THE STORY OF COMMENCEMENT

By Herbert Carlyle Libby

AS "Eighty-Odd" would say in his own peculiar diction: "It was a right good bang-up Commencement." And it was all of that. The weather was excellent, the events went off as scheduled, the number of graduates back for reunions and from habit was large, and the spirit of the week was in every sense delightful. The general topic of conversation seemed to be that of moving the College, but a new note seemed to be struck this year which added to the joy of the occasion: a clear note of assurance that within a very few years class reunions will be held on Mayflower Hill. No graduate could talk with President Johnson for the fraction of a minute and not share his enthusiasm about the moving. He is as confident of it as man can be confident of any human undertaking.

There was just one saddening circumstance connected with the festivities: the awarding of a posthumous degree to John Hays Hammond. It was Mr. Hammond's intention to be present on Commencement Day, to accept from the hands of the President an honorary degree, and to be the principal speaker at the annual Dinner. But all this was not to be. A day or two before the graduates began assembling on the campus, death suddenly claimed the great engineer—the man whose career reads like a novel,—friend of Presidents and Old World rulers, adviser of Cecil Rhodes, and an amazing example of singleness of purpose and the spirit of adventure.

In the midst of the week's activities I was commissioned to tell the Story of Commencement. For years I had so commissioned "Eighty-Odd": it was my turn at last. Had time permitted I would have turned yet again to this prized contributor to the Alumnus, for I have yet faith to believe he is again ready to send in some of his sage comments.

But I turned to others of the graduate body and their stories will appear at the proper point chronologically. I was especially anxious to have George Otis Smith, chairman of the Board of Trustees, or Charles E.

Gurney, the secretary, tell us a bit of what went on behind the closed doors in Chemical Hall, but neither has found it possible to furnish what was needed. Gossip has it that the meetings were productive of much good: that all was harmonious, that the year ended well financially, that the teaching staff is to be increased, that a start has been made toward gathering in the funds for the erection of the new campus buildings, and that, generally speaking, the college was never in better condition.

As the trustees held their first meeting on Friday morning, we are beginning right, chronologically. In the afternoon came the College Play, first begun in Centennial Days,—with a fine cast and a large audience. This was for townspeople chiefly, and repeated on Saturday afternoon for returning graduates. The College Play has come to be a fixture in Commencement programs for it furnishes opportunity for groups to meet in delightful comradeship.

Friday evening came dinners for graduate organizations, all to be told about in subsequent paragraphs. The annual President's Reception and the Commencement Dance were held later in the evening in the Alumnae Building. As in other years, the reception was largely attended. It is an occasion when trustees, college teachers, graduates, and citizens renew acquaintanceships as this and no other assemblage permits. President and Mrs. Johnson were assisted in receiving by Chairman Smith, Dean and Mrs. Marriner, Dean Runnals, Dr. Frederick T. Hill, head of the Alumni organization, and Mrs. Hill, and Mira L. Dolley, who heads the Alumnae organization.

Saturday morning came the Senior Class Day Exercises. With the exception of the awarding of honors in athletics, there was no innovation in the exercises. The Oration, Parting Address, Poem, Awarding of Honors, and the address by the class Guest of Honor, Professor Wilkinson, comprised the morning program. The large number of graduates attending the exercises entered into the spirit of the very informal meeting and relived the days when they, too, spoke their pieces and sang their odes.

Now let me incorporate what others have contributed. First of all, let the women tell of their gatherings. The Alumnae Council and Class Agents' meetings are fast coming to be important in the life of the College, and the Alumnae Secretary, Ervena G. Smith, '24, submits the following:

"Alumnae Class Agents, Alumnae Trustees, and Alumnae Council Members met at Fort Halifax Inn, June 12, at six o'clock. After an excellent chicken pie dinner and jubilant renewal of old friendships, the year's work of the agents was presented in short reports from the following: Annie Richardson Barnes, '94, Mary Bragg Weston, '01, Anna M. Boynton, '06, Rose Carver Tilley, '11, Grace Warren Atchley, '03, Ethel Merriam Weeks, '14.

"The general feeling in the reports was that alumnae response had increased this year and that the gifts had been larger. Suggestions for ways of arousing interest among the alumnae were discussed. Nan Burgess Lumsden, '22, telegraphed her greetings and regrets that she could not be present. Forty-five other class agents had sent their regrets to the Alumnae Secretary. Many of these agents are engaged in educational work and graduations were being held simultaneously with the Colby Commencement.

MATHER ORATOR AT COMMENCEMENT

D^{R.} Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard, who delivered the Commencement address, is chairman of the department of geology of Cambridge and has become widely known for his lectures and writings on the relation between science and religion, especially his books "Science in Search of God," and "Sons of the Earth." He was one of the most active opponents of the teachers' oath bill in Massachusetts.

"A vote was taken that all resigning class agents should appoint an agent to replace themselves.

"At the Alumnæ Council in April the suggestion was approved that all class agents should be asked to become consulting members of the Alumnæ Council for the next year and to sit in all meetings possible. Because of this vote the annual Council Meeting was held with the Agent meeting at Fort Halifax.

"The following members of the Council were present: Mira L. Dolley, '19, President; R. Adelle Gilpatrick, '92; Merce F. Morse, '13; Ninetta M. Runnals, '08; Jane C. Belcher, '32; Helen Springfield Strong, '24; Doris W. Hardy, '25; Grace Wells Thompson, '15; Florence King Gould, '08; Mary E. Warren, '23; Ervena Goodale Smith, '24.

"The Recording Secretary reported: there have been five meetings of the Council during the year.

"The Council nominated the following three alumnæ as candidates for alumnæ trustee-ship, to be presented to the Alumnæ Association: Clio M. Chilcott, '95; Mira L. Dolley, '19; Dorothy M. Crawford, '22. These three candidates accepted the nomination. Two hundred and eighty-five votes were cast by the general association. Clio M. Chilcott, '95, was elected.

"The following vote is recorded, 'That $500.00 of the Alumnæ Fund of 1935 be added to $800.00 of the Association's Funds and that this $1,300.00 be turned over to the Investment Committee of Colby College to be invested as a trust fund for some specific purpose on Mayflower Hill, said purpose to be determined by the Alumnæ Council.'

"An Alumnæ Fund Committee was selected by the Alumnæ Secretary to work with her in the launching and regulation of the Fund Campaign. The members of this committee are: R. Adelle Gilpatrick, '92; Helen Thomas Foster, '14; Evelyn R. Stapleton, '33.

"It was voted that a member of the senior class be elected to membership on the Alumnæ Council.

"A committee was given authority to recommend revisions in the constitution which would provide a method of council representation

The Mary L. Carver 1936 Prize Poem

lilac tree
That buds while snow's still drifted in the yard
We spread our soft ideas and brave a hard
March blast, in scorn of June's maturity.
As transient as the shadow of a cloud,
March-tossed above the distant gray-blue hills,
Our youth's sad spring-time
laughter gaily spills
And hopes to gain long life for being loud.

We stand alone with laughter and with youth,
Told our brave hopes will fade, but not told why,
And only dimly guessing
all the bars
That life will raise to fence us off from truth.
Like elms in March against a twilight sky,
Our leaflessness at least shuts out no stars.

from the alumnæ of joint alumni and alumnæ groups.

"The Alumnæ Council voted to accept the proposal of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Council in regard to the Alumnus, viz; an editorial board will be selected to consist of the following members: the two executive secretaries, two ex-editors, Dr. Libby and Harland Ratcliffe, the President of the Alumni Council, the Publicity Director of Colby College, two alumnæ representatives to be selected by the Alumnæ Council and two Alumni representatives to be selected by the Executive Committee of the Alumni Council.

"Mrs. Grace Wells Thompson, '15, and Miss Mira L. Dolley, '19, were elected by the Alumnæ Council to this board.

"The Alumnæ Secretary, Ervena Goodale Smith, '24, reported to the Council the result of the Alumnus Board meeting on June 12, in the Elmwood Hotel. All members of that board were present except Mr. Ratcliffe. After lengthy deliberation, Oliver L. Hall, '93, was voted the executive chairman of the board to regulate all further meetings of this board and to be responsible for the first issue of the Alumnus in 1936-37.

"The meeting adjourned to the President's Reception in the Alumnæ Building."

Let me now give the men opportunity to be heard. G. Cecil Goddard, Alumni Secretary, has, at my request, sent the following full and accurate report of meetings of the Council, Dinner, Class Agents' Breakfast, and Alumni Council meeting. Graduates who want to keep well informed of the important part these organizations are playing in the life of the College should read this report carefully:

Trustees' and Council Dinner

"Following the custom of the past few years, Trustees and Council members had dinner together at the Elmwood on Friday night and heard President Johnson tell of the progress of the Mayflower Hill project. Mr. J. Frederick Larson, American college architect and architect of the plans and buildings for the new campus, discussed with this group the Student Union, which is proposed as a memorial to the late President Roberts.

Class Agents' Breakfast

"On Saturday morning at eight o'clock twenty-five Class Agents gathered at the Delta Kappa Epsilon House for their fifth annual breakfast and to hear Charles F. T. Seaverns, '01, of Hartford, Conn., give his preliminary report on the 1936 Alumni Fund. Mr. Seaverns, who has been more responsible than any other Colby man for the inauguration of the Fund idea at Colby to stimulate alumni to form the habit of remembering the College each year, will retire as Chairman of the Fund Committee at the close of the present campaign on July 1st. He expressed his appreciation of the Agents' interest, enthusiasm and cooperation during his Chairmanship. Comparing the record made this year with the 1935 Fund, he stated that the Alumni Fund was but slightly ahead of last year in the amount and behind in the number of contributors. Five hundred sixty men had contributed $4,469.71. There are 111 new contributors, but 288 of the former contributors had not responded. The Committee had high hopes at the beginning of the campaign that both the number of contributors and the total amount would exceed the 1935 record. Some facts that are not apparent indicate progress, but perhaps only in one direction. The majority of the old contributors who have responded again this year have increased their contributions.

"It is evident that the biggest problem facing the Fund Committee is to educate the alumni to the fact that it is more important to give something each year than to respond once in five years or every other year.

"Through the generosity of an alumnus, twenty-five dollars was offered in prizes for the three best Class Agent letters in the opinion of the Fund Committee. First prize of $12.50 went to George C. West, '28; second and third prizes of $7.50 and $5.00 to Edward F. Stevens, '89, and Lester C. Young, '17, respectively. The prize-winning Agents endorsed their checks to the Fund as contributions from their classes.

