THE COLBY ALUMNUS

APRIL, 1952

Fellow Alumni--

ONCE again I am appealing to you to support wholeheartedly Colby's annual Alumni Fund drive. We have set as our goal $35,000 — well over the figure of past years, but by no means impossible to attain!

LET us be challenged by the heights to which men like ourselves can rise is a quotation I recently came across, and I would pass it on to all Colby men and women as typifying the spirit with which we should enter into our fund drive of 1952.

IT has been my good fortune to live within thirty minutes driving distance of Waterville and to be able to enjoy our new Colby. The physical plant of our college is the pride and joy of all the graduates and friends who have visited it. However, even more significant and more pleasing is the way the plant is being utilized. Typical are the past few months when Colby has been the host to many groups. On Parents' Day over eight hundred were guests of the college; Colby graduates teaching in Maine met at another occasion; the annual Hospital Administrators Institute, and a recent Guidance Conference sponsored by the Maine Principals' Association also illustrate the uses being made of the new campus. I can assure you that Colby has become a host without peer among the Maine colleges. Much favorable publicity and much goodwill have been the result.

NOW, as I look back on my twenty-five years as an alumnus, I marvel at the progress that our college has made. There is no feeling of envy, just a deep sense of satisfaction that so much more is available to this generation's sons and daughters of Colby.

CERTAINLY the sacrifices, monetary and otherwise, of many people have made our splendid institution possible. Again in 1952 let us as loyal alumni not fail to do our part. Let us remember

*The best that we have is not what we've got
But that which we give away —
A gift to make easy another's lot —
For it all comes back some day.*

On Our Cover

Colby became the first college in the state to give blood when a Red Cross Bloodmobile visited Mayflower Hill March 17 at the invitation of the Colby Red Cross and the Student Christian association.

One hundred and twenty-five pints were collected from undergraduates, faculty, and staff with nearly fifty other students standing by to give in case the Bloodmobile time schedule permitted.

On the cover (photograph by Bill Tobey, '44, Waterville Sentinel) Kitsi Davenport, '53, Walpole, Massachusetts, who was in charge of personnel, has just donated. Chase Lasbury, '53, East Windsor Hill, Connecticut, officer-of-the-day, stands ready for his turn. The nurse is Miss Hilda Buker.

The Bloodmobile mission was a heart warming success. Every detail was handled perfectly. The spirit, the generosity, the citizenship of those Colby men and women who participated left nothing to be desired.

Response to Dr. Franklin W. Johnson's "If I Had Three Days to Live," published by the Colby College press and in the December ALUMNUS, has been vast and enthusiastic. Letters are still coming in.

Space limitations prevent publishing more than a fragment of this correspondence. We have chosen excerpts from a few, believing that these will speak for the many, many others who have expressed similar pleasures in reading Dr. Johnson's delightful essay.

I was deeply moved by the reading and found many points of close correspondence between your experience and my own. My love for Colby, her old days and her new, is—I was going to say "revived," but the word is wrong, for my love has never been dead. Let me say, rather, sweetened and strengthened.

Colby '92

What a satisfaction it is to read something which does not leave one with a state of complete mental confusion.

My first thought on laying it down was: "So live that when thy summons comes—" and after a friendship of over fifty years, I know no one who has followed that precept more consistently.

Colby '98

I have read and reread it with great pleasure and am reminded of three old professors, Bert Drummond, Dave Hall, and Whit Parsons.

Colby '91

Your reminiscing was of the most refreshing, stimulating type. And, if I may say so, it gave to those of us who attended the old Colby a deeper appreciation of the faith, the strength, the humanity of the man who made the new Colby possible.

If those who run the Colby of the future possess a fraction of your durable spirit, the institution will prosper forever.

Colby '39

To be sure life at the old bricks was a little crude compared with the many comforts at Mayflower Hill but I look back upon it as one of the happiest periods of my life. The present students at Colby and all that follow owe you more than anyone else.

Colby '92

This is one of the best summaries of realism I have read, and you are to be praised no end for its authorship.

Colby '19

I keep the booklet at my hand, on my desk. Every word seemed inspired and alive, which thrilled me with the names of persons and places individually inseparable from my life, especially Waterville, the home of my boyhood and college days.

I must assure you and thank you again for my participation with you.

Glee Club Broadcast

• I thought you would be interested in a comment contained in a letter I have just received from Leonard J. Patricelli, program manager of WTIC, Hartford, in reference to the Monsanto broadcast which originated at Colby. I quote.

"Very frankly I was most delightfully surprised at the improvement in the club and also with the work done by the two octets, especially the Colbyettes. If you have had an opportunity to listen to the tape, I think you will agree with me that the broadcast by the Colby college glee club ranks right at the top of the series with such musical organizations as Dartmouth, Yale and Bowdoin. One more year of intensive work and all the other clubs will have to really look to their laurels."

Carleton D. Brown, '33

Vote

• Bill Millett and his staff spend considerable time, energy, and money in preparing for us the official ballot for election of members of the Alumni Council. This, Colby Men and Women, is our Alumni Council and it is our duty and privilege to vote for members of this Council to represent us. Let's exercise this privilege. Remember that the polls close at twelve o'clock noon seven days preceding the annual meeting.

Philip S. Bither, '30

Chairman of the Ballot Committee

The year 1952, with a presidential election in the offing, is a year of decision. Before November the voter must make up his mind. How should he go about it? Has he ever faced issues as complex as those of today? To vote intelligently one ought to have information about tax policies, levels of production, tariffs, and the rights of labor, to say nothing of religion in Israel, oil in Arabia, revolution in China, and famine in Bengal.

Nor do the difficulties stop here. Specific items of information can, after all, be learned if time and opportunity are given. The real trouble comes in knowing what to do about them and the task becomes immeasurably harder when the basic issues are moral as they are now. I am not referring merely to the corruption which we have been shocked to find so widespread. To see an individual lose his integrity is a disillusioning experience, but, bitter as it is, we think we understand what it means and the appropriate response is not hard to determine. What really baffles us is the set of ethical issues that confronts our nation because of its sudden rise to leadership.

Let me illustrate by referring to three brilliant addresses we have heard at Colby this last month in the Gabrielson series of lectures on government. The three speakers, two from Harvard and one from Princeton, emphasized the fact that both our new conceptions of freedom at home and our commitments abroad reached back to ideas that are spiritual as well as technical. Our consciences are involved, they said, as much as our minds. If we hope to make democracy work at home, they affirmed, or to enable it to compete successfully abroad, we must be prepared to make some important value judgements. The last lecturer of the three showed, for example, how the drastic change from friendliness and affection to hatred and fear on the part of the Near Eastern countries has been the direct result not so much of our political ineptness as of our failure to distinguish between right and wrong.

