South College Hall, was presented in 1927 by the Class of '02 at its 25th anniversary. It was originally thought that the gate would be the first of six, connected by a brick wall surrounding the old campus, but that never came to pass.

Stored since the move to Mayflower Hill, the gate was designed by Horace True Muzzy, a Waterville architect. It was built by the Horace Purinton Company of Waterville, a firm headed by the late Cecil M. Daggett '03.

Through the generosity of the Class of '29, the gate will be placed facing Johnson Pond at the top of the stairway between East and West dormitories. The site will be appropriately landscaped with flowering trees and other plantings.

The class also plans to recondition the setting of Colby's Paul Revere bell, located on the second floor balcony at the rear of Roberts Union. Cast in 1824, the bell was rung to awaken students on the old campus for more than a century. It is used on special occasions and to proclaim athletic victories.

In addition to improvements to the setting, plans call for the installation of a plaque and photograph of the bell in the main area of Roberts Union to make the public more aware of this unique tie with Old Colby.

Three '29ers, Dick Allen, Cecil Goddard and Ernest Miller, are directing work on these two projects.

Memorial to Thomas Bove

The Thomas Bove Endowment Award in Geology has been established by Louis Bove M.D., father of the late Thomas Bove '76, who was a geology major and president of his senior class.

It will assist "a student or students with a project in geology that cannot be accomplished at the college or with resources available within the department." The award will be made to students majoring in geology or in an interdisciplinary subject involving geology, and will ordinarily go only to sophomores and juniors.

It is intended "to assist students who are genuinely excited by geology and for whom such an award might serve to increase even further their interest in the subject."

Winter Alumni Meetings Set

A heavy schedule of alumni gatherings, all of which President and Mrs. Strider hope to attend, is on tap for the winter months. Alumni living near the following locations will receive specifics about the get-togethers from the alumni relations office.

The first meeting is January 9 in Los Angeles. Others are January 11 in San Francisco; a cocktail party before the State of Maine Holiday Hockey Classic in Portland, January 12-13; Honolulu, January 16; Denver, January 18; Dallas, January 29; Houston, January 30; Miami-Ft. Lauderdale, February 2; St. Petersburg, February 3; and the University of Maine-Colby hockey game at Orono, February 14.

when we did not have this important addition. The remodeling of the Hill Family House down by the tennis courts has added comfortably to our office spaces, and further modifications there in the next two or three years will make still more difference.

The face of Colby, therefore, has changed. And the trees and shrubs have grown, and there are those among our graduates of the fifties and before who might find it difficult to recognize some of their most familiar haunts. All this is to the good. But dramatic and salutary as these changes are, we need not remind ourselves that changes in appearance and in facilities are not what mark the advance of Colby to its position of leadership in American higher education. What goes on in these buildings is far more important, and to this matter I will address myself in the next issue of this publication.

A tribute was paid to the late MARSTON MORSE '14, Sc.D. '35, in The Mathematical Intelligencer, vol. 1, no. 1. An article by S. Smale, of the department of mathematics at the University of California at Berkeley, described Morse as one of four deceased American mathematicians "whose work has had the biggest impact on mathematics. . . .

"What distinguished Morse in particular was his single-minded persistence with one theme, now known as Morse theory (or calculus of variations in the large). . . . I believe that Morse theory," wrote Smale, "is the single greatest contribution of American mathematics. . . . As long as there is mathematics Morse will be remembered with his 'Morse theory.'"

The eminent mathematician died last year at age 85. From 1935 until his death, he was a professor at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J. In 1965 Morse was awarded the National Medal of Science.

The chairman of the Colby Parents Association for the 1978-79 year is RONALD JEANÇON, a Pomona College graduate who is an investment counselor in New York City. He and Mrs. Jeançon are the parents of Barclay Hutchison '81.

A Maine Profile, an orchestral composition by PETER RÉ, professor of music, was performed during the summer by the Domaine Conducting School Orchestra in Hancock. The school was founded by the late Pierre Monteux, one of the great conductors of the 20th century. Professor Ré was a composer-in-residence at the school the week his composition was played. A Maine Profile was commissioned by the Portland Symphony and was first performed by that orchestra in 1965.

E.B. WHITE, Litt.D. '54, essayist and children's author, received a special citation this year as part of the 1978 Pulitzer Prizes in journalism and the arts. White, who is considered one of the country's leading prose stylists, was cited for the full body of his work over several decades.

ROBERT PULLEN, administrative vice-president, has been elected to the Post Secondary Education Commission of Maine. The group presents an annual report on the status of higher education in Maine to the governor and legislature. Pullen also was named to serve on the Higher Education Council, an organization consisting of representatives from each post-secondary institution in the state.

An article by PATRICK BRANCACCIO, associate professor of government, was published in the summer issue of BA-SHIRO, a journal published at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. It was devoted to the work of Professor Stanlake Samkange, a Rhodesian novelist-historian who was a visiting professor of black history at Colby in January 1976.

Earlier this year the governor of Hawaii appointed MYRON THOMPSON '50, LL.D. '75, to the new post of special assistant for the Pacific Islands. In this part-time position he is working with leaders of other Pacific Islands on issues of common concern, such as undersea mining and law of the sea. Commenting on his appointment, an editorial in the Honolulu Advertiser said, "Thompson has a variety of experience in social and economic matters akin to issues faced widely throughout the Pacific. He is part-Hawaiian and has a modest but friendly style similar to many Pacific Island leaders." Thompson was also in the news in September, when he was mentioned in a newspaper account as president of Alu Like, an organization supporting a new educational-recreational youth camp in Hawaii.

Professor WILFRED COMBELLACK '37, mathematics, has been reappointed to a three-year term as faculty representative to the Alumni Council. The previous representative was Philip Bither '30, who retired in 1974 from the modern languages department.

A meritorious service award was presented to H. STANLEY PALMER, plant engineer, by the Association of Physical Plant Administrators of Colleges and Universities (A.P.P.A.). The award recognizes his work as chairman of the A.P.P.A. Energy Committee, which has helped develop programs to assist American colleges and universities reduce their use of energy.

After EUGENE PETERS resigned from the college's philosophy and religion department in 1972, he attended the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York. Armed with a medical degree, he returned to Waterville this year to open a practice of pediatrics and adolescent medicine. Peters joined the Colby faculty in 1964.

Soccer Team Wins ECAC Title

Tournament Play for Three Teams

Colby won the Division II-III Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference soccer championship with a 1-0 victory over Connecticut College on November 12. The Mules earned the playoff berth by defeating Wesleyan 4-2 in overtime in the semi-final round.

Not since 1963 has Colby soccer had a better year. The 1978 booters defeated regionally-ranked M.I.T. 1-0 to conclude the season at 9-2-1 and set a Colby record of seven shutouts. The team's extraordinary play included winning the CBB championship by twice defeating Bates and gaining a victory and a tie against Bowdoin. Coach Mark Serdjian '72 says the difference this year was a mature defense led by co-captain Doug Lewing '79 (Wilmington, Del.), improved play by the upperclassmen, the emergence of Tom Betro '81 (Walpole, Mass.) as top scorer, and the play at goal of freshman Eric Leith (Wayland, Mass.).

The women's field hockey team found itself top-seeded in the 1978 Maine intercollegiate field hockey tournament. It was a first for the Mules. They earned the distinction with a 9-2-1 record including five consecutive shutouts. First-time jitters, however, took their toll in the tournament opener with the University of Southern Maine, and Colby lost 3-1. A better-played game saw Colby blanked 2-0 in the consolation game against the University of Maine-Orono.

Coach Dick McGee's footballers showed they aren't to be taken lightly. An improved team had back-to-back wins over Union and Hamilton, lost a squeaker 21-22 to Middlebury, a barn-burner 30-34 to Trinity, and gave a scare to a strong Bates squad before bowing 20-27 in the closing minutes of the CBB clash. Other losses were to Wesleyan and Tufts.

Highlights were the running of junior Joe Ciota (Lynn, Mass.), the discipline of quarterback Frank Sears '81 (Saco), the play at split end of Paul Belanger '81 (Springvale) and the leadership at defense of co-captain Bob Dorval '79 (Wilmington, Mass.). The season ended on a disappointing note with a 27-10 loss to Bowdoin.

The women's tennis team chalked up its fourth consecutive winning season under coach Marjorie Bither, who is retiring at the conclusion of the academic year. Victories over Bates and Bowdoin maintained Colby's dominance of the CBB series, and Colby took second place in the 12th annual Maine intercollegiate women's tennis tournament involving six colleges. Sophomore Amy Parker (Winnetka, Ill.) and senior Jodie Dwight (Demarest, N.J.), voted M.V.P. of the year, took the doubles championship in that event. Added to this fall's tennis schedule were Merrimack and the University of Vermont.

In its first season under coach James Wescott, the men's cross-country team flexed legs and came up with an unexpected 21-31 victory over Bowdoin at Brunswick. A respectable third-place finish among nine institutions in the Plymouth State Invitational and the consistent running of captain Dan Ossoff '80 (Beverly, Mass.) were other highlights. The women harriers came up with three wins in the team's second season as a varsity sport, including a 26-37 victory over Bates.

January Hockey Action

The Colby pucksters have again been invited to play in the Maine Holiday Hockey Classic in Portland. The annual mid-season tournament will be January 12-13 in the Cumberland County Civic Center, where icemen from Colby, Middlebury, Bowdoin and the University of Maine at Orono will face off against one another.