"After Mr. Seaverns' report the Agents discussed for nearly an hour problems of the annual Fund campaign and the methods of approach. The oldest Agent present was Clarence E. Meleney, '76, retired associate superintendent of schools of New York City. Mr. Meleney and C. H. Hallowell, the only other living graduate of the class, were both on the campus for the sixtieth reunion of their class. Robie Frye, '82, was applauded for obtaining contributions from the twelve graduates and two non-graduates in his class, and Cyril M. Joly, '16, for having the largest number of contributors at the time of the Breakfast.

Alumni Council Meeting

"Punctilious Chairman Hill was impatiently tapping his desk in the English Room, Chemical Hall, when six members of the Council and the Secretary, who had been at the Class Agents' Breakfast, arrived three-quarters of an hour late for the annual meeting. The Council went immediately to work.

"Members-at-large present were Frederick T. Hill, John W. Brush, John B. Pugsley, Neil Leonard, George B. Barnes, Charles F. T. Seaverns, Frank B. Nichols; local association representatives: Raymond Spinney (Boston), Robert L. Jacobs (Penobscot Valley), Leo G. Shesong (Portland), Cyril M. Joly (Waterville), Theodore R. Hodgkins (Franklin County); and the ex-officio members G. Cecil Goddard, Executive Secretary; Ralph A. Macdonald, Treasurer; E. Richard Drummond, representative from the Athletic Council.

"The Secretary reported briefly on the matters of special business to be discussed at the meeting and Treasurer Ralph A. Macdonald presented the financial report of the Council.

"John W. Brush, Chairman of the Committee on Ballots, reported that 418 ballots had been cast, 69 more than last year, for Alumni Trustees and members of the Alumni and Athletic Councils. The new Alumni Trustees are James H. Hudson, '00, re-elected, and John E. Nelson, '98. The four new members of the Alumni Council are Charles F. T. Seaverns, '01, re-elected; Neil Leonard, '21, re-elected, Harland R. Ratcliffe, '23, re-elected; and Leonard W. Mayo, '22.

LINCOLN CLUB TO AWARD CUP

THE Lincoln County Colby Club has purchased a silver cup to be awarded to that Maine Preparatory School whose four or more ranking representatives at Colby have the highest average rank for a year. Any school, whose Colby students maintain a lead for three years will secure permanent possession of the cup.

The Lincoln County Club has about twenty members. Nelson W. Bailey, '28, is president; Mrs. Vivian Wright Dunn, '16, is secretary. The regular annual meeting was held May 18th.

The existence of the club is due to the efforts of Mr. Bailey, sub-principal of Lincoln Academy, Newcastle.

Dr. Theodore E. Hardy, '28, was elected alumni representative to the Athletic Council.

"Mr. Seaverns again reported on the Alumni Fund campaign and Chairman Hill, in the absence of A. G. Eustis, reported for the Committee on Living Conditions that the conditions were unchanged.

"Neil Leonard, temporary Chairman of the Bequest Committee, stated that the most hopeful sign for the success of the Council's program is the alacrity with which alumni have accepted the responsibility to disseminate information about the College and their willingness to give their services in assisting prospective benefactors to write Colby College into their wills.

"The Colby College bequest program was inaugurated by the Executive Committee of the Council last January. The Executive Committee appointed Neil Leonard Chairman and has asked alumni in the fields of law, trusts, insurance, and medicine to serve on the General Committee.

"Raymond Spinney, chairman of a special committee to prepare a resolution of regret on the resignation of Harland R. Ratcliffe, the Editor of the Alumnus, presented the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted.

"Whereas, at a special meeting of the Alumni Council of Colby College held at Boston, Massachusetts, on March 28, 1936, the resignation of Harland R. Ratcliffe as Editor of The Colby Alumnus, effective upon the publication of the July 1936 issue, was accepted,

"Be it Therefore Resolved: That the Alumni Council of Colby College hereby and herewith extend to Mr. Ratcliffe its keen appreciation of his endeavors to make the magazine a real link between the College and its graduates, that it commend him for the high standard of journalism maintained during his editorship, and that it tender to him its sincere regret that his services must thus be terminated.

Raymond Spinney,
John B. Pugsley,
William B. Jack.

"Chairman Hill reported that the Executive Committees of the Alumni and Alumnae Councils had met and appointed an editorial board consisting of Oliver L. Hall, '93, Herbert C. Libby, '02, Thaddeus Tilton, '20, Harland R. Ratcliffe, '23, Joseph C. Smith, '24, Grace Wells Thompson, '15, Mira L. Dolley, '19, and the

DEVEBER, TRACK STAR, WINS CONDON MEDAL

HERBERT W. DeVeber of Newburyport, Mass., Colby senior, was chosen to receive the Condon Medal as "best college citizen," by vote of the members of his class. The award was made at the Commencement exercises. Arne O. Lindberg, '36, Stockholm, was elected class marshal for the ceremonies connected with commencement.

DeVeber was president of the senior class and chairman of the Student Council. He was a star trackman, specializing in cross-country and the two mile run.

Alumni and Alumnae Secretaries. The Board held its organization meeting June 12th and discussed future editorial and financial policies for the alumni magazine. Oliver L. Hall was elected Chairman. The Board will meet later in the summer to select the Editor for the coming year.

"At the special meeting of the Alumni Council in Boston on March 28, 1936, President Johnson asked the Council to accept the responsibility of securing the funds necessary to build the Students' Union on Mayflower Hill and Chairman Hill appointed a committee consisting of Charles F. T. Seaverns, '01, Neil Leonard, '21, William B. Jack, '00, Harland R. Ratcliffe, '23, and Leslie F. Murch, '15, to consider the matter and report at the June meeting. Mr. Seaverns as Chairman of the Committee reported that the Committee had met informally with other Colby groups and were unanimously of the opinion that the loyalty and affection of Colby men for Arthur J. Roberts should be capitalized, and they recommended that the Council accept the responsibility of providing a Men's Student Union and that it be known as the Arthur J. Roberts Memorial. The Council voted unanimously to accept the report and to accept the responsibility for this unit on Mayflower Hill. The formulation of the definite program to raise funds for the Roberts Memorial and the Committee to have charge was left with the Executive Committee.

"The Council voted to recommend the centralization of prospective student matters in the office of the Dean and confirmed the action of the Executive Committee on April 30th appointing alumni representatives to interview prospective students to determine if the prospect would probably make a desirable Colby student and to ascertain his financial and scholastic abilities. The following men were appointed,

"Leo G. Shesong, '13, Portland; Nathaniel Tompkins, '05, Houlton; Elmer L. Williams, '22, Presque Isle; Ralph N. Smith, '17, Worcester; John E. Candelet, '27, Providence; Raymond E. Weymouth, '25, Bar Harbor; George A. Marsh, '01, Scarsdale, (N. Y.); Cecil W. Clark, '05, Boston; Raymond Spinney, '21, Boston; Paul M. Edmunds, '26, New York; Theodore R. Hodgkins, '25, Franklin County; J. Franklin Pineo, '14, Hartford; Fred B. Dunn, '15, Damariscotta.

"Frederick T. Hill was unanimously re-elected Chairman of the Council and John W. Brush, Vice Chairman. The Executive and Program Committees were re-elected. John W. Brush, Cyril M. Joly, and the Secretary were named as a committee on ballots and elections. Charles F. T. Seaverns was elected Chairman of the Bequest Committee and Neil Leonard was appointed Chairman of the Fund Committee, the other members being Cyril M. Joly, Harland R. Ratcliffe, Leslie F. Murch, and Theodore R. Hodgkins."

For a brief report of the annual Alumni Lunch, I have turned to Thaddeus F. Tilton, '20, a newspaper man of undergraduate and graduate experience, now on the staff of the Providence Journal and Bulletin:

"The tempo and mood of the 1936 Alumni Lunch would have delighted Arthur Jeremiah Roberts.

"The conciseness of addresses under Ted Hill's affable but business-like direction would have satisfied Rob's passion for decisive, incisive speech.

"The fervor displayed for the college, its ideals and its plans would have fanned the flame of his life-long devotion to Colby.

"President Johnson's optimistic determination that a new and greater college shall soon arise on a new campus would have inspired Rob's will, which never found an obstacle too difficult to tackle.

"Such an Alumni lunch was well-timed, for the name of Arthur Jeremiah Roberts received more than passing mention.

"Those who had no prior inkling of what had been determined, and many of us who knew, were somewhat awed when Cecil Goddard announced decision of the Alumni Council that the alumni as their contribution to the new campus would raise $350,000 for a social union to bear Rob's name.

"I don't know how others felt, but I carried away from the lunch an unshakeable conviction that this huge sum would come.

"I saw an alumnus near me write a $100 check almost before Cecil Goddard had finished his announcement, and I knew that other graduates would contribute, less spontaneously, perhaps, but just as generously and willingly.

"Then Isaac Higginbotham, '11, and Len Mayo, '22, gave vivid descriptions of what the college had meant to them and voiced fervid declarations of loyalty to its plans and ideals—two speeches these, that could have no effect other than stimulation of greater alumni loyalty (if that were needed).

"Finally, President Johnson with his inimitable enthusiasm outlined the progress of plans for the new campus. If men who never have lived on the old Colby campus could promise a great new library commemorating the name of Elijah Parish Lovejoy (as President Johnson announced they have done), it appeared certain that alumni would provide a memorial to Arthur Roberts.

"Further elaboration of what various speakers said is impossible beyond mention of one message from 'Len' Mayo.

"The college needs you,' he told the alumni, 'but how many of you ever stop to think that you still need the college?'

"One speaker—who really wasn't a speaker because he merely introduced himself and several classmates—not yet mentioned here was H. R. Dunham, of the 50 year class of 1886. When alumni receive their Commencement notices next year and wonder whether they can get back to Waterville, let them remember Dunham, '86, who came all the way from California in 1936."