How, then, shall the voter learn to decide? It seems to me that we can help him only if we train him to think and act responsibly. In a college like Colby this means, as I see it, that we must do our utmost to emphasize the appeal to the heart which is always implicit in liberal education at its best but which we sometimes neglect in our absorption in other affairs. Let us remember that a college deals not only with knowledge of facts but also with experiences of value and processes of interpretation. A liberally educated person should have convictions concerning what it is important to think about and the ability to make decisions based on them.

Of course, at Colby, our experience as a community is an invaluable help. Our chief difficulty comes from the fact that so often our loyalties center in interests that are desirable in their way but necessarily limited, such as athletics or fraternities. Only as we enter into the larger life of common devotion to ideals that are universal and that appeal to us as reasonable human beings shall we realize the opportunity that lies before us.

This is why it has been so necessary to get ourselves established on the new campus with the unity it offers. It is also why our religious program takes on such great significance. Although there is no space to describe it in detail I am glad to report to our alumni that competent outside observers have told us it is the best of its type in New England.

Let us hope that at Colby we can help young men and women not only to make up their minds but to make them up in the right way.

The Talk of the College

IF THE Voice of America has had difficulty in filtering news behind the Iron Curtain we'd like to suggest a study of the telegraphic methods of Colby undergraduates.

A case in point is the announcement made March 19 that college was closing two days early because of measles. A half dozen cases had developed and on the advice of Dr. Clarence Dore, '39, college physician, the vacation date was advanced from the 21st to prevent the spread of the infection.

The president and the administrative committee made the decision at 3:57. The notice was posted at 4:02. Fifty-six seconds later everyone on campus knew.

Only moments passed before suitcases were "packed," motors warmed, and the holiday exodus was underway. By sundown all was quiet—and deserted.

PRESIDENT BIXLER has been named to a board of appointments considering recommendations for the Harvard Divinity School. The university has announced a $5,000,000 plan "to create an important center of religious learning" at Harvard.

Dr. Bixler will serve on the board with the Right Reverend Angus Dun, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Washington; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist Episcopal church; Chancellor R. Harvie Branscomb of Vanderbilt University; Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, for many years president of Union Theological Seminary; Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, minister-emeritus of the Riverside church, New York City; Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor of applied Christianity at Union Theological Seminary, and Dr. Charles E. Park, minister-emeritus of the First Church of Boston.

Dr. Bixler was Bussey professor of theology at the Harvard Divinity School prior to coming to Colby.

IF MOSCOW STRIKES

The long-awaited release of the March of Time film based on Dr. Vannevar Bush's Modern Arms and Free Men will come the latter part of April.

Alumni will recall that portions of the movie were made on the new Mayflower Hill campus. Dr. Bixler, students, and other members of the Waterville-Colby community are in several scenes.

The world premiere is scheduled for the Guild Theatre, 33 West 50th Street at Rockefeller Plaza, New York City. The production has been entitled If Moscow Strikes. Distribution nationwide will follow the film's Manhattan showing.

CLOUDY with light snow flurries. That was the prediction for February 17. The weatherman was partly right. It was cloudy and there were "snow flurries." The word "light" is to be questioned.

Twenty-two inches of snow blanketed Maine, stalling traffic, and raising general havoc. On isolated Mayflower Hill matters came to a complete standstill—no classes, no traffic could get either in or out.

The storm chose an inopportune time. Among other things it disrupted a Religious Emphasis program, destined to rank with the best.

Colby's chaplain, Dr. Clifford Osborne, and students of the Inter-Faith association, had worked vigorously to produce a meaningful three day conference. Ten religious leaders were invited to live and meet with undergraduates.

Snow changed all that. Only two managed to get through to Waterville. Dr. Osborne notified the rest not to attempt it.

Dr. Albert Edward Day, pastor of Mt. Vernon Place Methodist church,

Baltimore, and Miss Betty Johns, national student secretary of the YWCA in New England colleges, reached the city at 2 A.M. after a slow and treacherous ride over a snow-clogged Maine Central rail system. They conducted a session for freshmen women at Foss Hall, but with this exception the splendid program was never realized.

Already plans are underway for 1952-53. Dr. Osborne believes he has found a solution to drifts and blizzards in his recommendation that Religious Emphasis week be held during November immediately following the football season.

Better advise speakers to bring chains and overshoes just in case.

DEDICATION of the new Foss and Woodman halls this June will recall Colby's early struggles to build a women's dormitory when co-education was in its infancy.

A letter written April 26, 1893, asking for alumni support, reads:

"Put this into your wastebasket at once if you are one of the fast decreasing number who persist in the old-time belief that the cultivated, symmetrically-developed woman, like the poet, is always born, not made.

"If, however, you are abreast of the times and believe that woman of today needs and deserves a broadening and elevating education, please direct your thought toward Colby University.

"This college admitted women in 1871. At first there were few, but now the number has increased to sixty-five undergraduates, with every indication of a still greater increase. Three dwelling-houses, pitifully inconvenient and unsuitable, have been provided for the accommodation of these young women. These buildings are now filled to overflowing, and still they come! — young women of all denominations and from all directions, knocking on the door of the college. Must they be refused because there is no room for them?

"Ask the young woman at Colby, and she will tell you that she comes to Colby because nowhere can she find so broad and thorough an education for so small an amount of money. Look into her face, where are united courage and modesty, refined taste and clear common-sense, and be convinced that a gift to the promising young womanhood of today is an investment whose returns are as large as they are certain."

PATTERN FOR A FREE WORLD is the theme of the 1952 Gabrielson lectures sponsored by the department of history and government. There has been pride in the quality of the past Gabrielson lecturers, but it is doubtful if the current series has been topped.

February 21, Samuel H. Beer, associate professor of government at Harvard, led off. He has been followed on successive weeks by Edwin O. Reischauer, associate professor of Far Eastern Languages, Harvard; Philip K. Hitti, professor of Semitic Literature, Princeton; Arnold Wolfers, Sterling Professor of International Relations, Yale.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER — Trygve Lie, Secretary-General of the United Nations, who will be the speaker at graduation exercises June 16.

Wilbur K. Jordan, president of Radcliffe College, speaks in April and Jan Papanek, ambassador from Czechoslovakia to the U. N., on April 17.

