THE PICTURE on the front cover of the present issue is entitled Monhegan, Maine. It is from a painting by Rockwell Kent, and is part of the permanent collection of the Colby Museum of Art. It was the gift of Mr. Corliss Lamont. The picture on the back cover, although different in style, is thematically related to the picture of Monhegan. It is from a painting by William Kienbusch, and is entitled Sound of the Gong Buoy. It, also, is part of the permanent collection of the Colby museum. It was given by Mr. Robert M. Benjamin. The frontispiece is a picture of two bronze deer which were given to Colby by Mrs. Mildred H. Cummings. More information about these deer will be found below in the note by Hugh J. Gourley III.

We have been asked to announce that a biography of Annie Adams Fields is in progress. Annie Fields was a Boston writer and literary hostess who was a close friend of Sarah Orne Jewett for more than twenty-five years. Anyone engaged in similar research, or anyone with special information to offer, should write to Judith A. Roman, Department of English, Ballantine Hall 447, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana 47405.

Two graceful bronze deer have gained many admirers in the Cahners Lobby of the Museum since they were given to the College by Mrs. Mildred H. Cummings in 1979. They are pieces of garden sculpture which measure thirty-three and a half inches high, and are copies of deer excavated during the middle of the eighteenth century at the Villa of the Papyri in Herculaneum. This villa, which may have belonged to the father-in-law of Julius Caesar, was one of the largest and most luxurious villas in Herculaneum and Pompeii, and is the model for The J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, California.

The Villa of the Papyri had an important collection of bronzes—portraits, copies after Greek sculpture, and decorative sculpture—and a large library of manuscripts which gave their name to the villa. The original deer, dating possibly from the first century B.C., were probably displayed in the extensive gardens there, and are now in the collection of the Naples National Museum.

Copies of sculpture from Herculaneum and Pompeii were especially sought after by tourists traveling abroad during the end of the nineteenth century and the early twentieth century, and the deer in the Colby College Museum of Art were most likely cast at a Neapolitan foundry during this period.

Colby alumnus Bern Porter, who has made a personal crusade of effecting a union of science and art through the print medium, attended a reception in the Robinson Room to mark the opening of an exhibit of printed items written, composed, and published by him. The exhibit, which has appeared in New York City, San Jose, California, and Venice, California, will remain at Colby throughout the summer.

Special Collections received two unusual gifts in May. Member of the French Academy and Colby honorary degree recipient, author Marguerite Yourcenar donated eleven novels, three of them in two editions, and all inscribed to Colby. Colby Professor of English Irving Suss gave a typescript copy, signed by John Gardner, of Gardner's play "Helen at Home," which Suss directed at its world premier at Colby in May, 1980.