And the chapter recounting the program at the Alumnae Lunch has been submitted, on request, by Clara Carter Weber, '21, Recording Secretary:

"Saturday noon was, as it always is, the high spot for alumnae, when one hundred and ninety-eight women met at the Alumnae Building for the luncheon. It was a 'bright cool day'—there was plenty of time—so everyone seemed to stay longer and with even keener interest than usual. Miss Partrick had planned a fine meal, Colby undergraduates served it efficiently, and the tables had been made lovely with flowers by Theora Doe, '30, Dorothy Blanchard, '31, and Methy Page, '31. At the special tables for the fifty-one seniors there was a dainty boutonniere at each place, the work of Myra Whittaker, '35. Everyone had a stylish-looking program with a glimpse of the Alumnae Building on the cover. These and many other details had been cared for by Ervena Goodale Smith, '24, who has brought to her post as Alumnae Secretary a love for Colby and a zest for work that are priceless.

"Myra L. Dolley, '19, retiring president, was toastmistress—as vivid a person as ever with the same bonny red hair and the same witty tongue. She introduced Dean Runnals first of all as 'one of those whom we love most'—a tribute that brought hearty and prolonged applause. Dean Runnals gave an interesting picture of the varied student activities that occupy Colby girls now, and also of the constant usefulness of the Alumnae Building.

"Mrs. Florence King Gould, '08, incoming president, welcomed the class of 1936 into membership in the Association. Edythe Silverman, of the seniors, made a charming and sincere response. Then came the representatives of the reunioning classes: 1881, Sophia H. Mace; 1886, Julia E. Winslow; 1891, Mary Morrill Ilsley; 1896, Ethel Farr Kimball; 1901, Grace Farrar Linscott; 1906, Anna M. Boynton; 1911, Rose Carver Tilley; 1916, Vivian Skinner Hill; 1921, Grace Johnson Grant; 1926, Girlandine I. Priest; 1931, Alice Linscott Roberts.

"After these loyal ones had spoken briefly, everyone rose in affectionate greeting to Miss Louise Helen Coburn, '77.

"When the 1936 Class Agent was introduced we discovered that it was Dorothy Gould, daughter of the new president; and then we thought of Grace Linscott, '01, and her daughter, Alice, of '31, who had just spoken to us. And we saw Hazel Breckenridge Mailey, '11, and her daughter, Ruth '36; and Mary Berry Manter, and her daughter, Eleanor, '36. And we were thrilled with the thought of the special joy and meaning this Commencement had for a few Colby families.

"At this point President Johnson came from the men's meeting to speak to us. He brought with him J. Frederick Larson, the architect, and E. Allan Lightner, who is assisting the President in the Mayflower Hill project. But he needed no assistance from them in painting a vivid picture of the New Colby, and the enthusiasm that pervades the alumni and alumnae for this step ahead. He suggested to the women that their dreams of the new college might take form in the shape of the Women's Union. It was a challenging thought—that we might have something definite to work for. It was a stimulating climax to a meeting where our loyalty had already bespoken our readiness to do all we can. With such a spirit on all sides we came away from the Alumnae Luncheon with Mayflower Hill nearer to us than ever before."

So much business of vital importance to the College was transacted at the business session of the Alumnae Association, that Recording Secretary Jane C. Belcher, '32, was asked to report it in detail. It follows:

"The annual meeting of the Colby Alumnae Association was called to order by the President, Mira L. Dolley, '19, at 11.00 A. M. in the Y. W. C. A. room in the Alumnae Building.

"Reports: Recording Secretary—voted to omit since the report is printed and sent to all alumnae.

"The Treasurer's report accepted as read. Excerpts show that $2,592.85 has been received as income from alumnae to date.

"Vivienne Wright Dunn, '16, reported as Necrologist, the following deaths: Ella K. Litchfield, '13; Paulenah M. Simmons, '04; Helen F. Lamb, '97; Grace M. Cummings, '92; Alice Pinkham Ballard, '05; Lora G.

GLAZIER GIVES BOOKS TO COLBY

COLBY alumni will be interested in the following quotation from a letter from Harold Glazier, 115 Broadway, New York City, who recently sent the college a gift of books, although as far as J. Periam Danton, Colby Librarian, could find out he had no previous connection with Colby:

I am an alumnus of Amherst College, but for personal reasons I take a deep and an abiding interest in Colby College, and in the future I trust I shall be able to send you some more interesting and historical books—and certainly no one wishes your library more success than I do.

Neal, '29. Silent tribute was given these Colby women.

"Alumnae Secretary's report read and accepted.

"R. Adelle Gilpatrick, chairman of the Alumnae Fund Committee reported: to date 371 contributors and $2,592.85. The goal was 700 contributors and $3,000.00. We are short 329 contributors and $407.15.

"Harriet M. Parmenter, '89, reported that $891.00 had come in to her for scholarship aid and that seven girls have been helped. Several girls have paid in full previous loans.

"President Dolley, '19, announced that, as a result of the election just held by the Alumnae Association, Clio M. Chilcott, '95, had been elected Alumnae Trustee for a term of three years. Long applause greeted this announcement.

"The following committees were appointed by the chair: Colby Night—Ervena Goodale Smith, '24; Cornelia Adair Cole, '28, Helen Springfield Strong, '24. Nominating Committee for Senior Council Member—Ninetta M. Runnals, '08; Ethel Merriam Weeks, '14; Alice M. Purinton, '99.

"The Alumnae Association constitution was amended to read: to permit an Alumnae Trustee to "serve not more than two consecutive terms" and in the case of re-election, no general election shall take place.

"A second amendment provided for election of an undergraduate to the Alumnae Council during the Senior year.

"Florence E. Dunn, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following slate of nominations for officers of the Alumnae Association and the Alumnae Council:

"President, Florence King Gould, '08, (Mrs. LeRoy), 36 Oxford Rd., Newton Centre, Mass.; First Vice President, Mary Caswell Carter, (Mrs. Mary), '04, 1 Center Place, Waterville, Maine; Second Vice President, Ellen M. Pillsbury, '11, 218 College Avenue, Waterville; Recording Secretary, Clara Carter Weber, (Mrs. Carl J.), '21, 42 Burleigh St., Waterville, Maine; Treasurer, Meroe F. Morse, '13, 19 Western Ave., Waterville, Me.; Necrologist, Vivienne Wright Dunn, '16, (Mrs. Fred B.), Damariscotta, Me.; Executive Secretary, Ervena Goodale Smith, '24, (Mrs. J. C.), 12 Park St., Waterville, Maine; Executive Committee, Mary Rollins Millett, '30, (Mrs. E. W.), 16 Dalton St., Waterville, Me.; Cornelia Adair Cole, '28, (Mrs. Lawrence), 3 Bowden St., Waterville, Maine; Mildred MacCarn Marden, '27, (Mrs. Wesley), 15 Harold St., Waterville, Maine; Scholarship Committee, Harriet M. Parmenter, '89, 9 Winter St., Waterville; Lucia H. Morrill, '93, 5 Winter St., Waterville, Maine; Ninetta M. Runnals, '08, Foss Hall, Waterville, Maine.

"The Alumnae Council is composed of the President, Vice Presidents, Recording Secretary and Executive Secretary and Treasurer of the general association plus Alumnae Trustees, Florence E. Dunn, '96, 4 Sheldon Place, Waterville, Me.; Sarah B. Young, '09, Wheaton College, Norton, Mass.; Helen D. Cole, '17, 45 Prospect Place, New York City; Clio M. Chilcott, '95, Ellsworth, Maine. Members-at-large: Harriet Eaton Rogers, '19, (Mrs. A. R.), 12 Hazelwood Ave., Waterville, Maine; Mary Abbott Stobie, '08, (Mrs. John), 51 Elm St., Waterville; Helen Springfield Strong, '24, (Mrs. Eugene) 5 Nash St., Waterville; Doris W. Hardy, '25, 30 Pleasant St., Waterville; Annie Choate Sweet, '22, 32 Western Ave., Waterville; one member to be elected by the council in the fall. yer St., South Portland, Me.; Connecticut Valley—Mildred Barton Flood, ex-'17, (Mrs. D. B.), 154 Long Hill St., Springfield, Mass; Waterville—Grace Wells Thompson, (Mrs. Arthur), 5 Hazelwood Ave., Waterville, Me.; Boston—Florence King Gould, '08, 36 Oxford Road, Newton Center, Mass.

"The new President, Florence King Gould, '08, took the chair and as there was no further business the meeting was adjourned.

Jane C. Belcher, '32,
Recording Secretary."

Space permits for but cursory accounts of the events of Sunday and Monday, and yet they proved important days in the college calendar. Sunday morning Newton C. Fetter, D. D., Minister to students for the Baptists of Greater Boston, delivered the baccalaureate address. It was thought-provoking,—a calm consideration of the claims made by society upon the youth of today. The services were held this year in the historic Baptist church and not in the city's opera house, and while the attendance may have been necessarily limited, there were many who expressed delight to have the services once more held in the church. President Johnson presided and was assisted by Rev. John W. Brush, '20, pastor of the church.

Sunday afternoon the President and Mrs. Johnson held open house and dispensed delightful hospitality. Later in the afternoon a picnic and band concert were held on Mayflower Hill, and so many took advantage of the opportunity to meet together on the new Colby site that the food gave out. It was altogether a worth-while gathering. Sunday evening the old Chapel was well filled on the occasion of the annual Boardman Sermon. Again President Johnson presided, Rev. Isaac Higginbotham, '11, read the Scripture, Dr. John E. Cummings, '84, offered prayer, and Professor Francis Howard Rose, '09, of the Central Philippine College, preached the sermon.

The events of Monday were much as usual—the procession of trustees, faculty, and graduating class; the opera house program when two of the undergraduates delivered thoughtful addresses on timely subjects, and Professor Kirtley Mather, of Harvard, gave the Commencement Address; then came the presentation of the diplomas to members of the graduating class—121 in all, the hooding of candidates for honorary degrees, and the announcement of prizes.

Seven honorary degrees were conferred, all richly deserved. Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Henry Wesley Dunn, '96, whose distinguished career in the law and more recently his professorship of finance at the Harvard School of Business Administration, entitle him to this honor from his alma mater. It was fitting, too, that a degree should be conferred upon Dr. Mather, whose attitude on the Massachusetts Teachers' Oath Bill, quite apart from his recognized worth as a geologist, has brought him national recognition. A doctor of science degree was conferred upon Dr. Frederick T. Hill, '10, who has risen high in the profession of medicine and whose wise leadership of the Alumni Council is generally acknowledged. A doctor of divinity degree was conferred upon Professor Rose, '09, who is regarded as an important force in Philippine educational circles. A Master's degree was conferred upon Roy M. Hayes, '18, who has long been the successful head of Ricker and Ricker Junior College. But of all the degrees conferred, none brought greater applause than that of the Master's degree conferred upon Job Herrick Montgomery of Camden. The citation recounted the fact that he had practiced law for over 60 years, had early planned to enter Colby University and was forced to give the plan up, but now at the age of 85 was being received at last into the Colby family. There was a second burst of applause as the distinguished looking member of the Maine bar lifted the diploma which had been handed him to his lips.