Also to be heard from are Miroslav Kerner, former chief of the Czechoslovak Office for Relief and Rehabilitation; Henry Steele Commager, professor of history, Columbia; Helen M. Cam, ZeMurray Professor of History, Harvard; and Charles Malik, minister from Lebanon to the United States.

Averill lecturers during the second semester included two alumni, both authorities in their fields. Professor Marston Morse, '14, from the Institute for Advanced Study, spoke February 21. Professor Frederick A. Pottle, '17, of Yale, will lecture April 18.

THE WIDENING SCOPE of admissions work and the time consumed in records, interviewing, testing and travelling have made it essential that Colby have a director of admissions.

William L. Bryan, assistant to the dean of men for the past four years, has been named to the post.

Dean of Men George Nickerson and Dean of Women Barbara Sherman will continue in advisory capacities working closely with him.

DIRECTOR — William L. Bryan, '47.

Admissions work is a full-time job with competition from other colleges becoming increasingly keen. Waterville high school is an example. Principal Clair Wood, '28, estimates representatives of between fifty and sixty colleges visit the school annually to interview students. Admissions officers from Tufts, Wesleyan, Amherst, Williams, Yale, to mention only a few, have already stopped by.

"A new source of competition for the liberal arts college," Clair adds, "comes from business colleges, junior colleges, and other specialty schools."

Colby's new director of admissions was in the class of 1947. He took his preparatory work at Hotchkiss.

As assistant to Dean Nickerson he has had wide contact with school personnel and has been instrumental in interesting many boys and girls to elect Colby for their higher education.

COLBY - SWARTHMORE Summer School of Languages launches its fifth year June 30 with an expanded curriculum. For the first time Italian will be offered.

Director John F. McCoy anticipates that French and German will still lead in popularity, but he looks for increased enrollment in Russian and Spanish.

The school has grown in fame and stature. Its ability to teach languages in an intensive, yet informal, seven weeks has been conclusively proven. Colby-Swarthmore has come of age.

Still in There Pitching

WHEN THE INVITATION came to assist in a baseball clinic to be held within the European Command by the Special Services Divisions of the Army Recreational Branch, I was in a quandary. Why should a man almost three score and ten be seeking new experiences? But my decision was to make everything which I might know about baseball available to our young men and to aid, if possible, in giving our soldier lads the recreation and the athletic activities which they had left behind in the States.

Our flying party had as its personnel: Otto Vogel, baseball coach at Iowa; Marty Karow, coach at Ohio State; Lew Fonseca, the publicity director for the major leagues; Art Gore and Jocko Conlan, National League umpires, and myself.

It is a peculiar feeling to take off from Westover Field in bright sunshine, temperature in the high seventies and step from a B54 Army plane into 11 below zero. That is what happened soon after we hit the runway at Stephanville, Newfoundland, the first stop on our flight over the Atlantic into Germany via the Azores, Paris and Frankfurt.

Not many hours later as we soared over the French countryside at Brest, the hedge rows around each cultivated section made me think of a patch quilt which my mother made for me when I was a freshman at Colby fifty years ago.

Different acreages, different colorings with the green hedges presented a scene never to be forgotten. What a sight from ten thousand feet, sun shining and the sky as clear as a crystal!

The baseball clinic was held in Garmisch, a winter and summer resort at the foot of the Bavarian Alps. It was snowing when our party arrived and snowing when we left six days later. 196 inches were given as the official fall.

Garmisch is the only army post in Germany having facilities large enough for an athletic clinic. Attending were officers and men from all sections of the European Command.

By John W. Coombs, '06

Jack Coombs reports on his trip to Germany this past February in which he participated in a baseball clinic for servicemen.

Each post sent two coaches and four umpires.

Art Gore and Jocko Conlan had 460 men who will be umpires during the coming baseball season. The rest of us had 188 men who will be coaches. Our numbers were divided into two sections; 90 in one, 98 in the other.

The manner in which the Command respects civilians who are assisting them in their morale building tactics is beyond apprehension. Nothing was left for us to do, we were the professors of baseball, and hotel, train, plane and other accommodations were supplied by our officer guides.

Affiliation with Harvard School of Education

COLBY is one of twenty-one eastern colleges selected to inaugurate a cooperative program with the Harvard Graduate School of Education for training elementary and secondary school teachers.

The program, with its liberal financial aid, offers remarkable opportunities to undergraduates with ambitions for teaching. Harvard indicates scholarship help for the year's study will be available up to $1500 with the minimum grant around $500.

Entrance is not based on competitive examinations, but is left up to a Colby committee. Three to five Colby students will be accepted annually if they express interest and if they have the necessary qualifications—good personality, sound scholarship.

The course will consist of a half a year at Harvard's Graduate School of Education and half a year at the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. It will lead to a master of arts degree in teaching.

This is the second important affiliation for graduate work in recent months. The December Alumnus reported on the new relationship with Carnegie Institute of Technology for those seeking engineering degrees.

Professor Curtis Hugh Morrow

Retirement . . .

Pioneer at Colby in Sociology

By Leonard W. Mayo, '22

WHEN JUNE comes to Mayflower Hill Curtis H. Morrow, for thirty-two years Colby's Professor of Economics and Sociology, will terminate his professorial duties to embark upon a new phase of his life. The term retirement is hardly appropriate for one who, in his own words, is looking forward with anticipation to "a new and better adventure." Having spent most of his life in a scientific and sympathetic study of man as a social being, he has made ample personal application of his own rich philosophy and found it good. Thus it is that he comes to the age at which faculty members normally relinquish their duties, ready and eager to go forward with new and broadened interests, retaining, at the same time, many of the old ones.

I was a sophomore when Professor Morrow walked into Recitation Hall one morning in the fall of 1920 to meet his first class. He was chubby and pink-cheeked and his eyes had a good-natured, warm twinkle behind his gold-rimmed glasses. He started to talk, informally but earnestly, and even a sophomore could catch the sincerity and conviction in his voice and manner. We didn't know quite how to "type" this new "Prof." In fact he didn't type easily. He was definitely not a stuffed shirt; he was not the popular type in the usual sense. He was a hard worker, he meant business, and he expected hard work from his students.

By the start of the second semester we began to understand and respect the quiet scholarship of this man and the things for which he stood. Recently I came across a collection of notes from one of Professor Morrow's classes and they had a surprisingly modern ring.