DEAN ERNEST C. MARRINER
17 Winter St.
Waterville, Maine 04901

Our sympathies are extended to Marion (Starbird '18) and Frederick Pottle '17, whose son, Samuel Pottle, died July 4. He was 44. For the last five years he had been the resident composer and musical director of "Sesame Street" for the Children's Television Workshop. He also composed the theme music for the Muppets, was musical director of WNET's "BOOM" show, and was a consulting pianist and composer for Captain Kangaroo from 1962 to 1969. His first Broadway show was A Curious Evening With Gypsy Rose Lee, for which he wrote and played some of the music. In August, a number of Fifty Plus members, living or summing in Maine and New Hampshire, accepted the invitation of Ina McCausland '15 to all of us to attend a picnic at her Sebago Lake Cottage, which she was hosting for Southwestern Maine Alumnae. Among those attending was Gwyeth Smith '27, new president of Fifty Plus.

PAT TOWLE MCCROARY
(Mrs. James)
Box 209
Winthrop, Maine 04364

The 50th has come and gone and was thoroughly enjoyed. Those of you who could not attend might like to hear a few of the details. At the class meeting we voted to dispense with class officers, so this will be my last letter to you. Peg Davis Farnham was our delegate to the Fifty Plus Club, and she was elected vice-president of that group. Augie Stiegler was elected to be our class agent. At the time of the meeting, Peg announced the Class of '28 gift as being over $14,000, with 85 percent giving. That figure has been updated, I am sure, and a final report will be sent out. We voted to give this to the college as the "1928 Endowment Fund," the interest to be used by Colby as it sees fit. Each year, if we designate our gifts to the annual fund by the above name, and as annuities become available, the fund will grow. Did you recognize any of your friends in the group picture? As near as I could count, there were 52 actual class members present at some time during the weekend. Some could not come because of distance, other commitments or illness. Rose Black came from Arizona by bus, George Hawes flew in from Nevada and Frances Bragdon Cone came all the way from Montana with a granddaughter who lives in Washington State. Myra Stone Pruitt revealed to me later that she attended a party for the 50th anniversary of her sister Helen '27 and Gus Mittelsdorf '27. I suspect that Charlie Sansone was there, too. Miles Carpenter had broken his leg and was incapacitated at the time. The cocktail hour and banquet on Saturday evening were attended by over 80, including spouses and friends. A number of greetings from absent members were read. These included some humorous memories of our Colby days. Stan Corey wrote about Dutchy Marquardt, whom we all remember with great affection. Can any of us forget, "You are my friend-d-t-l" or the 0 or 10 that he bellowed out at the end of each recitation? True Hardy Boothby suggested the picture of all of us girls, in our gym suits, standing up straight for Miss Van Norman. On Sunday, most of us attended an impressive service at which our own Cecil Rose gave the Boardman Sermon. All in all, it was an unforgettable event and a fitting close to 50 years. Now we are Fifty Plus and I hope to see many of you at the yearly banquet. Thank you all for the letters and news you have sent to me over these last five years so that I could keep our column going. I thoroughly enjoyed doing it.

The response to the latest questionnaire was heartening—sorry I cannot print all the news in this limited space, but it will be ready for the next Alumnus. Edward R. Newhall of Glen Ridge, N.J., wrote that newspapers in his area gave the transplant of Maine bobcats to Jersey considerable play. Red, who summers at China Lake, enclosed newspaper clippings with the details. Having retired as owner and director of a girls' camp in East Madison, N.H., Ellen Hoyt Gillard and Bob have had a trip to the Galapagos National Park, where they had 14 days on the vessel Isabel for their tour of those enchanted islands. They were also on the West Coast and rode the "Skunk," the train which goes into the redwood forest. They enjoyed much of the West, as they are bird and nature enthusiasts. At home they garden and work in many civic areas, church, hospital, clubs, etc. I can imagine there is never a dull moment in their lives or in their home. India, Nepal and Kashmir are among the places Jean Watson expected to visit during her three-week trip to India in September 1978. Hope she finds some golf courses there, too! George Fletcher wrote enthusiastically about his work of tying flies for fishermen all over the world—at least as far as New Zealand. His joy in salmon fishing is a pleasure to read about. A trip to New Orleans to see the King Tut Exhibition was a recent event for Ruth Bartlett Rogers. Irene Hersey Tuttle is still a part-time librarian. Last winter she saw Helen Leighton Niesley at the latter's home in Ft. Lauderdale. Eleanor Butler Hutchins and Brad entertained Irene at dinner. An article by Edwin Merry was recently published in Maine Life. It was a delightful reminiscence about an island in the Sheepscot River where Ed spent many happy days as a boy. He lives on a farm in Edgecomb. A visit to five republics and eight cities in the U.S.S.R. in 1977 was most interesting to James H. Woods and wife. They had plans to see Tunisia and Morocco this past spring. Spending five summer months on Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, keeps Ruth Norton McKay and Edgar from attending Colby reunions. We hope that 1979 will keep

The Philadelphia Story

If NORMAN PALMER '30 has his way, the city of Philadelphia will become known as an international center of trade, commerce and culture. Palmer, a professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, is the founder and director of the Philadelphia Transnational Project, which has been researching the Philadelphia area's assets relative to international enterprise. The project is based at the University of Pennsylvania, but is guided by committees that represent the city at large, as well as by the university faculty.

A Matter of Will Power

A $10,000 bequest came to the college from PHILLIPS PAYSON, who died June 30, 1977. It will be added to the Charles H. Payson Scholarship Endowment Fund which honors his father.

Phillips was the brother of MARGARET PAYSON, L.H.D. '56, a leader in child welfare and a generous benefactor of the college. His generous memorial to his father assures numbers of students of financial aid in the years to come.

them in Maine, so they can attend our 50th Ruth knits for their three lively grandchildren and also enjoys reading and birdwatching. Edgar has retired as director of the Canadian-American Center at the University of Maine and now works at gardening, fishing, and woodchopping! • Beatrice Palmer Frederick is secretary of the Joshua Stevens Chapter of D.A.R., international affairs chairman of the Woman's Club, chairman of Eunice Circle of Presbyterian Church and active in the Art and Culture Center of Medic-Home Group. But she finds time to entertain friends from the North and show them special areas in Florida • Fred J. Sterns had just returned from Interfaith group travel to Israel for three weeks. While there he took a course in Interfaith religion. He was spending the remainder of the winter at Treasure Island in Florida • The college has no record of addresses for the following '29ers: George Hovey Barnaby; Lucy Chapin (Mrs. Warren Gibson); Louise Cone; Carroll J. Cooke; Louis d'Argy; Hyman I. Fischbach; W. Washburn Hinds; Agatha L. MacEachrean; Thomas R. Maller; Betty Morse (Mrs. Samuel Pennell); Giles S.P. Mulliken; Inez Pelkey (Mrs. Paul Stallings); Norris Potter; Adaleen M. Robarge; Fred B. Savage; Robert E. Seaman; Jack Silverstein; Arthur I. Strongin; Miriam Tyler (Mrs. Thomas L. Jones). Any help you can give in locating these classmates will be much appreciated.

Noting our report in the spring Alumnus of the recent designation of the Waterville Opera House as a national historical landmark, Dick Dyer, assistant to President Strider, thoughtfully sent along a full-page feature from the Morning Sentinel telling of a major face-lifting which got underway early this year. The interior work was financed by about $25,000 in local gifts and federal grants. The entrance foyer and the auditorium were completely repainted, the windows recurtained and the floors recarpeted. Repair of the decorative, ornamental plaster and its restoration with gold leaf was designed to recapture the original splendor of the Opera House. The exterior of the building has been sandblasted and sealed, an elevator installed, and the heating system zoned in a project financed by a $154,000 grant from the Economic Development Administration

• Enjoying the best of both worlds—Maine in the summer, and Florida in the winter—Marjorie MacLaughlin Deering was back on the job at the Newport (Maine) Library in May. This was the second year she had been granted a leave of absence for the winter months. Accompanied by her 93-year-old mother, whom she describes as "smart as they come," Marjorie drove the long route to the Southland, stopping off in Southington, Conn. to visit with Barbara Taylor Cahill. A highlight of the year was the arrival of another grandchild, her sixth. Not ready to retire, Marjorie keeps busy with traveling, volunteer work and her library job. She says she is "looking forward to the 50th in 1980"

• Another active librarian is Virginia Christie Sirois of Cohocton, N.Y. Employed in the state library system, she has been able to do much beneficial work for the blind in the area. A widow, Virginia has two sons, two daughters and eight grandchildren. Highlight of a three-week visit with a son in California was a ride in a light plane over the Walnut Creek, Mt. Diablo and San Francisco Bay area. Her travels have also taken her to southern Canada, Michigan, Eureka, Calif (her birthplace) and to Chicago, where she visited a daughter • Manley D. Van Tassell continues his long recuperation from head injuries received in an auto accident in September 1976. His wife, Viola, says that he had to learn to walk and talk again, so severe were his injuries. She reports that he is taking speech therapy at their Houlton home twice a week and that he walks with a brace on his right leg. Manley is a retired employee of School Administrative District 29-Houlton • Thomas A. Record and his wife, Dot, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on June 4th. We introduced Tom to Dorothy Baird, a Portland girl of our acquaintance, back in the early '30s. Now, four daughters and several grandchildren later, Tom sends along this observation: "Little did you know what you were starting back there in 1934!" We sure didn't, at the time, but we can now reflect on how friendships made at Colby have touched the lives of so many of us. Tom and Dot spent April of 1977 in France and England, mostly in London, where daughter Nancy '62 is living. This March they traveled the length of California • Leroy S. Ford and his wife, Isabel, have moved from their 15-room house to a five-room apartment in Keene, N.H., following his retirement from medical practice and her retirement as director of volunteers at Cheshire Hospital. Hank was hospitalized for a month in 1977 with a broken wrist and concussion after a fall from a ladder. Just recently he received a letter from Linwood T. Crandall who reported he had taken a page out of Hank's book by also falling off a ladder. Fortunately, a lame hop was the only casualty. The Fords' new address is 449 Park Ave., Keene, N.H. 03431.