The Commencement Dinner that followed marked a splendid close to four days of busy activities. It was presided over by President Johnson who was never in happier mood. Chairman Smith brought the greetings of the College to the assemblage. Never, he declared, had the College been in finer condition; never was it doing better work. Such was the judgment of the Chairman of the Board of Trustees whose devotion to the College, especially since elected chairman, merited richly the praise bestowed upon him by President Johnson in his introductory word. Architect Larson declared that it was a happy moment when the dream of the new Colby was so near a reality. Professor Mather expressed his delight at being received into the Colby family circle, and brought greetings from his own alma mater and from Harvard. Annie Pepper Varney, '98, told of her experiences in Italy, and spoke as only the daughter of former President Pepper would speak. Mr. Montgomery was called upon to stand, and after receiving a royal welcome from the audience, spoke but a sentence or two, but this was a case of multum in parvo: "Now you are to move to a new home. It may be that I can help." Dr. J. Frederick Hill, '82, who was celebrating his 82nd birthday, was called upon to stand and receive the greetings of his many loyal friends. And then the class of 1886, assembled at their 50th reunion, were roundly applauded as six of them, Boyd, Bridgham, Dunham, Richardson, Sanderson, and Trafton faced the company. With the awarding of the cup to the class of 1876 which averaged the highest percentage of attendance, and its acceptance on behalf of the class represented by Clarence E. Meleney and Clement H. Hallowell, President Johnson declared the final event of Commencement Week closed, and the four days now but a happy memory.

REUNION OF 1886

If I am informed correctly 15 of the 27 who were graduated 50 years ago are still living, including the two ladies, Miss White and Miss Winslow. These two sent a letter of regret which was read at the class reunion and autographed by the seven present who were: Boyd, Bridgham, Dunham, Ramsdell, Richardson, Sanderson and Trafton. Richardson, who lives in Portland, Maine, was to hand it to Miss Winslow, who also lives in Portland, and she was to pass it on to Miss White.

The seven named met at the Elmwood on Saturday, June 13th at 6 P. M. Rev. T. J. Ramsdell, D. D., of Burnham, Maine, returned thanks, and the feasting began. There was a little mixup in the menu, but it didn't spoil the banquet, not by any means. Sanderson ate Trafton's fish and Trafton ate Sanderson's roast lamb,

STUDENT WRITINGS IN COLBY MERCURY

CATHERINE C. Laughton, Harmony, Colby Senior, was awarded the Mary Low Carver Poetry Prize for her sonnet "Younglings," which appeared in the May issue of "The Colby Mercury." In the same issue appeared the Gallert Prize Essay, written by John G. Rideout, '36, Hartland, entitled "Thomas Wolfe—Modern Genius."

"The Colby Mercury," which appears three times a year, is a literary publication issued by the Department of English, containing a selection of the best writings of the Colby students, chiefly in the freshman courses. In this last issue, in addition to the prize winners, are contributions from the following: Sally M. Aldrich, '39, Guilford; Ernestine F. Wilson, '39, Waterville; Leila M. Ross, '39, Oakland; Jean Burr, '39, Hancock; Margaret A. Whalen, '39, Danforth; Ruth Yeaton, '37, Waterville and Mary T. Crowley, '39, Kenmore, N. Y.

but that was only a minor detail, swallowed up in the quiet joy of the class reunion. We were sober, if not sad, as some of us thought of the death of such outstanding men as Dr. Putnam and Dr. Overlock. At the close of the banquet, the seven lingered awhile on the hotel veranda for reminiscences of the past.

Elisha Sanderson.

REUNION OF 1896

Colby 1896 held its 40th reunion at the Fort Halifax Tavern on the evening of Saturday, June 13. Seated at the long table which Mrs. Eldridge had decorated in keeping with the occasion were thirty-nine members and guests, the guest of honor being Mrs. Arthur J. Roberts.

It was an inspiring occasion, with good fellowship the prevailing note. Many were the stories told of college days. Some of us had not met since our graduation; others had kept in touch through all these years. There were vacant places, and heartaches of course; but good cheer was the prevailing note.

During the banquet letters were read from various members who were unable to be present. Dr. Frederick Padelford, Dean of the Graduate School of the University of Washington told of his researches at the Huntington Library, and gave humorous sketches of undergraduate days at Colby; John Merrill, Olive Robbins Haviland, Tom Tooker, Howard Hanscom, Dean Levi Wyman of Chester, Penn., Madge Colby Tooker Young (the class baby) and others sent friendly and interesting messages. Jim Thompson of Pelham, N. Y., regretted that he could not come, but promised to attend the 50th reunion. Telegrams were read from Myrtice Cheney and others, and a telephone from Ada Edgecomb Andrews, in hospital at Augusta, conveyed her greetings.

A delightful poem written by Dr. Florence Dunn for the occasion, received merited applause. Her poem will appear in the next issue of the Alumnus.

Walter Hubbard paid glowing tribute to those former members of 1896 who have died.

The necrology list is as follows:

After dinner your class agent turned the meeting over to H. Warren Foss, who in his inimitable way introduced the '96 men and women who had agreed to speak briefly. Rev. Orville J. Guptill told us something of the splendid work he is doing in ministering to the needy along the Maine coast. He paid a heartfelt tribute to another classmate, Myrtice Cheney, who has devoted years of loving service to this same mission.

Herbert Foster, Esq., of Winthrop spoke most entertainingly. Ethel Farr Kimball told us of the work of Rev. William Lorimer and the record made by his brilliant children. Durgan Charles Turner, and Richard Collins spoke, recalling incidents of college days. Dr. Frank Padelford brought a message from the class of 1894.

The chief event of this memorable evening was Harry Dunn's brilliant and scholarly discussion of the causes underlying the depression and the possible events that may follow in the next few years. It was an address that made us all proud to be members of a class that was honored by such a profound student of economics.

Those present were:

Supt. Albert S. Cole, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cram, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Elford Durgan, H. Warren Foss with his daughters Lillian and Beatrice and a guest; Dr. Benjamin Fuller, Dr. E. C. Getchell, Walter Hubbard and Mrs. Hubbard, Carleton Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner; Dr. Florence Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Padelford, Mr. and Mrs. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Foster, Rev. Orville J. Guptill, Mrs. Guptill, and Orville, Jr.; Mae Pratt Peakes and son Lawrence, Lutie Mae French Tufts, and our guest of honor, widow of our beloved President, A. J. Roberts.

It was with regret that we disbanded at 11 o'clock to go our various ways. Some—we hope many—will meet again in five years, fewer still for our fiftieth reunion. As long as we live, Colby and '96 will hold a warm place in the heart of each one.

Everett L. Getchell,
Class Agent.

REUNION OF 1901

Twelve members of the class of 1901 attended the reunion banquet, served at the Wishing Well Tea Room in Waterville, on Saturday, June 13, 1936, the thirty-fifth anniversary of their graduation from college.

After a most delicious dinner served by the hostess, Mrs. Lucile Blake, those present spent some very enjoyable hours talking over old times and renewing old friendships.

Letters were read from members of the class who were unable to attend, and were much enjoyed.

Two members have passed away since the last reunion. Richard W. Sprague and Fred W. Newcombe, the latter dying very suddenly on the day he wrote saying he would be present at the coming Commencement.

Those present at the banquet were: Mrs. Mary Bragg Weston, Mrs. Grace Farrar Linscott, Rhena Clark Marsh, Mrs. Maude Burleigh Brown, and Harry S. Brown, '99, George A. Marsh, Charles F. T. Seaverns, Dr. and Mrs. Sherman Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Joseph, Wallace Purinton, A. M. Blackburn, E. B. Putnam, and Dr. C. H. Witherell.

Francis M. Joseph.

REUNION OF 1906

The class of 1906 returned for its 30th reunion with a fairly good attendance. The men of the class all brought their better halves with them but the women all came in single harness: Anna Boynton, Edith Kennison Stene, Christia Donnell Young, Nettie Fuller Young, Mr. and Mrs. Parker Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kennison, Dr. and Mrs. Millard Long, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Ross. The latter had two children in Colby, one of whom graduated this year. Doc Reynolds' two children attended the reunion dinner Saturday evening at the Waterville Country Club. His son had just graduated. Also Harold Pepper was in the city but could not attend the dinner. However, he showed your class agent a few substantial hairs still left. Your agent, by the way, took the prize for the most hair left; and Parker Craig for coming the longest distance—from Dallas, Texas. Frank Hamilton was prevented from coming at the last moment by illness, and Virgil Jones by an equally unavoidable circumstance. The week end was spent in reminiscences and the recalling of old acquaintances—quietly withal as befits the dignity of 30 years.

Karl R. Kennison.

REUNION OF 1911

The 1911 reunion came on Saturday evening. Thanks to "Blakie," Nash, and "Braggo" Ervin, the class got in on the ground floor and had reservations at the Waterville Country Club, beyond the Messalonskee on the road to Oakland. It was a perfect place for the reunion, and the view of the surrounding country with the mountains in the distance was charming. The committee surely scored a hundred, or a bull's eye, or perhaps "Braggo" would rather say, "The committee did the course in par." Just one less sat down to dinner than graduated 25 years ago, not that many members were back, but the husbands or wives present helped to make up the number. Everybody seemed to be having a good time at the tables and some of them were so busy with reminiscences, or with modestly telling of their children or other interests in life that they did not know whether they were eating lobster or steak. What difference did it make anyway? Except maybe a matter of 25 cents for those who preferred lobster.

After dinner we adjourned to the Lounge and the class of 1911 was called to order by "Hig," permanent class secretary of the men's division, in the absence of Kidder, the permanent class president.

It was voted to have Albion W. Blake, Ellen M. Pillsbury, and the two class agents—Ralph E. Nash and Mrs. Rose Carver Tilley—act as the Committee of Arrangements for the next reunion, the 30th anniversary of our graduation in 1941.