I can recall vividly how exciting it was when the study of economics and sociology under Professor Morrow, of psychology under Dr. Wells, and of philosophy with Professor Savides brought the clear realization that the accumulated knowledge of the centuries has to do fundamentally with man's struggle to understand himself and his universe and the significant relationship between them. Having grasped that, what were once different subjects and courses became converging paths leading to the same basic quest. When a student rediscovers a truth for himself under the guidance and influence of good teachers he is not likely to forget either the truth or the teachers.

PROFESSOR MORROW has been active through the years in his professional associations, in local affairs in Waterville, and in state programs in health and welfare. His active organization memberships include the American Economic Association, the American Sociological Society, the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences, the American Public Welfare, and the Maine Welfare Associations. He is also a Fellow of the Royal Economic Society, London, England.

Professor Morrow founded the Alpha Chapter of the Pi Gamma Mu, National Social Science Honor Society, at Colby some years ago. This chapter has just been awarded a certificate of merit for the completion of twenty-five years of outstanding scholarship in the social sciences. Professor Morrow has served as secretary of the local chapter since its founding, and for nearly ten years as governor of the Northeast Region of the National Society.

Among Professor Morrow's scholarly contributions have been the publication of "Preparation of Social Science Papers" and "Political-Military Secret Societies of the North West, 1860-1865." He was responsible for the collection of an excellent file of early American books and pamphlets on Leonard W. Mayo, '22, writes appreciatively of Curtis Hugh Morrow, beloved teacher and scholar. Dr. Mayo is the director of the Association for the Aid of Crippled Children and president of the Child Welfare League of America.

SEMINAR — Dr. Morrow meets with his sociology seminar in the Smith Lounge, Women's Union. The seminar, made up of seniors, is devoted to social research. A study this year has been made of 750 local families.

this collection are those contributed by Mathew and Henry Carey from about 1820 to 1875. These and other works together with subsequent purchases have provided for the Colby library one of the finest Carey collections outside of the complete collection in the University of Pennsylvania.

MOST IMPORTANT of all is the fact that under Professor Morrow the Department of Economics and Sociology at Colby has grown from a single instructor giving three courses to a five man department giving ten courses with an enrollment of nearly 500 students. An outstanding characteristic of the department has been its active interest in research, which has persisted as the department has grown in spite of heavy teaching loads and a relatively small staff.

In Professor Morrow's own words: "Students and their problems have always been one of my primary interests. Of the several thousand students who have attended my classes I have always been pleased to learn of their success and that of their families. The past thirty-two years have been a great adventure with each decade. The first decade (1920-1929) was a period of austerity and frugality; the second (1930-1939) was period of transition and uncertainty but one of great vision and hope; in the decade or more (1940-1952) 'old things have passed away and behold all things have become new.' While material aspects of the 'Old College' have been wonderfully transformed, the intellectual and spiritual development of the college has proportionally improved."

When he was a younger man Curtis Morrow enjoyed an unusual hobby. He was fond of building and rebuilding stone walls and he did so in a way that enhanced their beauty and insured their stability for years to come. The enthusiasm and hard work invested in this hobby have been reflected in the building he has done for Colby College. Those of us who have known him, and those who know the solid impact of his work will agree that he has built well, that the foundations he has laid will remain, and that the values he has instilled are enduring.

I know I act and speak for all of Professor Morrow's students when I salute him on the occasion of his retirement and say that we wish him a satisfying and stimulating experience as he enters now into a new and exciting phase of a rich and useful life.

College Notes

A NEW lectureship in philosophy and religion has been established at the college. Gregory Vlastos, professor at Cornell's Sage School of Philosophy, instituted the series January 10. . . . Cyril M. Joly, Jr., '49, Waterville attorney, has been conducting a course in administrative law during the second semester. . . . Louis W. Collier, director of public relations and secretary of the Fund Council since 1948, resigned February 1 to join the Boston firm of Lavin-Stenbuck.

A rare musical evening was presented February 24 by the Julliard String quartet in Lorimer chapel. A capacity audience heard this notable chamber music ensemble. . . . Hugh Allen Wilson, organist of the First Presbyterian church, Glen Falls, New York, gave a recital on the Mellon organ March 11 for the benefit of the World's Student Service. . . . Fred M. Hechinger, education editor of the New York Herald Tribune, will lecture at Colby May 1 on The Outlook For Higher Education.

Employees of the college have enrolled in a Blue Cross-Blue Shield hospitalization and surgical group insurance plan. The coverage went into effect March 1. . . . Maine college administrators and secondary school principals met in a joint conference February 2 to discuss mutual problems. Dean of Men George Nickerson was instrumental in bringing the group to Colby. William Macomber, '27, was chairman of the meeting sponsored by the Maine Principals Association. . . . On March 21-22 the college was host to an institute for medical record librarians.

For the second consecutive year Colby will be host to Dirigo Girls State. The program will bring 150 outstanding high school juniors to the campus from June 21-27. . . . Fourteen undergraduates have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Henry Steele Commager, professor of history at Columbia University, will address the initiation banquet May 2. . . . The Colby chapter of Phi Sigma Iota, a national romance languages honor society, has been reactivated.

SPORTS

By Paul Reece, '54

TAKE TEAMWORK — an invaluable agent towards success — add some fine spirit, sprinkle with height, and you'll have the ingredients which Coach Lee Williams skillfully brewed into a sensational 23-5 mark for his basketball Mules.

Generally considered the greatest court team in Maine's 50-year collegiate history, Colby captured its second straight conference title and in the process became the first quintet ever to soar through the nine-game state series slate undefeated.

Unfortunately, history repeated itself when the White Mules fell before American International college, 71-66, in the finals of the NAIB regional tournament held at Colby, March 5-6. A year ago, the Williamsmen bowed to Boston college in the northern finals of the New England Invitational. On both occasions it was the only home loss sustained for the entire season.

Varsity Hockey

Unsuitable ice conditions — blamed on Maine's matchless weather — riddled Mule plans for a full hockey campaign. Nels Corey's crew gained only two wins, over MIT, 2-1, and the University of New Hampshire, 6-3, in twelve engagements. Four games, including two with Bowdoin, had to be cancelled.

The Frosh pucksters were faced with similar problems, while picking up a lone 10-1 victory over Hebron in five outings.

Skiing

Colby skiers had a busy winter. For a greater part of it snow conditions were perfect. In addition to the winter carnival collegiate invitational meet, the Mule skiers were hosts at the Maine State championships and to an interscholastic jumping tourney.

Captain Dana Andersen won the jumping crown against MIT and Maine at carnival-time and placed second in the state meet.