Where are you all hiding Class of '32 Entertaining grandchildren? If you're in a resort area or at a lake as we are, you, too, are being invaded, but it's good to see the family, especially when the weather is good for swimming • Having no news from the rest of you, here goes for mine. We have finally given in to winter weather after last January, though we missed the big February coastal storm while we were in Florida. We sold our home in York Harbor July 7 and the same day bought a cottage on Sebago Lake off Route 114 on Quest Avenue, fourth cottage from the lake with a beautiful view across the lake from our front porch. While in Florida, we made arrangements for a 24x52-foot mobile home in a large park in Sarasota. From now on, our address will be: Box 5, East Sebago, Maine 04029 from May 1 to September 30; from October 1 to April 30, Oakwood Manor, 5 Red Maple Terrace, Sarasota, Fla. 33577, so send news accordingly, and if any of you are in either area do come by. Being in Sebago again is like coming home, as I taught here in the local academy now gone—from 1943-49, and Bill and I were both at Camp O-At-Ka a number of summers • By the time you read this, fall activities will be underway. Do stop a moment and let us know before the next deadline where you are and what you're doing or have done, so we'll know you're still around!

The newest member of the Alumni Council is our classmate, Elizabeth Swanton Allan. She has previously served Colby as vice-chairman of the Alumni Council, as vice-president of the New York Colby Club, as class agent and class correspondent. Also, Elizabeth was president of the Merrimack Valley Alumnae Club and alumni trustee from 1948 to 1954. In 1959, the Alumni Council awarded her a Colby Brick in recognition of her many contributions • Thomas J. Foley (star athlete and president of our junior class) has been elected for membership in the 1978 President's Club of the Kemper Insurance Co. This award is given for outstanding service and sales to policyholders. Tom devotes much of his time to the Norwood board of assessors and is a trustee of the Norwood Hospital • Your class agent regrets that he missed the 45th reunion. A few weeks before the reunion, my car was totally destroyed, 10 ribs were broken and my left lung punctured. I'll try to make the 50th • Dr. David S. Sherman, retired, is past deputy director of Boston City Hospital and assistant deputy commissioner of Boston's Department of Health and Hospitals. Dr. Sherman served as medical director of the Boston Sanatorium in Mattapan, and served at the South End health clinics. His special contribution was establishing a program for treating the multiple problems of tuberculosis and alcoholism. He now resides in Milton, Mass. • Your correspondent would like to furnish you with a more lengthy letter next time, if you will send the following news: Where are you? What's happened to you in recent years? How many children and grandchildren do you have? What are your achievements? This newsletter is datelined Boston, Mass., Saturday, July 22, 1978. The temperature at 2 P.M. is 97 degrees Fahrenheit.

My last class letter came to you from the Canadian Trail cabin. Don and I both enjoyed the letters that some of you sent in reply. The arrival of mail is always a big event in the woods. The other exciting event of July here was the discovery that the reason there was no water supply in the campground was because a hot moose was taking baths in the spring! • George Mann wrote that he and Brooksine had just returned from Big Bend National Park in west Texas. Their trip was sponsored by the Univ. of Houston

Donning Caps and Gowns for Colby

Colby periodically is invited to send a representative to academic events at colleges and universities. The following have represented the college in past months:

CARL STERN '44, inauguration of Josiah Bunting, III as president of Hampden-Sydney College.

ANNE BITHER SHIRE '49, inauguration of David Wertz Ellis as president of Lafayette College.

AUDREY BOSTWICK '51, inauguration of William Likoff, M.D. as president of The Hahnemann Medical College & Hospital.

PATIENCE OLIVER FISHER '61, inauguration of Michael J. Stelmachowicz as president of Concordia College.

ROBERT AISNER '68, inauguration of Henry Nicholas Muller III as president of Colby-Sawyer College.

PRESIDENT STRIDER, inauguration of Willard Finley Enteman as president of Bowdoin College; celebration of the centennial convocation at Radcliffe College; inauguration of A. Bartlett Giamatti as president of Yale University.

PROF. WALTER ZUKOWSKI, inauguration of Edmund Titus Cranch as president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Continuing Education Program. It is interesting to find that so many classmates enjoy bird-watching and animal life • Frances Palmer continues to make many trips with the Massachusetts Audubon Society. In August she was to attend the Audubon "Focus Outdoors" at Mt. Holyoke College. This summer Frannie had a quiet week's vacation at the Craigville Conference Center on Cape Cod. I am always indebted to Frannie for special news of Colby. Recently she attended Colby Night at the Boston Pops. She also sent me a program of the Boardman Memorial Service held Alumni Weekend. The names of Robert Stanley Brodie and Henry Davidson were listed for the Class of 1934 • Curtis Havey sent me a kind of chain letter that he wrote to inform friends that he has moved. His new address is 250 Tennessee Ave., St. Simons Island, Ga. 31522. When Curt retired in January 1977 he and Kitty decided to end their days of "gypsy fever" with a permanent retirement home. They certainly picked a beautiful spot. I admit that I was mildly shocked to read "Jimmy Carter's hideaway is good enough for us!" Curt represented Colby at the inauguration of the new president of Emory Univ. The Curtises and the Putnams, Vesta '33 and George, and James '73, had dinner together. Curt closed his letter with a warm invitation for all to visit. Your classmates wish you both good health and happiness on St. Simons • Arthur Stetson retired June 30th. A date that marked the end of 20 years of service in the Washington central office of the Veterans Administration. He and Helen were planning to occupy the cottage at Webber Pond in August, returning home in time for the arrival of a new grandchild. In the fall they plan to travel. Our good wishes to them both for a long and happy retirement • Willard Flynt surprised me pleasantly with a letter. Bill retired in June 1975, and claims that his major objective since has been to keep spark plugs, differential, and carburetor operating—which is accomplished by frequent blood pressure tests, heart pills, and golf. His program must be successful because in 1976 he acquired a wife. Bill is also busy as a case worker for New York State Senator Ronald B. Stafford. As he considered our 45th reunion he mentioned how much he would enjoy again playing the dance music of the '30s with Cecil Hutchinson's Commanders, but he fears that time has taken its toll of that group, and the only members that he knows to be still in working order are George Rogers and himself • Although it is early, warm wishes for the upcoming holidays. Don't forget that 1979 will bring the big 45th for the Class of 1934.

Trustee WILSON PIPER '39, LL.D. '75 received a tribute in the summer for his many contributions to the Estate Planning and Tax Institute, which marked its 25th anniversary. A prominent tax attorney in Boston, Piper was presented a Colby clock. Photo by Peter Kingsley.

England with their third son and wife. Son Richard is studying there. They were enthusiastic about the English countryside • Laura Tolman Brown and husband Carlton are enjoying their retirement and the opportunity to travel about the country in their mobile home. They participate in camp-ins with other mobile home devotees. Theirs is a gypsy life with all the comforts. They planned to visit in Maine with Betty Miller in Norridgewock. Betty's voluntary jobs keep her busier than her career in teaching. She serves on three town committees (park, library and cemetery), is historian of the Village Improvement Society, secretary of her alumni association, and still pursues her interest in old cemeteries. She dazzled me with her report of 200 jars of jams and jellies made to share with her church's annual sale • Bob Miller has recently retired from the faculty of the Univ. of Southern Maine. He and wife Sylvia have added another living place, in Florida, to their Gorham home and camp in Denmark (Maine). Does Bob now have three lawns to mow? • Edna Bailey was at Colby for a church conference. The 90 degree temperature kept her from visiting friends in the area • Sympathy goes to Evelyn Wyman Caverly on the loss of her son, Brainard, who was struck by a car while trying to rescue runaway cattle from the highway. Sadly, he leaves a young family • Adeline Bourget Simonetti (still in Edmonton, Alberta?) came to Maine recently and revisited her home of college days at Moose Horn, where her father was an official at the border station. A Maine map reveals

Citizen of the Year in California

ERNEST C. MARRINER, JR. '40 has been selected Citizen of the Year 1978 in Lafayette, Calif., where he is city manager. He was honored for his "unwavering dedication to the city he has helped to shape and form in its first decade." Marriner began working there in 1968, the year of the city's founding. A local newspaper columnist said of him, "Sometimes we've thought Ernie may have been cloned from an IBM computer. His grasp of financial matters and detailed explanations of city issues is amazing." Marriner started his career in public administration as town manager of Guilford. He served in the same capacity in Wells, was assistant administrative officer in Inglewood, Calif., and was city manager of Pittsburg, Calif. for 13 years before assuming his duties in Lafayette. Marriner holds an M.S. degree from Syracuse University. He is married to Prudence (Piper '41). His father is Dean Ernest C. Marriner '13, college historian.

that Moose Horn is only a mountain or two away from Caratunk! • Jim Stinneford's son Roy is now a Mainer, having recently bought a market in nearby Bingham. He reports that Jim is happily busy with his retirement career in real estate. Jim's wife, Barbara, keeps busy with Catonsville (Md.) Women's Club activities. • Alice Bocquel Hartwell has added the care of her 90-year-old mother to her teaching responsibilities at Waterville High. She has a busy schedule. • Dr. Al Piper and wife Betty, who have a camp here at Pleasant Pond, dropped by to talk with Bill about town business. Betty is feeling better after a hospital stay and both looked brown and happy. • Our local papers carried an article by John Roderick, Special A.P. Correspondent, covering an exclusive interview he had had in Tokyo with Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan. The accompanying picture was of John and the prime minister, both smiling and apparently enjoying the interview. • In May I had a brief reunion lunch with Anita Thibault Bourque, Billie MacCarey Whitmore and husband Al and other friends of Boston days. We talked of cabbages and kings and left with a glow of youthful days reviewed. "T" makes frequent trips to Connecticut, New Jersey and Virginia to visit with her three daughters. Billie (Eleanor) and Al are busy with gardens, Al's property appraisals and general enjoyment of life in downeast Ellsworth. • The Bill Clarks at last admit that the garden, the wood pile and the tractor-crawler are in charge of their lives. We did beg off for a quick trip to Scotland but hurried back to support country living. Bill has cut back his column writing to a weekly three, but he has acquired the job of first assessor and is discovering the bureaucratic world of pink, yellow and green forms. Betty remains hooked on Girl Scouting and also is learning to be a school board member. • Happy fall and keep in touch!