It was voted to have the secretary plan for a class letter, about 1939 or 1940, in preparation for securing a good attendance at the next reunion. So, if you are planning to do something noteworthy in the near future, do it within the next three years. Later on a request will come for a personal letter to be included in this next 1911 round robin.

Next came a very interesting part of the program, when each member of the class reported briefly what he or she had been doing since 1911, including work, interests, and children. It was especially interesting to hear how many children the class of 1911 had in college. One of the graduates this year at Colby was the daughter of Hazel Breckenridge Mailey. Another graduate was Edmund Noyes Ervin, the son of "Braggo" Ervin. Rose Carver Tilley has a son who is a junior at Colby. Other members of the class had young people at other colleges. Gertrude Coombs Rose, who was present with her daughter, had the honor of having come the greatest distance to attend the reunion, having recently arrived from Iloilo, Philippine Islands. (The class shared the honor which came to this family when at commencement Professor Francis Howard Rose, of the Central Philippine College, a member of Colby, '09, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. He also delivered the Boardman missionary sermon on Sunday evening).

The class agents reported from some who could not be present. Laura Day Cole was in Waterville that day for the alumnae luncheon, but could not remain for the reunion, to the disappointment of many of us who did not see her. We haven't quite forgiven her for running away. A telegram was received from Kidder regretting his absence. Letters were received from Corey Richardson and "Nate" Patterson. The latter rather reproached us for not being present at the 20th reunion, when "Nate" had made a special effort to attend. Too bad, "Nate," that you were not present this year, for we are sure you would have had as good a time as the rest of us. Ed Stacey brought greetings from Guy Vail, now in the insurance business in Boston. "Hig" reported having recently seen Arthur Merriam in St. Louis, where he is connected with the Bemis Bag Company.

For many of us one of the major attractions of our 25th reunion was to hear "Cupid" Rogers sing that classic and rollicking ballad, "On Board the Howe." Despite an attack of laryngitis just a few days before, "Cupid" sang it with great gusto to the delight of all, including preacher, missionary, teachers, and deacons. It was unanimously decided that this song of "Cupid's" should be one of the special features of the next reunion. Some of you don't know what you missed. The first time "Cupid" sang this ballad for the class of 1911 was at the time of their senior spread, and class tradition says that it had no little part in bringing about that marriage between "Cupid" and Margaret.

We were especially happy in having with us Walter Rideout, ex-'11, who graduated in 1912 on account of staying out a year, but whom we shall always feel belongs to 1911, for he suffered and rejoiced with us as a freshman. His son John, who graduated this year, recently received his appointment as Rhodes scholar.

"Hig" then led the class in its cheer. It was good to hear it again.

Vive chacun! Vive le tout!

Nineteen Eleven strong and true!

Glory and honor we shall gain.

Hika! Pica! Zik! Boom! Bah!

Colby, Eleven! Rah! Rah! Rah!

That was followed by "Colby the Long Way," the old railroad cheer, and the festivities were over until 1941. (Although some think that this report should be supplemented with some of the doings at Mary Lowe Hall, or wherever it was that the members of the women's division of the class had their headquarters).

Even after adjournment the members of the class just stayed around, visiting in groups, sharing experiences, and hating to break the fellowship that this 25th reunion had brought back so vividly.

Isaac Higginbotham,

Class Secretary.

P. S.—The following members of the class were present, in some cases with their husbands or wives:

Mr. and Mrs. Albion W. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Higginbotham, Mrs. Mary West Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ervin (Caroline Noyes, '08), Mrs. Elsie Lawrence Fentiman and Mr. Fentiman, Mrs. Alice Thomas Good and Mr. Good, Mrs. Sinia King Leach, Mrs. Rose Pillsbury LeBlanc, Mrs. Hazel Breckenridge Mailey and Mr. Mailey, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Nash (Margaret Buswell, '12), Miss Ellen N. Pillsbury, Renworth R. Rogers and Mrs. Margaret Fielden Rogers, Mrs. Gertrude Coombs Rose, Eleanor Rose, her daughter, Miss Louise A. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Stacey (Ella MacBurnie, '09), Judge and Mrs. L. Ernest Thornton, Mrs. Rose Carver Tilley, Constance Tilley her daughter, Mrs. Eva LaCasce Walker, Miss Beulah E. Withee,

Miss Leta Young, Mrs. Ethel Wood West, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Pullen, Mr. W. J. Rideout ('12) and Mrs. Ruth Brickett Rideout, ('15).

REUNION OF 1916

The twentieth reunion of the Class of 1916 was held at the Country Club in Waterville with a splendid attendance of members and their respective wives and husbands. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Alden W. Allen, Arthur Bickford, Mrs. Edith Pratt Brown, Mrs. Vivian Wright Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. "Spike" Irvin, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril M. Joly, Miss Alice Clarkin, Mrs. Vivian Skinner Hill, Mrs. Esther French Spaulding, Scott D. Staples, Mrs. Elizabeth Hodgkins Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gregory, Fred English, Hermon O. Goffin, Mrs. Gladys Meservey Ferrell and George E. Ferrell, '17, Mrs. Carolyn Stevens Thompson, Lewis Levine, Dr. Leon Herring, Mrs. Lois Osgood Skillings and Mr. Skillings. Reply cards containing regrets but messages from missing classmates were passed around and read with interest.

The crowd gathered at the Club about six o'clock and assembled on the spacious piazzas where friendships were renewed and acquaintances made with the better (?) halves of the classmates who were all elected members of the class. A steak dinner was served in the dining room. The Classes of 1906 and 1911 also held their reunions at the Club so that there was a goodly number of Colby men and women and the dining room was filled with about a hundred guests.

After the dinner, the various classes separated into groups, 1916 remaining in the dining room where a short business meeting was held. The secretary was authorized to send a letter of regrets to "Swipes" Simpson of Waterville who was unable to attend because of serious illness, which, by the way, is much improved and your reporter met him on the street this week. A letter of sympathy was also sent to Byron H. Smith on the accidental death of his daughter. Your reporter has received a grateful acknowledgment from Byron and he states that he was on his way to the Class reunion with his daughter when the tragedy occurred. Each member of the class stood up, introduced her or himself, stated their occupation, resident and family statistics. There were many tied for the largest families with four children to their credit. While the only grandmother in the class was not present due honor was paid to Eleanor Welch Joy for that achievement. Your reporter won the brown derby for having the class baby, four months old.

There was an unusual feeling of enthusiasm and interest in the reunion and a solemn pledge made by all to come back and see that others did the same for the Silver Anniversary five years hence. A special committee consisting of Alice Clarkin, Gladys Meservey Ferrell, Lewis Levine and Cyril M. Joly, were appointed to make plans and arrangements for this coming reunion, and each member present is on the general attendance committee to arouse interest in a large attendance in 1941.

Cyril M. Joly.

REUNION OF 1921

From June 12 to June 15 inclusive, headquarters for 1921's Fifteenth Reunion were established at the Elmwood, Room 201. There on Saturday night the class foregathered for refreshment before going downstairs to partake of the excellent dinner furnished by the hotel.

With the unanimous approval of the assembled members, the proposed excursion to Belgrade Lakes on Sunday afternoon was abandoned in favor of the picnic on Mayflower Hill, sponsored by the college. Meeting at headquarters before proceeding to the new site for old Colby, the reuniting members were the guests of Thomas G. Grace at tea. Then, in a chartered bus driven by Robert Jackson, Waterville's mayor, the trip was made to Colby's future campus.

Those who returned for 1921's Fifteenth were: Stephen H. Ayer and wife, Chauncey L. Brown and wife, Elizabeth B. Carey, Bernard E. Esters and wife, Grace Foster, Thomas G. Grace, Neil Leonard and wife, Nathan Levine, Lewis Levine, Dr. Libby Pulsifer, Dr. Harold M. Sachs, Ruth Mosher Shakelford, Donald O. Smith and wife, Raymond Spinney, Reginald H. Sturtevant and wife, and Roland G. Ware and wife. "Steve" Ayer had the distinction of having come the greatest distance for the Reunion (from Omaha, Neb.). Nor should we forget "Steve's" young daughter, who made her first trip East, and was the youngest "daughter" of 1921 at Reunion.

REUNION OF 1931

The class of 1931 held their first reunion on Saturday night, June 13, at the Green Lantern Tea Room. The gang gathered early and spent an hour in talking things over before sitting down to a very tasty steak supper. In all we gathered some thirty-three strong and although many of those faces we wanted to see so badly were not present we had a great time. Hope Pullen Gilmore acted as Class Agent for the women and your correspondent for the men. After an enjoyable meal each one present was called upon to give an account of himself. The stories told were varied and interesting and provided many a lusty laugh from the gang. Strange to say none had changed greatly in appearance and all seemed to be very happy. The following were present: Agnes Ginn Allen, Strong Me.; Ada E. Bates, teacher, Abbott, Me.; Isabel Clark, teacher, Waterville, Me.; Steve Bean Delaney and husband, Wilmington, Mass.; Gertrude Sykes Elwell of Buxton, Me.; Alex Gilmore, ex-'31, and wife, Hope Pullen Gilmore, Camden, Me.; Barbara Heath, Framingham, Mass.; Anne Macomber Holden, Hartford, Conn.; Halstead Jenkins, Togus, Me.; Inza Pearle King, teacher, Norridgewock, Me.; Ethel C. MacDougal, teacher, Berlin, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Roberts, South Portland, Me.; Phil Snow and wife, Bar Harbor, Me.; Gideon Sprague and wife, Owls Head, Me.; Ada Cram Wadsworth and husband, Hiram, Me.; Jennie Dunn Millett, Augusta, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. Abner Bevan (Budge Chase), East Hampton, Conn.; Gordon T. Fuller and wife, Waterville, Me.; Margaret McGann, Waterville, Me.; Francis Page, Vivian Russell, Flora Trussell, Marion White Thurlow, Snub Pollard and Hank Pearson. Several came who had not made reservations so I do not know their home addresses. The writer also hopes he has not overlooked some who were present. Words of regret were read from the following:

Bob Allen, Marion Cooke Blaisdell, Dick Dow, John Davidson, Louise Murray Deans, Milton Edes, D. M. Eastment, Bob Eldridge, Eunice Foye Hutchins, Phil Fisher, Charlie Heddericg, Barbara Gurney Jones, W. L. Linscott, Ed MacConnie, Rod MacDougal, Ruth Pineo, Myrtle Paine, Dot Shippee, Red Williamson, Doug Wheeler, Elizabeth Walker, and one unsigned card from W. Boyleston, Mass.