Freshman Basketball

Eddie Roundy's freshman basketkeeters amassed a fine 10-3 record. Although their two year winning streak was snapped, Colby's yearlings performed in impressive fashion. Their three losses were by margins of 1, 2, and 4 points and the boys had the pleasure of avenging two of these in return matches.

Baseball

AN INEXPERIENCED mound staff poses the major problem for veteran baseball coach Eddie Roundy, now in his 28th year at Colby. Graduation took its toll in most every position. The loss of three veteran pitchers left a huge gap.

Mac Andrews, a junior, looks like the mound mainstay after showing considerable promise as a talented fastballer a year ago. Ro Nagle and Ed Fraktman should see much action, as well as last season's freshman ace, Art Eddy. Senior Archie Armstrong, regular first baseman, and sophomore outfielder Stan Doughty, are a pair destined for relief roles.

Where democracy does not exist, men are confined intellectually; where democracy flourishes, men practice intellectual inquiry. Small colleges must be made to live and grow lest we fall prey to evil forces which chain and enslave.

One of the riches of American life is the vast reservoir of leadership in the people. But leaders are not found like queen bees. Neither does heredity produce them and certainly bureaucracy does not. It is our educational system rooted in the whole people upon which we must depend for our leadership.

Class Notes About Colby Men And Women

Class of 1882

Fred Fletcher lives in Berkeley, Cal., with his daughter. He also has two sons. Fred was formerly a mining man in Nevada.

Class of 1886

Best wishes to Julia Winslow who celebrated her 90th birthday March 7. Last May she suffered a broken hip but now she is walking without a cane or crutch and says she expects to be running around with the rest of us when spring comes. She is an insatiable reader and keeps up with the best of new books.

Class of 1888

Henry Prince was 86 Feb. 26. He enjoys television and radio and still reads the daily papers and Reader's Digest though weak eyesight curtails his general reading.

Class of 1889

Everett Farnham is in his 46th year as a district representative in St. Joseph, Mo., for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company. He founded (in 1921) the City Club in St. Joseph and has served three times as its president.

Class of 1891

Alvah H. Chipman wrote a nice note to Ambrose Warren at the turn of the year from his home at Hampton Station, New Brunswick. He said, "I like the way Colby gives attention to the Old Timers."

Class of 1893

Helen Beede Breneman tells us from Wyomissing, Penn., that she is a housewife, "but," she adds, "I suppose I am now even retired from that."

Class of 1894

Clara P. Morrill has been honored by one of her former pupils with the establishment of two English prizes in her name at Coburn Classical Institute.

Class of 1895

William Waters, a retired lawyer, is living in Banning, Cal. . . . Dr. Archer Jordan is limiting his practice of dentistry to orthodontia. All four of Archer's sons attended Colby.

Class of 1898

Everett Treworgy celebrated his 79th birthday last November. He writes from Ellsworth, "My interests are chiefly baseball, religion and poetry. And who isn't interested in world problems?"

Class of 1899

Dr. Henry Hoit, a retired lung and heart specialist, is living in Pasadena, Cal.

Class of 1900

Mary Philbrook Dunning makes her home in Wollaston, Mass. Her grandfather, Dr. Joseph Ricker, founded Ricker Classical Institute.

Class of 1901

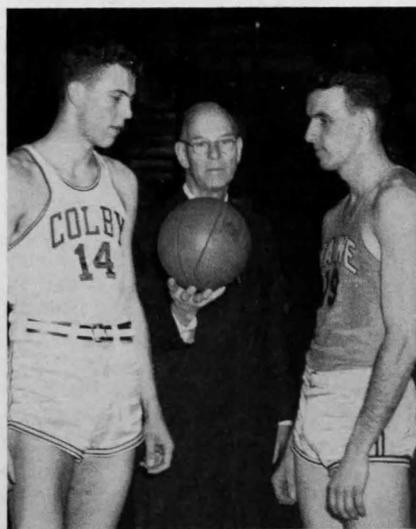

Edgar Putnam wrote in February that he expected to take a southern trip, though at that time he had not made up his mind on the destination.

Class of 1902

Martin Long is an attorney in Jacksonville, Fla.

Class of 1903

Walter Glover is an accountant with a hardware concern in Santa Barbara, Cal. . . . Caleb Lewis, Waterville Sentinel general manager, proudly sports a 28-year Kiwanis club pin for perfect dinner-meeting attendance over that long span of years.

ANNIVERSARY — 1952 marked the 50th anniversary of college basketball in the state. The first game was played February 1, 1902 in Orono between Maine and Colby. Hersey Keene, '05, was a member of that team and tossed up the first ball January 16 at the Colby-Maine game which started the second half century of Maine collegiate basketball. At left, Ted Lallier, Colby. At right, Bob Churchill, Maine.

Class of 1904

Emma Clough Peterson is spending the winter in Sacramento, Cal. with her son. . . . Ruby Carver Emerson was a member of the executive board of the Boston Branch of the Association of University Women for several years and has been active in the Grange and the Order of the Eastern Star.

Carl R. Bryant
Walpole St., Dover, Mass.

Class of 1905

John Kitchen is a county agricultural committee inspector in San Francisco. . . . Glenn Starkey's address is 76 Rackleff St., Portland.

Cecil W. Clark
363 Walnut St., Newtonville, Mass.

Class of 1906

Anna Boynton has been doing a fine job as a class agent from her home in Camden. Her years of service as a secretary at the Knox Woolen company started in 1916.

Karl R. Kennison
28 Byfield Road, Waban, Mass.

Class of 1907

Lubelle Hall Hodgman represented Colby at the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Graham-Eckes school, Palm Beach.

Class of 1908

Charles Flood, for twenty-seven years, has been in locksmith and safe work, living in Long Beach, Cal. . . . Ross McCombe is an attorney in Jersey City.

Class of 1909

Since her retirement from teaching, Helene Bellatty has been matron of the Home for Aged Men in Bangor.

Maudie Eaton Wadleigh
39 Circuit Ave., Worcester 3, Mass.

Class of 1910

Merle Crowell writes, "I have just returned from a trip to the Caribbean, with a week in Caracas. But that isn't news. I recently had a third grandchild. But grandchildren are a dime a dozen in the Colby fold. Otherwise, things are much as usual." . . . Leona Achorn Gillis says she sees Ralph Good once in a while. Leona, who lives in Milo, retired six years ago after 30 years of teaching. Last June she was elected president of the Garden Club Federation of Maine. When I heard from her late in February she was planning to go south for a month. . . . Many thanks to all who have written. More news next issue.