Hello again to all—seen and heard or unseen and unheard! While no world-shaking news has filtered through from the Class of '37, we are happy to report the ordinary facts at hand. • Kermit LaFleur was sufficiently roused by my call to action to ask his wife, Mary (Crowley '39), to communicate. Her letter tells us that the LaFleurs have lived in South Carolina for 26 years, where Kermit underwent a sort of evolution from textile chemist to research chemist to professor of soil chemistry. We certainly applaud his diligence and determination in returning to college after a hiatus of 25 years to get his master's and doctoral degrees. He is teaching now at Clemson Univ.; his other pleasures include golf and rifle shooting as well as a return to the tennis courts. • Marjorie Gould Murphy is wonderfully faithful in sharing the tidbits she receives. She spent some time "back home" in Newton Centre, Mass., in the spring to help make arrangements to allow her mother (Florence Gould '08) to stay in her own home. Margie's husband, Howard, finished teaching and moved right on to a history project during the summer months. Marge had a feature article published in their city newspaper, but says she has not yet reached the national level in her publications. • Sara Cowan is president of the Southwestern Maine Colby Alumnae Club, which has four regular meetings a year—a potluck supper in the fall, an auction at Christmas-time (to raise funds for the Josephine Bodurtha Gagnon Scholarship Fund), a Colby speaker in spring, and a picnic in June. What a good way to encourage members to participate! • With the few brilliant exceptions noted above, news has come slowly: I can only remind you that no news means no column. Without undertaking an official "census" let's try to communicate. I propose, (a la freshman English), a topic, for the next round of reports. How about thoughts realted to "Hair—or no hair; heirs—or no heirs?" That should give everyone a chance for an opinion of some sort, from the uses and dangers of hair dyes or transplants, to the unique delight of grandchildren, or population planning. Before the snow flies, then, write!

Gardiner Gregory and his wife, Anne, have settled into their retirement home in Castine. Gardiner's hobbies are tennis, fishing, sailing, golf and bridge. His retirement plans include sports, writing books and lecturing. • Mary-Elizabeth Hall Griffin and husband live in Whittier, Calif., where Bill is a retired Internal Revenue Service worker and Mary-Elizabeth is a full-time homemaker. Their daughter, Mary Anne, 21, is a junior at U.S.C. and Joan, 17, is a high school senior who hopes to become a professional ice skater. Mary-Elizabeth's favorite hobbies are traveling and bridge. They have been in 45 states and 12 European countries. When the girls have finished school they plan more extended traveling. She is involved in the local P.T.A. costume shop and serves on the election board. She doesn't see any Colby people—a good reason to come to our 40th Reunion. • Another classmate with whom I keep in touch is Dorothy Weeks Egan, also a Californian, who lives in Los Angeles. We three were roommates—long ago! • Helen Carter Guptill and her husband, Nathanael, live in Hartford, Conn. Helen is a kindergarten teacher in the inner city. Her hobbies are golf and traveling. Retirement plans center upon a home in Yarmouth, which they are getting ready. The highlight of the past year was their 40th wedding anniversary. Helen says that Betty (Sweetser '41) and Elmer Baxter '41 are frequent companions and they see Jackie (Frazee '37) and Larry Haynes '38 in the summer. They have three children and five grandchildren. Nathanael is another classmate with his "name in the news." He delivered the sermon at the baccalaureate service of the 158th commencement of Bangor Theological Seminary on June 5, 1977. Also, he was guest preacher at a special service of thanksgiving held June 26, 1977 at the First Church of Christ, Congregational, in Milford Center, Conn., in recognition of the retirement of the Rev. Irvin G. Thursby, minister for 34 years to the Milford church. And, he was guest speaker at morning worship service at the Northfield Congregational Church in Thomaston, Conn. on Oct. 3, 1977. He received his B.D. degree from Andover-Newton and honorary doctorates from Colby and from Ursinus College in Pennsylvania. Ordained in Rowley, Mass., he has held pastorates in the First Congregational Church, South Portland, and First Church, Newton, Mass. Presently he is superintendent of the Conference of the

A veteran of 32 years in the steel industry, PHILIP WYSOR '42, has been named manager of shipping and transportation at Republic Steel Corporation's Cleveland headquarters. He joined Republic in 1968, after working for Bethlehem Steel Corporation since 1945. Wysor is married to Marie (Merrill '42).

Vice-Chairman of the Board

The board of directors of The William Carter Co., Needham Heights, Mass., has elected MANSON CARTER '49 vice-chairman of the board. A great-grandson of the company's founder, Carter is also in charge of the mer-

The best kept secret in Maine culminated on July 16 in Union. It was Isabel Abbott Day and was nearly a year in planning. Ostensibly, the day was to be a celebration of the restoration of the old town hall by the Union Historical Society with Isabel participating. Sub rosa, a banner proclaiming the day as Isabel's was prepared and hung across the town common overnight: speeches, gifts, a receiving line and refreshments had been prepared, and letters were sent out months ahead. The names were gleaned from Isabel's address book (stolen from her house, photocopied and returned without her missing it!). The outpouring of love for her was so evident that day in the expressions of appreciation by her townsfolk. An unusually handsome quilt was made by many people, each square representing an important part of Isabel's life; the logo of the Union Historical Society, the schoolhouse, the Colby Seal, the house she grew up in, the Blueberry Festival she'd organized and many many other meaningful memories were stitched by her friends with great affection. We picnicked on the village green, everyone sharing, and Isabel most gracious and totally surprised. Her Colby roommate, Margie Chase Chapman, came all the way from Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. for the occasion with her husband, Bob. Frances Gray and I came down from Mt. Desert Island. A word should be said about Isabel's lifelong interest and service to the Historical Society and the Community. There is a quality of life here that surely is no accident. One gets a feeling of continuity back to the early settlers of two centuries ago. The town has been cared for intelligently, with careful planning and good zoning. It is an unusual town • Marjorie Chase Chapman, after raising her two boys, has returned to her nursing career. She took an intensive retraining course and is now working at the New Rochelle (N.Y.) Hospital. She is very enthusiastic, and with her grace and charm, obviously a fine nurse.

The Class of 1943 owes a tremendous debt of gratitude and thanks to Hilda Niehoff True for her interesting and comprehensive coverage of the activities of our class for these many years just past. In her final class letter, Hilda covered the reunion so well that all of us who couldn't make it cannot help being jealous. Hilda has promised you "new blood, new ideas and determination" with the advent of a new correspondent. Ha! Little does she realize how tired blood can get, ideas stagnate and determination means outwitting the latest inflation in the price of margarine! • Since the plea for prompt replies went out, so many of you have complied that I'm not sure I can get all the news into this first column, but eventually it will all be covered. It would seem that travel and new grandchildren are among the highlights for many of us • Charles Barletta, a retail florist, was getting ready for a trip to Japan • Priscilla Moldenke Drake got to England last fall and expected to be in Austria, Italy, and Portugal this fall. "Puss" also reports that she became a grandmother last June • Bill Finkeldey has been in England, France, Germany and Spain on business and also became a grandfather thanks to his daughter, Jane Finkeldey Stephenson '68 • Madeleine Hinkley Gibbs left on July 31 for Switzerland, and she, too, is enjoying her first grandchild • Virginia Farrand McDonald and Dick '41 motored through the British Isles and also took a trip to Hawaii, as well as to British Columbia and the Northwest • Carolyn Nutting Martin, while recovering from a stroke, showed her usual determination and got herself some fame—U.P.I. and the "Today" show found her to be newsworthy. She had a rather nasty letter from Mr. Mitchell, secretary to U.S. Senator Allen from Alabama, and it caused repercussions from Pittsfield, Mass. to Hawaii and points in between • Barbara Philbrick Mertz and her husband, an ophthalmologist, trekked from Texas to Seattle for a visit with their granddaughter, and then went on through the Canadian Rockies • Ilicah Shapiro Mellon reminds me that we last met in 1950 when we lived in Rahway, N.J. and they were stationed nearby. She is still teaching chemistry, and after doing so much traveling in their service years, she and Harvey are content to visit Florida and see their grandchild • I can't imagine why some of us didn't meet, as it seems that Ruth Howes Mistark and I were in Switzerland at the same time. They have just purchased a second year-round home, on Cliff Island in Maine • If anyone happens to be Downeast, you might want to stay in one of Leonard Osier's cottages, which he has for rent in New Harbor. Don't count on a dock, however, as Lennie reports that he watched the high tide of February 9 float away the one that had been there for 35 years • Sid Rauch will be on sabbatical this fall and will be in England for a month • What has to be the most glamorous sounding of all is Ken Shepard's flying by private plane to play golf in New Brunswick, Canada • Unfortunately, we have to express our sadness and offer sympathy to Leo Siegel on the death, in June, of Eileen Alpert Siegel. How well we remember her vivacity and charm at the 25th Reunion • Do keep the news coming.