The reunion ended at 10 P. M. with all planning on being back for the tenth. All plan to bring their children if they continue at the present rate we will have to charter the field house.

Rod E. Farnham.

WASHINGTON COUNTY ALUMNI FOR "QUODDY"

At a banquet held at the Emmans Hotel, twenty-seven Alumni and Alumnae formed the Washington County Colby Alumni Association. Reed V. Jewett, '95, was toastmaster.

This get-together was made possible by the efforts of Fred A. Tarbox, '17, Principal of Calais Academy. Officers of the new club were elected as follows: Reed V. Jewett, '95, Calais, president; Mrs. Esther F. Spaulding, '16, Princeton, vice president; F. A. Tarbox, '17, Calais, secretary; Mrs. Ralph Nash, '12, Harington, treasurer.

On the executive committee are Miss Mollie Hanson, '11, Calais; Elizabeth Haley, Eastport; Milroy Warren, Lubec; Dr. Drew T. Harthorn, Machias; Alden W. Allen, Calais; Mrs. Emma Beale, Eastport; Varney Putnam, Danforth; Chauncey J. Leighton, Milbridge.

A letter was read from President Johnson in which he stated that he regretted that a representative of the college had been unable to attend the meeting, but promised one for the next meeting. Miss Anne Trimble, '34, was secretary of the meeting.

A very interesting talk was given by President Jewett who said he had no idea there were so many Colby people in Washington County.

F. A. Tarbox, '17, spoke on the purpose of the meeting. It was to organize the association, to discuss the New Colby on Mayflower Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Wilson and Miss Marguerite Wilson gave vocal and violin solos and Frank Lane's group of young men sang several selections.

NECROLOGY: FROM 1877 TO 1930

HARRY N. HAYNES, '77

HARRY Neil Haynes Colby alumnus of the Class of 1877, was born at Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 29, 1855, and died at his home in Greeley, and died at his home in Greeley, Colo., May 13, 1936. Although his life began and ended in the West he was of Maine stock and nurture. His father, Silas B. A. Haynes, went westward early, and became a practicing lawyer in Wisconsin and Colorado. His mother, who had been Harriet C. Neil, brought her young children to the home of her parents, Col. and Mrs. Eben H. Neil of Skowhegan. She never rejoined her husband, and thus Harry Haynes passed his childhood and school years in the home of his grandfather beside the Kennebec. He prepared for college at Bloomfield Academy, which, during his period of study, became affiliated with Skowhegan High School. He studied Law in Skowhegan for one year in the office of Hon. Stephen Coburn, Colby, 1839, and entered Colby in 1873. Graduating in 1877, he left behind a distinguished record for scholarship and leadership. His college themes and orations were of high order. He had a Junior Part in 1875 and was in the English Oration group at graduation. He served on the first editorial board of the Colby Echo. He was a member of Zeta Psi fraternity, and when the chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was installed at Colby he became a member of this on his college standing.

Immediately after his graduation Mr. Haynes joined his father at Greeley, Colo., and studied law in his father's office for a year and for a year in Denver. He began the practice of law in Fort Collins in 1879, was for two years from 1880 a member of his father's firm, and for five years from 1882 of its successor. From 1887 he practiced alone, and from 1882 his residence was in Greeley.

He specialized in Immigration Law and was for a time Immigration Referee. He had various positions of trust, was City Attorney of Greeley and County Attorney of Weld County, was president of the Colorado Bar Association and a member of the American Bar Association. He was for some years a member of the Board of Education of his city. He was a member of the First Unitarian Society of Greeley and served on its board. He was the author of many articles and addresses on legal and constitutional subjects, which were published in the Proceedings of the Colorado Bar Association and in periodicals and newspapers. An address was delivered by him at the Colby Commencement in 1900. He was interested in the pioneer history of his state and wrote also upon that.

Mr. Haynes married in 1882 Anna E. Plumb, who died in 1908, and they were the parents of five children, most of whom were educated at Colorado College: Florence I., who died twenty years ago; Rhoda N., Mrs. Harold D. Roberts of Denver; Rollin F. of Roggen; Dorothy P., Mrs. Ralph E. Miller of New York City; and Harold F. of Los Angeles.

The Greeley Daily Tribune said of him: "Mr. Haynes frequently advised young attorneys in the preparation of difficult cases without thought of fee or other reward. Fellow attorneys declared that throughout his more than half a century of practice his ethics and conduct were always of the highest standards. He always regarded the law as a high profession and calling rather than a lucrative business.

"Members of the present Colorado supreme court had frequently stated that Mr. Haynes was one of the most eminent lawyers in the history of Colorado. For years his name was on the briefs of most of the important irrigation suits before the supreme court."

The family life and legal career of Harry Neil Haynes were such as to confer honor on the college where he received his education.

CHARLES F. MESERVE, '77

CHARLES Francis Meserve, distinguished educator and well known to scores of Colby Alumni, died at the age of eighty-five, Monday, April 20, in Raleigh, N. C. Burial was in Waterville Pine Grove Cemetery.

Born in Abington, Mass., Dr. Meserve attended Waterville Classical Institute, now Coburn, for three years and entered Colby, graduating with honors in the class of 1877. He received the honorary degree of LL. D. in 1898.

After a series of posts in various schools, he became superintendent of Haskell Institute, the U. S. Indian industrial school at Lawrence, Kans. Dr. Meserve was personally commended by Theodore Roosevelt, who was then on the U. S. Civil Service Commission, for making appointments at Haskell Institute on a merit basis, instead of according to political consideration, as had previously been the case.

In 1894 he was called to the presidency of Shaw University in Raleigh, N. C. He remained at the head of this Baptist Negro college until 1919, serving with great distinction and becoming president emeritus after his retirement from active work.

He was always in demand for positions of trust, serving as Judge of Elections in Raleigh, Special Disbursing Agent for the U. S. Treasury Department, director of the North Carolina State School for the Blind, director and vice president of the Biblical Publishing Company, president of the Natural History Club of Raleigh, and president for life of the Meserve Family Association. He was an honorary member of Phi Beta Kappa and was always warmly loyal to Delta Kappa Epsilon, his college fraternity.

His ability as a historical writer was shown in several books and pamphlets, among them being: History of Shaw University, 1865-1930; History of Abington, Rockland and Whitman, in the History of Plymouth County, Massachusetts; and a number of monographs on Indian affairs.

Dr. Meserve spent summers for many years at Squirrel Island, Maine, and was well known and loved by the many summer residents of that colony.

He was married to Abbie Mary Whittier in Waterville and after her death married Julia Frances Philbrick, also of Waterville, who died in 1928. He is survived by his daughter, Miss Alice Whittier Meserve.

CHARLES CARROLL, '85

CHARLES Carroll, veteran member of the Aroostook County Bar and first judge of the Houlton Municipal Court, died at a Houlton hospital, April 12, following an illness of several weeks. He was seventy-two years of age.

He was born Dec. 28, 1864, in Linneus, the only son of Joseph and Rhoda Carroll. He was graduated from Ricker Classical Institute and from Colby College in the class of 1885. While at Colby, he was one of the organizers of the chapter of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Following his graduation he entered the law offices of Powers and Powers, to read law.

At the time of his death he had been a practicing attorney for forty-five years. He was the first judge of the Houlton Municipal Court, serving twelve years after his appointment in 1911. He was also admitted to practice before the United States District Court. The session of the Superior Court adjourned during the afternoon of his funeral.

He was active in several organizations in Houlton. He was a charter member of the Houlton Lodge of Elks and had served as the first Exalted Ruler. He had also served for many years as a member of the Board of Trustees. He was a former member of Rockabema Lodge, I. O. O. F., and was a member of the Unitarian Church. In politics, he was a member of the Democratic party.

His first wife, the former Emma McConnell of Hammond, died in 1916 and seven years later he was married to Miss Myrtle Eldridge of Bangor, who survives. He is also survived by two daughters by his first marriage, Mrs. Percy McGary of Newton, Mass., and Mrs. David Ramsey of Belmont, Mass.; also five grandchildren, a niece, Mrs. George Ellis, and a nephew, John Carroll of Suffolk, Va.

The funeral services, held from the Unitarian Church, were conducted by the Houlton Lodge of Elks, Rev. Arthur Moore assisting. Members of the Elks Lodge acted as escort and the Elks committal service was conducted at the grave in Evergreen Cemetery.

James L. Ross, '36.

MAURICE H. SMALL, '87

DR. Maurice Herman Small died at the home of his daughter in Appleton, Wis., on Friday, Jan. 30, 1936.

He was born on a farm in Wilton, Me., March 18, 1861, and had the experience of many a Maine boy of that period in that he both attended and taught the district school of his time.

He prepared for college at Wilton Academy and entered Colby in the fall of 1883. Following graduation therefrom he was for five years principal of the Norway, Me., high school. An eminently successful leadership in that school was followed by a three-year service in the Westbrook high school in a similar position and with equal success.

At this time Clark University, under the leadership of G. Stanley Hall, was becoming recognized as a potentially powerful factor in progressive education.

Dr. Small had, years before, fully determined to make teaching his life work and the opportunity to study psychology and pedagogy in the atmosphere of progressive thought at Clark appealed to him strongly.

He matriculated there in the fall of 1895 as Honor Scholar in Psychology and continued as Junior Fellow and Senior Fellow in Psychology until the summer of 1898.

While a student there he contributed numerous articles to the American Journal of Psychology and to the Pedagogical Seminary.

On June 21, 1905, he received the Ph.D., degree from Clark University. The title of his dissertation was: "On Some Psychical Relations of Society and Solitude." It was published in the Pedagogical Seminary, Vol. VII, No. 2, April, 1900.

In the fall of 1898 he returned to practical work in the secondary field, becoming principal of the Passaic, N. J., high school. This position he held until 1902.

In Sept. 1903, he went to the Oshkosh State Normal School, which later became the Oshkosh Teachers' College, as Professor of Psychology and Pedagogy. In that position he remained until 1920, when he resigned to enter again the field of practice by becoming supervising principal of a district in the city of Appleton, Wis., and later principal of its first junior high school, which he was largely responsible for establishing and developing. Here he remained in active service until his retirement in 1933.