The Reverend John M. Maxwell
R.F.D. #3, Oncontia, New York

REPORT

A well-prepared, comprehensive and attractively printed report on college finances has been issued by Arthur W. Seepe, college treasurer. Alumni desiring a copy are invited to contact Mr. Seepe.

"My avocation continues to be the 'great books discussion groups' I've been doing ever since 1947 (including one year of Saturday mornings in a New York state penitentiary with 20 of the most delightful characters I ever hope to know). I had a group underway here two weeks after arriving and, in addition to two groups here this fall, am doing some training of discussion leaders in Oklahoma City for the University of Chicago. "Life is wonderful — and it's going to be better when I can make the Waterville swing once again."

MAINE REPRESENTATIVE

IN MEMORIAM

1889 Henry Barnes Woods, 85, died February 27 in Calais, Maine after an illness of two months resulting from a broken hip.

Mr. Woods, a retired minister, was born in Calais, the son of William and Mary Porter Woods, in the same house where he resided at the time of his death.

He followed his Colby studies with graduate work at Newton Theological Institute and Hartford Theological Seminary.

He was pastor to several churches, including those in Rockport (his first pastorate), Caribou, Dexter, Pembroke and Oakfield, Maine; North Stratford, New Hampshire; Laredo and Appleby, Texas. In 1931 Mr. Woods returned to Calais and engaged in civic activities and supply preaching.

Wherever he went the Reverend Woods acquired the reputation of being constantly interested in bettering his community.

In Laredo he organized the Associated Charities, which is still functioning, and a Baptist Mission school for the Spanish population of the city.

In Calais, during the early 1930's, he served on the city welfare board, and at the outbreak of World War II assumed chairmanship of Eastern Washington County chapter of the Red Cross, where he rendered outstanding service.

Among the members of the ministry officiating at the Reverend Woods' services was the Reverend Raymond J. Bates, '22, pastor of the Second Baptist church, Calais.

He is survived by two sons, Gorham, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, and Henry Jr., Houston, Texas; and a daughter, Mary Elizabeth, Bangor; several grand-daughters and great grand-daughters.

1894 Grace Emery Ware, 80, died in Waterville February 28 following a long illness.

She was born in New York, the daughter of Albert P. and Mary Albertson Emery. Mrs. Ware attended public schools in Waterville and graduated from Coburn Classical Institute prior to entering Colby.

Her son, Roland, '21, Rockland, and four grandchildren, Roland Jr., John, Mary, and Anna, all of Rockland, survive.

1896 Cavo Leah Hoxie, 77, died at a Portland hospital after a brief illness, February 12.

Miss Hoxie had taught at Deering high school in Portland from 1908 until her retirement in 1939. Previously she was a teacher for eight and one-half years in Waterville and four years in Calais.

She received both her A.M. and A.B. degrees from Colby following her graduation from Skowhegan high school.

The daughter of Abner and Oreanna Deering Hoxie, Miss Hoxie was born in Fairfield, Maine. She was a member of the Clark Memorial Methodist church and the Women's Literary Union.

Surviving are a brother, Raymond A. Hoxie, Attleboro, Massachusetts, and several cousins.

1898 Mrs. Annie Pepper Varney, 76, died January 12 at Newton-Wellesley hospital, Newton, Massachusetts.

Mrs. Varney was born in Upland, Pennsylvania, but spent her early years in Waterville where she prepared for Colby at the local high school.

She was married to Everett Wilmot Varney, a patent attorney for the United Shoe Machinery corporation, and was widely known for her lectures and writings.

She was active in the organization and direction of the Newton dramatic club which presented plays in Newton Center and Boston and was a member of the Newton Center garden club.

In 1950 she published a novel, Annie of Grassie Lea, which concerned her mother.

Pepper Hall, a men's dormitory on the new campus, is named in memory of her father, George Dana Boardman Pepper, the ninth president of Colby.

One who knew Mrs. Varney has written, "Hers was a unique and unforgettable personality — sensitive, witty, outgoing, warm-hearted, artistic in many fields, with a great capacity for enjoying experiences and people to the full and always eager to share her joys and enthusiasms with others."

Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Frances Varney Marshall, Weston, Massachusetts, and Mrs. Narcissa Peace Willard, South Portland, Maine; and a sister, Mrs. Jessie Pepper Padelford, '96, Seattle, Washington.

She was a member of Sigma Kappa.

1902 Roy Adelbert Kane, 75, died December 29 at his home in South Portland, Maine.

He was born in Brookline, Massachusetts, son of Adelbert and Emma Nutter Kane, and took his preparatory school work at Hebron academy.

Mr. Kane taught at the Horace Mann school, New York City; at Haverhill, Massachusetts; and for several years, was a cottage master at the State School for Boys, South Portland. He did graduate work at Teachers College, Columbia university, New York. For some years he was on the editorial staff of Doubleday, Page and company.

He was a member of the AF & AM in Brookline, and of Phi Delta Theta.

His wife, the former Mabel Richardson of Bridgton, Maine, died 28 years ago.

Mr. Kane leaves three sons, Kenneth, Arlington, Massachusetts; Roland, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Roy, Jr., New York City; a daughter, Mrs. William Carroll, Old Greenwich, Conn., and six grandchildren.

1903 Mrs. Josephine Berry Harlow, 72, died at her home in Old Town, Maine, January 7 after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Harlow was born in Woodfords, Maine, the daughter of Dr. Wilbur and Lavonia French Berry.

She prepared for Colby at Kents Hill and studied music in New York City.

She went to Old Town in 1902 as a teacher of music in the public schools.

A Matter of Will Power

Colby is the stronger today for the support it has received from alumni and friends. Many who have wanted to commit their resources to the establishment of influences which are everlasting have named Colby College their beneficiary.

THE MEMORY of Professor William J. Wilkinson is honored and recorded for future generations with a $2,000 bequest from his estate.

Dr. Wilkinson, who headed the department of history and government from 1924 until his retirement in 1949, stipulated that the income be used for an annual prize in history.

The award will be made to that junior majoring in history who, in the judgement of the department, combines the following qualifications: especial interest in modern European history; high average in history and government courses; personal integrity; and ability to reason critically and independently.

The terms of the prize are peculiarly appropriate. Those who had the privilege of learning under Wilkie and of knowing him realize that he himself was an outstanding example of these very qualities.