Heard from two alumnae via the last questionnaire I sent, just a little too late for the deadline for the summer Alumnus and I'm glad to be able to catch up with their news now. First of all, I was very sorry to learn from Fran Willey Ripper that her husband died last year. Fran lives in Hickory, N.C., and travels throughout the East as a representative for Columbia Artists Management (N.Y.)—for community concerts. Fran enjoys three-month vacation periods; this summer she planned to take a four-week trip to Alaska. I'd like to hear and report more about her experiences

Honored by their Students

The 1978 graduating class at The Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Conn. dedicated its yearbook to C. NELSON COREY, left, and ARTHUR WHITE '52. Corey was on Colby's athletic staff from 1949 to 1952, coaching football and hockey. A former head coach of football at Bowdoin, his alma mater, Corey has been athletic director at Hotchkiss since 1965, where he has coached football and lacrosse. His wife, Kaye (Monaghan '43), is president of the Colby Class of '43. White, who is dean of students at Hotchkiss, has taught mathematics there since graduation. He also has coached varsity basketball and baseball. Photo by Barbara Eddy '54.

there it she can just take out a little time to write me about them • Pat Cotting Shively worked setting up elementary school libraries in East Stroudsburg, Pa. until she retired. Pat now has more time to pursue her hobbies—knitting, reading, geocology and boating. Pat's husband, whose training was in chemical engineering, now writes programs for and is in charge of computer systems at Patterson-Kelley. The Shivelys' daughter is a graduate of Averett College; their son is a junior at Gettysburg College • In recent months I've enjoyed brief trips to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. and Rockport, Mass. (including a visit in Newton Centre with Rae Gale Backer '44, who during the school year works in the Brandeis Univ. athletics department office) • I'm going to ask the college to send out shortly another questionnaire to all the '45ers. I will welcome an avalanche in reply.

My mailbox has been absolutely devoid of any Class of '46 correspondence, so you will have to be content with my news this time. Some of you must have something to share with the rest of the class. We'd all love to hear about your doings • Our son Tom graduated from the Gilbert School in June and left the next weekend for summer school at Skidmore College over in Sarasota Springs, N.Y. He is both studying and helping out in their ceramics department. In September, he went to Syracuse Univ. where he plans to major in art. Paul and I had the privilege of being asked to help in starting a Christian retreat in Jamaica. It was exciting to be back in Jamaica in July and we stayed an extra two weeks. We found the same open, friendly, and helpful people we remembered and enjoyed every minute of our stay on their beautiful island. The trade winds on the coast and the mountain breezes inland helped us escape the humid heat we left behind in Connecticut. We weren't aware of the serious political and economic problems facing this independent isle today, but came back feeling encouraged that God is raising up both dedicated adults and youth who will be capable of coping with the future.

Since our 30th Reunion this past June I have become your class correspondent. Janet Gay Hawkins did a great job for many years; we offer her our heartfelt thanks. Her ability to gather the news, add a bit of humor, and report it to the class will always be remembered and appreciated • Unfortunately, I could not attend the reunion. I talked with David Marson who recalled some of our classmates who attended. Ruth Barron Lunder, Carl and Shirley Smith Chellquist, Gordon Miller, Paul Smith, Edward Birdsey, Cy Joly,

Doctoring in the Countryside

From the time she entered the Boston University School of Medicine, family practice in a rural area was the goal of JEANNE ARNOLD '57. She and her physician-husband Peter Jeffries, are now immersed in that goal in New Hampshire. They maintain a busy office at the Monadnock Community Hospital in Peterborough and recently opened a clinic in a renovated railroad station in the town of Wilton. They offer a blend of general care family practice and counseling at both locations. She says they like the idea of looking at the whole person in the context of his family and his community. "We know the family and the patient in toto," Dr. Arnold is president of the New Hampshire Academy of Family Physicians, is assistant professor of community medicine at Dartmouth, writes a weekly medical column in the Manchester Union Leader and on top of everything else has five young children. Photo by Dawn Matthews, courtesy of Centerscope Magazine, Boston University School of Medicine.

Gene Hunter, Bobo (Brewer) and Bud Folino, Skip and Midge Atwater, Cy and Jean (O'Brien) Perkins, Marv and Betty Joslow, Jerry and Mary Roy, Charlie Carpenter, Don Bourassa, John and Hazel Huckins Merrill, Carolyn Browne Bolles, Ginny Hill Fields, Harriet Hutchinson Dusty, Millie Schnebbe Riordan, Katharine L. Brine, Gerald Roy, Dick Billings, Ann McAlary Hall and Elaine Browning Townsley. Rowena Nugent was the guest at the class dinner • Caroline Thomson Kinlaw is now department head for the Dayton (Ohio) Public School Guidance Department • Since Fran Hyde Stephan married John she has given up retailing for golf and tennis. Naturally, she excels at both. She and Caroline visited each other recently. Frances and I visited with Gloria Shine Seidenberg in New York. She continues to teach on the elementary school level • Saturday evening we had dinner with Fred Ford '40 in Whitefield, N.H. in his cozy log cabin • Leo Daviau, a beauty consultant and makeup artist in theater and television and recently employed at WCSH-TV, has gone into private practice in Waterville • Dr. Charles H. Lightbody of Guilford is the new chief of staff at Mayo Regional Hospital, where he has been on the staff for 23 years • Just a word about your new correspondent: I remarried this past June to Solomon Baker, an M.I.T. man—not Colby. I teach embroidery in the textile arts department at Pine Manor College, Chestnut Hill, Mass. All winter I cross-country ski as often as possible. Summer and fall I hike the White Mountain trails. Daughter Patti '77 works in Washington for New Hampshire Senator John Dirkin. Daughter Susan, a nutritionist in Utah, presented me with my first grandchild, Ben, a year and a half ago.

I don't know where the members of the Class of '52 are but I haven't heard from any of you! • Last June, several of us had a mini reunion at Eddi Mordecai's in New Hampshire. Nancy Cedrone came up from Baltimore. Joan Cannell from Portland, Bev Verrengia from Massachusetts, Els Warendorf Hulm '51 came over from her summer place in Saratoga, N.Y., and yours truly drove up from Connecticut. Eddi had just received her master's in education in mental health counseling at Northeastern Univ. For the past five years she has worked at the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center counseling families with retarded children. We are certainly well represented in the undergraduate student body. Joan Cannell's daughter Joyce will be a sophomore at Colby. Eddi Mordecai's daughter Carol will be a junior and will be rooming with my daughter Louise, also a junior • Joan (Martin) and Al Lamont's son, Gary, graduated in June • Maury Ronayne '51 wrote to say that Colonel Walter Hayes will retire from the Army next October, after more than 30 years of service. He is currently serving his second tour of duty in Saudi Arabia as U.S. Defense Attache. After graduation, Walt earned his 2nd lieutenant's commission after completing engineering basic training. During the Korean War he served as adjutant to the commanding general there, and in Viet Nam, he saw combat as commanding officer of an engineering battalion. He has been an ROTC instructor and professor at Ball State and Lehigh universities. While at Lehigh he earned an M.B.A. degree, and later mastered Arabic at the Defense Language School in Monterey, Calif. He and his wife, Ruth, will retire to a home they are having built in Punta Gorda, Fla.

This first column of mine will cover our 25th Reunion—trying to recapture the fun we had for those who were there, and for the others, to give a brief glimpse of the happenings, to make you jealous, and to induce you all to return to Colby for our 30th in 1983! Fifty-four classmates and many spouses and families (the only spouses mentioned here also attended Colby) gathered from far and wide. Although most of us still live in the Northeast, we came from as far away as California for this reunion • Dick Hawes, a clinical psychologist, and Barbara Studley Barnette, who lives and works in the wine country, were the Californians, Rick Tyler came from Utah, and Chuck and Joyce (Witham '54) Spencer arrived from Colorado, where he is a geologist • Roger and Dot (Forster '54) Olsen traveled from Missouri, while Al Hibern and Mary Jane Fitzpatrick Cashman represented Illinois. Fitz brought her family with her, as did many '53ers. (Incidentally, Colby really treats the reunion classes and their families royally—and cheaply, too!) • Syl Caron Sullivan lives in Texas, but she and her family spend the summers in New Hampshire, so she's almost a New Englander • Also traveling a good distance was George Pirie, a captain in the Navy Dental Corps who is stationed in Georgia • John Lee, who is with the Pentagon, arrived from Virginia, as did Bob Cooke • The reunion committee, especially Marcie Laverdiere O'Halloran and Phil Hussey, Jr., the chairman, deserve our thanks for planning a great program. We cannot blame them for the poor weather! And it was lovely driving up to Colby on Thursday and back home on Sunday! From Thursday afternoon on, it was "You haven't changed a bit!" and "What have you been doing for the last 25 years?!" Waterville looks like a different city, the college continues to grow (especially the trees) and expand, leaving only us remaining the same. Of course, in addition to the gap of 25 years, for the married '53ers there's been a gain, on the average, of 3.7 children. This is based on a completely unscientific study of those present. I hope to verify this in the future • There were many memorable highlights of the reunion. Here are just a few. The trip to Boothbay Harbor was half the fun, and seeing the harbor in the fog was more enjoyable than expected. Marcie Laverdiere O'Halloran's tour of Boothbay's shops was a special treat. After the Colby Brick Awards that

Contributions to Advertising

The Worcester (Mass.) Area Advertising Club presented the 1978 Silver Medal Award of the American Advertising Federation to THOMAS LAVIGNE '58. He was cited as a "most deserving recipient" whose "record of community involvement and achievement is impressively outstanding, especially when one considers that his career in advertising and printing began a mere 17 years ago." He is president of LaVigne Press, Inc., and Jackson Beacon Associates, a division of LaVigne Press that handles advertising, marketing, public relations, direct mail and creative promotional programs.

evening, several of us joined Peter Ré in a sing, which really sounded quite professional and was great fun. Saturday was another full day, with the morning seminar and the fantastic lobster and clambake lunch. In the evening, after the picture-taking and the reception at the Striders, was the reunion dinner, which was followed by dancing. Alice Colby-Hall presented an original song about our upcoming 50th Reunion in 2003! Several of us had a wonderful visit with Kingsley Birge, who is still teaching sociology at Colby, and also with Mrs. Keyes, who was housemother at Palmer House and "on the hill," too. More next time.