A luncheon hour and a portion of an evening spent with Dr. Small a few years ago convinced the writer of this brief sketch that years of study and teaching teachers the psychology of teaching had not lessened but rather increased his interest in the strictly human side of the profession.

He was a charter member of the Kiwanis Club of Appleton, always active in the vocational guidance and underprivileged child committee of the organization. In addition to his he gave many evening hours to teaching, guiding and advising youth in other civic and educational activities need. An educator, scholar and humanitarian has passed on.

Irving O. Palmer, '87.

GRACE M. CUMMINGS, '92

MISS Grace M. Cummings was born May 8, 1866, in Essex, Conn. She was educated in Boston schools and was graduated from Colby in 1892. She was always a student and a wide reader. With her sister Anna, of the Colby class of 1890, she travelled abroad, studied in Grenoble, France, and attended lectures at the Sorbonne. Because of ill health she spent most of her life in California and in the South. Miss Cummings had very keen judgment and appreciation in literary matters. She wrote both prose and poetry, of which there were some publications in Boston papers. She never recovered from the shock of the death of her sister, Anna, with whom she had lived since 1896. She died in Maine, Nov. 28, 1935.

LORA G. NEAL, '29

LORA G. NEAL, of the class of '29, died May 1 after a prolonged illness, following an operation last fall. Lora was a vigorous, active, enthusiastic person who had made a real place for herself in the field of nursing. A message to her parents from Miss Annie M. Goodrich, retired Dean of the Yale School of Nursing, well-known as a leader in the profession, said sincerely: "In the passing of your daughter, the Yale School has lost a valued graduate and the nursing profession a nurse of much promise."

As a Colby undergraduate, "Peg" was proud that she belonged to a family which had been closely identified with Colby for many years. Her father, now head of the academic department at the Worcester, Mass., Boy's Trade School, is Edgar P. Neal, '93. Her mother, Lora Cummings Neal, also '93, is a sister of Dr. John C. Cummings, '84, whose children and grandchildren are an active part of the alumni group. Both as undergraduates and alumni the Cummings family have contributed greatly to Colby tradition. In her college life, Lora was widely known and affectionately respected as a capable, thoughtful girl, who carried much responsibility for class affairs. In her senior year she was house chairman at Foss Hall and throughout her course was prominent in all athletics. Having majored in science, and having worked side by side with the men who were doing pre-medical work, Lora found when she reached graduate school that she had an excellent technical foundation for her profession. From the beginning of her course she was considered an outstanding figure.

Although only seven years out of College, Lora had already held positions of great responsibility as head nurse and later as night supervisor at the New Haven Hospital. A new position as surgical supervisor and instructor in the school of nursing at Duke University Hospital, Durham, N. C., she had assumed just two months before her critical illness. The sympathy of Lora's generation as well as that of her parents is extended to her father and mother, and her older brother, Arthur, who is a chemist in Wilmington, Del.

The funeral was held May 4 in West Boylston, Mass., where Lora's family lived all her life. Every member of her high school class was present. The pall bearers were the four boys of the class. There were many close friends and relatives who attended the simple but beautifully appropriate service, in which the local pastor was assisted by Lora's uncle, Dr. John E. Cummings, '84. Lora was a member of Sigma Kappa sorority.

LORA CUMMINGS NEAL, '29

At a meeting of the Board of Administrative Officers of the Yale School of Nursing, a resolution was passed, expressing the board's deepest sympathy and heartfelt sorrow at the untimely death of Miss Lora Cummings Neal, '29, and a motion was passed that the following resolution be sent to her parents and to the members of her family:

"While she was a student nurse under our supervision, we learned to know the keen intellectual ability of Miss Neal, the high standards of her work, and her efficient, kindly nursing care of patients which characterized the steady, willing and cooperative manner in which she accomplished her daily tasks.

"As a head nurse and supervisor associated with us, we learned to regard with great respect, her just dealings with others and her untiring devotion to duty, as she spared neither time nor energy in their faithful performance and in her high ideals for her profession.

"Miss Neal's qualities of integrity, sincerity, loyalty, and kind understanding will be always affectionately cherished in our memories."

MARK HOOD GARABEDIAN, '30

FUNERAL services were held at the Campton, N. H., Congregational Church on Saturday morning, May 23, for the Rev. Mark Hood Garabedian, pastor there for the past three years. The services were in charge of the Rev. John C. Prince of the Plymouth Congregational Church, assisted by the Rev. Robert G. Armstrong of Concord, secretary of the New Hampshire Congregational-Christian Conference. The bearers were Charles Ouellette, E. Sterling Freethy, Lewis Hill and Bertram Pulsifer.

Rev. Mr. Garabedian was born in Cambridge, Mass., August 28, 1905, the son of Mark D. and Eliza M. Garabedian. He was educated in the public schools of Cambridge, the Oliver Ames High School of Easton, Mass., Colby College, and Union Theological Seminary. While a student at Union Seminary he served as assistant pastor of the Mount Morris Baptist Church. After his graduation from the seminary and ordination, he spent the summer of 1933 in special work at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He began his pastorate with the Campton Congregational Church late in that same year. His death occurred Thursday morning, May 21, after a week's illness with pneumonia. Interment was in Ridgeway Cemetery, Watertown, Mass. The interment service was conducted by the Rev. A. T. Kempton, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church of Cambridge, Mass., where Mr. Garabedian was a member for several years. He is survived by his mother and two brothers, John N. Garabedian of Watertown, Mass., and the Rev. William E. Garabedian of Campton.

In his address the Rev. Mr. Prince referring to the deceased, said in part: "We think of his radiant spirit, zestful, sympathetic, self-forgetful. He was so genuine, so unassuming, so truly kind. He was so eager to give himself, to share his life and to ask for absolutely nothing in return, feeling that the rendering of such service was his ample reward. We recall today how large a place our friend had already come to fill here in our midst, in the church and the community, as scoutmaster, as one of the younger people of the community, as a member of the Grange, as one of the quartet of young men, as an active worker in the Red Cross membership enrollment, and as one who had a growing friendship in both of the local parishes and in the neighboring communities. He was one of the best liked young ministers in the Pemigewasset Valley. He had established himself in the cordial friendship of the members of the Merri-mack Congregational-Christian Ministers' Union and in the fellowship of ministers who meet annually at Geneva Point.

"In all his widening relations and service he was making Godliness vital and attractive. His generous investment of his loving life is yet to come to fullness of fruition among us. While he so early 'rests from his labors, his works do follow him.' As Tennyson said of the passing of Lord Wellington, so we say of our friend: 'We doubt not for one so true, There must be other, nobler work to do.'"

Though never physically robust, Mr. Garabedian lived an active life, rich and full. Though his life was short, yet it was highly useful and one which will be long held in grateful memory by the people of Camp-ton and vicinity.

STEWART MacDONALD

A Boston & Maine railroad train killed Stewart MacDonald, 58 at Melrose, Mass., on the night of May 12. He had been for seven years on the staff of the Boston News Bureau.

Mr. MacDonald, a native of Why-comb, Cape Breton, N. S., returned to Canada several years after his graduation from Cornell, and became professor of economics at the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, N. B. Later, he held a similar post at McGill University, Montreal, and at Manitoba University, Winnipeg, Man.

In 1917 he returned to the United States as professor of economics at Colby, and then at Middlebury College, later joining the staff of the News Bureau, as an editorial writer and reviewer. At the time of his death he was living at 16 Chestnut Park, Melrose. Besides his widow, Mrs. Iris A. MacDonald, Mr. MacDonald leaves a daughter, Katrina MacDonald, and a son, Allen MacDonald.

Breezy Bits or Briefs Broken

1514 Columbia Road, Washington, D. C., June 7,—Nellie Keene Fernald writes eight pages of news about herself and family which certainly merit more than our limit of quotation: "I have just represented my childhood grange, West Minot, Maine, here at the Convention of the Affiliated Country Women of the World. It was great and I enjoyed every 'bit' of it, even the garden party at the White House."

1 Sanborn Road, Hanover, N. H., June 1,—Emma Berry Delahanty writes an interesting account of her activities as the wife of a professor at Dartmouth. Besides doing a great deal in the community at large, she says: "We have a boys' camp on the Cape."

22 Madison St., Chicopee Falls, Mass., May 6 and April 20,—Cassilena Perry Hitchcock can tell you how to get a dollar for the Alumnae Fund out of the smallest budget imaginable. Under heading May 6 she wrote: "Received letter from Alice Henderson Wood. She expects to come to the states in June with eight-year-old George. Harold is in the Stony Brook School, Long Island. I hope to have her with me some of the time. Perhaps we can plan a reunion."

11 Fairlawn Ave., South Portland, Maine, May 4,—Elizabeth Monahan Nickels writes after seven years of illness, "I am just enjoying being able to get about, do things and be a part of things."

17 Winter Street, Waterville, Maine, April 26 and February 11,—Eleanor Creech Marriner writes, "Life grows busier and busier all the time here. Last night (Feb. 10th) Secretary of Labor Perkins lectured here. A tea was given for her in the afternoon. She told Mrs. Johnson she thought our students possessed a great deal of social poise."

35 Godfrey Road, Upper Montclair, N. J., April 20,—Gertrude French Packard writes, "This year will be my Twenty-Fifth Reunion at Bates."

Lisbon Falls, Maine, April 20,—Grace Whittier Green wrote, "Yesterday we sent Dean Berry a box of Mayflowers. Do hope they are not too faded when they arrive in California."

5 Ricker Park, Portland, Maine, April 15,—Helen Robinson tells us that "we have had quite recently our annual luncheon—the Colby women of Portland—at which we entertain the Colby undergraduates of our city."

Highland Avenue, Milo, Maine, April 4.—Leona Achorn Gillis wrote, "I am trying to get funds enough together to send my twins away to school next year. Doubtful if I get to Colby for Commencement."

Pickwick Hospital, Pickwick, Tenn., April 5.—Helen Joy Hinckley described her work as supervisor of the Infirmary at Pickwick Dam and then added, "Pickwick is the only wholly electrical town in the United States. It is very nice except when the current goes off. At the present moment we are having a violent thunderstorm. The river has risen so high the Dam is covered."

I have missed the letters of Lillian Lowell, Pauline Herring, Caro Chapman Robinson, Ruth Wood Hehner, Esther Wood, Colby 1922, of Gorham Normal, paid Keene Normal a visit late in May. We were glad to see her.