She leaves two sons, Frank, Orono, Maine; Freeland, Minneapolis, Minnesota; one daughter, Mrs. Hope Moody, '39, Mt. Holly, New Jersey; three sisters, Mrs. John Manter, '04, Vassalboro, Maine, Mrs. Howard Newton, '04, Storrs, Connecticut, Mrs. Robert Delahanty, '10, East Brewster, Massachusetts; one brother, Wilbur Berry, '16, Narragansett, Rhode Island; six grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

1904 Minerva Goodale Stephens, 73, died January 28 at her home in Fitchburg, Massachusetts.

Mrs. Stephens was born in Clinton, Maine where she attended schools prior to entering Coburn Classical Institute and Colby.

For many years she taught in Maine public schools.

Mrs. Stephens moved to Fitchburg eight and a half years ago, accepting a position as inspector at the Foster Grant company, Leominster.

She leaves two sons, Theodore, Benton, and Nelson, Fitchburg; a brother, Laverne, Clinton; a sister, Mrs. Zella Thayer, Benton; ten grandchildren and three great grandchildren. She was the widow of Theodore C. Stephens.

1905 Clarence Nathaniel Flood, 72, died in Bath, Maine January 7.

A former superintendent of schools in Bath, Saugus and Braintree, Massachusetts, he was in education for many years before turning to antiques.

He taught in Hebron grade schools and Sedgwick high school and was principal of Winslow high school before becoming superintendent of the Winslow-Benton district. He went to Bath in 1913.

Born in South Paris, Maine, March 3, 1880, Mr. Flood was graduated from Hebron academy, and during his undergraduate days at Colby worked for the Waterville Sentinel.

For two summers, 1908 and 1912, he studied at the Harvard Summer school.

From 1921 to 1936 he was a representative for the MacMillan Book company of Boston.

Mr. Flood was a Mason; a deacon in the Baptist church; and a member of Phi Delta Theta.

During the later years of his life he developed a wide reputation as an appraiser and dealer in antiques.

He leaves his widow, Maude, and a brother, Charles, '08, Puente, California.

1906 Alice Rebecca Tilley, 72, died November 19 in the Gardiner (Maine) general hospital.

She was born in Fairfield, Maine, the daughter of the Reverend Charles and Lydia Rathbun Tilley, attending public schools in Lewiston, Maine, Bridgton, New Jersey, and Hyde Park, Massachusetts prior to entering Colby.

Her grandfather, the Reverend William Tilley, graduated from Colby in 1846. Her father was in the class of 1876.

Throughout her lifetime Miss Tilley was interested in church work and participated in the affairs of the churches of which her father was pastor.

When he became minister of the Baptist church in Jefferson (Maine) during World War I, she accompanied her parents to Jefferson and lived there the remainder of her life.

She is survived by her brother, Frank W. Tilley, Washington, D. C.

1908 John Francis Casey, 66, died suddenly March 5 at his home in Allston, Massachusetts.

Dr. Casey, a pioneer in the use of sulfa drugs, was formerly chief of medical service at St. Elizabeth's hospital (Boston).

A native of Groton, Connecticut, his parents were Thomas and Julia Scully Casey. He took his preparatory school work at Bulkley school in New London, Connecticut and studied for the medicine at Columbia university.

He was past president of the Middlesex South Medical society and St. Luke's Guild; a counselor of the Massachusetts Medical society; a member of the American Medical association; the Catholic Alumni sodality and the Charitable Irish society.

In 1940 he was awarded a gold medal by the Mississippi Valley Medical society for his achievements with sulfa drugs.

Dr. Casey leaves his wife, the former Elizabeth Mary McDermott: five sons, John Jr., Boston; Thomas, Tuckahoe, New York; Edward, Westwood, Massachusetts; William, Allston; George, on duty in Korea; and two daughters, Mary and Elizabeth of Allston.

He was a member of Zeta Psi.

1910 Dr. Nathan Henry Garrick, 66, died at his home in Boston, Massachusetts, January 2.

Dr. Garrick, neurologist and psychiatrist, was a native of Dorchester, Massachusetts, attended Tilton school and took his medical work at Boston university.

He was instructor in diseases of the nervous system at the medical school from 1919 and had been professor of neurology since 1932.

He was chief of the neurological service at the Massachusetts memorial hospitals and held a certificate from the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology. He was a member of the American Medical association, the Massachusetts Medical society, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Masonic organizations.

A year ago, Dr. Garrick presented several valuable volumes to the Colby library, including rare first editions.

He leaves his widow, the former Rose Devaney; a son, Nathan Jr.; and a granddaughter, Patience.

1910 Charles Henry Swan, 68, died in Wakefield, Massachusetts early in January.

Born in Harvey, New Brunswick, the son of James and Elizabeth Coburn Swan, he took his elementary and preparatory school training in the Princeton schools, at Castine Normal, and Coburn Classical Institute.

For several years he taught school in Maine and Massachusetts and for ten years served as superintendent of schools in Princeton prior to being transferred to the Lincoln (Maine) district where he served as superintendent for two decades, retiring in 1945.

Mr. Swan was a pioneer in the consolidation of schools, a movement that is now recognized by educators as a progressive step.

Surviving are his wife, the former Hannah Ida Thomas, Wakefield; a sister, Mrs. Etta Larner, Geneva, New York; a brother, Guy, Princeton; and several nieces and nephews.

He was a member of Delta Upsilon, a Mason, and a life member of Aleppo Temple of Boston.

1911 Mrs. Mary Ingram Quinn, 63, died suddenly August 27 in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mrs. Quinn was born in Winchester, Massachusetts and was married to Elton L. Quinn in Brockton, Massachusetts August 4, 1914.

She is survived by her husband, who is professor of chemistry at the University of Utah, and two daughters, Mrs. Barbara Quinn Aamodt, Los Alamos, New Mexico and Mrs. Virginia Quinn Berry, Redlands, California.

1914 Seth Francis Harrison Howes, 60, died February 1 in Worcester, Massachusetts after a brief illness. He was director of mental institutions in Rhode Island.

Born in Southboro, Massachusetts, the son of Seth and Catherine Lavelle, he was educated at Peters high school, Southboro, Colby and Harvard Medical school from which he graduated in 1918.

After serving in World War I in the medical reserve, he interned at the Boston Infants hospital, the Boston City hospital and the Worcester City hospital.

He then became house surgeon at the Hillcrest hospital in Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Thereafter, his interest was confined to psychiatry. His career in this branch of medicine began when he served for a year as assistant physician at the State hospital, St. Peter, Minnesota.