Our family went to a miniature Colby reunion in July at Mary Belden Williams' farm in North Hatfield, Mass. William Ames was there with his family, as were Frank King '53 and his wife, Barbara (Burg '55); Mary Jane Davis Smith '59; Carol MacIver Murphy '55 and Mary Devan '53. Everyone who was there (except the Eddys) is part of the surprisingly large Colby contingent in the Amherst-Northampton area • Both Art and I are going to be dabbling in town government. He has been appointed assistant town treasurer, and I have been appointed to fill a one-year vacancy on the board of education • Ray Billington was running for reelection last spring to the board of selectmen in Somerset, Mass., where he was active on the school committee before being elected a selectman 10 years ago. Ray is an insurance claims supervisor. We hope your campaign was successful, Ray! • Hey, out there—we need more news. We'd like to hear from some of you who didn't return the October 1977 questionnaire.

59 DOROTHY REYNOLDS GAY (Mrs. William) 9 Harbor Hill Rd. Huntington, N. Y. 11743

A few news clippings reached me, sent by the Alumni Office, which I am passing on • Charles Boehm has been elected a vice-president and loan officer of Casco Bank and Trust Co. in Portland. He is a member of the Portland Yacht Club and Portland Marine Society, president of the Foreside Fire Co. and Falmouth Fire Department, a trustee of the Osteopathic Hospital of Maine and treasurer of the Falmouth Emergency Medical Team • Alden Belcher, after serving 10 years as an Air Force pilot, during which he flew heavy transports and jets during the war in Viet Nam, completed dental school at Fairleigh Dickinson Univ. last spring and has begun practice in Dexter.

By the time you read this column we will be out of the heat and humidity and into the cool, brisk days of fall. We also will be preoccupied here with Big Red football, or at least the natives will. Something's wrong with my attitude, I think! Still can't make a religion out of a game • William R. Todd has been named sales manager for Hubbard Farms, and in his new post he will work closely with both independent and integrated poultry meat operations in the United States and Canada. Before joining Hubbard, Bill worked 13 years in sales supervisory and consulting positions with major poultry breeding companies, primarily in overseas posts ranging from Western Europe to the Far East. Bill, his wife and their three children will be living in Walpole, N.H. • Congratulations to Ann Dudley De Witt, who has been invited to join Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor society at the Univ. of Maine at Orono. She was elected to the society "upon completion of a master's degree program in public administration, earning all A's in her studies." Wow! Before joining the Maine Department of Human Services, where she is now director, Ann taught physics at Waterville High School. She, Charlie '61, and their three children live in Sidney • Peter Shays was recently installed as a member of the Newton Board of Realtors. Pete is a former college administrator and instructor of marketing and communication and an alumnus of Principia College, Elmhurst, Ill., as well as Colby. In addition to selling real estate, Pete and his wife, Mary, run a camp for girls in Ely, Vt. • M. Ray Berberian has been promoted to executive vice-president of Garden State National Bank in Paramus, N.J. Ray has held several positions in the bank since joining it in 1970 as trust officer, including vice-president and senior vice-president. He is a graduate of Bernard Baruch Graduate School of Business • By now you should have received both installments of your class

It is taking several issues to cover all the information I received from the questionnaire. Be patient—I am hoping the news isn't outdated!

• Winthrop S. Smith, Sr. is a funeral director and real estate broker in Milford, Conn., where he and his wife, Carol, have five children. He writes that he has been involved in local and state politics and was in the Connecticut State Senate in 1974-75, the G.O.P. town committee, co-chairman of the Milford March of Dimes and the Milford Land Trust • Cathleen Troy Tominaga is in Portland, Ore., and is an elementary school teacher. Cathie spent two years at Colby and received a degree in anthropology from the Univ. of California, Berkeley, in 1972. She lives with husband Dennis, an educational psychologist and counselor, and her 15-year-old son. Her advice to classmates is to "flow with the changes in life—both good and bad—and never feel it's too late to go back to school!" Cathie has lived in numerous states and has traveled extensively • Jere Snell works for Texasgulf, Inc., in Littleton, Col. He and wife Sharon have two daughters. They visited Boston during the Bicentennial and make annual trips back to Maine. Jere enjoys skiing in the Rockies and traveling in the West • Peggy Bartlett Gray claims she is a "professional volunteer or avoider of household chores." She and her husband, Harvey, live in Southport, Conn. with two sons. The Grays enjoy tennis and mountain climbing and have been spearheading a financial drive for a school library fund. Peggy works as a volunteer in a local women's exchange as consignment chairman • Connie Collins Brennan is a fashion consultant in Yucaipa, Calif., where she lives with her husband, Jack, and two daughters. She has been involved with American Field Service and recently chaperoned students on a bus trip across the U.S. She is "looking forward to the end of teething and tonsillitis!" • Susan MacLean Robinson is working in Boston as manager of the inquiry department, Putnam Administrative Services Co. Sue returned to college for a B.S. from Suffolk Univ. She recently toured Norway and Denmark with her brother, Allen D. MacLean '57. Active in the Big Sister Program, Sue is a friend of an 11-year-old girl whom she sees weekly • Judy Hoffman Hakola is a part-time weaving instructor in Orono, where husband John is a professor of history. Judy is busy with three young children and enjoys teaching weaving at the University Craft Center and being involved with the Maine Guild of Spinners and Weavers • Samuel S. Kent is an associate professor of research at Brigham Young Univ. and lives in Orem, Utah, with wife Norma and two young daughters. He received a Ph.D. in biochemistry from the Univ. of Chicago and has National Science

American Ambassadors

When CHARLOTTE (CLIFTON '61) and NORMAN LEE '58 signed up for a government-sponsored Friendship Flight their destination was unknown. For the Lees and 400 other people, including Chip and Caron Carter, the President's son and daughter-in-law, the destination earlier this year turned out to be Israel. The program sends Americans to other countries for visits, where they act as ambassadors of goodwill. The Lees stayed with a host family in Tel Aviv. The program is much the same as a student exchange program, and both couples spent the week getting to know and like one other. So much so, in fact, that when the government reverses the host and ambassador roles next year, the Tel Aviv family plans to visit the Lees in West Hartford, Conn.

Foundation and American Chemical Society grants for research. Sam writes that "after several years of investigation we became Mormons and discovered the living Christianity. The ultimate values in life are centered on the ways in which we tend to the spiritual needs of our families and in our service to humanity. That's pretty deep but all else must fall by the wayside" • Malcolm Graham is a dentist in Greenwich, Conn., where he lives with his wife, Linda, and three children. Sandy graduated from Columbia School of Dental and Oral Surgery. He enjoys sailing on Long Island Sound and said he hoped to do some racing this summer with Norm Macartney if he can "tear him away from his incredible garden—practically a truck farm!" • Hank Silverman is an attorney in New Haven, Conn. He has received his LL.B. from Columbia Law School and is married to Judy, a nursery school teacher. The Silvermans enjoy skiing and backpacking in Colorado and New Mexico with their two daughters • Janice Dukeshire Halliwell and her husband, Thomas, are both teachers in Noank, Conn., where they live with two children. They recently traveled to Bermuda and Montreal, and Janice works with senior citizens during the summer • Dick Fields now lives in Lexington, Mass., with his wife, Mary, and a daughter. Dick is vice-president of Renaud Int'l Ltd., a subsidiary of Foster Grant Co., an importer and manufacturer of sunglasses. He travels extensively in Europe and the U.S. and recently bumped into Sandy Boardman during the Stanley Cup Playoffs at Boston Garden

Ellie Tomlinson is head of the art department at Tower School in Marblehead, Mass., where she teaches and maintains a studio. Ellie has been painting and exhibiting on the North Shore for more than 10 years. Her paintings reflect a love of nature, the sea and especially sailing, which is her favorite pastime. Most of her paintings are done in oil on canvas. However, she is equally proficient with watercolor and acrylic. Ellie keeps an active mailing list for sending invitations to her art shows and would love to hear from anyone interested in being on her mailing list. She especially enjoys seeing long-lost friends and acquaintances at these gatherings • Ann Tracy, an English professor in Plattsburgh, N.Y., has been on sabbatical leave during the past year. She and a grad school friend were planning to write a book. Ann has recently enjoyed traveling abroad in Greece, Italy, southern France and England • Brenda Lewison Wooldredge and family are residing in Hudson, Ohio. Bill is vice-president of B.F. Goodrich Co. in Akron. Brenda is enrolled at Kent State Univ. as an art major. Last year she used her creative talents to help an architect design their new contemporary home • Alice Webb has been elected secretary/treasurer of the Colby College Alumni Club of the Merrimack Valley. Alice and her family have recently traveled to California to visit Gary and Peggy Bone Miles. Last winter she had a nice visit with Kathy Hiltz Hardwick • After living in Mexico and Guatemala for 10 years, Marty Fromm Zash has returned to the States. She is a mechanical engineering student at Michigan State Univ. During the summer she worked for Oldsmobile at the General Motors Proving Ground as a special test driver • Bruce Brown is in his second year as assistant principal and member of the English department at Freeport (Maine) High School • Bill Clough is assistant headmaster and teacher at Holderness School in Plymouth, N.H. This year Bill and his family will be enjoying a sabbatical leave in Cambridge, England • Ronald Conn is an industrial sales representative in Marblehead, Mass. He is actively involved in youth activities in Marblehead and recently ran for a position on the light commission • My apologies to Sandy Keef Hunter for reversing husband-wife occupations in the winter Alumnus. Sandy is a staff supervisor for New York Telephone. Steve is an advertising copywriter. Sandy recently enjoyed a week of diving in Guadeloupe • Bill, Aaron and I had an enjoyable summer of camping, golfing, fishing, painting the house and cutting the winter's wood supply. Aaron was the only one anxiously awaiting the first day of school. I hope his enthusiasm continues. I have completely exhausted my news supply. You will be receiving another questionnaire soon. If you wish to hear about your classmates, I must hear from you.