Your agent is driving home to San Pedro, Calif., with Idella K. Farnum, Colby 1914. We expect to return to Keene Normal in September. Hasta la Vista!!

Her daughter Elizabeth who was born in Waterville and whose education was suspended on account of ill health is graduating from Oberlin this year, with an eight-year-old son who will have the privilege of seeing the finish.

Lois Meserve Flye has returned to Maine to live at Pemaquid where she has just been elected Regent of Pemaquid Chapter of the D. A. R. Her daughter Harriett is graduating this year from Gorham Normal.

Blanche Pratt writes that she does the usual things that are expected of a High School principal's wife. She enjoys club life to quite an extent and is quite a homebody also.

We quote from Grace Bicknell Eisenwinter's letter, "Last Saturday I attended the state meeting of Connecticut A. A. U. W. Do urge all Colby women to become members. I like very much the circular 'Colby, Today and Tomorrow.' I have found in it a friend or so of whom I had lost track."

Your correspondent has just received such a newsy letter from Mildred Holmes that she submits it in toto even though it is not restricted to '15 girls:

"I happened to be in Calais when Helen Hanson spoke at a district meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club. The acquaintance who was with me had heard of her but had never seen her. She made this remark concerning Helen, 'I have often heard of Miss Hanson and was interested to see her. One can not help but be impressed by her personality. Her attitude of kindness and charity is most evident and shows why she is a leader in Washington County.'"

"At the organization dinner of the Washington County Alumni Association, Esther French Spaulding, '16, enjoyed herself and had the same old cordial way of talking to everyone. I was amused to hear her say that she was relieved to have more fun time now as all her children were at school—she also told of trying to arrange her daily schedule so that she could get in a nap every afternoon. She did not look as though she needed one at all.

"Hattie Lawler Davis, '13, has a daughter teaching in the primary school at Eastport. Her husband has charge of the Post Office at Quoddy village, a most responsible position.

"At the annual convention of the B. P. W. held in Aroostook county in May, the talents of Clara Collins Piper, '14, did much to make the Caribou meeting a success. The hit of the convention was a pantomime skit written and presented by Clara, a take off on political activities. The idea was clever and it was excellently done, full of wit and humor. Clara runs a tea shop in Caribou.

"Blanche Farrington, '14, at the convention, showed the same old hearty laugh, her dimples were still in evidence and she nonchalantly flourished a roll of scrip. She did not seem at all worried about its purchasing value, as evidently the depression has not made much of a dent in her resources. She teaches Latin in Caribou High School.

"Dean Elizabeth Bass was also at the convention. For the last two years she has developed a bowling league among the various clubs, which is the strongest organization in the Maine clubs. Her ability and interest in young people show up in that sort of work. Miss Bass was always a fine looking woman but now she is quite distinguished looking."

Dr. Kent T. Royal received newspaper mention on May 26 when he figured in a curious case. Three children in one family of North Brookfield were stricken with appendicitis almost simultaneously and underwent operations by Dr. Royal within 24 hours.

Hazel Gibbs, who I understand is Dean of Women at Cony High, wrote me just at the peak of the flood:

"Augusta has suffered less than other cities on the Kennebec but to live with the fear of bridges going down any minute the water supply being cut off from our side of the river, has given a bare suggestion but surely no slight realization of what others have gone through. . . . In teaching, the big problem which is so irritating these days is the lack of responsibility on the part of many. 'You do the worrying,' their manner indicates. We see it reflected in copying home work, not keeping their word, etc., but they do not feel that it is dishonest, when they are faced with the situation. Can we blame them for everything, when we see many adults today and their reactions? Politics is creeping more and more into the educational world today and is to blame for the feeling of insecurity which we teachers have in regard to jobs, salaries, support from the school board, and in many other ways. . . . This year I hope to spend the summer at my home, helping to care for two little nieces (one and two years old) who will come to Maine from Montana for the summer. These are my younger sister's children and she hasn't been home for three years. I have travelled a little some summers, have attended a summer session twice recently, have camped some each summer for physical recuperation, and have done various things, but mostly housework."

Florence Cain: "I taught here in the high school until 1925. Then I went to A. C. I., Mars Hill. Taught there eight years. At the end of the seventh year, rheumatic fever hit me. Taught the next year but at the end resigned. Since, I have been at home in Clinton."

Grace Farnum: "Don't forget we'll have to save our pennies, if we go to Colby in 1937. Even the Fords won't run for nothing. Perhaps one more election will bring prosperity for all. Longer hours, more pupils, less leisure, less pay is the story among the teachers here in Laconia."

Lillian Tuttle: "Yes, I still shiver just a little when I think of Dutchy. And can you imagine it, now I entertain Germans who can speak very little English. . . . My husband is a chemist and Germans and chemistry seem to go together. No, I didn't marry a Colby fellow, but a Colgate, '15, who works for the Russia Cement Company, (LePage's Glue) here in Gloucester. . . . Have I a family? Three brown eyed ones. Harold is ten; Thomas Carlyle is six; and Helen is four."

Madelyn Daggett: "It's not my good fortune to run into many Colby people. Once each summer I go on a picnic with Floy Strout and her family. Some of her friends are also mine so we make an annual affair of it. Last May I went to the Penobscot County Alumni Association at Hampden. I knocked a few golf balls around with President Johnson and was I embarrassed when I couldn't hit them!"

Hazel Robinson: "My oldest boy Robinson is 14, and looks 17. I took an active part in the Women's Club, church and two Badminton Clubs. This year, I was accompanist for both our local Woman's Club Chorus and the united choruses of the North County District of the N. H. Federation of which I am also secretary. I usually see Grace Fletcher at the Federation Meeting every year. She is active in everything in her town, recently becoming a member of the school board."

Marie Stanley: "I graduated from B. U.—hating most of it. My heart got left behind with you Colbyites. I went fresh from college to become, after one year of teaching—now listen hard—Principal of McGaw Normal School at Reed's Ferry, N. H. Principal because of war. No man was hired, and the other teacher was a normal grad so my fresh and unsullied A. B. made me Principal. Then I got nearer Boston and then to Rockville, Conn., and then back near Boston and the "boy friend," now the husband. I am now a country gentlewoman—at least Cohasset is country, beautiful country, 23 miles south of Boston."

Helen Cole writes interestingly of her work:

"My job is that of Director of the Foster Home Department of the New York Children's Aid Society. We have 450 children placed out in foster homes. Some of them are boarding and will go back to their own parents later and some will be adopted. There is also in the department, a small institution for older girls on Staten Island which I supervise, and a small receiving home next door to my office where we keep four or five children at a time until we find homes for them. We also run what we call a Housekeeper Service which means that we find women who will act as substitute mothers in families where the own mother is away in the hospital, or convalescing from an operation. These are usually older, motherly women who take care of the children and also care for the mother after she returns and until she is able to resume her own responsibilities. We do this in order to prevent the placing out of children if possible. This latter thing is a very new development in my work and has proved to be very worthwhile. Last June, I led a meeting at the National Conference of Social Work in Montreal in which this project was presented and it has attracted a great deal of attention all over the country. We have had inquiries from 26 cities since then asking for information about starting this service. Only two or three agencies in the country are doing it.

"Contrary to popular opinion, most of the children whom we place are not orphans. They are children who usually have but one parent, the other parent being out of the picture because of death, desertion or illness. Sometimes a mother who must work contributes to the board of her child. We find a private family who will take care of the youngster until he is old enough to go back home. The parent visits in the foster home each week and of course we visit as well to make sure that everything is going all right. Sometimes a mother is in a State Hospital or in a tuberculosis sanitarium for instance, and the father asks us to board the children until either the mother recovers or he is able to make some other plan to have them at home. It means that we board children sometimes six months, sometimes six years, but the purpose is to keep the bond between the children and the parent and eventually to reunite them.

"I have a staff of 25 people. Their work is divided. Some of them look up the cases of new families who apply for help, one or two of them spend all their time finding new homes for children, while others visit the children after they are placed and do case work with parents, trying to get the children back home. We always have students in training from the New York School of Social Work and that is a very interesting part of my work.

"At the present I am also teaching a course in child welfare in the School of Social Work at Fordham University—although I find that pretty hard work, it is a most interesting experience."

Fred Pottle, who as you know is a professor of English at Yale University, has been invited to Glasgow University in June, where he is to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. It would appear that Fred is taking a substantial lead in the race for academic honors. We are proud to have such a distinguished scholar from 1917 to represent the college in a foreign land.

The following item appeared in the Worcester Gazette:

Rev. A. Beverly Crossman, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Frankfort, Ind., who has been extended a call to the pastorate of the Lincoln Square Baptist Church, will take up his duties here September 1 and will begin his preaching September 14, it was announced last night by Irving M. Desper, parish clerk.

A World War veteran and former industrial chemist, Rev. Mr. Crossman was born in Needham 41 years ago and educated in the public schools of that town. He received his B. S. degree from Colby College in 1917. After serving in the U. S. Army inspection service during the war, he married Miss Ruby Stevenson of Wilmington, Del. The couple have two children.

Engaged as a chemical engineer for five years, Rev. Mr. Crossman entered the ministry in 1927, studying at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. He was called to the Indiana church in 1930. While in Frankfort, he was a member of the Indiana Baptist Board of Promotion, headed three evangelical associations of the state, and was a member of the evangelistic committee of the Indiana State Baptist Board.

Pleasantly enough we are fortunate in having several new items for you. We trust that you have received our personal and class letters from time to time, supplementing these news-bits which we gather for you every time the "Alumnus" appears.

Here goes: George Lowell, is now at 805 Main Street, Westbrook, Maine, where he is living while being employed in the McLellan store of that town. He writes very interestingly and seems satisfied with his duties as assistant manager of that store. Good luck, George, and thanks for your fine letter, in addition to your briefs on many of the class.

We learn that "Dick" Ball, whom we mentioned in a recent class letter as having "tough sailing" is now employed—by the McLellan Stores in Augusta. We wish him "smooth sailing."

As predicted some months ago by us, we are very happy to report that George Anderson, "pater" of all our classmates, is now married; and his ability has gained him a job as chief clerk in the Auditor's department in the Portland, Me., City Hall. We'd like to hear from you George, so please do not fail us. Congrats to you!

According to assumption, Theophile Krawiec should be a candidate for his M. A. degree at Brown University, where he has been working in the Psychology department.