Dr. Howes returned to Massachusetts in 1922 as senior assistant physician at the Medfield State hospital, Harding, Massachusetts. In 1928 he was appointed senior physician at the Rhode Island State hospital for Mental Diseases. He was appointed assistant superintendent of the institution in 1930, and in 1936 he was named superintendent of the Rhode Island State Infirmary.

Less than two months afterwards came his appointment as superintendent of the State hospital for Mental Diseases, a position he held until 1939.

From 1939 to 1942 he was assistant superintendent at the State hospital in Concord, New Hampshire, and from 1942 to 1944 was superintendent of the State hospital in Phoenix, Arizona. In addition, he served two years, from 1946 to 1950, as psychiatrist for the United States veteran's administration.

During the second World War he was a lieutenant commander in the Navy.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth Bullard Howes; three daughters, Ruth, '43, wife of James Mistark, Worcester, Massachusetts; Katherine, '44, wife of Wendell Brooks, '42, Franklin, Massachusetts; Constance, '48, a nurse at the Children's Medical Center, Boston; two grand-daughters, Katherine and Wendie Brooks; and a grandson, James Seth Mistark.

He was a member of Delta Upsilon.

1914 Fred William Rowell, 61, died February 22 at the Central Maine General hospital, Lewiston.

He had been director of the Maine Division of Veterans Affairs since 1947.

A resident of Norway, Mr. Rowell in 1943 became the first head of the State Service Bureau of Maine Health and Welfare department, an office created by Governor Sumner Sewall.

When the state service work was transferred from the department, a separate Veterans Affairs division was created, headed by Mr. Rowell. Governor Frederick Payne and his Council reappointed him last August.

Born in South Thomaston, the son of Mark ('85) and Alice Snow Rowell, he graduated from Rockland high school and the Seattle (Washington) Business college. He attended Colby from 1910-12.

He leaves his widow, the former Iva A. Russell; his mother, and four sisters, Miss Lillian Rowell, South Thomaston, Mrs. Edna Radcliffe, South Thomaston, Mrs. Grace Carr, Rockland, and Mrs. Eva Post, Spruce Head.

1920 Lewis Silsby Crosby, 58, died suddenly March 13 in Danvers, Massachusetts where he went twenty-eight years ago to teach mathematics. He had been assistant principal at the high school during the past decade.

Mr. Crosby was born in Aurora, Maine, the son of Howard and Myra Treadwill Crosby. He prepared for college at Maine Central Institute, laboring in lumber camps to earn money for his education.

He worked his way through Colby and recently recalled that he had paid for his way by taking care of North college, cutting hair, and pressing clothes in his room.

An excellent athlete, he enlisted in the Air Force following the 1917 football season, serving overseas for two years as an aerial gunner. He returned to college shortly after the Armistice.

Mr. Crosby once described his greatest disappointment as the time "when I was forced to give up football after the Harvard game in 1919 because of poor health resulting from the war."

For a year following his graduation from Colby he was a teacher-coach at Edward Little high school, Auburn. From 1922-23 he had a similar assignment at Rockland (Maine) high school. In 1923 he went to Danvers.

At the time of his passing, sportswriter John Lemire, Jr., in the Danvers Herald wrote, "His beaming smile, spontaneous cooperation in always lending a hand or word of advice to help others, his unapproachable character, and exemplary conduct of self, responsibilities, and duties, endeared him to students, athletes and adults alike who had the privilege of meeting him."

"And if all this were not enough he took it upon himself to make possible entry into college for several less fortunate youths and possessed the faculty many of us envy and fruitlessly strive for—that of talking no evil of anyone. It can be here verily stated that Lewis S. Crosby had no known enemies, which factor very few of us can claim."

He leaves his widow, Dorothy Wessell Crosby, Danvers, and a daughter, Sally Ann.

Mr. Crosby was a member of Zeta Psi.

1926 Miss Margaret Coralie Hardy, 46, died October 17 at the home of her sister in Chelmsford, Massachusetts.

She was born in Boston where her father held a Baptist pastorate and graduated from Sanford (Maine) high school, Colby, and the Miss Pierce secretarial school.

Miss Hardy was formerly executive research secretary for the Ophthalmological Foundation, New York City. She was employed as a medical secretary by many prominent physicians, both in Boston and New York.

She is survived by her parents, the Reverend and Mrs. Irad B. Hardy, Waltham, Massachusetts; a sister, Mrs. Bradford S. Boothby, '28, Chelmsford; and a brother, Dr. Irad Hardy, Jr., Waltham.

1930 Samuel Steven Morrison, 47, died December 13 in New York City after several months illness.

A graduate of St. John's University Law School, 1935, he was admitted to the New York State Bar in May 1936.

Mr. Morrison was an attorney and insurance broker in New York City.

He made his home in Queens, Long Island.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Faith Sylvester Morrison, and an eleven year old daughter, Roberta.

1942 Charles Beecher DeLong, 30, died in his home December 15 at Presque Isle, Maine.

He was born in Presque Isle, the son of Charles and Edna Rediker DeLong, and had lived in the town, where he attended high school, throughout his life.

He had been associated with his father for several years in the automobile business, and had just completed his first year as a member of the city council.

Mr. DeLong was a member of the Congregational church; of the Trinity Lodge, F. and A.M.; a charter member of the Kiwanis club and a charter member of the Live-wire club of the Chamber of Commerce.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Boone DeLong; four children, Charles, Lisbeth, Daniel, and Peter; and three sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Sweetser, and Miss Sadie DeLong, both of Presque Isle, and Mrs. Charlene Caulk, of Sacramento, California.

1945 (Hon.) Dr. Julius Gottlieb, 56, died February 17, at his home in Lewiston, Maine. He was head pathologist at the Central Maine General hospital for twenty-one years until his retirement four years ago and had been secretary of the Central Maine Bingham committee since 1936.

He organized, at the Central Maine General hospital, the first school of medical technology in Maine; was non-resident director of the School of Medical Technology at Colby from 1941 to 1951; a faculty member of Tufts Graduate Medical school; an instructor in pathology and bacteriology at Boston University School of Medicine; and had been assistant medical attorney general for Maine. He was given an honorary Doctor of Science degree by Colby.

From 1927 to 1948 he was consulting pathologist, in his position with the Bingham Associates, for fourteen Maine hospitals.

Besides his widow, the former Jeanette Miller of Providence, Rhode Island, he is survived by his mother, a resident of Newark, New Jersey; three sons, Dr. Leonard Gottlieb, Boston, and Burton and Paul, Lewiston; and a sister, Mrs. Ida Baer, Newark, New Jersey.