Hi Classmates! Thank you for all the votes. I welcome this opportunity to get reacquainted. Thanks, also, to Jo-Ann French for her years of faithful corresponding. Jo-Ann reports that the following attended our 15th: she and Peter French, Fred Field, Joanna Buxton and Tom Gormley, Mike Franklin, Thomas Thomas and Pat, Sandra MacWilliam Lloyd and Bob, Charles and Pam (Plumb '65) Carey, Susan and Peter Vogt, Al and Sally (Page '64) Carville, Pat Dunn and George Estey, Cynthia Richmond and Monte Hopper, Susan Hassel Bouchard, John and Nancy Wilson, Mary Dexter Wagner and Wayne, Priscilla Newbert Mather and Richard, Pat Ey Ingraham and John, Jeanne Anderson Pollock and Bill, Rosemary (Blankenship '65) and Al Hubbard, Cile Tougas Nix, Penn Williamson, and Polly French. They all met with a few professors Saturday morning for a fascinating discussion of the differences between 1963 and 1978 students, classes, campus life, etc. • Disappointed that they couldn't make the reunion, Susan (Stein) and Bruce Fenn write about life in Vermont, where Bruce is vice-president and senior commercial loan officer at Vermont National Bank. He's also director of the Brattleboro Outing Club. Susan is one of the founders of the local Montessori nursery/kindergarten school, a member of the school board, a corporator of the Memorial Hospital, and raises golden retrievers. Their two children are now 9 (Douglas) and 7 (Alison) • Pauline Ryder Kezer and Ken are in Plainville, Conn., where Ken is now head football and baseball coach at New Britain High. He was in the Philippines in June with the U.S.A.

High School All-Star Baseball Team, coaching them in an international journey. Pauline is president of New Britain Y.W.C.A., chairperson of the Plainville Inland Wetlands Commission and is about to run for the state legislature. She is much involved with Girl Scouts (town chairperson and day camp director). Daughter Anne (15) spent two weeks of July in Indiana for an experience in midwest farming with 40 other Girl Scouts from the U.S.A., Denmark and Zambia. Pam (eighth grade) is president of student council and is cheerleading captain. Cindy (10) loves gymnastics. In her spare time, Pauline is back at college taking business and psychology courses. The Kezers see Paul "Terry" Rogers, who lives in New Britain with his wife and two sons • Another politician in our class is Jerry Speers, the majority leader of the Maine Senate • Stephen and Karen Weeks left an architectural consulting practice in Minnesota last December to form a partnership in Madison, Wisc. with a former classmate • Anita Nourse Largent is a teacher of the deaf (high school level) in Tallahassee, Fla., where she makes her home with husband Wayne and Kevin (14), Amanda (3) and Belinda (1) • Arlene Jenkins Graber is in Stoughton, Mass. with her husband, David, a consulting engineer, and their four boys. She keeps active as a den mother and Sunday school teacher • Anne Quirion Connaughton and James live in France with Jacques (8) and Marie-Noelle (3). They were in the States this summer visiting Anne's family in Maine • Peter and Robin Ketchum are in New York City, where Peter heads a company that produces films and filmstrips • We extend our sympathies to Whit Bond, whose father died in July. Edward Bond was co-chairman of the Colby Parents Association from 1960-63 and co-chairman of the Graduate Parents Association from 1963-66.

Anne Gellhorn Campbell continues as a graduate student with everything done for her Ph.D. except the thesis, for which she hoped to collect the data this summer (she is recording electrical activity from single cells in the frog retina as they fire in response to light). Anne is involved with food, nursery school, and babysitting co-ops and thinks being a parent is great—son Alfred was born in November 1975 • Dusty Rhoades, Lt. Commander, U.S.N., is back at sea aboard the U.S.S. Forrestal while Sara (Shaw) is at home with their two children in Virginia Beach, Va. • Congratulations to Dick Geltman, who was married in January. He and his new wife, Nancy, are living in Washington, D.C. after a honeymoon trip to southeastern France. Dick continues his work as assistant executive director and general counsel for the National Conference of State Criminal Justice Planning Administrators. As such, he represents the states in Washington in finding ways to reduce crime. Nancy is office manager for Congressman Jim Wright,

House majority leader • Art and Diane Fulman have become interested in the cultures of the Spanish colonial and pre-Columbian Indians and have spent a lot of time in Central and South America. In January they were in Guatemala and the Yucatan for two and a half weeks exploring the Mayan ruins. Art, a partner in a Malden, Mass. law firm, recently had the opportunity to argue a case before the U.S. Supreme Court • Ed Baker is on a leave of absence from Harvard, where he has been a graduate student in Korean history and East Asian languages, and is working on the staff of the investigation of Korean-American relations being conducted by the Subcommittee on International Organizations of the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives. Ed and Diane are now living in Arlington, Va., with their son, Hayden, 9, who was born while they were living in Seoul, Korea, and their daughter, Elizabeth Meejin, 8, a Korean child whom they adopted in June 1975 • Major Paul Tessier, who is a social worker with the Army, his wife, Sandra, and their four children just returned from three and a half years in the Panama Canal Zone. Paul is on the Central Maryland U.S.O. Board of Directors and is a consultant to the national task force for child care in the military • Lynne Davidson is "busy, busy, busy" as chairperson for the department of sociology at the State University of New York College at Purchase, and with her involvement in feminist groups in the N.Y.C. area. Like so many of us, she has gotten out of touch with Colby friends, so she says Hi and sends her love to Sandy (Smith) and Danny Sobocinski via this column • Mike Sylvester, his wife Meredith, and their three children have moved to Cleveland Heights, Ohio and love it there. Mike is president of Foam Seal, Inc., makers of weather stripping and insulation • Sally Berry Chew and family moved to Topsfield, Mass. from Amherst in June. Sally's husband, Bob, is manager of systems development at the educational division of Digital Corp., and Sally expects to be teaching cello next year. She has been playing the cello for several years now and this past year enjoyed the experience of playing with the excellent Pioneer Valley Orchestra. They hope to see more Colby friends now that they are closer to Boston • Jackie (Roe) and Alex Lloyd are comfortably settled and active in the Hartford area. Son Peter, their fourth child, arrived to highlight last year. Alex is president of the Hartford Colby Club. Jackie "specializes in keeping up with their four children, two cats, a dog, several gerbils, a 13-room house, and an acre of gardens!" • Jerry Shapiro was promoted to full professor at the Univ. of Hawaii and is at the Univ. of California at Santa Cruz as an exchange professor for 1978-79. Highlight of the year for him was publication of his book, Methods of Group Psychotherapy and Encounter: A Tradition of Innovation by Peacock Publishers. Jerry ran into Steve Schoeman in a Honolulu restaurant • I'm sure all our classmates join with me in extending to the family of Dave Polley our sympathy on his recent

Named Senior Vice-President

CHARLES CAREY '63 has been appointed senior vice-president at Industrial National Bank in Providence, R.I., where he has assumed responsibility for the credit department and has become closely involved with credit policy.

Carey previously was president of Inleasing Corporation, the bank's equipment leasing subsidiary. He joined Industrial National Bank in 1972. Carey, who holds an M.A. degree in economics from the University of Maine, is married to Pamela (Plumb '65).

Backstage at the Opera

RANDALL HOLDEN 65 has simultaneously pursued from coast to coast a career in education and a love of opera. His appreciation of music began while Holden was a youngster, when he was exposed to New York's Metropolitan Opera. After majoring in music at Colby, he earned a master's degree at the University of Connecticut, where he created a concert version of the first act of an obscure baroque opera. Later while studying for a doctorate in music at the University of Washington, he prepared the entire opera Jupiter in Argos by Antonio Lotti, for a student production. Holden further honed his backstage skills at Washington as a graduate assistant in opera production.

In 1971 he took a job as assistant to the dean of the college of fine arts at Arizona State University. He soon was working at his avocation, too, as stage manager for several joint performances by the Phoenix Symphony and the Seattle Opera then as coordinator for similar productions by the symphony and the San Diego Opera Company.

Two years ago he moved to Louisville, Ky., where he was appointed associate dean of the University of Louisville Graduate School and associate professor of music. Holden again was drawn to his "second career," and before long became production manager of the Kentucky Opera Association.

He is married to Pamela (Harris '66), who is business administrator of Child Psychiatry Services at the university's medical school.

As production manager of the Kentucky Opera Association, Randall Holden '65 is responsible for everything that goes on backstage when the company mounts a production. Copyright © 1978 The Courier-Journal. Reprinted with permission.

73 MARGARET MCPARTLAND c/o Greely High School Cumberland Center, Maine 04021

It is hard to believe that five years have come and gone since we trudged the Colby paths! Our reunion in June was fun—let's all begin now to make plans to come in 1983! Nestled in the woods of Vermont, I am writing to you from Aloha Camp, where I am spending the summer as program director. As a result of your great response to my questionnaire, I get more mail than anyone in camp! Our class has certainly accrued some interesting accomplishments • Jan Burnham, after graduating from New England School of Law and acting as editor of the Law Review, is studying for the Massachusetts bar exam and planning to practice in Boston • Ida Dionne Burroughs is enjoying life in California. When not taking care of her new daughter, Serena, she and husband Jonathan give home recitals of piano music and art songs for each new season • Carolyn Clarke is a social worker in a state hospital in Norman, Okla., and teaches sociology at Oscar Rose Junior College • Bruce Cummings is excited about his new job as director of health for the City of Danbury, Conn. This summer he and wife Ellen planned to meet Bill and Jane Wyman in California in the Sierra Nevadas • Fran Gates is working as an aquatic biologist in California, and Norma Burrows Gordon is a meteorologist for the Bureau of Air Quality Control in Augusta • As a human services planner, Nancy Magee Hanna is responsible for the overall coordination of public and private services in Berks County, Pa. She and Ed '72 attended Jeanne Irving Angel's wedding in March • Janet Hueners, writing from Los Angeles, works as a cost control coordinator for CBS Television • Bob Levine, a planner for the Connecticut Commission on the Arts, is especially excited about his recent commission to design and paint a wall graphic • Margaret Lichtenberg is working hard as a programmer and analyst at Citibank in New York • Also in the computer line, Kathy (Knight) and John Lowe have moved to New York. John is a systems associate programmer at I.B.M. corporate headquarters; Kathy is an analyst-programmer at American Can Co. • Beth McGrath is a planning model administrator for Aetna Insurance Co. in Hartford. She visited Chris Hannon in Denver, where Chris was working on a degree in library science • Norman Olsen has a new job as executive director of the Maine Fisherman's Cooperative Association. He also has been named to the New England Regional Fishery Management Council • Bob O'Neil is a practicing attorney in Brookline, Mass. • After graduating from the Culinary Institute of America, Greg Page is head chef at the Fisherman's Lagoon, the "newest and busiest" restaurant on Hilton Head Island, S.C. He has plans to open his own restaurant soon • Matt Powell is a buyer for Jordan Marsh in Boston • Cindy Santillo is a free-lance writer and lists among her accomplishments episodes of "The Ted Knight Show," "Love Boat," and "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" • David Swardlick is teaching media and visual education at Emerson College in Boston • Mary Jane Kelly Tiedeman is director of library services for the National Journal, a weekly news magazine • Sue Yovic, along with studying for the Illinois bar exam, is working for the U.S. trade finance division of Continental Bank • Carter Zervas, who received his master's in painting, spent the summer doing murals with the inner city youth in Philadelphia • Stay tuned. I have lots more news to share. Keep the cards and letters coming—I love hearing from you!

74 DEBBIE MARDENHUNT (Mrs. Gary) 120 Forest Park Ave. Springfield, Mass. 01108

Winter's in the air once again, and news of the Class of '74 is as plentiful as ever • Newspaper clippings tell us that Jennifer Andrews was married to Dr. Mark Battista on January 28, 1978, after studying at the Univ. of Cardiff, Wales, Great Britain and obtaining her graduate degree in psychology from Boston College. Unbelievable as it may seem, we are no longer the rookies of the alumni body. (Which of course means they'll be expecting more money from us.) I would like to extend best wishes to the Class of '78 from the Class of '77 • A Watson Fellow, Carter Newell, has just returned from Wales where he studied snail parasites. One of the highlights of his past year was catching a 500 lb. Mola Mola with a shrimp net in a 15-foot boat • A transfer from Colby to the Univ. of Colorado, Cindy Lanning, writes that she is happy and working as a marketing representative for the Armstrong Cork Co. • This year Bruce Thomson will be finishing up his business program at Columbia Graduate School of Business • An analyst for E.F. Hutton, Tom Hearne has spent some of his free time sailing and climbing. Tom hopes that within a year or so he will be able to pursue an

M.B.A. • Maybe someone can help me out. John Einsiedler and Drew Dubuque both wrote that Ken Fox was to be married this June to a Ms. Mount. A later letter from Ken gave no indication of such an event. Now if John and Drew are trying to start something I wish they would stick to the same first name and if Ken really did get married I wish you every happiness • After the first year of law school most students need a relaxing break. Cilla Bondy spent this past summer in Scotland and Ireland. I'm sure that Cilla will come back rested and ready to start her second year at Vermont Law School • Out in San Francisco, Susan Rohm is studying structural drafting at Heald Engineering College • As of last reports, Phil Gledhill is still looking for the "right" kind of job. In the meantime he is busy working at Bliss Marine and sailing whenever and wherever possible. He asked me to say Hi to everyone for him. Hi! • A foreign exchange trader for the First National Bank of Boston, Chad Dickson seems quite happy with his work and also pleased with Boston • Beth Quimby was given new assignments in the editorial department of the Valley News in Vermont. Beth is covering a considerably larger area than her past job required • A project assistant at the Univ. of New Hampshire, Eric Heinzelmann is hoping to continue in research while pursuing a graduate course of study • The Univ. of Pennsylvania is where Jo-Ellen Bois is working towards a master's degree in the Annenberg School of Communication • At last word, Vinnie Martucci was quite busy studying and playing keyboard for a "junk band" • The director of Roberts Union this past year was Amy Schuetz. This has changed from a two-year position to a one-year position and Amy was hoping to find employment in the Midwest this fall • In Charlestown, S.C., WKTM-FM Radio has hired Robert Kaake to host a music show every morning from 6 to 9 A.M. A previous radio career stood him well as he was hired during a telephone interview with this station • Mary Shumaker has enjoyed this past year as social studies teacher at Housatonic Valley Regional High School. From other sources I have found out that Mary has additional reasons for being happy. It seems that she and Randy Schreitmuller have plans to marry • A second-year law student, Barry Knapp says that his program at Western New England School of Law keeps him quite busy and out of trouble • Both Peter Garrabone and Fred Hodgdon are enjoying the hearty environment at Amos Tuck School at Dartmouth • Margaret Felton Viens is also engulfed in the activities of Hanover while her husband, Kenneth Paul Viens '73, completes his program at Tuck • A sales representative with Liggett and Meyers Tobacco Co., Bob Clarke is located in South Portland. He writes that it is a great place to be with so many Colby grads in the area • Studying Chinese in Taiwan, Frank Wemyss reports that one of the highlights of his past year was getting a haircut in a Chinese barber shop • This past summer, David Malman had his hands full working in Edgemont, Pa. as a building inspector, assistant fire chief, and stage manager for an outdoor theater • Congratulations from the class are extended to Norma Boutet, who was married this July to Gene DeLorenzo '75 • Mike and Denise Martell Martin write that they are quite well. While Mike works as a customer service representative at Canal Bank, Denise keeps busy as a sales manager for Jordan Marsh in Portland • At the School for Social Research of Harlem Hospital Center, Eladio Alvarez is pursuing a career as a physician's assistant • Since we're on the medical subject, I ran into Jeff Schwartz at a bar this summer where R.P. Higgins' new band was playing. Jeff says that he loves medical school, and has heard from Jim Torrance at U.C.L.A. Graduate School and Ron Paret at Hahnemann Medical School, who are both faring well • Santa Barbara is the home of Mindy Silverstein. As long as I have known Mindy, she has been concerned with children who have had a less fortunate start. Though not easy, she writes that her work with retarded youth continues to be rewarding • David Bogan is working at a Vermont country inn while continuing to apply for teaching jobs and waiting to hear from theological schools. David verifies that Helen Richmond is living and working at Stoneleigh-Burham School in Greenfield, Mass. as a history teacher • Well, that's all for now—a very newsy column. I hope that everyone is well and jolly over this upcoming holiday season.

by Ermo Scott

The Survey of Maine Colleges, completed in 1930, just as Franklin Johnson began his presidency at Colby, was the major evidence that convinced the trustees that the college must move to a larger and more favorable site. Ermo Scott, the young man who did much of the leg-work for that survey, was then a student in the College of Education at the University of Maine. He later took his doctorate at New York University and became a prominent Maine educator, culminating his career by serving as president of the University of Maine at Farmington. Here, he recalls that survey and a fateful meeting with President Johnson.

The first survey of higher education to be conducted in Maine was initiated by the Maine Development Commission in 1927. Through a resolution, it invited the University of Maine to undertake a study which would analyze the projected needs for higher education in the state and by what means those needs might be met over the coming decade.

Following the appointment of an advisory committee, headed by President Sills of Bowdoin, an agreement was made for the provision of advisory services between the University of Maine and Teachers College, Columbia University. Drs. R.J. Leonard and F.B. O'Rear headed the specialized staff assisting the survey. Dr. O.S. Lutes, chairman of the Department of Education at Maine, served as executive director, with myself, a student, as assistant to the director.

The survey extended for more than two years. Data were collected from the state normal schools and junior colleges of the day, as well as from the senior colleges and the university. Characteristically, it included examinations of evident educational needs, physical plants, faculty, students, organization and administration, and finance. A concluding chapter presented pertinent recommendations based upon these data.

The procedure used in data collection included the outlining through guidelines and forms to assist campus representatives in securing comparable information. These representatives included President Gray (Bates), Professor Mitchell (Bowdoin), Dean Marriner (Colby) and Director Lutes (Maine). Periodically, as the assistant, I would make the rounds of the colleges, collecting the information that had been prepared and, at times, distributing outlines for the next aspect to be studied.

These results were taken back to the survey office at the University of Maine, analyzed, and a preliminary report was drafted, together with the preparation of any pertinent related visual materials. Eventually, these statements were presented for examination by the members of the advisory committee.

During the fall months of 1928-29, Professors Evenden and O'Rear, of Teachers College, spent time on each campus examining physical plants. This was necessary, since the survey staff lacked sufficient expertise to develop an adequate study. Eventually, their analyses and recommendations reached the director and were prepared in preliminary form.

I well remember the day that Director Lutes entered my office with the draft of the physical plant report on Colby. Said he, "Read this carefully. I believe that what we have here is of such questionable nature that the Colby administration must examine it before it reaches anyone outside of our office."

Dean Marriner, in his History of Colby College, has extracted this section in specific detail. In essence, it concluded that, because of the very low quality of Colby's plant, coupled with its adverse location, it should seek relocation.

Dr. Lutes then directed me to take the next train to Waterville and give the statement to Dean Marriner. Dr. Johnson had taken office by this time but I had not met him. The exact events of that audience may be somewhat blurred by the passage of nearly 50 years. I arrived at the office, met Dr. Johnson and Dean Marriner, and explained the reason for our concern. I handed the manuscript to President Johnson. He read it silently and then passed it to the Dean.

Meanwhile, I was extremely apprehensive not knowing just what type of reaction these readings would trigger. The Dean likewise read it without comment. Then Dr. Johnson turned to Dean Marriner and said, to my best memory, "Tell Dr. Lutes to publish it just as it stands. Here is our first factual evidence which justifies our new campus."

Needless to say, I was significantly relieved by President Johnson's conclusion.
